Drought Has Sent Wheat Prices Soaring

Traders in Chicago in Frenzy Trying to Execute Buying Orders.

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Something like the spirit of yesterday came back to the grain pits today

The plague of drought in the cornfields and rust in Canadian wheat lands brought traders fighting for eloow room in the board of trade pits to bid for wheat and corn with a fervor not seen in months.

Wheat, whose value had ebbed in recent months until it sold a week ago at 83 3-8 cents a bushel, the lowest in 16 years, spurted up 5 to 6 1-8 cents from yesterday's close and was 12 cents above the record low. Corn kept ahead as the pacemaker, adding 6 7-8 to 7 7-8 cents a bushel to its worth and selling at 4 1-2 cents better than wheat.

Frantic traders shouted themselves hoarse trying to execute buying orders, with public participation in the market doubled since yesterday. In the corn pit the advance was so rapid that a cent a minute was added in one brief interval and in both the crowded pits quotations around the rim and at the bottom of the circle varied widely in the swift trading.

Wheat and corn both edged up above the dollar mark. September wheat finished the day at 96 5-8 to 7-8 cents; December at $1.02 1-2 to 7-8, March $1.07 1-2 to $1.08 and May $1.10 to 3-8. September corn ended at $1.01 to 3-8; December 97 1-4 to 1-2; March 99 7-8 cents to $1.00 1-8 and May $1.01 5-8.

Today's weekly crop report added only confirmation to the calamity reports from the corn fields. It described the marked deterioration of corn at an "alarming rate" in every grain state and said that much of the crop in the drought afflicted regions was beyond hope.

Oats advanced 3 to 3 1-4 cents, following the leaders. At the peak of today's trading there was a transaction of 500,000 bushels of wheat, involving, even at the low prevailing price, nearly a half million dollars.

FACTS ABOUT THE NEW HOUSE REAPPORTIONMENT

WASHINGTON, Aug 6.—(AP)—Submission of the new reapportionment figures to the house will find almost half of its membership representing states that are due to lose representation under the new allocation of seats.

The 20 states that will lose seats have 191 of the 435 members of the house as at present constituted. The 27 seats from the losing states will be transferred to eleven winning states.

When the December session of congress convenes, Secretary Lamont will submit a statement showing the population of the states and the number of seats to which each state is entitled.

Congress was careful, in instructing the secretary of commerce to let them know how the house would be apportioned on the basis of the new population, not to divest itself of any authority. The reapportionment law does not preclude congress at any time between 1930 and 1940 from passing an apportionment bill of any character it desires.

Should it fail to enact any apportionment bill, before the end of the coming session, the reapportionment submitted by the secretary of commerce shall become law.

Frank Hawkes Covered the Distance in 14 Hours, 50 Minutes, 43 Seconds—Stopped Five Times to Refuel His Plane—Bettered Previous Record by 3 Hours, 52 Minutes, 11 Seconds—Will Start East Sunday in an Endeavor to Better the Record Made by Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 6.— (AP) — Frank Hawks, who began a transcontinental flight from Curtiss Field, N. Y., at 5 a. m., (E. S. T.) today, landed at the municipal airport here at 4:50:43 p. m. (P. T.)

Hawks spent 14 hours, 50 minutes, 43 seconds en route and stopped five times to refuel his plane.

There was no trans-continental speed flight exactly comparable to the one made today, but Hawks clipped three hours, 52 minutes, 11 seconds off the 18-hour, 42 minutes, 54 seconds record Roscoe Turner made on a one-stop east-west crossing of the country last May 27.

Hawks besides holding the record for the fastest crossing of the continent ever made, holds the non-stop east-west record of 19 hours, ten minutes, 32 seconds.

Hawks stopped at Columbus, Ohio, St. Louis, Wichita, Kansas, Albuquerque, N. M., and Kingman, Arizona, the last 260 miles of the flight was made through storms.

The Lindberghs stopped but once en route to New York.

MILDER WEATHER IN THE CENTRAL STATES

CHICAGO, Aug. 6—(AP) — Milder weather prevailed in most of the central states except in Southern Illinois where temperatures up to 106 were still burning up the farm lands.

Both Iowa and Nebraska had temperatures in the 90's, ten to fifteen degrees cooler than earlier in the week. A cloudburst in northwest Nebraska brought the temperature down, but also did extensive damage to crops.

Chicago and the Great Lakes area were comfortable with the temperature near normal in the 70's. Scattered rain fell in Northern Illinois but in the southern part of the state, the worst drought and heat spell of a decade showed no sign of letting up. Many wells were drying up and farmers were digging new holes to avoid dangers of polluted wells and streams.

All crops have been seriously affected by the extended drought since July 1, and in several districts farmers have been forced to haul water as far as 30 miles.

It was 106 in Franklin County, Ill., today, compared with 77 in Chicago. Centralia reported 104 and it was 106 in Salem.

Omaha, Neb., reported a reading of 93 at 2 p. m., with a forecast of fair clear weather with not much change in temperature. Rain fell in Lincoln where at 2 p. m., the mercury stood at 96. Des Moines, Ia., reported 93 with "continued warm" forecast.

LEGATEES LOST BY SHRINKAGE OF ESTATE

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—(AP)—When Aaron De Cordova, for 40 years a Wall street broker, died last October, he left a net estate of more than $500,000, and his five brothers and one sister, sharing equally the residue, were to receive $33,284 each.

Twelve other heirs, friends and relatives of De Cordova, whose claims as legatees were given priority over those of the brothers and sisters who were to share the residue, will receive a part of their inheritance.

POLICE CHIEF UNCOVERS SPEAGEASY SINGLE HANDED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 6—While strolling down Jackson street shortly before 3 o'clock this afternoon, Chief of Police Thomas F. Grady saw a young man try the door of a mysterious new "joint" in the Oden block at 48 Jackson street. The door was evidently locked for the young man started off, but he had gone only a few paces when a beckoning hand was thrust through the door. The young man turned to retrace his steps, recognized the chief and hastily retreated. Chief Grady was impressed by the invitation to get out of the 100 degree temperature, however, and assumed the invitation personally. Finding that the door had been unlocked for the "customer" the chief entered. He saw one man drinking at a bar and Leo Lavallee in the act of going over the bar in the apparent role of bartender. A cursory investigation disclosed a well equipped beer and liquor dispensary. Lavallee and his companion disclaimed ownership so the police head appealed to Alfred V. Oden, the owner. Mr. Oden said he had rented the place recently to the Pastime Athletic club and that Lavallee, as treasurer, was to pay the rent. Officers were called in and they confiscated a nickel slot machine, 11 cases of beer, one gallon of alcohol and about 20 empty beer cases. Lavallee, who is 24 years of age, was arrested for violation of the liquor laws and released under bonds for his appearance in police court Thursday morning. The police were told that the club had started operation last Friday. Over $23 was found in the cash register of the well equipped establishment.

Eddie John Bound Over.

In police court this morning Eddie J. John, 35, of 63 Milk street, was arraigned on a charge of assault with intent to kill with a razor. Probable cause was found by Judge Frank H. Foss and John was placed under bonds of $5,000 to appear in the next criminal term of superior court. John, who was released this morning from St. Joseph's hospital where he had undergone treatment since Monday afternoon for injuries inflicted with a baseball bat in the hands of his brother-in-law, John Eddy, pleaded not guilty to the charge.

John Eddy testified in court today that his relative rushed into the store with a drawn razor. In self protection he picked up the baseball bat and struck the man over the head and back. He said that John, who had started an argument over property rights, had the razor raised over his head when the bat knocked him unconscious. Eddy said that he could not tell how many times he had struck the man. Felix Desrosiers of 150 Ives street, who was in the store at the time, corroborated Eddy's testimony. The story was also substantiated by Mrs. Eddy, who is John's sister. She added that her brother had frequently threatened her husband. Policemen Albert Montie and Arthur Hurley also testified, the former stating that during the investigation John had said that when he got out he would put a bullet in Eddy. John offered no defense, saying that he would have to confer with counsel. In default of the bonds he was taken to the county jail at Brooklyn.

On motion of Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Frank P. Fenton, Judge Foss nolled the charge of assault pending against John Eddy.

WANTED WHOLE ROAD, BENJ. SIEGAL DOES DAMAGE

Benjamin Siegal of 101 Avon street, Hartford is scheduled to appear Monday evening at 7 o'clock before Judge Charles F. Brown in the local court on a charge of reckless driving, as the aftermath of an automobile accident in which he was implicated on the Bock corner, a half mile above Colchester Center at 8:45 o'clock Wednesday morning. Siegal was driving a Packard sedan, Connecticut registration 125017, owned by Mrs. Dora Segal, also of 101 Avon street, Hartford, and was proceeding toward Colchester from Hartford. In rounding the curve in front of the Bock property on North Main street, he met a New London-Hartford bus and at the same time attempted to squeeze by Anthony Rutka's horse-drawn ice wagon which was headed toward the village. He drove his car head-on into the rear of the wagon, raised it into the air and pushed the vehicle and horse sixty-six feet before bringing his machine to a halt. The occupants of the wagon, Mortimer Krupnic and Mr. Rutka's son Leo, were badly shaken up. The Rutka boy was treated by Dr. E. J. Howland for a severe injury to his leg. Pride Impels the Finest Quality

IN 1646 the shoemakers of Boston, provoked by "much bad work produced by their craft," petitioned "Ye Governor of Ye Bay Colonie" that "all boots might be alike made well." So began America's pride in Craftsmanship.

Pride in the production of the finest Quality still lives. It is the spirit upon which in 1874 at Manchester, New Hampshire, Roger G. Sullivan founded 7-20-4—now the largest strictly hand-made cigar industry in the World.

Quality workmanship and the finest tobaccos have been traditional with 7-20-4 since its beginning. It is the same spirit today, after fifty-six years of public confidence—which refuses to lower its standard of manufacture at the sacrifice of the finest Cigar Quality.

We cordially invite you to visit our factory

DANIELSON

WOMEN SENT TO JAIL; NO MONEY TO PAY FINE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Aug. 6—The joys of motoring have their sorrows, as cuckoo a statement as this appears to be. In illustration it may be stated that Mrs. Lucile David was taken to the county jail at Brooklyn this afternoon to remain a sufficient period of time to cancel a fine of $10 and costs imposed on her in a justice's court in the town of Brooklyn for violation of a section of the motor vehicle law.

Mrs. David, whose home is in Hartford, was ordered into court, about two weeks ago, by State Officer James Carmody, for operating a car with defective brakes. The case had been continued. Mrs. David operating a car of advancing age, was apprehended in the town of Brooklyn. She had insufficient money to pay the assessment against her in court today, so, unless she meanwhile raises the money, she probably will stay in Brooklyn for most of the remainder of the month.

Eddie John, who figured in The Bulletin's news from Willimantic this morning, has a record in this town. Several years ago he was enamored of a married woman living here in Killingly. He made representations that he had given her a valuable ring. Not being able to obtain the return of it and she failing to show any special interest in him he made his way into her home through a window one night seeking to get the circlet, but was finally driven away from the place. He was intoxicated at the time. Some few days later he returned another night and started to batter down a door of the home with a club, whereupon the woman shot at him with a revolver. That put an erstwhile check on his operations in this territory, which was a favorite playground with him at that time.

Long afterwards, he meanwhile having been confined to the state hospital at Norwich, John figured in an automobile accident at the intersection of Broad and Reynolds street, his car crashing with a Massachusetts machine. John, uninjured in the crash, dashed away and across the park. Liquor was found in his machine. He was placed under arrest by a state officer and again presented in the town court.

Mrs. Annie Grady, 52, died today at her home in Plainfield, at the age of 52 years. She was the wife of Thomas Grady. Mrs. Grady was born in Biddeford Me., a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Laurie. There are no children.

Something akin to alarm had seized upon numbers of farmers in this section as today brought more blasting heat. From every side came tales of crop damaged due to lack of rain. Pastures have been burned brown by the sun and grazing is none too good on many farms.

From a farm in the Bush hill section of Brooklyn came a report that unless rain comes promptly a potato crop will be ruined. Another told of cucumber vines drying to the extent that they can be crumpled in the hand like dried leaves in the fall. There are many variations of these tales as they effect different crops. The whole situation is exceedingly disturbing.

There is one consoling feature, however, and that is the great improbability of Danielson proper suffering from a water famine. There is ample water in the reservoirs at East Killingly to withstand a much longer drought than the present one has run. No restrictions have been placed on the use of water by the Crystal Water company, but this is no invitation to be wasteful of it.

Outside the territory served by the company's water mains some wells are reported as having gone dry and others on the verge of doing so.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill said this afternoon that he has not as yet attempted to interview the two Webster young girls who were terribly injured in the automobile accident at Central Village last Sunday afternoon. Their condition today remained so critical that Coroner Bill made no effort to talk with them about the circumstances surrounding the accident.

Members of the Nazarene church are inviting all interested persons to attend services there next Sunday, when an unusual personage, Adam Zagas, a boy preacher of Woonsocket, will occupy the pulpit, at the morning service at 10:30. The very youthful preacher will tell of his conversion and experiences. He has preached in many churches and at various missions throughout New England.

To local motorists it is a disturbing proposal that an outstanding Worcester Automobile club is reported in the Worcester press as advocating to Massachusetts motor vehicle authorities and state police over the northern border of Connecticut to arrest Connecticut motorists for petty violations of automobile regulations. This situation arises because the Worcester automobile club members claim that drivers from the Bay State are so frequently arrested in Connecticut for minor violations of the law. They further assert that they will bring a test case, and designate Windham county as a preferred place for starting it, to put a stop to what they call "roadside" justice.

Rev. and Mrs. Stanley W. Graf, of Moline, Ill., are guests for a few days of Miss Marion D. Chollar of Broad street. Mrs. Graf will be remembered by many here as Mrs. Elizabeth Matthews-Richardson, daughter of Rev. S. S. Matthews, D. D., pastor of the Westfield Congregational church of Danielson twenty-five years ago.

Captain Gordon J. Gale of the Service battery, plans to arrange for a visit with Headquarters and Medical detachments of Danielson on Sunday at Camp Devens, when a divisional review is to be held.

PUTNAM

WORK NEARLY COMPLETED ON NEW FILTER BEDS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Aug. 6—Ralph E. Thurston, chairman of the board of water commissioners, said today that engineers at work on the installation of new filter beds at the city pumping station in Harrisville have nearly completed work on the last of the four new beds purchased a few months ago. With work finished, Mr. Thurston said the water department will be enabled to filter 3,000,000 gallons of water a day which incidentally is the pumping capacity of the department.

In case of fire emergency, Mr. Thurston continued, there will be no necessity of pumping raw water into the mains, inasmuch as any desired amount of water can be purified before it reaches its point of consumption. The purchase and installation of additional filter beds for the water system is a health and safety measure brought about since Mr. Thurston was appointed head of the water department two years ago.

ROTARIANS HEAR TALK BY RETIRED MISSIONARY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Aug 6—Edward H Chandler of Woodstock, a retired missionary, was the speaker at the noon day luncheon of the Putnam Rotary club, held today at the Putnam Inn. In his talk Mr. Chandler dwelt upon India, a country in which he has spent a number of years of his life in traveling and working among the natives. Through careful study and observation he has acquired insight upon the habits of nation. During the half hour that he spoke Mr. Chandler furnished an interesting description of India and its people, and their religious views. He talked at length upon the recent political difficulties that have commanded universal attention. Mr. Chandler spoke of Mahatma Gandhi whose propaganda and civil disobedience campaign is largely responsible for the innumerable uprisings that have taken place in that part of the far flung British empire since early summer. Mr. Chandler's pleasing delivery on this interesting subject brought him a rising vote of thanks from the large number of Rotarians who listened most attentively during the course of his address.

During the executive session the club voted to attend the annual clambake of the Windham County Farmers' association, scheduled to take place at the Brooklyn fair grounds on August 18, beginning at 11 o'clock (d. s. t.)

Visiting Rotarians present at today's luncheon were Robert D. Webster of Southbridge; Henry Johnson, Clifford Starkweather and Sidney Bard of Danielson. Luncheon guests included, Mr. Chandler, J. Henry Templeton of Irvington, N. Y., and John F. Reardon Jr., of North Grosvenordale.

An amusing incident occurred over in Pomfret late Tuesday evening, when a burglar alarm on a parked automobile on the property of the Ben Grosvenor hotel, suddenly went on a rampage, woke up a number of the guests and village residents and finally summoned an officer of the state police barracks at Danielson.

The installation of the burglar alarm on the automobile was a precautionary measure resorted to by its owner, to prevent the possibility of hoodlums making away with it under cover of darkness and unreknown to the owner, who is a porter at the inn.

The conditions of Anna Spitz and Mae Mraizik, Webster girls injured in Sunday's fatal accident at Central Village, were reported today by Day Kimball hospital officials as unchanged. The Spitz girl made a slight improvement Tuesday and continued to gain in strength today. Her associate evidenced no marked improvement the hospital report said. Both are continued on the danger list.

It was said today that there is a possibility of the one time stately home of the late George A. Hammond on Oak Hill, being restored to its former appearance. The property which was permitted to slump to a dilapidated condition by going for a number of years without attention, was recently sold to a Providence woman. The large structure which overlooks the city from the east side, at one time was one of the most imposing houses in Putnam.

Mayor Charles A. Richard is opposed to the city's present high rate charged for circuses intent upon showing here. The chief executive called this fact to the attention of the council at the August session Tuesday evening. Putnam has a standing fee of $100 which must be paid before a circus can invade the big lot in this city. The price the mayor says, is ridiculously high, and had been largely instrumental in keeping a number of first class shows out this season. Mayor Richard, who says he still delights in watching the doings underneath the "big tent," recommended that the matter be referred to the ordinance committee, and that an effort be made to reduce the present high fee to a figure on par with the fees charged by surrounding cities.

Mayor Richard said that there has been some comment concerning the failure of a circus to appear in Putnam this year. In discussing this matter he said that he did not oppose any movement of a circus to show in Putnam. "While they take a large amount of money out of the city," the mayor said, "they leave a great deal and serve to bring large numbers of visitors to town." The majority of council men were in harmony with the mayor's views and the matter is now under the consideration of the committee on ordinances.

City Health Officer Peter A. Gardner in the interests of increasing the standards of health, has visited every business house in the city which sends truck loads of refuse to the dumping grounds on Killingly avenue and has instructed the proprietors the cover their garbage and waste loads with a protective canvass or sheeting in order that loose material will not fly off and clutter up the city streets while the load is enroute to the dump.

Mrs. Dennis Donovan of Woodstock avenue, recently underwent an operation at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester.

The annual outing of the Canadian Athletic club will be held next Sunday at Labossiere's grove on Church street.

County Agent Raymond E. Wing of the farm bureau said this afternoon that there have been no complaints received this season from farmers in this section concerning the ravages of the Japanese bettle, a new destructive pest now infesting gardens, in this country.

JEWETT CITY

SEARCH FOR AN UMPIRE FOR THIS EVENING'S GAME

The final game in the Jewett City Twilight league has been played, but the end is not yet. Managers Chase and Flagg were "chasing" all through this section Wednesday, trying to "flag" an umpire for the big game, which is to be played this (Thursday) evening at Ashland park, between the Rayon girls and the Plainfield maids. Late Wednesday evening it was reported that there had been 43 applicats for that responsible assignment. None, so far, have shaped up to the requirements. The man who steps into the field that night must leave all hope behind. He must be free-born, of uncertain age and come well recommended, and, moreover, he must have made suitable proficiency in preceding games as the administrator of baseball law where fair players were alone concerned. It is understood that in the other two games, the umpires presented distracting conditions because of being too easy to look at in the feminine eyes, hence for this game, no handsome man need apply. He must refrain from serving up too harsh arbitrament, and he must, above all, understand the ways of a maid. If such there be, the job is his, and he is assured reduced rates for any subsequent medical or matrimonial attendance.

Gifts For Retiring Officers

The St. Anne society held a meeting Tuesday evening in honor of its two retiring officers, Mrs. Edward Rousseau, who has been president for 3 years, and Mrs. Alcida St. John, who has served two annual terms as secretary. The retiring presiding officer was presented a beautiful bouquet and a handsome string of regent pearls, while the secretary was given a choice leather purse. Mrs. Joseph Maynard addressed the assemblage speaking in appreciation of the retiring president's administration and acknowledging the society's obligation to her for her interest and activity which accomplish such good results. Ice cream and cake were served by Mrs. St. John and Mrs. L. M. Gingras.

MAY HAVE TO CARRY WATER TO THE THIRSTY TROUT

Following the coolest night this month, the mercury stood in the middle 90's for five hours Wednesday, making four days in a string of excessive heat. Records kept at the Jewett City Water Co.'s reservoir by P. A. Weaver, show that since July 15 there has fallen in this section only eighty-four one-hundredths of an inch of rain. St. Swithin's day, there was .52 and on July 27, .32 with no rain since the latter date. The big reservoir Wednesday evening showed 24 1-2 inches low. In addition to a clear, highland brook, this remarkable Stone Hill reservoir is fed by several sub-surface springs, which insures little interference with the borough's water supply, even during the most protracted droughts. Supt. A. A. Young, Jr., has not yet deemed it necessary to place restrictions on the use of hose for outside watering. Several borough famous trout-streams are "feeling" the dry weather. During severe winter seasons when snow has filled the woods and game birds' covers, the local sportsman's club has carried grain to the fields for the relief of partridges and quail. One warden thought it might yet be necessary to carry water to the trout that are left in deep holes with the supply dried up.

Mary and Mildred Fergerson, daughters of Mrs. Addie Fergerson, will be discharged from Backus hospital today (Thursday) following throat operations.

In the ages of the ex-service man's daughters, for whom clothing was solicited, published in Wednesday's news, the figure 19 should have read 10. The girls' ages are 3, 5, 9 and 10.

The pageant, The Light of Truth, recently presented in Canterbury church, is to be repeated in Newent church next Sunday evening at eight o'clock. Sixty people take part in this pageant

ITALY NEEDS NO AID FROM AMERICAN RED CROSS

The following notice has been received by the local Red Cross chapter from Ernest P. Bicknell, vice chairman in charge of insular and foreign operations:

"When news was received concerning the serious earthquake of July 23rd in southern Italy, the American Red Cross cabled the Italian Red Cross as follows:

"Profoundly distressed by tragic disaster which has fallen upon your beautiful country. Would our help be welcome."

We later cabled the Italian Red Cross:

"Please advise to whom American Red Cross should send inquiries from persons in America concerning individuals in earthquake area. Shall American Red Cross send you unsolicited relief contributions which it receives."

We have now received the following cable from the Italian Red Cross:

"Profoundly moved by your offer; return warmest thanks informing you national funds are sufficient. Requests for news can be referred to Italian Red Cross."

The above incoming cable definitely indicates that Italy does not request or need the assistance of the American Red Cross in the relief of the earthquake sufferers and that we should not endeavor to collect contributions for this disaster.

When chapters are asked by individuals to secure information concerning relatives or friends in the earthquake zone they should forward such inquiries to this office and we will endeavor to secure the necessary information through the Italian Red Cross.

STONINGTON

A new schedule has been announced for the collection of garbage in the borough by Mr. Rathbone, who has the contract for its removal. Beginning this week a collection will be made of garbage Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, and rubbish will be collected Tuesday and Thursday.

New Parking Rules

A special meeting of the warden and burgesses of the borough was held Monday evening to take action on the parking rules covering the Water street section from Omega street to the point. Owners of cars have been parking for hours in the narrow road making it impossible for cars to pass. The officials hope to remedy this matter so that all may have an equal chance to get to this popular place.

HEAT CAUSE OF DEATH OF ANTONE SANTOS, AGED 51

Antone Santos, 51, of Broad street, died suddenly from the heat Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock while trucking freight for the Atwood Machine Co., at the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. Co. yard. Two barrels, weighing 300 pounds each, had been put in the car, following which Santos fell to the floor of the car. Dr. C. Mallory Williams was called and did everything possible to restore consciousness. Medical Examiner Dr. A. H. Myers gave permission for the removal of the body. Mr Santos was born in the Azores. He leaves his wife and nine children, six daughters and three sons. He had many friends in the borough. REDUCING ARMIES

Those were words to which the world can well afford to listen which were spoken over the radio by Viscount Cecil of England when he argued that nations should go farther than limitation of navies and should apply themselves to a limitation of armies as a real move towards peace. He directed his appeal specially towards a general reduction of the land forces of Europe, and while he applauded the limitation of navies he indicated that he saw too many signs of preparedness, not for peace but for war. "National humiliation, if not invasion," he says, "is discussed. Foreigners are depicted as compounds of boundless cunning and unscrupulous ambition. A growth of the war mind is produced and it is the war mind which leads to war."

Then he added: "All this is bad enough with fleets, but it is ten times worse with armies and air forces, for a fleet cannot actually invade another country, and it is the cry of invasion that creates the most dangerous panics. It renders nations from time to time almost frantic, and worst of all, it makes them ready dupes of those who urge their diabolical halftruth—if you want peace you must prepare for war. Not so. You must prepare for peace, and the best preparation for peace is disarmament."

Viscount Cecil was Lord Robert Cecil when the league of nations was being created and he has the prestige and character as a statesman to give the greatest effect to his appeal. It is said, and perhaps with truth, that though Great Britain has substantially reduced her land forces and France has done a little in that line, there are today more men in the standing armies of Europe than there were in 1914. With that condition existing it is time for an authoritative voice to be heard in the interest of peace. What the response will be is for the future to tell.

TWO-WAY TROUBLE PROMISED

In failing to act on the nomination of Nicholas Roosevelt of New York for the vice-governorship of the Philippines, the senate did not deter the president from giving Mr. Roosevelt a recess appointment to that position. Moving influences which held the senate back from acting on the nomination were the opposition of the insurgent element, which now has been intensified by the recess appointment and the protests coming from the Philippine legislature and influential native leaders.

The trouble is that Mr. Roosevelt published a book four years ago in which he made some observations of his travels in the far east. To the Philippine policy of the United States he applied the uncomplimentary designation of "an experiment in misplaced altruism." The natives didn't like what he wrote about their mental and moral characteristics, particularly that they were ungrateful, unappreciative and incapable of sincere dealing in politics. The opponents of Mr. Roosevelt's appointment insist that in his book he showed contempt for the Filipinos and advocated a vigorous colonial policy modeled on that of the Dutch.

President Hoover believes that Mr. Roosevelt has been misunderstood, and that his appointee really feels a very lively sympathy for his Philippine charges and is prepared heartily to cooperate with them in the spirit of good-will. But if the Roosevelt book has given offense and shows prejudice, co-operation between him and the natives will be difficult.

The appointment may be essentially sound but it cannot be called expedient, for it has in it the elements of trouble from the start of the relations between the vice-governor and the islanders. The United States is not so poor in administrative ability that choice of an administrator which raises embarrassing questions and has to be explained and defended can be regarded as the best possible choice.

PRIMARIES IN AUGUST

August heat may tend to curtail many activities, but it seems to hold no terrors for politicians, candidates and officials who operate the election machinery. Seventeen states will choose nominees for senator, congressman, governor and numerous other offices this month, and in 16 of them the election will be made by primaries, of which August has the largest number. Kentucky opened the series last Saturday, but by a new election law the count was not begun until Monday. Primaries were held Tuesday in Kansas, Missouri, Virginia and West Virginia. In Tennessee the voting will be today.

Next Tuesday is primary day in Alabama, Arkansas, Nebraska, Ohio and Oklahoma, with voting in the last named state limited to a "run-off" between the leading democratic candidates for governor and senator. Mississippi and Wyoming will select nominees on Aug. 19, and four days later Texas will hold a "run-off" between Mrs. Ferguson and Ross S. Sterling to decide the democratic nomination for governor. The last primaries of the month will be held in California and South Carolina, both on the 26th. On the same day Idaho will pick its candidates, but by the convention system.

The list itself suggests one reason why August ranks first in the number of primaries. Agricultural areas predominate in these states, and the farmers in them have more leisure in this month than at any other period during the growing season. But another reason may be that in states which select nominees in August campaigns of medium length are preferred.

RUSSIAN TRADE RELATIONS

It is apparent that the secretary of the treasury has acted discreetly in directing customs officers that Russian ships carrying wood pulp cargoes may unload at United States ports. Previously these ships had been denied admittance on the ground that the pulp was the product of convict labor Some people might think that all labor in Russia under the soviet system is at least forced labor, but investigation discloses that there is no reason for excluding these 79 shiploads of pulp. Contracts for its use had been made by American paper mills where workmen were marking times until the pulp arrived. It appears, moreover, that the pulp is not the product of convict labor, but of labor at least as free as any Russian labor can be. Under the weight of testimony there remained nothing else in fairness that could be done but to allow the mills to receive the pulp.

The incident involves a train of important events. The Amtorg Trading corporation, in the absence of diplomatic relations is the business representative in New York of the soviet government, which is the exporter, not only of the pulp, but of practically all Russian goods. Individual activity is not authorized by the soviets. Amtorg, as the agent, has established important relations with American manufacturers and exporters and has arranged for a market in Russia of hundreds of millions of American products. The congressional inquiry into the activities of Russian communists in this country brought the Amtorg under investigation. The wood pulp and other incidents followed, but it has not been established that these importations have to do either with convict labor or with communistic activities.

President Hoover, while giving no formal orders, was at least friendly to a re-investigation of the original reports. Veiled suggestions of a trade war were uttered in Russia, but relations were re-established rather through an expressed wish in official America that hostile and snap judgment against soviet merchandizing was not to be encouraged.

STRIKING AGAINST INSURANCE

In northern France hosts of wage workers are on strike, not because of any grievance against their employers, but because they are unwilling to pay the contributions exacted of them by the new social insurance law. Their wages, they say, are not enough to take anything from them, and it is their view that the whole burden imposed by the comprehensive plan of insurance should have been placed on the employers. Now that the law is in force, they demand increase in wages that would serve at least to cover their present share of the cost of the insurance benefits.

As there is little unemployment in France, the strikers have left their jobs with considerable confidence that they will win. However, it does not appear likely that the demands of the strikers will be granted. Taxation in France is so heavy that Premier Tardieu has launched a vigorous attack upon the whole trend toward socialist legislation as well as upon the subserviency and wastefulness which he alleges permeates modern parliamentary assemblages.

Addressing a workers' audience, he pointed to the alarming growth of public expenditures. He reminded his hearers that the citizen was a consumer and taxpayer first and that only in a secondary sense was he a beneficiary of benevolent legislation.

Premier Tardieu, who is an extremely clever politician, must feel that there is a strong reaction in France against the costly welfare programmes of the socialist and leftist groups, which possibly have overreached themselves in pushing through legislation along welfare lines

CAN'T BE DONE

"We simply can't be married in Nevember," Margie said, and gazed out at the trees which were now all crimsoned in defiance of the racing autumn wind.

"Why not?" asked her astonished fiance.

"Oh, just because."

"But Margie, we planned it for months and we've saved enough to buy that little house we liked and there isn't any good reason why we should wait." David's voice was low with disappointment.

"Well, anyway, I've a hunch we just shouldn't jump into it. I know I'm right. We'll set the date for spring." Margie sat adamant in the smooth leather seat of the roadster. David did not answer. His jaw was set in a hard line and his eyes watched the road before him with savage intensity. He wouldn't quarrel with Margie. Their engagement of a year had not been marred by a single argument and he did not intend to begin disagreeing now. As much as he loved Margie, though, he knew that one of her faults was her willful insistence that she was right. Margie felt that she was always right.

David's meditation of Margie's self-assurance was broken by a sharp cry.

"David! You should turn right here!"

"No, Margie. The road to Michigan goes straight on," he replied patiently.

"Why, David, I'm surprised at you. As many times as you've driven this road not to know that you turn right here."

"All right, then, back-seat driver. We'll turn right, since you are right."

Margie detected a tiny note of sarcasm in David's voice as he turned back to the road which Margie said led to the Michigan shore. But she was certain of the way and sat back silently to wait the proof of her direction. They drove and drove, miles and miles. The red sun dropped to the rim of the sky and still they drove on the endless white paving. Margie looked anxiously for landmarks but everything was strange to her. They should have been at the shore by sunset.

"David," she said after a while. "David!"

"Yes?"

"I think maybe we are on the wrong road."

"Yes?"

"Maybe we should not have turned back there," her voice was apologetic.

"Well, this is a nice drive, anyway," he answered cheerfully. "We'll drive to the next inn and have a bite to eat."

It was dark as they stepped from the car, and they were very hungry. "Before we eat, though, we'd better call mother so she won't be worrying about our being late," Margie suggested.

David took up the telephone in the little booth.

"Mother's over at the Nichols to tea, you know," Margie reminded him.

"What's their number?" David called over his shoulder.

"Onyx 1939," Margie answered as she powdered her nose.

"No, that's the wrong exchange. It is Tower, isn't it?" David turned around in the narrow booth.

"Now, David. How many times do I call Fran Nichols! Of course it is Onyx!"

"Onyx 1939," David told the operator.

"Hello, Onyx 1939?" he asked presently. "Is this the Nichols residence? It isn't? Pardon me! Wrong number!"

The moon came up as they drove home. The white light was radiant on the road but David and Margie drove in strained silence. David was contemplating Margie's unexpected postponement of the wedding—just because she knew she was right.

Margie thought how kind David had been not to laugh when she had forgotten the right telephone number. And he had been nice about the road, too, and hadn't said a word about her mistake. She turned her head until, in the moonlight, she saw the outline of David's face. His jaw was set, determined, and his mouth made a fine line in the shadow. Her heart beat faster, perhaps during their long engagement she had forgotten how wonderful David was. Suppose she waited until spring. Suppose something should happen and the delay would mean losing David forever. She shuddered.

"Chilly?" David turned to look at the pensive face beside him.

"No," she answered softly. "But David, after all, I think we'd better not wait until spring. I think October would be a nice month to be married, don't you?"

His astonished eyes pierced the moonlight.

"And this time, I know I'm right!" she laughed in gay defiance to the rushing autumn wind.—Chicago News

YOUR HEALTH

Some Aspects Of Deafness, Economic And Otherwise

By Vance P. Peery, M. D., Kinston, N. C.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute, Washington, D. C.

It is a reliable estimate which states that in American schools there are today about three million partially deaf children.

The American Federation of Leagues for the Hard of Hearing, the national medical associations, and competent ear specialists, realize that one of the big problems in preventing deafness in adults is the discovery of any defects of hearing, minor or otherwise, in early life. A child with the beginning of a serious ear trouble may not complain or give pronounced evidence of such trouble or of any defect in hearing until it has become well established, thereby losing much time in treatment, with resultant permanent damage to the hearing organs.

School inspections by health officers, nurses, etc., discover a great many cases which have failed to arouse suspicion even in the close daily association with family and teacher. Without a special instrument it would be a very big and a very tedious task for two or three doctors to examine thoroughly the ears of all the children in even a moderately large school. Such an instrument permits the detection of even minor losses of hearing in groups of forty or less in a short time, making it quite simple and easy to separate the normal from the abnormal. The abnormal are then referred to a competent ear specialist for further exhaustive study.

It is a recognized fact that tonsils, adenoids, and sinus diseases cause a great many ear conditions, with deafness in varying degree. This deafness is one of the direct causes of repeaters in school work, due to inattention, lack of interest, and other attendant handicaps. These handicaps will not permit fair competition between children so affected and those not so affected. Repeaters add materially to the cost and the overhead of our school work. In a county of 10,000 school children this unnecessary cost of the repeaters in the eight grammar grades is estimated as from $8,000 to $25,000. This is only the economic side to the taxpayer. The remedy for that is group testing, as suggested. The instrument for a county, of, say, 50,000 would cost about $500. This plus a reasonable fee to a specialist to give an accurate survey of the hearing of all school children in that county, would be only a very small part of the saving made.

Before your child enters school have a thorough physical examination made by your doctors, including careful examination of eye, ear, nose and throat.

Wise expenditure of the public money alone demands that the cost of efficient medical examination and inspection of school children be considered as a necessary initial outlay. This cost will be saved a thousand times over by avoiding the individual and group problems that these repeaters present.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6—When the name of the sage of Yellow Springs, Ohio, Senator Simeon D. Fess, bobbed up as probable successor to Claudius Huston of Tennessee as head of the republican national committee, the Bystander was moved to dig in the news files about Fess.

There is a lot about him there. He has been busy for years in numerous ways. And two things particularly drew attention.

If there is anyone more consistently regular in G. O. P. circles than Fess, he is hard to find. Fess has had a permanent seat on republican administration band wagons ever since he entered politics.

And he more or less claims credit for having hurled the democrats out of power in the house in 1918 and having more than quadrupled the republican house majority in 1920.

Fess was chairman of the republican congressional campaign committee in those years. He records his successes in his official thumbnail biography. That is No. 1.

No. 2 has to do with his views on multiple terms for presidents. He is on record about that, having issued a statement out in Yellow Springs at the time of President Harding's death.

It urged one six or seven-year term for a president, with no immediate repeat.

"Ineligibility for re-election would remove the grounds which today make the president to much the head of the party rather than the head of the government, no matter how much he might detest the discrimination," the Fess statement of 1923 said.

"The six or seven years is long enough to develop a policy and would enable the administration to accomplish better results than two terms of four years each, because of the overemphasis of party success rather than of the general good."

That conceivably could cause the Ohioan some trouble if, as national committee chairman, his primary objective was re-election of President Hoover in 1932.

And what other business has a national committee head, selected by a first term president to be his political prime minister?

Fess said that himself in his statement:

"Not infrequently much of the energy of the head of the administration during the first term is expended in getting ready for re-election," is the way he put it.

Fess was not, like Huston an original Hoover man in the 1928 campaign. He was for Coolidge, early and often.

"I do-not-choose" statements made no impression on him. He just changed his shout to "draft Coolidge."

Later Fess jumped to the late Senator Willis of Ohio for the 1928 nomination, and stayed there until Willis died.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Jim Crow Is Taken Away

Dreadful 'tis your own to fear
And feel your fate is drawing near.
—Jim Crow.

Early one morning Jim Crow flew down on the Green Meadows. It was just after Farmer Brown's Boy had let him out in the morning. He liked to go down on the Green Meadows and hunt for grasshoppers and other insects, to say nothing of the excitement of trying to catch a mouse. Presently there appeared from the Green Forest a flock of Crows—the flock to which his father and mother belonged. They saw Jim Crow at once. Instead of passing on to their usual hunting grounds, these Crows suddenly spread out and before he realized what was happening Jim Crow was surrounded. There he was in the midst of the flock.

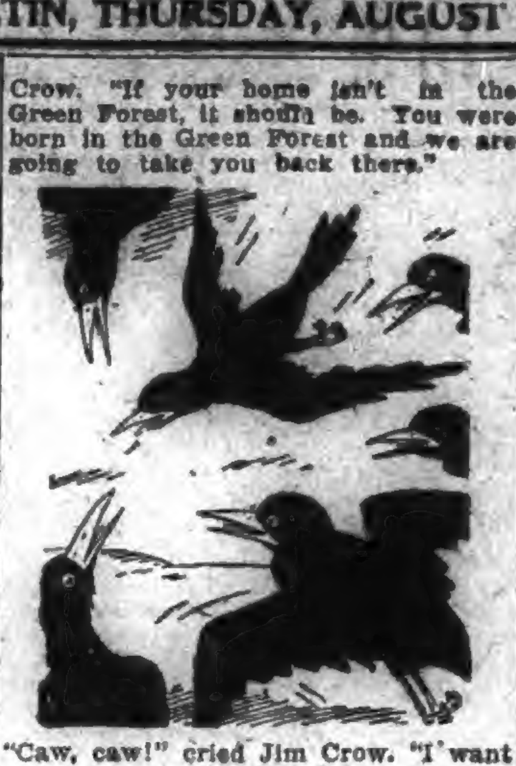
At first they were silent. Instead of the usual chatter and noisy calling back and forth, there was complete silence. Jim Crow began to have an uncomfortable feeling. He decided that he didn't care for the company of these black fellows. So he took to his wings and headed towards Farmer Brown's dooryard. But the instant he took to his wings, the others did likewise and somehow Jim Crow found two or three of them right in his way. They interfered with him. Yes, sir, they did just that. They interfered so that do what he would, he couldn't fly in the direction he wanted to. He tried his best. He flew up. He flew down. But all the time some of the other Crows kept right along with him and gradually forced him in another direction. By and by he realized that these Crows were taking him over to the Green Forest.

"Caw, Caw!" cried Jim Crow. "I want to go home!"

"Caw, Caw! That is just where you are going," replied another Crow.

"Caw, Caw!" said Jim Crow, "My home isn't in the Green Forest."

"Caw, Caw Caw!" cried another Crow. "If your home isn't in the Green Forest, it should be. You were born in the Green Forest and we are going to take you back there."



"Caw, caw!" cried Jim Crow. "I want to go home"

"But I don't want to go back there!" complained Jim Crow. "I have been back once and I don't like it."

"That makes no difference," replied the other Crow in a tone that Jim Crow didn't like at all. "You've got to go just the same; so you may as well come along without making any fuss."

But Jim Crow didn't want to go, as I have already said, and he did his very best not to go. He tried to duck and dodge. The more he tried to duck and dodge, the more determined the other Crows were that he should go along with them. By this time Jim Crow was beginning to feel a little frightened. Yes, sir, he was beginning to feel a little frightened. He didn't understand just what this meant. Never had he been treated just this way before. Somehow, he didn't like the way some of those other Crows looked at him. They looked at him as if they didn't like him. From first feeling uneasy, Jim Crow gradually grew to feel really and truly frightened. But there was nothing he could do about it and so finally he made the best of a bad matter and flew along without making any attempt to get away.

"What are we going over here for?" he asked of one of his nearest neighbors.

"Caw, Caw!" You'll see when we get there," replied the other Crow. "You'll see when we get there."

And this was all that Jim Crow could get from him.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

How the Nations Name Their Winds

Monsoons and simoons, siroccos and southern bursters, harmattans and haboobs, chinooks and willy willies, mistrals and "the doctor"; each country has its favorite name for its distinctive winds.

Algeria dreads its chihilis.

Guatemala and Nicaragua expect daily chubascos in summer time.

Fiume shivers at the approach of a bora.

Spain scorches under the whip of the leveche out of Africa.

Persia has learned to live with her shamal.

"Yet fewer than a dozen different kinds of winds are recognized by meteorologists," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C. "A blizzard by any other name, buran, poorga or pampero, is still a blizzard.

"Central America's chubasco season is a small scale copy of India's monsoon. An Australian set down in Texas would soon recognize that a Texas 'norther' was a near relative to his own 'southerly burster.'

"A Swiss, traveling through the Rockies in early spring, sniffing a soft, dry, warm breeze would exclaim, 'Ah, foehn wind.' 'Chinook,' a native might correct him. But a South African would call it a berg wind, a Sumatran a bohorok, and a Faroe Islander a glave wind.

"The typhoon that hit Korea and Japan recently is another variety of the wind species, hurricane, that occasionally sweeps the West Indies and southern United States. Hurricanes, or typhoons, also zoom around in the South seas, curvet oc the northeast and northwest coast of Australia and charge the east coast of Africa. The tornado, a concentrated whirling wind and most destructive of the storms of small extent, which appears in the American middle west, is also known to northern Africa and to Australia. Tornadoes attain the greatest speed of any winds, estimates of their velocities running as high as 500 miles per hour.

"The United States has been experiencing the sirocco, if you put the Italian label on hot waves from the south. When a low, which is the weather man's name for a large storm area, moves across a continent, it often pulls in hot air from the direction of the equator. Italy's sirocco, like American south winds, has passed over water so it brings a moist, heavy, lazy atmosphere. But the same wind, reaching Spain as the solano, after having passed over land, is hot, dry and dusty. So is the leveche of eastern Spain, and the leste of Madeira and northern Africa. Argentina's hot zondas are South American siroccos. To the same family belongs Australia's brickfielder, although it blows from the north instead of the south, since Australia lies below the equator.

"Australia's brickfielder used to be a south wind; now it is a north wind. It happened this way. Sydney was one of the communities first settled on the continent and it had a brickfield on the southern limits of the city. A storm from the south would hurl clouds of dust on the grumbling inhabitants. Many dusty Sydneyites rushed to Victoria when gold was discovered and soon thereafter the hot, north sirocco winds rushed on them. Experiencing much the same discomfort they suffered in Sydney from brickyard dust, the miners promptly named the hot winds brickfielders.

"Australia supplies curious nicknames to all its breezes. Besides brickfielders and southern bursters there are willy willies, the Fremantle doctor and Cock-eyed Bobs. Willy willies are hurricanes that play tag up and down the northwest coast; the Fremantle doctor is Perth's afternoon cooling breeze from the sea; a Cock-eyed Bob is a thunderstorm.

"Few countries on earth do not have thunderstorms. Arica in Chile does not have them, indeed it does not have rain storms of any kind year on end. The United States has a fair number; the Cameroons, which lie in Africa's armpit, are the second most thunderous lands of earth, while the true land of the thunderbolt is Java. At Buitenzorg, Java, lightning flashes and thunder growls 322 days of the year.

"Ancient Greeks erected an eight-sided temple to the winds, each side sacred to the wind from that corner of the compass. Weather observatories have supplanted the Greek temple and a different type of classification has replaced the Greek weathervane method. Now it is known that a small dust whirl on a city street is a type of nearly all storms. Waterspouts, thunderstorms, tornadoes, blizzards from northwest Canada, are all swirls of winds of greater or lesser diameter. But a separate cubby hole has to be reserved for the monsoon. The monsoon is different; the unique possession of the Far East, although a baby monsoon, the chubasco, has been found in Central America.

"In India the monsoon dictates politics, drives Englishmen to the hills, and saves the whole peninsula from being another Arabian desert. Monsoon rains stopped a political demonstration in Bombay a few weeks ago and have called a halt to salt gathering. Salt pans that were scenes of disturbance are now, with the coming of monsoon downpours, muddy pools.

"The monsoon can be understood without going to India if the kitchen stove can take the place of a 10,000-mile sea voyage. Anyone who has looked at the kitchen range, felt the heat and even seen the heat waves rising from its top, knows what happens in India. Tibet, north of India, is the world's largest natural stove, a huge block of land raised up in the sky two miles above sea level, bare to the hot summer sun. Heat waves rise from Tibet and to take the place of the rising air new air, called the monsoon, comes in from India. If the air were smoke-colored the monsoon winds could be seen approaching the tip of India in a vast stream. Upon reaching the tip the stream divides, part of it rolling up the east coast, the rest up the west. Then the monsoon air streams strike inland, the eastern stream moving up the Ganges valley. In northern India the divided streams converge again and the reunited monsoon rises over the Himalaya mountains, shedding its rain as it goes, ever rushing on to feed the summer demand of the Tibetan 'stove' for more air to warm.

"During winter the monsoon goes into reverse, retracing its course through India. But it brings no rain from rainless Tibet, only dry, clear, cool weather to the peninsula.

"India's monsoon carries on the wings of wind the world's greatest burden of water. On Cherrapunji, at the head of a valley in the Himalaya foothills, the monsoon drops more rain than does any other wind anywhere in the world. In summer Cherrapunji lives in a nature-made shower bath. On it fall 424 inches of rain a year, enough to fill an open tank 35 feet high. In August, 1841, it rained 30 inches a day at Cherrapunji for five consecutive days.

"Antarctica is notorious for its storms. The roaring forties become the howling seventies in Antarctica where Adelie Land has been named the Home of the Blizzard. The year-round average wind speed in Adelie Land is 50 miles per hour while the average of Europe, which, next to Antarctica is the windiest continent, is only 10 miles per hour. Explorers record that an Adelie blizzard maintained a speed of 107 miles per hour for eight hours with guests running as high as 200 miles per hour. Hurricane winds blow at least 80 miles per hour with momentary bursts of speed up to 200 miles per hour. Men who recorded the Adelie wind speeds lived in houses buried under the snow; only their instruments projected above the surface."

Stories That Recall Others

Lo!

Sam was charged with theft and his lawyer decided to put him on the witness stand.

"Sam, if you tell a lie you know what will happen, I suppose?" queried the judge.

"Yas, suh," replied Sam. "I'll go to Hades and burn for a long time."

"Quite right," declared the judge. "And you know what will happen if you tell the truth?"

"Yes, Suh," said Sam. "We lose de case!"

Just Sister.

The Sunday school teacher noticed Jerry enter the room hand in hand with a little girl. "Who's your little friend?" she asked.

"Aw, she's not my friend," replied Jerry. "She's my sister"

The strange relations of a rich man are likely to be poor.

As a motorist struck and killed ten-year-old John Graham's dog at Wichita, Kas., he noticed a menacing shotgun in the boy's grasp and hastily proffered a $5 bill. "Sorry, son, will that help any?" he inquired, with a glance at the gleaming artillery. "Yep," the boy said. "That makes $7 and it's all profit, too. Shep had taken to chicken stealing and dad gave me $2 to shot him."

It's man's inhumanity to man that enables the policeman to draw pay.

CROPS IN STATE ARE THREATENED BY LICE

Plant lice, countless millions of them, are becoming an additional source of worry to Connecticut farmers in these heat-scorching days. Albert E. Wilkinson, extension vegetable specialist of the state agricultural college, reported Wednesday that the hot, dry spell has been very favorable for the development of aphis. Millions of them are readily found on the under side of plant leaves sucking the very life and adding severe injury to irreparable injury already caused by torrid heat and lack of water.

Turnips and tomatoes are heavy sufferers as a result of the lice infestation which came almost overnight. Potatoes, cabbage and cauliflower, according to Professor Wilkinson, are rapidly becoming infested. If rain does not fall within the next few days, farmers throughout the state fear that entire crops will be destroyed by lice.

According to a report from India, the Calcutta Museum has received a large snake which had two feet, an inch long, each with three toes.

MAN KILLED BY AUTO AT EAST GREAT PLAIN

A man thought to be Martin Church, about 80, of Montville, was struck and fatally injured by an automobile owned and driven by Murray Wechsler, 26, of No. 6801 Nineteenth street, Brooklyn, N. Y., about 11:10 o'clock Wednesday night, while walking along the highway. The accident happened on the Gardner lake highway just south of Ford's ice pond at East Great Plain, town of Norwich. He died while being taken to the W. W. Backus hospital.

Wechsler is said to have struck the man, who had not been positively identified up to an early hour this (Thursday) morning, on the right hand side of the highway, just as his machine was opposite another car driven by John Shields of Norwich, which was headed towards Norwich. The Brooklyn machine was going towards Gardner lake and when it struck the Montville man the driver applied his brakes and skidded along the road for some distance.

In the Norwich machine, besides the driver, were Edward Cumerford and David Shields. The New York man had with him his wife. Mr. Shields brought the Montville man in his machine to the hospital, but upon arrival at the institution he was dead.

Coroner Edward G McKay was called and started a preliminary investigation. He took measurements on the highway, assisted by Officer Patrick F. Shahan of the local police. Wechsler was arrested on a technical charge of manslaughter and held under bonds of $2,500 pending the outcome of the coroner's finding.

It is understood that Mechsler failed to see the man walking in the highway as he was blinded by the lights of the Shield's machine.

The dead man is believed to have been struck from behind, and thrown to the highway, striking upon his face. He suffered lacerations of the face and head, a broken right leg and other injuries.

Nothing was found on his person whereby Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve, who was called, could establish his identity.

TO SUE ALLEGED EMBEZZLERS FOR COPYRIGHT INFRINGEMENT

Fred Dielenschneider, 23, and Richard Brownell, 25, both of South Manchester, who were arrested here Tuesday on embezzlement charges in connection with the work they have done as the Norwich Business Men's Collecting company, are also copyright infringers and are to be sued on that account by William T. Maloney, according to a statement made here Wednesday by Mr. Maloney, who is also a resident of South Manchester.

The two alleged embezzelers traveled around in a Ford automobile painted white while they were making their collections and it is the use of this white collection car, upon which Mr. Maloney stated he had a copyright, and for the unauthorized use of which he will bring suit for damages for from $1,200 to $1,500.

Mr. Maloney told of his former business connection with Dielenschneider, with whom he was in partnership as the Connecticut Credit and Collection company, which had the copyright use of the white collection car. Dielenschneider sold out to him, he said, and the company had been inactive for some time, but Maloney held the copyright on the white car.

Dielenschneider and Brownell constituted the Norwich Business Men's Collection company, according to Mr. Maloney, and for several months past have had offices in the Connor building on Broadway. Before that they were in the Thayer building. A short time ago they executed bills of sale to him which were recorded in the Norwich town records, the Dielenschneider bill of sale being recorded July 23, but neither of them lived up to their agreements in the bills of sale which renders them void, according to Mr. Maloney, and the two men are still owners of the Norwich Business Men's Collecting company, with which Maloney has no connection.

When the accused were presented in the city court Wednesday morning a continuance to Wednesday, Aug. 13, was granted at their request. Early Wednesday evening they were released under bonds of $2,000 each, furnished by East Hartford people.

The alleged embezzlers are specifically charged with embezzlement of $52 from the Irving Bogue company, North Main street, according to a warrant issued Tuesday by City Attorney Charles W. Cassidy. However, it is charged that the total amount of money embezzled will be between $2,000 and $3,000 when additional charges are brought by several other Norwich concerns.

The South Manchester men, it is said, had been hired by these local firms to collect certain sums of money which customers owed them and failed to pay. They made the collections in a white Ford automobile.

WILLIAM REEVES BURIED WEDNESDAY AT MILFORD

William Reeves, of New Haven, formerly of Norwich, died at New Haven and was buried in Milford on Wednesday.

About forty years ago Mr. Reeves resided on Peck street Norwich, and at that time was in business on Shetucket street with the late George Anderson as Anderson and Reeves, photographers. Mr. Reeves was an expert photographer and developed the flashlight for taking pictures at night. One of the first flashlight pictures taken in Norwich was taken by Mr. Reeves of The Bulletin editorial force of the old editorial rooms on Main street, about forty years ago. This framed picture still hangs in the present Bulletin editorial rooms. Mr. Reeves at that time manufactured his flashlight apparatus at a factory on Talman street.

Mr. Reeves moved from Norwich to New Haven about 35 years ago and has since resided there. For many years he was president of the Reeves Mfg. Co., at Milford, manufacturers of gas meters and clock movements.

Mr. Reeves was a great chess player and in the past 20 years has made fifteen trips to England on business and for pleasure, and while in England collected probably the best collection of chess men in this country. These chess sets are now loaned and on exhibition at the Morgan museum at Hartford.

Mr. Reeves leaves two sons, Edwin A. Reeves, Milford, and Roscoe of Brookfield, also a daughter, Mrs. Nelson Bavier of Hartford and a sister, Mrs. Fred Knight, of New Haven.

SAILOR HELD ON WET DRIVING CHARGE

Edward T. Plante, 24, of the U. S. S. Bushnell, was arrested late Wednesday evening on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor, following an accident on Boswell avenue. His machine, which was headed towards the city, crashed into a car owned by Roderick Chabotte of the Storer farm, East Great Plain, parked on the west side of the street.

After striking the Chabotte machine, the Plante car caromed off, mounted a sidewalk and crashed into a fence, damaging it. Both cars were damaged, but no one was hurt. With Plante as passengers were three sailors he had picked up in Taftville. The accident, investigated by Officer Kotecki, happened about 11:40 o'clock and occurred on the hill near Arnold street. Plante will be presented in the city court this (Thursday) morning.

CHARGED WITH LURING BOY TO NEW YORK

Harry A. Bingham, 35, of No. 609 Boswell avenue, who is alleged to have lured Neil Connors, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Connors of No. 50 North street, to New York, on the promise to make a big league ball player of him, was arrested here Wednesday morning by State Police Officer Johnson of the Groton barracks. He was spotted by the officer among the spectators at the session of the city court here. The officer suspected that Binham was the man wanted in the Connors case.

When the court adjourned Officer Johnson approached Bingham and asked him if he were not the man who took young Connors to New York. According to the police Bingham admitted that he was the person who represented himself as "Bow Shawkey," manager of the New York Yankees, and was responsible for the boy going to New York. He denied that he had made an assault upon Connors in a New York hotel.

Bingham is alleged to have taken Connors to New York on the promise of making him a big league ball player by a course of lessons for which a brother of Neil contributed $35. The boy claimed that after his abductor got him to New York he took him to a hotel, where he assaulted him several times. He also said that the big league ball player took the $35 from him and then sent a telegram signed "Neil" to his parents, asking for an additional $35. The claim was made that the boy had lost the money, according to the telegram.

Connors claimed that he had been brought back to Norwich and left in Franklin square by a strange man.

The boy left home Tuesday, July 8, and returned home, Friday, July 11.

INFANT MORTALITY SHOWS INCREASE IN STATE

After declining from 1925 to 1928, the infant mortality rate of Connecticut turned upward last year, increasing from a rate of 59 infant deaths per 1,000 live births in 1928 to 64 deaths per 1,000 births in 1929, a survey by the children's bureau of the labor department reveals.

With the exception of some slight variations, the general trend of the infant mortality rate of Connecticut has been downward since 1918 when it was 107 deaths per 1,000 births, the high level of the 1915-1929 period. The rate in 1915 was recorded as 107, and declines were registered in 1916 and 1917 until the rate in 1918 jumped back to its 1915 high point.

Connecticut had the second lowest infant mortality rate in New England last year, Massachusetts reported the lowest rate — 62 deaths per 1,000 births, Vermont ranked third with a rate of 66, New Hampshire fourth with a rate of 68, Rhode Island fifth with a rate of 73 and Maine last with a rate of 77.

The infant death rate of Connecticut year by year since 1915, in terms of mortalities per 1,000 live births, is reported by the labor department as: 107 in 1915; 101 in 1916; 94 in 1917; 107 in 1918; 86 in 1919; 92 in 1920; 73 in 1921; 77 in 1922; 77 in 1923; 69 in 1924; 73 in 1925; 72 in 1926; 59 in 1927; 59 in 1928, and 64 in 1929.

ROYALS TAKE HECTIC GAME FROM IDEALS

Three teams, the Thermos, Citizens and Royals are deadlocked for the lead in the City league as a result of the latters' defeat of the Ideals in the daily contest at the campus last night. Each club has won 7 games and lost three.

In winning over the Ideals, 14 to 10, the Royals, however, failed to show up as real contenders for the loop title. They won because the service station men played much more ragged ball afield than they did. The Bernardmen made 6 errors and the Royals 4. The Ideals also outhit the winners 14 to 12.

During the course of the evening four pitchers showed. Bob Shaw and Raney worked for the losers and Eddie Nevins and Simcox toiled on the Royal mound, Simmy relieving Eddie in the final frame.

The leading hitter was Jimmy Murphy, Ideal catcher. He had a triple, double and two singles in four attempts. Marowsky joined the home run club with a swipe over the left field fence in the second with the bases loaded. The score:

Thermos vs. Italians

The Thermos, who with the Citizens and Royals share the lead in the City league, work at the campus tonight against the Italian club in the daily contest.

During the past two weeks the Hastedtmen have been in a slump, which unless broken soon, will cost them the pennant. After running away with the race in the opening round met with trouble in the second laip. First the Ideals held them to a draw, then the Citizens took a fall out of them and finally, this week, the lowly Smokers humbled them.

Bill Hastedt and Dan Driscoll, members of the Thermos board of strategy, are confident that their charges have got all the bad ball out of their systems and that from now on it is going to be too bad for the opposition. On the other hand the Italians are certain that they too will take a spill out of the once leaders.

The big game of the week comes Friday night when two of the leaders, the Royals and Citizens clash.

REQUEST THAT COURT DECIDE ON CLAIMS

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—(AP)—So many claims have been filed for a share in the gate receipts for the charity boxing bout between Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling in June that the promoters today asked the state supreme court to assume the responsibility of deciding which are legitimate.

Not posing as a Solomon, the Rickard Sporting Club, Inc., a subsidiary of the Madison Square Garden corporation which staged the fight, requested the court to substitute six of the claimants as defendants in place of the club in a suit begun by Schmeling July 9 to collect $62,060.66 which is the difference between the amount already paid him and the sum he said he was guaranteed.

The claimants, in addition to Schmeling himself, are Arthur Bulow, his former German manager, who seeks the entire sum under a 1928 contract with Max; Joe Jacobs; Schmeling's present pilot, who demands 7 1-3 per cent of it under a 1928 agreement with Bulow; Charles Rose seeking 10 per cent under a 1928 agreement with Bulow; Samuel Witte, Rose's attorney, who wants $700 assigned to him by Rose; Harry S. Heckheimer, attorney, who declares he represents Arthur Bulow, Inc., to which Bulow assigned all his rights, and who wants the entire sum; and Hyman Sloan of the Bronx, New York, who wants it all under an assignment he says he received from Bulow.

ROUGHAGE IS ESSENTIAL IN REDUCING DIETS
Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Ideal Roughage

BEAUREGARD'S KAYO OF PIQUETTE FEATURES FINE CARD OF FAST BOUTS

Al Beauregard, New England bantamweight champion, hammered Lou Piquette of Bridgeport into submission in the fifth round of the final bout of the all-star card of the Shyma Boxing club at Martin field last night. The knockout of Piquette was the climax of a card of as nice bouts as have ever been staged in Connecticut, a card where there was not one dull moment and where every bout was crammed with action.

In another eight round star bout, Johnny Woods, from the west coast, stopped Joe Russo of Westerly in the eighth round when he opened a cut under Russo's left eye.

The third eight round bout found Young Lavigne of New London emerging a decisive winner over Rene Peloquin of Danielson, Lavigne proving too clever for the Danielson lad.

Vic Darr, local boy, surprised his local friends by appearing in the ring for one minute and 12 seconds and in that time he had knocked out Julio Rossi of Westerly.

The real feature of the evening was the opening bout where Al Rodman of Goodyear and Young Rochette of Westerly stood toe to toe and plastered each other for four rounds with Rodman winning the decision at the end.

Beauregard Too Strong for Piquette.

When the Little Giant of Taftville, weighing a scant 119 pounds, rained gloves into Piquette's face and body with such force that Piquette was forced to take the count for the first time in his career it caused the fans to wonder how Piquette had ever gotten a decision over Pena and Beauregard in other bouts. Beauregard completely smothered Piquette under a barrage of lefts and rights from the first bell until Piquette sagged against the ropes and sank to his knees to be counted out in the fifth round. Piquette did not look in the best of condition although his weight was down to 120 pounds which it is claimed, is his regular fighting weight. Beauregard, tanned to a deep bronze, was an entirely different boy than the one that lost the decision to Pena a month or so ago. Early in the second round Beauregard upset Piquette who went to his knees but was up before a count could be started. In the third round Piquette fought on even terms but in the fourth Beauregard opened a cut under Piquette's left eye and from then on it was only a matter of time. At the start of the fifth, Beauregard launched a terrific assault and caught Piquette flush on the jaw with a left that sent the Bridgeport boy down for a count of eight. Piquette came to his feet and tried to close with Beauregard who caught him another and the battle was over.

Woods Stops Russo.

Johnny Woods came out of the west to substitute for Eddie Moore of Bridgeport against Joe Russo of Westerly and did a mighty good job of pinch hitting. Woods when he first appeared in the ring looked like a huge disappointment but before he left he had been acclaimed by the 600 faithful fight followers. Woods appeared very awkward as he started to box but before the round was over the fans realized that they were watching as clever a boy as has shown here in a long time. Woods had everything in the way of defense which added to a wicked right hand made him head and shoulders above the Westerly shiek. After two even rounds Woods stepped out and forged ahead on points peppering Russo at will while Russo made a vain attempt to hit the elusive substitute. In the fifth round Woods got rather peeved when Russo landed a right to the jaw and he opened up and floored the Westerly boy for a count of nine. In the final round Woods again let loose and threw plenty of leather into Russo's face opening a cut under Russo's eye which bled so freely that Referee Conway stopped the bout.

Lavigne Proves Too Clever.

Young Lavigne with a sharpshooting left hand proved too clever for the slower and flat-footed Rene Peloquin of Danielson. Peloquin packed the harder punch but his inability to land it effectively made it a poor weapon. Lavigne danced about Peloquin during the entire eight rounds shooting in a left to the face and then stepping inside Peloquin's sweeping hooks. There was one knock down in the bout this coming in the third round when Lavigne caught Peloquin off balance and dropped him. Peloquin bounded up to continue the bout.

Darr Surprises the Local Fans.

The real upset of the evening came when Vic Darr, local boy, polished off Julio Rossi of Westerly in one minute and 12 seconds of the first round of the six round preliminary. Darr never looked so good as he did last night, he in no way resembled the Vic Darr of old. Darr at the tap of the first gong rushed out of his corner met Rossi in the center of the ring rocked him with a left flush to the jaw and then drove him to a neutral corner and floored him with a right. Rossi got up and put up a feeble defense through which Darr continued to rain rights and lefts to Rossi's almost unprotected jaw. Rossi tried to stand up under the rain of blows but his knees were not equal to the task and he was sagging on the ropes when the referee stepped in to save Rossi from further punishment.

If Darr keeps on the way he is going he will go a long way in the ring and it will be a good boy who can stand and swap punches with him.

Youngsters Put Up Great Scrap.

For relentless and unceasing slugging the opening bout between Young Rochette of Westerly and Al Rodman of Goodyear was all that could be asked. In this bout alone there was crammed enough action to satisfy the most rabid and blood thirsty fight fan. These youngsters stood toe to toe for four rounds and pummelled each other with everything they had, neither giving an inch of ground. The decision went to Rodman whose blows landed a trifle more frequently and cleaner than the Westerly lad's but the margin was so slight that if the law permitted it could easily have been called a draw. In fact, it was a shame that either had to be declared a winner over the other.

Last night's bouts were absolutely the best that have been fought in Norwich and it was a crying shame that only a few over 600 were in attendance to see this card.

After the Woods-Russo bout the Westerly lad called Commissioner Donohue and Dr. Sussler to the dressing room claiming that he had been hit low by Woods. In evidence he showed a dented protecting cup but the commissioner was somewhat skeptical and would not allow any claim of foul. The physician's examination revealed no evidence of a foul blow.

One of the amusing incidents of the show was the ending of the four round preliminary. After these youngsters had pounded each other for four rounds they kissed each other in the center of the ring just to show that it was all in sport that that there was no ill feeling between them. It was Rochette's first defeat in the professional ring.

BERNARD ISSUES CHALLENGE TO THERMOS BOTTLE TEAM

As an aftermath of the dispute in the City league between Tony Bernard's Ideals and Bill Hastedt's Thermos club, the manager of the Ideals hurls a challenge in the face of the Thermos pilot for a series of games to be played at the J. B. Martin field on the following three Sundays. Bernard says he was not satisfied to beat the Thermos in the City league, but wishes to try conclusions in a regulation game under regulation rules and where there are not any of the games called because of darkness. He says he will play for money or marbles or even for the satisfaction of taking a fall out of the Thermos club.

BROWNS SPLIT DOUBLE PROGRAM WITH WHITE SOX

CHICAGO, Aug. 6—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns and the White Sox were equally charitable today, dividing their doubleheader.

Coffman turned in a splendid three hit pitching performance in the first game to give the Browns a shutout victory, 5 to 0. In the second, the veteran "Red" Faber kept eleven Brown Hits scattered and, aided by the bats of Jolley and Fothergill, emerged with a 5 to 2 triumph. Jolley scored a homer in the sixth inning of the second game when Metzler attempted to make a shoe string catch of his hard smash.

ROBINS BEAT PIRATES DESPITE THEIR HITTING

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 6—(AP)—Swinging westward on a crucial road trip, the league leading Brooklyn Robins defeated Pittsburgh today in the opening game of the series, 7 to 4 despite Pirate heavy hitting that ran 13 hits into 28 bases.

French started for the Pirates but was bumped for eight hits from the second to the sixth innings and during that time the Robins scored all their runs. Al Lopez young catcher, led the bombardment with a homer and single, driving in three runs and scoring two. Babe Herman hit three singles.

Thurston, Robin starting pitcher, forced the Pirates to waste extra base hits until the seventh, when he departed in favor of Ray Moss. Lefty Heimach was called in to squelch a Pirate uprising in the ninth.

Comorosky hit a homer for the Pirates.

HEYDLER SEES BEST RACE IN HISTORY IN NATIONAL

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—(AP)—The closest finish in the history of the National league was predicted today by President John A. Heydler in a general discussion of baseball affairs.

"As the eastern clubs start on their last invasion of the west, it seems to me," said President Heydler, "that the clash of the sections during the next two weeks will mark the most important and stirring period of the pennant competition this year, or of many years past.

"This is the greatest flag race in the history of the National league with seven clubs still in the race. We have had four club races before, and three club struggles that have gone into September, but never has there approached that ideal balance of strength in the league that kept seven teams in the fight this far down the stretch.

With seven clubs still in the running, the National league head looks forward to a close struggle between the most evenly matched teams, which may well go to the last week in September.

Contrary to the general belief, the senior circuit has enjoyed the best season in history in so far as attendance is concerned, according to President Heydler.

Night baseball will not be played in the National league in the opinion of the circuit's president.

"In the first place none of our teams would be allowed to engage in a championship game after sun down, under the constitution," President Heydler said, "and besides I find there is no demand in the major leagues to get away from baseball and all that it means as a great sport through tradition and development and get it into the show business, which after all is all that night baseball is or can be.

The action of the major leagues last month against the AA leagues was not a bluff or a threat, said the president, "It was final."

"For five or six years, the majors have tried by every means to get these minors to live up to the spirit as well as the letters of the major-minor agreement but with no success."

SENATORS PICK UP FULL GAME BY BEATING ATHLETICS

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6—(AP)—Sam Jones' fine pitching today enabled the Washington Senators to cut the Athletics' first place lead to 6 1-2 games. Jones held the world's champions to six hits while his teammates battered George Earnshaw out of the box and won by a score of 5 to 1.

The Senators score on Bluege's triple and Cronin's single in the first inning represented the only tally of the game for five innings. In the sixth Washington added four more counters to their total, Boley paving the way for two of the runs by a bad throw to Foxx.

Simmons' double in the sixth, a single by Foxx and a sacrifice fly saved the Mackmen from a white-wash. Score:

WATKINS' PINCH HOMER WINS FOR THE CARDS

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 6—(AP)—George Watkins, pinch hitting for the Cardinals in the seventh inning, poled a home run with Gelbert on base to give St. Louis the lead and defeat the Cubs here today 4 to 3.

Sharing honors with Watkins in the victory was Jim Lindsey, inserted late in the game, who struck out Grimm and Hartnett in the ninth with the bases filled.

The defeat shoved the Cubs to two games in front of the third place Giants and widened the margin between them and the league leading Robins to three and a half games.

BERG'S STYLE OF FIGHTING MAY BOTHER CHOCOLATE IN TONIGHT'S CLASSIC

By EDWARD J. NEIL

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—(AP)—On approximately the second anniversary of his first appearance in the United States, Kid Chocolate, the ebony flash of the featherweights, meets his second major rival, Jackie Kid Berg in a ten round duel in the open air tomorrow night at the Polo Grounds.

Some of the heat of the present sizzling spell has seeped into the interest of the faithful in the final days of the ballyhoo and it appears that a goodly crowd will be there. All hope has been abandoned that the foul-fake-foozle-soaked fandom will rally in the numbers originally estimated to swell the gate beyond the quarter million mark, but a nice sociable gathering of about 18,000 with receipts bulging over the $100,000 mark is in prospect.

The fighting abilities and reputations of the sensational little Negro lad and the whirlwind Jewish boy from the Whitechapel district of London have done much to encourage the faithful to gamble their dollars once more on the chance of seeing a real battle. Another fiasco such as the foul endings of the recent heavyweight brushes and the abrupt cessation of hostilities in the lightweight title tilt of Sammy Mandell and Al Singer before a round was completed, probably will end all hope of buxom gates for the remainder of the outdoor season.

The faithful are looking for something special in the line of battle from Berg and Chocolate. Both have a tremendous popular appeal due to a series of wholesome conquests crammed with honest action. Chocolate is the superb boxer, a tall beautifully muscled Negro youth who does things in a ring with his feet and hands that carry the old timers all the way back in memory to the days of Joe Gans and the original little Chocolate, George Dixon. Berg is a rough and tumble fighter, a perpetual motion punching machine, who overcomes boxing ability with the sheer impetuosity of his attack.

Berg climbs all over his opponents, punching every second that his hands are free. He keeps the cleverest of opponents so busy blocking leather that they have little time to think of an offensive. He doesn't hit hard but he never stops hitting. As Tony Canzoneri announced after Berg had given him one of the worst trouncings of his career—"He gets in your hair." Berg, considered the outstanding lightweight contender, is an 8 to 5 favorite today.

Chocolate, whose career since his arrival here unheralded from Cuba over two years ago is fiction material, must give Berg a weight advantage of close to ten pounds. This is expected to add materially to the bomb bomb Keed's difficulties in keeping Berg at a distance where Chocolate must hold the whirlwind in order to hope for victory. The Keed is a genuine featherweight and probably will scale no more than 127 to Berg's 134 1-2.

Almost two years ago to the day Chocolate, after many difficulties, gained his first match in the United States, an encounter with one Eddie Enos at Mitchel Field, that brought the Cuban his first of a string of victories that has been broken only by one draw. For this match he received the remarkable stipend of $40. A year ago this time the Keed whipped Al Singer in the open air and was paid $40,000 for his time and trouble. There will be another large chunk of currency waiting for him tomorrow night.

Although the managers of Berg and Chocolate differ as to the fact, actually the junior welterweight title, won by Berg from Mushy Callahan in London, will be at stake tomorrow night as both will weigh many pounds under the truck class limit of 140 pounds. The bout is not scheduled as a title affair although ring conditions make it possible for Chocolate to win the title. This situation is further complicated by the fact that the ring monarchs of New York state do not recognize the existence of a junior welterweight title.

The supporting card promises action. Baby Joe Gans, Negro welterweight from Los Angeles, will meet Eddie Murdock, of Tulsa, Okla., in the ten round semi-final and Sammy Dorfman, New York lightweight, will tackle the heavy hitting Eddie Mack, of Denver, in another ten. The bouts will not be broadcast.

RICE'S HITTING GIVES YANKEES WIN OVER BOSTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 6—(AP)—Timely hitting of Harry Rice tinged the pitching duel of Roy Sherid and Milton Gaston today and gave the Yankees a 4 to 2 decision in the first of a two game series with the Boston Red Sox. The western clubs follow the Red Sox into the Bronx.

Rice drove in two of the Yank's four runs with a single and sacrifice to give the New York club its 13th victory of the season over Boston. Both Gaston and Sherid allowed only seven hits apiece but three errors at crucial moments helped ruin the Red Sox cause.

Lou Gehrig scored two of the Yankee runs, being driven home both times by Rice. Gaston drove home one of the Sox runs in the fifth and Webb the second in the eighth.

ROTARY SCORES EASY WIN OVER Y. M. C. A., 15 TO 6

The Rotary had little trouble in disposing of the Y. M. C. A. in Wednesday's Junior league game, winning 15 to 6.

The Rotary after going scoreless in the first, bunched three hits with four walks in the second for seven runs. In the third they scored four more on singles by Alex and Veronick, a double by Sabroski and a home run by Dickenman. In the fifth and sixth, the Rotarians added two runs in each frame but which had no real bearing on the result.

The "Y" tallied two in the third, one in the fourth and three in the fifth.

Rusillo started on the mound for the losers and although not hit especially hard, he had considerable trouble in locating the plate, walking six men in the two innings he was twirling. W. Seneski relieved Rusillo and was touched for seven hits in the last five frames.

Alex pitched for the Rotary club and was hit quite freely, the hits coming, however, in the latter part of the game, when he had a commanding lead.

Tonight's Game

The Duwells and the Italian Young Men's club clash in tonight's game in the Junior league. The contest has all the earmarks of a good game. The Italians, the only team to defeat the Rotary club, turning the trick Monday night, have seemed to have hit their stride and no doubt will give the Duwells who are in a tie for first place with the Rotary, a tough fight. The Duwells of course are out to win, as a victory will give them undisputed hold of first place, while a defeat will put the Rotary in first place. Probable batteries for the game are Stephanik or Pizzo and Kos for the Duwells and Wilk or Burelle and Angelone for the Italian club. The game is scheduled for 6:30 p. m. sharp.

EDDIE HELD ELIMINATED IN CANADIAN AMATEUR

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 6—(AP)—A new Canadian amateur golf champion will be crowned Saturday as the result of the second day of match play today, in which Eddie Held of New York, the defending champion, was eliminated.

Held, the first American ever to take the Canadian crown, was defeated by Carroll M. Stuart, young Montreal star, three and one. The New Yorker, who won the event at Jasper Park last year, held a lead of two holes at the end of the first 18 holes but wild driving and mediocre putting on the afternoon round lost him the match.

Although Held was defeated, three Americans advanced to the quarter final round along with five Canadians, J. Wood Platt of Philadelphia won by default from Francis W. Ryan of Birmingham, Mich., while Frank Connolly of Detroit turned back S. S. Merritt of Nobla, Pa., 3 and W. Ray Ferguson of Philadelphia was forced to 47 holes before he succeeded in eliminating Fred J. Wright of Newton, Mass.

UHLE PITCHES TIGERS TO WIN OVER INDIANS

DETROIT, Aug. 6—(AP)—George Uhle held the Cleveland Indians hitless until Detroit had piled up a seven run lead today, then coasted to an easy 9 to 1 victory. It was the sixth straight win for the Tigers and the sixth in which the Detroit starting pitcher finished the game.

Uhle, besides allowing only four hits, had a perfect day at bat, getting three singles and a two bagger in four times up. Charlie Gehringer hit a home run after Koenig doubled in the first inning. Earl Averill's home run in the fifth accounted for Cleveland's only run. Alexander also hit a circuit blow for the Tigers.

Willis Hudlin was Cleveland's starting pitcher and was charged with the defeat. Jablonowski and Bean followed him on the mound. Score:

J. B. MARTIN TO DISBAND UNTIL SEPT.

Due to the fact that there has been a rapid decline in the attendance particularly in the past two weeks, the J. B. Martin baseball club, for seven years one of the outstanding semi-pro ball teams in Connecticut, is discontinuing activities at home and have cancelled all games scheduled for the month of August at Martin Field.

This is the first time since the team was organized in 1923 that the Velvetmakers were forced to call a recess. Although the club has experienced a few lean years in the past, they have managed through the generous patronage of loyal fans to keep their head above water long enough to finish the season.

This year conditions are different, in the earlier part of the season, namely during the latter part of May and first of June when the attendance is generally very good, the weatherman intervened and as a result no less than four games were postponed. Since these early games furnish the necessary punch to enable the team to wade through the hot days of July and August it was deemed advisable to discontinue home games for the month of August at least. It is believed that play will be resumed at Martin Field, the early part of next month and the management is booking home games with several fast clubs.

The J. B. Martin's have the reputation of putting on the field a first class ball team capable of coping with all opposition, and it has always been the aim of the management to book the leading attractions to give the fans in this vicinity good clean baseball. While there is no outstanding star on the present team, it is the consensus of opinion that with the acquisition of Walter Linder the team this season, is the best balanced aggregation in the history of the club.

TILDEN ROMPS THROUGH HIS SECOND ROUND MATCHES

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 6—(AP)—Big Bill Tilden, making an unexpected start in the singles play of the Meadow club's invitation tournament less than 24 hours after his return from Europe, grabbed the spotlight from the remainder of the field as he won two matches in the space of two hours today to earn himself a quarter-final berth.

Tilden, playing in place of Berkeley Bell, the inter-collegiate champion who had been defaulted by the tournament committee, drew a bye in the first round and then defeated Frank Bonneau, New York southpaw, in the second round and followed with a triumph over J. Gilbert Hall of South Orange, N. J., the country's thirteenth ranking player. Big Bill trimmed Bonneau 6-4, 6-1 but was forced to three sets before he downed Hall 6-2, 1-6, 6-4.

WESTERLY

TO TAKE BRIDGE MATTER TO R. I. AND CONN. GOVERNORS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Aug. 6—Harry R. Milner, chairman of the municipal improvement committee of the Westerly chamber of commerce, who first called the attention of that civic body to the dangerous condition of the Pawcatuck river bridge by which West Broad and Broad street sections in Pawcatuck and Westerly of the Boston post road or federal route No. 1 crosses the Pawcatuck river, has become determined to leave no stone unturned to remedy such a dangerous situation.

Following the disclosure of Westerly Highway Engineer Adolph L. Leon of his conviction that a recommended expenditure by him of $21,000 to put the bridge in a safe condition would now be a foolish expenditure of money after he had gone over the bridge carefully with Bridge Engineer Nord of the Connecticut department of state roads and had seen the condition of the material on which the bridge depended for support, Mr. Milner now says that he is receiving some substantiation in his claim and will continue to the extent that if action is not speedily forthcoming from both Rhode Island state board of public roads and the Connecticut highway department, he will have the matter brought forcibly to the attention of Governor Case of Rhode Island and Governor Trumbull of Connecticut.

In relation to the responsibility of the State of Connecticut in this highway bridge matter, Mr. Milner wishes explained to him why about three years ago the state threw back upon the town of Stonington a bridge which one of its engineers stated at the time was badly in need of repairs.

With the increasing dry weather and consequently more inflammable condition of grass and brush lands, firemen have been called upon several times daily to fight such fires the past week.

About 1:15 p. m. Wednesday fire whistle alarm No. 77, Main street, White Rock, was again sounded for a brush and grass fire in a section lying between Main street and Spring Brook avenue. Acting Fire Chief Robert Bonner with motor pumpe rand force of firemen put in a stubborn two hour battle and succeeded in bringing the blaze under control before much property damage could be done, although two acres of land were burned over. The home of Michael Lynch and another house occupied by several families were prevented from catching fire by the timely arrival of the Westerly firemen. This was the second call of the firemen to this vicinity.

The brush and grass fires seem difficult to place entirely under control by the first visit of the firemen for on Monday afternoon on the Chase farm, nearly opposite the Boston Post road residence of Mrj. John F. Datson had called for the services of the firemen. Again on the same evening, about 8:10 p. m., the firemen were called back for another half hour battle. On Wednesday morning Acting Chief Bonner sought volunteer firemen to go to the Post road fire where ten acres of land were reported as having been burned over; it being a stubborn one to subdue because of many old stumps which furnished material for the flames, and the fight was still continued after 6 p. m. Wednesday.

On Wednesday morning workmen began the cutting of a hole in the north sidewalk of the Pawcatuck river bridge near its center and close to the curbline where an ornamental pedestal post is to be erected for a flaming arc light similar to one installed for the town of Stonington on the opposite side near the center of the river bridge. While employes of the highway department were engaged in filling in the trench where connecting conduit was laid, opportunity was taken to cover the old street car rails with kyrock and the surface was rolled smooth.

Paul Sullivan, Harry Evans and Eugene McDonald of Cambridge, Mass., painters in the employ of the General Spray Painting company of that city, sustained cuts and bruises in a 21-foot fall from rigging on the large gasometer of the South County Public Service company, Industrial drive, while at work there on Tuesday afternoon. Their fall was broken by landing among tackle and paint pails when their rigging slipped while they were repainting the tank.

They were given medical treatment and taken to their boarding places without apparently suffering serious injuries.

A large empty motor van truck bound from New York to Boston, which caught fire on the Nooseneck Hill road shortly before 5:00 a. m. Wednesday, near Hopkinton City, caused a telephone call for assistance to be sent to the Westerly fire department. Acting Fire Chief Robert Bonner, with driver John Paton, manned the Ahrens-Fox motor pumper of the Westerly department, and a fast trip was made to the burning truck.

The furniture truck was owned by Nathan Stone of 172 Glenway street, Dorchester, and was being operated by James A. Stone of 9 Parkman street, Boston. While proceeding down Brightman hill the fire was thought to have started from a backfire and gained much headway before it was discovered by the driver, who roused his sleeping companion. Attempts were made by the driver to put out the fire and assistance was rendered by passing autoists and even troopers of the Hope Valley barracks of the state police were notified and they summoned help from Westerly, which was too late to prevent the total destruction by fire after it had burned over an hour.

With eyes round in anticipation of the two weeks' stay in the large open spaces, some forty-five fresh air children arrived in Westerly on the Puritan express at 6:10 p. m. Tuesday evening, though somewhat travel stained from their long train ride from the metropolis.

On Wednesday afternoon were held funeral services for Henry William Jones, aged 90 years, a resident of Westerly for many years, who died Monday at his home on the corner of Dayton and Pierce streets. Burial was in the First Hopkinton cemetery.

Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock at the undertaking rooms of Leo C. Gaffney on Canal street and were conducted by Rev. Daniel M. Sekater. Rev. Sekater also conducted the committal service at the grave.

The bearers were Fred Whitford, Fred Tryon Whitford, Earl Whitford and Gerald Whitford.

On Thursday Dr. Ross of the State College of Education, substituting for Dr. Marion Gleason in the child welfare department, will be in Westerly from 1:30 to 4 o'clock to conduct the child welfare clinic at the headquarters of the Westerly Visiting Nurses association on High street.

On Friday from 10:30 to 1 o'clock the regular chest clinic will be conducted by Dr. Joseph Rosenblatt, assistant superintendent of the Wallum Lake Sanitarium.

John O. Mills, proprietor of the Westerly Furniture company was able to be at his office for the first time on Tuesday, after being confined to his home, 43 Summer street, by illness for the past ten days.

Westerly Water Commissioner Farquhar Smith and Representative Henry A. Stahle were Westerly motor visitors on Wednesday in Rehoboth, Mass., where they attended the annual clambake and outing of the Rhode Island district of Floral Telegraph Despatch association, which was held at the Davis farm. Both men are "experts" on clambakes and are going to "check" the Massachusetts offering with Rhode Island's best. It was at Smith camp on Charlestown pond last month that "Chef" Stahle prepared the clambake feast enjoyed by the Westerly and Pawcatuck Retail Merchants association with Commissioner Smith as host.

Frank Hibbard of Chicago, Ill., owner and occupant during July of his summer home, "Cove End", Misquamicut road, Watch Hill, left Westerly Wednesday noon on the Colonial express for New York city from which city he will sail on an extended European tour. During his absence his Watch Hill home will be occupied by friends.

YOU GAIN by every added TELEPHONE

There was an increase of 20,783 telephones in the state of Connecticut last year—the largest gain in the Company's history.

It isn't enough that your telephone should enable you to talk only with people whom you call now.

Some day a new neighbor may move in. A new grocery will open for business. Or a butcher, or a garage, or a drug store. And you must be able to call all of them.

That is why additions are made to central office equipment—so that you can be connected not only with every present telephone but also with all the new telephones which are added from day to day. Thus each telephone which is added makes your telephone an even greater convenience, for it broadens your "calling range."

To increase this greater usefulness of your telephone service is the underlying thought which prompts us in our efforts to obtain new subscribers, for it is only by adding to the value of your service in this way that we can fulfill the threefold obligation which is our constant objective:

"THE MOST TELEPHONE SERVICE, AND THE BEST, AT THE LEAST COST TO THE PUBLIC."

UTILITIES SUFFERED LARGEST LOSS IN PHLEGMATIC SESSION OF MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.— (AP) —The stock market was unable to find much cheer in the wild bull movement of grain today and share prices sagged almost steadily in another phlegmatic session.

Net advances of more than 5 cents a bushel in wheat and of 7 to 8 cents in corn received bearish interpretation in Wall street circles, which are speculating on the effects the drought may have on business recovery.

In addition, there was a batch of none too favorable news items, including another slump in steel production, a poor car loading report and an increase in petroleum production. The combination proved too heavy a burden for the bull crowd to carry, and many favorite stocks slipped off 1 to 5 points. The turnover, however, was only slightly more than 1,300,000 shares.

Money remained firm, although this was a relatively unimportant factor inasmuch as the current trend is regarded as temporary.

The trade publications which report weekly on the iron and steel industry had little to say that was optimistic. "Iron Age," announced that ingot production had dropped to 54 per cent of capacity after holding at 56 per cetn for four successive weeks, although it added the prevailing opinion expected at least seasonal improvement within the next month or two. American Metal Markets stated that it was now past the usual time for seasonal increase in buying and that at present there was "nothing at all impressive" in the situation.

The monthly steel ingot figures, announced by the American Iron and Steel institute, revealed that July production had fallen to 56.35 per cent of rated capacity from 68.73 per cent in June. In July, 1929, the ratio was 95.12 per cent. The July deflation was the most drastic in years, and optimistic quarters pointed out that this must mean the bottom was almost at hand.

The heaviness of stocks was well distributed, although the utilities suffered the largest average loss. American Telephone, American & Foreign Power, Western Union, Consolidated Gas and Electric Power & Light lost 2 to 3 points and American Water Works nearly 5.

Farm implement shares again reacted on the prospects of financial losses to farmers. International Harvester and Caterpillar Tractor slumped 2 points and J. I. Case 5. American Can and Continental Can, which would be effected by serious curtailment in fruit and vegetable packing, broke 3 points.

The steels met steady pressure. U. S. Steel at its highest of the day was only even with yesterday's close, and dropped 3 points from that figure, closing at 166 3-8 for a net loss of 2 5-8. Vanadium, the short interest in which has been reported due for a squeeze, lost 3 and Bethlehem more than one.

There were net declines of 2 points or more in General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, Mack Truck, Johns Manville, Eastman Kodak, DuPont, American Tobacco and Gillette Safety Razor. General Motors and Radio eased fractionally.

Woolworth, which reported a decline of approximately 3 per cent in July sales, was firm, apparently on the theory that inventory positions of most chain store systems are excellent. Warner Brothers Pictures was also firm.

Southern Railway encountered fresh selling and fell to another new low at 83 5-8. Atchison, Rock Island, New York Central, Illinois Central and Union Pacific were in supply, the last named breaking more than 7 points.

Cotton was irregular much of the day, but closed 11 to 17 points higher. It has failed to develop the buoyancy of the grains.

There was no gold movement today. It is understood that the New York federal reserve bank has been buying government securities in some volume to offset any threats to credit through recent losses of the metal. The French franc eased slightly, but sterling cables held at $4.87 1-4.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP)— Curb stocks eased in listless trading today. Sales aggregated only 378,800 shares.

Ford, Ltd., a buoyant and heavily traded feature yesterday, was again the most active issue on the board, but profit-taking appeared in large volume, and it closed at 20 7-8, off 1 1-8. This year's earnings are unofficially estimated at $1.50 or more.

Utilities were again largely under pressure although American Gas and Electric was a firm spot, making a gain of 2 1-2 and closing up 1 3-8. Electric Bond and Share lost 3-4 net and United Light "A" and American and Foreign Power warrants lost more than a point.

A few of the industrials and specialties were firm. Mead Johnson jumped 4 1-4 to a new high at 78 1-2, and closed at 78.

Oils largely eased. Cities Service and Cosden slipped back fractionally.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP)— With the available supply of the highest grade railroad issues thinned out, investment demand veered to second grade issues today. A score of more carriers climbed to new highs and were joined by a few utility issues.

While the activity that developed Tuesday was not maintained, trading was rather broad in the domestic list and prices moved irregularly higher.

Interest in foreign bonds was small, but prices held firm. The feature was the strength of German issues, the new 5 1-2s per cent rising a point.

United States governments were dull and the few changes were downward. Stock privilege bonds were irregular, with Atchison 4 1-2s and American Telephone sagging two points or more.

The chief development of the day affecting the bond market was the virtual assurance that the Baltimore and Ohio railroad would acquire the Chicago and Alton, having arranged to purchase the outstanding six and 3 1-2 per cent bonds. On the strength of the announcement, the 3 1-2 per cent certificates soared 7 points to a new high.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—(AP)—In excited trading seldom equalled for volume outside of war times, corn prices today whirled upward almost 8c a bushel and wheat more than sixty. Corn, and wheat as well, soared above $1, an old time standard that during recent weeks had virtually disappeared as a measure of grain values. Official confirmation today that nationwide crop damage to corn is at an "alarming rate" was chiefly responsible for a frantic buying rush that lasted until the last minute of trading.

Closing quotations on corn were strong at the topmost level reached, 6 7-8a7 7-8c above yesterday's finish and outdoing the season's previous highest record. Wheat and oats likewise surpassed the summits heretofore reached this season. Wheat closed nervous 5 1-8a6 1-8c advanced, oats 3c at 3 1-4c up and provisions showing 10c a 3-7c gain.

'LITTLE BALLINGER KID' DIRECTS MILLIONS IN FREIGHT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10— (AP) —A slim little woman in a flowered chiffon dress sits in her Washington office directing routings for freight and passenger travel amounting to between four and five million dollars yearly.

She is Mrs. Miriam Berryhill, traffic manager for the department of agriculture.

Cindery tracks and puffing freight trains seemed remote from her cool poised personality, yet it's because of her foresight and planning that heavy tractors, carloads of rock, seeds and soils go smoothly on their way over thousands of miles.

It's a unique job for a woman, one no woman could handle save with the years of experience of Mrs. Berryhill. She has been with the transportation department for 26 years.

She has had a liking for railroads ever since she was a small girl in Keokuk, Iowa.

When she started to school the fast express used to make a special stop for her near her home. Her father, Frank Ballinger, gave a mile of land to the railroad providing the express would stop at Ballinger's crossing.

When she visited her old home recently after a quarter of a century's absence the same old conductor peered into her face and said:

"Well, if it ain't the little Ballinger kid! The old express hasn't stopped at the crossing for years, but by gum, she's going to tonight!"

HERD OF MUSK OXEN ORDERED FOR ALASKA

An order for a herd of thirty musk-oxen, to be obtained in Greenland and introduced into Alaska, recently has been placed with an experienced collector by the bureau of biological survey of the United States department of agriculture, pursuant to an appropriation by the last session of the congress of $40,000 for establishing an experimental herd of these animals in the territory. The herd will be delivered in New York, whence they will be shipped, under the care of a representative of the biological survey, to Fairbanks, Alaska. They will live in a large inclosure set aside by President Hoover for use in investigations of reindeer and musk-oxen, and will be cared for by men acquainted with the peculiar problems of feeding, breeding and management of animals under Alaskan conditions.

This action marks the culmination of several years' efforts to acquire a herd of musk-oxen for Alaska for experimental purposes, with a view to their domestication and utilization. Such action has been advocated by many interested individuals, as well as by the territorial legislature.

Musk-oxen, says the biological survey, resemble small-sized buffalo, and are the most truly arctic of all the large mammals in North America. Prior to 1800 they existed in large numbers in northern Alaska, but they are now entirely extinct there, as a result of indiscriminate killing by explorers, traders and natives, equipped with rifles instead of the primitive bows and arrows formerly used. They have persisted in limited numbers in northern Canada, eastern Greenland and some of the arctic islands, and are protected in Canada on several reservations established by the government.

Musk-oxen on exhibition in zoos in New York and Washington have proven to be gentle and easily tamed. Musk-oxen meat, when properly dressed at the right time of year, is of good quality and similar to beef and buffalo meat. Information obtained in range investigations by the biological surveys indicates that the forage on the treeless Alaskan plains where musk-oxen once roamed is suitable for them. Musk-oxen kept in captivity have thrived on hay, carrots and other root crops. Hence their domestication in Alaska is regarded possible. Their introduction there will restore a meat producing animal that can utilize natural forage and cultivated foods different from those consumed by reindeer, the biological survey believes.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

Helen Kane, the "boop-boopadoop" girl, is being seen and heard in the title role of "Dangerous Nan McGrew" at Warner's Broadway.

Miss Kane was transformed from a stage person to a stage personality about two years ago when Paul Ash, impressario of jazz at the Paramount theater on Broadway, gave her a "break" in one of his stage shows. She sang her baby-voice songs so charmingly that she broke all attendance records for a singer and was retained for return engagements.

Came her first picture, "Nothing But the Truth," with Richard Dix. It brought Miss Kane forward as an outstanding singing comedienne. Other hits in which she starred were "Pointed Heels" and "Sweetie." She was teamed with Skeets Gallagher in "Pointed Heels" and with Stuart Erwin in "Sweetie." Erwin is again seen as her blond and befuddled playmate in "Dangerous Nan McGrew."

Strand Theater

The Strand theater in Norwich opens today with the sensational photoplay "Male Against Female" which features Mildred Harris the former wife of Charlie Chaplin.

Owing to the delicate nature of the subjects presented, today's performances, both matinee and evening will be for women only, also tomorrow matinee, while Friday and Saturday evening and Saturday matinee will be for men only. Children under 16 years of age will not be admitted at any performance.

"Male Against Female" exposes a number of startling facts about sex. It carries the most important message of the day. A message that is most vital to all mankind and of utmost importance to young men and women. Every girl in love, every married woman and every man should not fail to see this production. It dares tell the naked truth, which all should know.

An added attraction with the showing of "Male Against Female" will be given in the form of a frank and open talk on sex life at each performance.

Frigidaire

A new low price electric refrigerator, priced at $157.50 at the factory, for the millions of average income families has been placed on display in the showroom of Carl W. Brown, Inc., local Frigidaire dealers.

"New production and engineering economies, lower raw material prices and an anticipated demand from a new class of buyers made it possible to provide an electric refrigerator within reach of these millions of average income families to which price was a barrier in the past," Mr. Brown said.

An invitation was extended to the public to visit the showroom and inspect this latest electric refrigerator.

Finished in gray porcelain-on-steel inside and out, the new model contains all outstanding features of this General Motors product, according to the announcement. It has a cold control for faster freezing, makes two and one-half square feet of shelf space and a surplus power mechanical unit for unusual demands during hot weather and while the owner is entertaining, it was said.

A semi-rigid ice cube tray from which one or a trayful of cubes can be released with the flip of the fingers, another Frigidaire development, also has been placed on display in the local showroom, the dealer announced. See adv.

Palace Theater

"Journey's End," drama born of suffering, of mud and blood and death, and life that was lived in the hell of the British first line trenches. That is the magnificent motion picture which opens at the Palace theater today for a run of three days. It has not been found possible to hold the picture at the Palace any longer than Saturday, because there are so many other places which want to see it also. When the New York critics praise a movie, it has to be a great one, but that is what the New York critics did to a man when they saw "Journey's End."

"It is terrific, it is heroic, it is a great play," said the New York American. "Something so simple, so natural and so moving that we are not likely ever to forget it. A deeply satisfying and thrilling evening," said the critic of the New York Evening Post. J. Broks Atkinson of the New York Times called "Journey's End" "one of the most powerful and beautiful dramas of recent times." This is what Walter Winchell said in the New York Evening Graphic: "It is a show to enjoy—to respect. Gripping throughout, it frequently reaches over the bulbs to wring out your heart."

So profoundly moving is this great drama of the World war that the Palace can only regret that circumstances do not permit it to show the picture longer than three days. Those who miss it, will have missed something they can never hope to experience in any other film.

Government tree experts say that a transplanted tree usually needs to be watered during dry seasons for at least two or three years.

BRIDAL VEILS MISTIER, LONGER THAN EVER

NEW YORK, Aug. 10— (AP) —Bride veils are longer and mistier than in many seasons.

Mrs. Richard Owen Boyer of New York intensified the effect of her sweeping veil, composed of many yards of tulle and lace, by having her picture taken before a mirror.

Before her marriage Mrs. Boyer was Miss Elizabeth Brown of Dallas, Texas. The lace, which cascaded in a long panel down the back, was arranged in unique cap and cape effect.

MILADY ADDS TRICK TO BLACK WHITE VOGUE

NEW YORK, Aug. 10—(AP)—The vogue for black and white, apparently growing stronger every day, has taken a new angle. White velvet berets worn with black crepe frocks finished with white organdie ruchings, are the latest fashion note these days. Milady generally adds white eight button gloves to complete the ensemble.

THOS. RUDD GOES TO JAIL COMPANIONS GET BAIL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 6—Thomas Rudd, 158 State street; Hughey Devlin, 108 Bank street and well known prize fighter, and Tony Christina, 113 Shaw street, charged with felonius assault and robbery, were in the police court this morning, but because of the fact that the alleged crime was committed in Waterford, the charges against them were nolled. They were immediately rearrested and taken before the Waterford town court on the same charges. As Rudd has made a signed confession, in which he admits beating Charles LaFrance, Syracuse, N. Y., auditor and then robbing him of $28, Judge Frederick Schofield fixed his bond at $5,000. The bonds of Christina and Devlin, who did not take physical part in the beating and robbing of LaFrance, but shared in the money which Rudd obtained and did not interfere when Rudd was beating and robbing his victim, were fixed at $2,000. Rudd did not procure a surety on his bond and was committed to jail. Christina and Devlin furnished sureties. While Rudd has made a confession, he attributes his acts to liquor and states that he does not remember all that occurred.

LaFrance and Rudd were at the police dance at Ocean Beach Monday night and had been drinking freely. Rudd secured the services of Devlin and Christina to drive them to Waterford where Rudd committed his criminal acts and LaFrance was then taken to Bulkeley High school grounds and left there.

DAMAGE IN PEQUOT AVE. FIRE IS ESTIMATED AT $3,000

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 6—Fire this afternoon gutted the residence at 15 Pequot avenue, occupied by Ira Shailcross and family and owned by Mrs. Horan, and for a short time it was feared that the place of the Gulf Refining company would be ignited. Two alarms were sent in, but the blaze was extinguished before the fire could reach the plant. The damage to the residence, it is estimated will be close to $3,000. Shortly after 12:20 a gasoline stove on the first floor of the house exploded and the flaming liquid quickly ignited the furnishings. An attempt was made to subdue the fire, but without success. A member of the household ran to the Ockford fire company headquarters and that company responded. Before the firemen arrived an alarm was sent in from Box 52, corner Pequot and Maple avenues, which was responded to by Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds and four pieces of apparatus. The fire had broken through the roof and the flames were headed for the big gasoline station. The second alarm was sent in and brought out four additional companies. Two streams of water were poured into the building and in three-quarters of an hour the fire had been extinguished. Patrick Corcoran, 35 Blinman street, a member of Niagara Engine company, suffered a punctured left leg by being hit with a hook and was taken to Lawrence Memorial hospital where the wound was dressed, after which the fireman went to his home.

The league leaders, the Robert Gair Owls of the Montville Industrial Twilight league will play the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. for the fifth and last time this season tonight (Thursday) on the Gair diamond. These two teams on their last four appearances broke even, winning two games from each other. Plenty of action is anticipated at this game and if the Owls win this evening's game, also next week's game with the Textiles, they will clinch the Industrial league pennant. On the other hand, the Powermen who hold second place still have a chance though winning their two remaining games and a postponed tilt with the Textiles, and if the Textiles take one of their games from the Gairmen, these two teams will be deadlocked for first place. Manager McInnis of the Owls has selected Bullet Buck Shahan as his moundsman, with himself calling the signals and Manager McCarthy has selected as his mound ace, Pete Mowskey to do the twirling, with Tucker on the receiving end, and they are confident of turning back the Owls. A floating bath house of concrete with filtered water has just been built for the city of Stockholm after designs by Gustaf Hejkenskold and Tore Hyden, Swedish civil engineers. The novel structure, which rests on a large wooden float, was made at Nykoping and recently towed to its destination near the capital. In addition to a swimming pool 19 1-2 by 55 1-2 feet and 9 feet deep, the house contains spacious steam and shower baths, dressing rooms and a heating plant, which guarantees a steady, pleasant summer temperature to both air and water, even in the most severe winter weather. The water is completely renewed every seven hours. Before entering the swimming pool the water is also rendered free from bacteria.

Regarding the automobile horn as too impersonal, a French inventor has combined the theories of the loud-speaker and the horn and has developed a speaking signal for motor cars. Just in front of the driver is a microphone. As a pedestrian starts across his path, the driver, without raising his voice, says into the instrument: "Look out please, you'll get run over." His voice, magnified a dozen times, comes from under the hood and the frightened jay-walker leaps back to the curb. When the driver turns to the right or left, he tells everyone of his intentions. If he wishes to pass the car ahead, his magnified voice can drown the cutout of the other driver.

POETRY

Fireflies

Little lamps of the dusk,
You fly low and gold
When the summer evening
Starts to unfold,

So that all the insects,
Now, before you pass,
Will have light to see by Undressing in the grass

But when night has flowered
Little lamps a-gleam,
You fly over tree-tops
Following a dream.

Men wonder from their windows
That a firefly goes so far—
They do not know your longing
To be a shooting star

—Carolyn Hall.

The Linnet

Upon this leafy bush
With thorns and roses in it,
Flutters a thing of light,
A twittering linnet.
And all the throbbing world
Of dew and sun and air
By this small parcel of life
Is made more fair;
As if each bramble-spray
And mounded gold-wreathed furze,
Harebell and little thyme,
Were only hers;
As if this beauty and grace
Did to one bird belong,
And, at a flutter of wing,
Might vanish in song.

—Walter de la Mare

BOUND OVER TO SUPERIOR COURT ON BURGLARY CHARGE

Charles Whalen, Alias Silas Kenison, of Lockes Mills, Maine, was arrested by State Trooper John H. Smith of the Groton barracks early Wednesday morning on a charge of breaking and entering two stores, one a filling station on the Norwich-New London highway, owned by Fred Rogers of Uncasville, and he was also charged was carrying a concealed weapon, fully loaded. He had a hearing early Wednesday evening before Justice of the Peace Oscar E. Church of Montville and was bound over the September term of the superior court. He was remanded to the New London jail.

When arrested the man was carrying a fully loaded revolver, but was taken by surprise by the officer and had no chance to use the weapon. He was taken to the Groton barracks and grilled for several hours by Sergeant George Webber and Trooper Smith and finally broke down and confessed to the breaks, which were made principally at gasoline stations and stores.

Early Wednesday morning the state police received a call that a man was attempting to break into a store in a remote section of Montville and Trooper Smith was sent out to investigate. He learned that a car, bearing Maine registration, had been seen in the vicinity and began a search for such a car. He saw a small sedan with the Maine plates pulled up alongside one of the country roads and stepped onto the running board and grabbed Whalen as he reached for his revolver and quickly disarmed him.

It was found that the plates on the man's automobile were issued in a name other than either of those given by him and it is believed that possibly the prisoner is wanted in Maine, and the state police of that state were asked to check up on him.

DENIES REPORT THAT HE WILL PICK UP LICENSES

A denial was issued Wednesday by Chief George Linton of the local police department of the fact that he had notified Motor Vehicle Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel of his intentions of picking up licenses of operators charged with driving while under the influence of liquor. An Associated Press dispatch out of Hartford Wednesday stated that Norwich was one of fifteen towns in the state as represented by their chiefs of police that have informed the commissioner of intention of taking away the licenses of auto drivers charged with drunken driving.

Chief Linton stated Wednesday that he was not in sympathy with the plan of Commissioner Stoeckel in having the licenses of operators picked up as soon as the men are arrested and charged with drunken driving. He said that he deemed it more advisable for the judge to decide whether an operator was guilty of driving while under the influence or not before their licenses were taken away from them.

EXONERATES DRIVER WHO CAUSED MORTON'S DEATH

According to a finding made public Wednesday by Coroner Edward G. McKay, Anthony R. Augusta of Falmouth, Mass., is exonerated from criminal liability in causing the death of Thomas F. Morton, 61, of Waterford. The late Mr. Morton was hit and fatally injured July 2nd at Mallory Hill, near New London. The coroner says in his finding:

That the said Thomas F. Morton died in the Town of New London on the fourth day of July, 1930, from a concussion of the brain, fracture of right tibia and fibula, imphysema of both lungs, chronic pulmonary tuberculosis, cerilosis of the liver, cystic degeneration of left kidney. The injuries mentioned above having been received when the deceased was struck by an automobile owned and operated by Anthony R. Augusta on the second day of July, 1930, on the Boston Post Road in the Town of Waterford.

The above memtioned collision occured on the main highway between New London and New Haven, known as the Boston Post Road. The place is designated as Station 6, Mallory Hill Waterford. At that place the road runs generally east and west. It runs over a rounded hill so that there is little or no level places at the top. On both sides of the crown of the hill the grades are more or less steep. The surface is covered with concrete about 18 ft. wide. On the northerly side of the road at this point Pine Street intersects the main highway. The collision occured about in the intersection of the two streets. The deceased, Thomas Morton, had left the house situated on the northwest corner of the above mentioned intersection and had crossed the main highway to wait for a bus going into New London. He stood on the shoulder of the road near a wall on the south side of the highway. He apparently had forgotten something at home and had started to walk back across the highway. Before he reached the opposite side he was struck by the Augusta automobile. He was thrown to the ground and against a retaining wall in front of his house. He received severe injuries, and was taken to a New London Hospital. He died there two days later.

The automobile which struck Mr. Morton was a Buick Coupe. It was carrying three passengers in the rear seat and two passengers besides the driver in the front seat. This party of six were going from Falmouth, Massachusetts to Washington, D. C. They left Falmouth some time during the morning of July 2nd and reached New London at about 4.30 P. M.

The testimony in this case was confusing and contradictory in regard to the traffic on the road at the point of the collision. The weight of the testimony indicated that an automobile going towards New London in an easterly direction had passed the place where Mr. Morton was standing just before the Augusta car going in a westerly direction arrived at that point. It is an exceedingly dangerous spot on the road because of its location at the crest of the hill.

Traffic on this road is very heavy and at this time of day motor cars are continually passing. After the collision occured investigation was made of the vicinity. Wheel marks that were undoubtly of the Augusta car showed on the north side of the highway about a foot off the concrete and on the shoulder of the road. The distance that these marks went from the start to where the automobile was stopped was about 75 ft. The point of contract was near the end of this distance. After striking the pedestrian the motor car verred to the left so that it was headed directly across the street.

It does not appear that the deceased was seen by the driver of the automobile for any great distance. Even without traffic passing it would be difficult to see a pedestrian crossing the street while the automobile was going up the grade to the crest of the hill. The evidence revealed that the point of contact was slightly on the west grade of the hill. It appears that the automobile was going at a fairly good rate of speed. This is indicated by the distance that it went with its brakes on. However it does not appear that it was being driven in such a grossly negligent manner as to constitute criminal negligence under the statute. This conclusion is reached after taking into consideration the type of road, the surroundings and the condition of traffic.

I am satisfied and find that the death of Thomas F. Morton was not caused by the criminal act, omission or carelessness of any other person or persons.

CALVARY CHURCH PLANS HARVEST HOME GATHERING

At a recent church meeting of the Mount Calvary Baptist church, High street, it was decided by the members that Sunday, September 7th, would be known as the Harvest Home Gathering day. Rev. Robert A. Moody, S. T. B., pastor of the Shiloh Baptist church, Albany avenue, Hartford and choir have been invited. Dr. Moody is to preach at 3 p. m., and the members of the choir are preparing special music for the occasion. The Mount Calvary choir, under the leadership of Mrs. Louise A. Hall, chorister, and the quartette composed of Frederick Randall, Al Perrin, Joseph Lewis and Charles Lewis will assist with the program. The following captains were appointed to direct the pew rally: Frederick Randall, general captain; Deacon Augustus Vera, Mrs. Mary Jane Brown, Mrs. Fannie Jackson, Rev. Henry B. Harris, Deacon Henry Lacey. The following assistant captains were appointed: Mrs. Amy Lacy, Mrs. Nancy Miller, Mrs. Annia Drury, Deacon Overton Howard, Mrs. Maybelle Lacey. Each family group is to have its own table and invite such friends at they wish.

The work of remodelling the ceiling downstairs in the church is progressing rapidly under the excellent supervision of Deacon Augustus Vera. This work has been done by the men of the church, including the deacons, trustees and the members of the Brotherhood club and friends. This splendid suggestion on the part of the men of the church has saved the church quite a bit of expense. It is hoped that this coming Sunday that all of the members who have not yet paid their taxed dollar will do so in order that the necessary material for finishing the work may be gotten this coming week. It is hoped by all that the work will be completed in time for the pew rally and the Harvest Home Gathering.

Louis Allard of Taftville and Dominick Falcone of this city, charged with violation of the liquor laws, were presented before United States Commissioner Earle Mathewson Wednesday afternoon at his office in the Thayer building. Allard's case was continued to Friday, August 15, and Falcone's to Saturday, Aug. 16, bonds in both cases being fixed at $1,500. Both men are at present awaiting trial in the United States district court on a liquor violation charge preferred against them several weeks ago in connection with previous raids.

The two men were arrested Tuesday afternoon after the places which they were alleged to be conducting were raided by federal prohibition agents. Allard was arrested at a place on Norwich avenue, Taftville, near the Taft's station, where the officers found 20 cases of home-brew beer. At the Falcone place, at No. 85 North Main street, the federal men seized 40 cases of home-brew beer. Allard and Falcone were arrested at the same places several weeks ago, the raids at that time also being conducted by federal officers.

CENTRAL FALLS MAN CHARGED WITH VAGRANCY

Philip J. Dolan, 43, of Central Falls, R. I., who is afflicted with hallucinations, was taken into custody Wednesday evening by State Police Officer Henry R. Kathe of the Groton barracks on the Norwich-Westerly highway near the residence of Oscar Main. He is locked up at police headquarters on a charge of vagrancy.

A resident of that section complained that Dolan had been hanging around the vicinity for a good part of the day, after securing a glass of well water, Officer Kathe investigated and found Dolan sitting in a clump of bushes in front of the residence, where he said he was waiting for friends who were to take him to New York city.

When further questioned by the officer Dolan told a very disconnected story so he was brought to the local police station, where he continued to talk incoherently. He was booked on a charge of vagrancy and will be taken this (Thursday) morning to the Groton barracks. A further investigation is to be made inasmuch as it is possible he is an escaped inmate of an insane hospital.

This Woman In 4 Weeks Lost 19 Pounds of Fat

Here's a letter written October 21, 1929, by Mrs. Fred Barringer of Lewiston, Montana, that ought to be read by every overweight woman in America.

"Gentlemen: I first saw your advertisements in a Billings, Montana, paper and decided to try Kruschen Salts.

I started taking them every morning as directed as I was very much overweight and wanted to reduce.

I had tried going on a diet but would get so hungry that my diet would not last long, so I decided to give "Kruschen Salts" a fair trial. The day I started to take them I weighed 256 lbs. and at present, which has been just four weeks, I weigh 239 lbs. And I must say, I feel much better. Kruschen Salts had a decided effect upon the quantity of food I took and stimulated my desire to greater activity.

I have recommended Kruschen Salts to many of my friends, in fact, have a number of them taking Kruschen Salts.

May all large people, both men and women, who want to reduce in an easy way, give Kruschen Salts a fair trial. I am sure it will convince any one."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts four weeks costs but 85c at any drugstore in America.

Face Very Itchy. Could not Sleep Nights. Healed by Cuticura.

"My face was very itchy and not taking care of it at that time it broke out with pimples. The irritation caused me to scratch and scratching caused eruptions that disfigured my face. I could not sleep nights, and they bothered me terribly for three weeks.

"I tried other remedies but there was no improvement. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment so purchased some, and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." FESS CHOSEN AS CHAIRMAN REP. NATIONAL COMMITTEE

Huston, in Retiring, Declared "No Man in Political Life Has Ever Been Subjected to More Unjust and Unwarranted Attacks"—Robert H. Lucas Was Appointed "Executive Director," and George D. Keim of Edgewater Park, N. J., Secretary—Reorganization Was Effected at a Brief and Harmonious Meeting.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7—(AP)—With a final blast at his opponents, Claudius H. Huston, of Tennessee, today formally ended his brief but tumultuous career as chairman of the republican national committee, and a new slate of officers, headed by Senator Fess of Ohio and Robert H. Lucas of Kentucky, was installed to take immediate charge of the party's fall campaign.

Senator Fess was named to succeed Huston, and Lucas, commissioner of internal revenue, was appointed "executive director".

Changing plans at the last minute, the party chieftains also filled the vacancy in the national committee secretaryship, naming George D. Keim, a retired banker of Edgewater Park, N. J., to succeed Representative Franklin Fort, of the same state, who resigned several months ago.

Two new national committeemen also were chosen. They were Ernest Lee Jahncke, assistant secretayr of the navy, to succeed the late Emile Kuntz as committeeman from Louisiana, and Ezra R. Whitla, of Couer D'Alene, to fill the place as committeeman from Idaho from which Senator Thomas resigned.

The reorganization was effected at a brief harmonious meeting of the executive committee of the national organization. Twenty-two members were present or represented by proxies.

Huston made his attack in the form of a statement to the press after he had submitted his promised resignation to the committee without comment. He charged he had been persecuted almost from the time he took over the chairmanship, adding that while he was conscious of his own integrity, he preferred to put the interest of the party above personal consideration and resign.

"In the past," he said, "it has been the policy of the party leaders to maintain a solid front when under the enemy fire, but as this has not been the policy in the present case, I have reached the conclusion, putting the interest of the republican party ahead of personal consideration, that I should tender my resignation, for I am wholly unwilling to be accused of imposing burdens personal to me upon the party during the coming senatorial and congressional campaign."

"I am sure that no such risks exist," he added, "but rather than incur the charge of creating it, I prefer to withdraw."

The Tennessean said his withdrawal would give the party an opportunity to select a leader "free from the present factional opposition, and will permit me, without embarrassing others, to pursue a course that will insure in the minds of the republicans of the country my right to their continued esteem and confidence."

James Francis Burke, general counsel, said the selection of Fess was permanent and would not require ratification of the full committee as had been the impression up to the hour of today's meeting. He said the executive committee had full authority to name a permanent head of the national organization, but some leaders still differ with him on that point.

Both Fess and Lucas were called into the meeting after their selections had been made and each made a brief address. The entire group had luncheon with President Hoover afterward.

Plans for the approaching campaign were not discussed, it was said, nor the statement of Horace A. Mann, president Hoover's southern campaign manager in 1928, asserting he and his followers would stand for no "outside interference" in the conduct of southern political affairs.

In a talk with newspapermen Fess said he would be "fairly active" in the campaign but would leave much of the details to Lucas. He predicted the republicans would retain control of the senate and house.

"While this is an off year during which the national committee is not usually expected to be active," he said, "the world depression, which has not affected our country as much as others, will cause some disaffection. This will necessitate a campaign of education so that the public may be informed."

Unless future developments warrant it, the new chairman said, no meeting of the national committee will be called in the near future. Meanwhile, Fess will take an eight-day vacation on the Great Lakes beginning next week.

Burke moved acceptance of Huston's resignation. His motion, including a vote of thanks for the Tennessean's services to the party, was approved unanimously.

Fess also will serve as ex-officio chairman of the executive committee according to custom, although Lucas will be the actual head as "executive director."

Keim, the new secretary, was a Hoover delegate to the Kansas City convention and has long been a contributor to the party's campaign chests. His business has been conducted in Philadelphia while he made his home in nearby New Jersey. He is the New Jersey member of the port of New York authority.

The mild mannered Huston was unusually vigorous in criticism of his opponents.

"No man in political life has ever been subjected to more unjust and unwarranted attacks," he said.

He added that "every accusation made by the senate lobby committee" regarding his handling of funds for the Tennessee River Improvement association before he became national chairman "was so completely refuted that its final report to the senate charged no wrongdoing and the opposing party, since that time, has found no advantage in pursuing me further."

YACHT ENTERPRISE WINS THIRD CONSECUTIVE VICTORY

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 7.—(AP) —Enterprise, white of sail and spar, glided ghost-like over 27 miles of a tortuous course between Vineyard Haven and this port today to defeat for the third consecutive time her three rivals for the honor of defending the America's cup against Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger, Shamrock V, off here in September.

A magician's touch was almost necessary to win a yacht race in conditions prevailing today and apparently Harold S. Vanderbilt had it. Enterprise, the smallest of the cup candidates, was blanketed by Weetamoe, the Morgan-Nichols boat, soon after the start and that for a time held her back. The air was light, scarcely nine miles an hour, and tide rips and currents through Vineyard sound were baffling although the surface of the sea was smooth. Once Enterprise found herself in a pocket of dead air and Weetamoe won past her. But the wind again filled her sails and she passed the Weetamoe and at the finish line her margin of victory was 19 seconds.

FLEEING AUTO RUM RUNNER WAS SHOT BY POLICEMAN

GREENWICH, Aug. 7.—(AP)— John Zanetti, of Springfield, Mass., tonight was under arrest in Greenwich hospital with bullet wounds in his shoulder and jaw. He was shot while driving a liquor-laden touring car at speeds at times exceeding 70 miles an hour in an attempt to escape from Motorcycle Policeman Stephen Clark of Greenwich.

Clark stopped the car on the Boston Post road at the Stamford-Greenwich line and ordered Zanetti to drive to the Greenwich police station while he followed on his motorcycle. Zanetti, Clark said, turned from a side road instead and tried to outdistance him. Clark followed, firing shots at the fleeing car. Four bullets punctured the rear of the automobile and one lodged in Zanetti's shoulder. In the outskirts of Greenwich Zanetti stopped his car and attempted to escape on foot. A bullet from Clark's revolver struck him in the jaw and ended the chase.

Greenwich police reported they found 14 bags of liquor in the car.

To Make Surveys In Drought Areas

Of Damage and [illegible]ring Caused by [illegible] Weather and Intense [illegible]

WASHINGTO[illegible] 7.—(AP)— The administration ma[illegible] its first move to mitigate actual drought distress today, encouraged by reports that serious damage is more or less localized and that good general rains might minimize impending disaster.

On the suggestion of President Hoover, the department of agriculture prepared to send questionnaires to all county farm agents asking them for detailed surveys on both the actual damage and the suffering caused by dry weather and intense heat.

The questionnaires will inquire as to the number of families who will need aid to carry their livestock through the winter and whether there is feed available either in the county where the distress is felt or in some nearby county.

The agent will be asked to suggest measures necessary to mitigate actual distress and to enable farmers to carry a normal supply of livestock, particularly foundation herds and flocks, through the winter.

Carl Williams, a farm board member, outlined a plan by which he said farmers could get aid through the Grain Stabilization corporation within four days.

Under its existing feed distribution agencies, or other business men or farmers, would underwrite grain delivered to individuals. The Grain Stabilization corporation would sell feed grains of any kind in carlots at market prices on easy payments of one or two years. The farmer would give his note, bearing the endorsement of any responsible corporation with sufficient collateral to guarantee paymtnt.

Williams said it made little difference who formed the underwriting corporation so long as it arranged for local distribution of the feed and collected the farmers' notes when due. The corporation would make no profit on its own services and the only immediate cost to the farmer would be his proportionate share of freight expenses.

All supplies thus distributed by the Grain Stabilization corporation, Williams said, would be replaced from the 1930 crop in accordance with previous announcement that grain held by the corporation would not be put on the market in competition with current stocks.

Denying there is any such thing as a bankrupt community, except in the sense that its assets may be temporarily intangible, Williams said the plan offered an opportunity for such frozen assets to be put behind long time loans.

If the plan is approved by the board and acceptable to farmers, he said, any group wishing to form a corporation "could meet tonight, get their charter in two days and get authorization for grain in four."

Financial as well as other measures that might be taken to combat drought conditions were discussed in a half hour conference late today between the president and Secretary Hyde, Sam E. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau federation; C. E. Huff, president of the National Farmers union, and Paul Bestor, a member of the federal farm loan board.

The president previously had said no direct relief would be undertaken until he receives the department of agriculture's detailed report on the drought on Monday.

THUNDERSTORMS BREAK DROUGHT IN MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.— (AP) —Drought and thundershowers were jousting over the midwestern arena today, battling on almost even terms. Their tide of battle sent temperatures down to the 70s in some sections where rain triumphed, and up to the 100's in areas where drought was well entrenched.

The Dakotas remained one of the strongholds of the dry spell, the temperatures ranging up to 104 in Napoleon, N. D., despite scattered showers. In St. Paul and Minneapolis, however, it was only 82 with overcast skies a shield. Moderate temperatures held sway in most of Wisconsin. In Chicago and most of the Great Lake region the temperatures were in the 70's and 80's.

Southern Illinois still suffered, the mercury reaching 108 at Carbondale during the afternoon. The weather bureau at Springfield said the drought downstate is almost six weeks old, with no rain of consequence in that area since June 25 and 26. Wells and streams are drying up rapidly and crops are browning in parched fields.

Nebraska, without rain today, although relieved somewhat by showers yesterday, had temperatures in the 90's. The prospects were unsettled with cloudy skies.

It was slightly cooler in Iowa, with some scattered rains and prospects of more.

FIGHTERS ARE SUBDUING BRUSH FIRES ON CAPE COD

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Aug 7—(AP)—The greedy red lines of fire that have devoured thousands of acres of forest and brush in southeastern Massachusetts, from Plymouth to beyond the Cape Cod canal, consuming 11 houses, cottages and camps, were fading and dying tonight.

Hundreds of men in many communities, day and night, have set other hungry lines of flames in the paths of the advancing red lines, thus depriving them of sustenance—backfiring, they call it.

Tonight, the one fire in this whole drought parched region that appeared to hold any menace was burning near Head-of-Bay village, near Bay End, the estate of Mrs. James Garland, of Boston.

FOREST FIRES RAGING IN NEW YORK STATE

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 7—(AP)—Forest fires occasioned by the persistently dry weather continued today to take heavy toll through the state.

The conservation department received reports of 12 new fires, bringing the total to 21. Most of these were under control, but at Ellenville, in Ulster county, two fires had burned through 900 acres of brush and threatened to assume crown, or top fire proportions. Fire wardens exerted all efforts toward keeping the creeping blaze from the heavy timber areas close at hand.

WIFE SLAYER PAYNE WOULD HURRY TO ELECTRIC CHAIR

STINNETT, Tex., Aug. 7—(AP)—Requesting that he be hurried "through to the electric chair," A. D. Payne, Amarillo attorney, today was alleged to have confessed he placed three sticks of dynamite in his automobile, their explosion being credited with killing his wife and maiming his nine year old son.

Murder charges were preferred against the lawyer after his arrest late Tuesday. Officers alleged the dynamite plot was evolved by Payne because of his love for Mrs. Verona Thompson, his former secretary. A statement by the woman asserting Payne had made ardent love to her led to his arrest.

Payne, the father of three children, declared his one great regret was that he did not have a chance to commit suicide before he was arrested. He said he had made two plans to kill himself in such a way that his death would appear an accident.

"I wanted my children to collect the full insurance I carry," he was quoted as saying. "I have about $$40,000 on my life, counting the double indemnity they would get if I were killed accidentally. I have done the children a great wrong and the only thing I can do for them is to let them have what insurance I can."

TERMS OF SENTENCES FIXED FOR COMMUNISTS

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.— (AP)— The city parole commission today recommended that the indeterminate sentences of William Z. Foster, communist leader and two of his lieutenants who were convicted of instigating the Union square riot in March, be fixed at six months each. A sentence of ten months was suggested for a fourth.

Foster, Israel Amter and Robert Minor will be released on parole October 21 if the court of special sessions approves the recommendations. Harry Raymond, the fourth communist, was recommended for a longer term because he had a criminal record, the commissioner reported.

The four received indefinite terms of three months to three years on their conviction April 21 and have been in jail since.

Mayor Walker, Norman Thomas, head of the socialist party, Sinclair Lewis, the author, and the Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick were among those who wrote asking leniency for the communists, the commission announced.

FOUR MEN INDICTED FOR RACE TRACK SWINDLE

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—(AP)—Four men were indicted by a federal grand jury today on charges of using the mails to defraud Jacob C. Hazelbacker, retired hotel man of Pittsburgh, Pa., of $136,000 in a race track swindle in 1928.

Those indicted were Fred Zubeck, Robert Kohler, alias F. C. Bauer; William Humphries, alias W. B. Reynolds, and Fred C. Paul. All have been sought by federal authorities since August, 1928.

Lured by promises of great wealth on the race track, Hazelbacker charged that he turned over $136,000 to Humphries in Montreal two summers ago when Kohler pleaded that he needed the money to secure a $400,000 winning. Humphries left for Quebec with the money but never returned, Hazelbacker charged. Hazelbacker claimed that Zudeck introduced Kohler to him in Miami. EX-CONGRESSMAN CHARGED WITH OPERATING A STILL Manuel Herrick, Former Oklahoma Representative, Held Under $1,500 Bond by Federal Grand Jury at Baltimore—Charge That Herrick Impersonated an Officer Was Not Pressed—Herrick Claimed That He Was Undercover Agent in the Employ of the Prohibition Bureau—Officers Are Investigating His Story.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 7—(AP)—Arrested at a liquor still in St. Mary's country, south of Washington, Manuel Herrick, former Oklahoma congressman, was held today to the federal grand jury under $1,500 bond as officers continued an investigation of his story that he was acting as a prohibition informer.

Herrick, 54, was arrested early yesterday by federal raiders, who told Commissioner Harris N. Abercrombie that they saw the one-term congressman fire the boilers and lift mash into the big still, of 1,000 gallons capacity. He told officers he was paid $15 a week.

The still was destroyed, 12,000 gallons of mash and a truck containing 50 cases of fruit jars were confiscated and Herrick and two other men were taken in a truck to Marlboro, where they spent the night. They were brought to Baltimore today.

Herrick's story that he was acting for the federal prohibition bureau at Washington, under an informal commission from J. P. "Moore" in the office of Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock, was scouted by the officers, but the arraignment was continued for hours as a check was made.

Herrick, in blue overalls and unshaven, told prohibition officers and department of justice agents that he went to the prohibition bureau at Washington last month, but Woodcock was out and he was referred to "Moore". He said he failed to have a definite understanding with the latter, but proceeded anyhow to get the job at the still, located near the southernmost tip of the state, about 80 miles southeast of Washington.

Living alone in a one room shack, he worked as a boiler tender and general handy man, he related. When arrested he described other illicit connections and offered to take the officers to other stills, but was not able to make good his claims, they said.

William F. Airey, one of the men arrested with Herrick, provided the $1,500 bond required of him, but the other, Pius Ennels, Negro, went to jail to await trial. Herrick said Airey gave him his job.

During his term in the sixty-seventh congress, in which he represented the eighth Oklahoma district as a republican from March 4, 1921, to March 4, 1923, Herrick was often in the public eye. In 1921, he was sued for $50,000 for breach of promise by a New York girl who had been a beauty contest entrant.

In congress he several times spoke on prohibition and on departing when defeated in 1923, said other members drank openly.

"The smell of liquor on all sides has sickened me," he announced.

In Oklahoma, he was a farmer and stock man until he entered politics and was swept into congress in the Harding land slide.

FEAR FOR SAFETY ON AMERICANS IN KANCHOW

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7—(AP)—Fears were held by state department officials tonight for the safety of Americans trapped in the Chinese City of Kanchow, in the midst of a vast bandit infested area 300 miles inland from Foochow.

Five days ago on instructions of the American legation at Peiping, the American consulate at Hankow telegraphed Bishop O'Shea of the Catholic mission at Kanchow urging to warn all Americans to withdraw. The legation's instructions were sent after a warning message had been received from Dr. C. T. Wang, Chinese minister for foreign affairs, that General Ma of the local military forces at Kanchow would withdraw.

Since then no word has been received from Kanchow and it was feared tonight the Americans might have decided to remain in the unprotected city rather than attempt to withdraw to a place of safety through the bandit infested neighboring country. Some of the 15 to 30 Americans in Kanchow shifted the attention of the department from the situation at Hankow, where communists are threatening the city. Ambassador Debuchi of Japan and Minister Wu of China discussed the Hankow situation at length with Assistant Secretary of State Castle today.

The department's records showed the following list of American Catholic missionaries at Kanchow on January 1 and it is believed still to be accurate:

Mary C. Beggs, Anselma Jarboe, Emily P. Kolb, Helen C. Lucas, Sarah J. O'Neil, Clara Louise Groell, Annie Strable, all of Emmetsburg, M. D.; J. J. Corbett, Boston; Vincent Louise Delude, South Boston; F. J. Stauble, Rochester, N. Y., and J. A. O'Shea, Deep River, Conn., in the outlying district in the vicinity of Kanchow there are numerous other missionaries.

HELD-UP BY FOUR ARMED BANDITS IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7—(AP)—Four armed bandits held up the messenger of the J. G. McCrory Five and Ten Cent store tonight and with hundreds of by-standers looking on, escaped in a waiting automobile with $1,200.

Harvey Smith, 20, the store messenger, emerged from the downtown store to deposit the day's receipts in a nearby bank. As he stepped out on the crowded sidewalk, three men snatched the money from him at the point of a gun and jumped into a Maryland automobile, operated by a fourth man.

It was the fourth daylight robbery here in recent days. A bank messenger was robbed of $4,000 on the street last Friday, while the day before, $7,000 was snatched from a hospital nurse.

OLD CONCORD STAGE COACH FOR SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—(AP)—Two of the country's most widely known comedians, Will Rogers and Fred Stone, have presented to the dignified Smithsonian institution something for which it has long been searching—a rare old Concord stage coach built in 1825.

It arrived at the museum yesterday after journeying from San Francisco to New York via the Panama canal on an army transport, thence by boat down the coast and up the Potomac.

Under orders of the quartermaster general the creaking old relic, with paint peeling off the wheels and red leather upholstery badly worn, was handled as carefully as though it were a jewel. It came uncrated and was rolled proudly through the streets of the capital to its final august abode.

For some time the arts and industries section of the Smithsonian institute had been hunting for a Concord wagon. Very few of them are left; most went to pieces from hard use. About a year ago museum officials saw a picturesque coach which was the property of Fred Stone. They asked Stone later to give the coach to the museum. He replied that it had been given to his friend, Will Rogers, and was in Beverly Hills, Cal.

PROFIT-TAKING DROVE PRICES OF GRAIN DOWN

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.— (AP)—The ups and downs of a fast moving grain market today saw new high prices set up for corn and a late collapse that left both corn and wheat below the high closing level of yesterday.

A grab for the profits accumulated in the sudden advance of the last few days accounted for the drop.

The market started out as violently as yesterday, with the public buying and prices bounding up and back too fast for the scorers at the blackboard. Wheat spurted up 4 cents a bushel and corn gained 2 1-4 cents.

But the pace had been too rapid, and the chance of taking profits too attractive. At the top point of the day wheat was 15 to 16 1-4 cents higher than the season's low mark established only last Saturday, and corn, at a new high for the present crop, was 33 1-4 cents above the minimum of 66 1-4 cents for December delivery, set last July 8.

BIG CROWD EXPECTED HERE ON DOLLAR DAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 7—Hundreds of eastern Connecticut people are expected to come to this city Saturday, August 9, when one of the biggest merchandising events ever attempted here will be staged under the name of Dollar day. The stores will be open from 8:30 a. m. to 9 o'clock in the evening. While the old accepted standard of Dollar day in past years has been to clean house, a visit through the stores during the period of preparation for Saturday's sales disclosed that the offers to be made on this Dollar day will mainly be of high quality merchandise carried in regular stock. It remains true, however, that splendid bargains will be found in broken lots and slightly damaged or soiled goods. Many will find among this type of merchandise "just the thing" at ridiculously low prices.

By offering regular stock as well as odd merchandise during this sales event the retail merchants are bidding for a twofold attraction which is expected to prove a tremendous sales boon.

The Willimantic Dollar day advertisements appearing in this issue of The Bulletin on four pages are well worth the attention of all readers throughout eastern Connecticut. Except for the very few restricted areas, shoppers are invited by the merchants bureau of the chamber of commerce to park anywhere without time limit.

Asks Cooperation In Campaign

A plea for cooperation from the public in the Save-a-Life campaign was made Thursday afternoon by Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel in a statement presented from WTIC, Hartford. In his statement he said:

"Connecticut is now engaged in a campaign to save lives. It seems strange that with self-preservation as nature's first law, it should be necessary to teach men the rudiments of safety in such a hazardous activity as traffic participation. But, nevertheless, it is true that there must be almost constant training of drivers, pedestrians, and others in habits which make for safety.

"It is with this necessity for reiteration of safety advice in mind that Connecticut has joined the other New England states in a Save-a-Life movement. This special campaign will be conducted through August. During it, all of those things which have been stressed as important factors for safety will again be brought to attention."

It requires years of practice to enable a man to fall in love and light on his feet.

for ANY CHILD

WE can never be sure just what makes a child restless, but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation, and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as your child has a fretful spell, is feverish, or cries and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Sometimes constipation. Or diarrhea — a condition that should always be checked without delay. Just keep Castoria handy and give it promptly. Relief will follow very promptly; if it doesn't you should call a physician.

DANIELSON

NEWSPAPERMAN HAS TOUGH TIME WITH HIS AUTOMOBILE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Aug. 7. — Emory Miller, who works for the largest paper published in Providence, or Rhode Island for that matter, came close to being arrested several times this afternoon for driving his own machine, or possibly one belonging to the newspaper.

All of this came about through an error. At about 11:45 Mr. Miller reported to the Danielson barracks that his car had been stolen from where he had left it parked in Jewett City. That report just naturally resulted in an immediate broadcast from the barracks of the information with the registration number and brief description of the car, to police departments throughout the state.

It later developed that the car had been taken by another employe of the same newspaper by which Mr. Miller is employed. This other employe's car developed a flat tire, and seeing the car Miller was using, took it to go on a business errand. This was duly reported to the barracks.

After Mr. Miller had recovered his car and started out he began to encounter difficulties, for he was more than once held up by officers who recognized the registration number as that of the car reported stolen. Mr. Miller managed to explain his way out of these situations, and eventually appeared at the barracks here to tell about it all.

Of interest to his many old-time friends here is the re-election of Robert W. Boys of the Farr Alpaca company of Holyoke as president of the Textiles Associates club. He has been president of the association for the past twenty years. For a term of several years Mr. Boys was agent of the Goodyear Mills, Inc., of this town, and during his residence in Killingly was an enthusiastic promoter of various civic events and many community affairs in Goodyear.

J. Newton Blanchard, administrator of the estate of Leon N. Blanchard, Dayville man who was killed when run down by another machine while a tire was being changed on the Blanchard car at Winsted on the night of June 7, has instituted a civil suit to recover damages of $10,000 for his deceased nephew's estate from the owner of the car that figured in the tragedy. The suit charges negligent operation. The case will be heard in the superior court for the Winsted district.

Plans are practically perfected for the annual field day of Quinebaug Pomona grange to be held at Highlawn farm in Mansfield on August 21. The morning hours will offer opportunity for the renewal of acquaintances, meeting new friends, and generally preparing for the program that is expected will furnish an exceptionally good time for all attending. After the basket lunch at noon there will be a program of sports. The grange scoring the highest number of points in the events scheduled will receive a silver cup, which twice has been won by Senexet grange of Woodstock.

The committee that has charge of the arrangements is made up of E. L. Greene, Plainfield; Minnie F. Sharp, Putnam; Dr. F. W. Page, Danielson; A. E. Anthony, of Echo grange and Mrs. Susie G. Williams of Brooklyn.

Thornton Burgess, a celebrated Springfield naturalist, has identified the thing "that the cat brought in" at Lester Wheeler's home on East Franklin street a week ago, as a jumping or kangaroo mouse, a tiny animal quite strange to this territory.

A death early this morning at Plainfield was that of Mrs. Ademage Annie Beaulac, 57, wife of Cesaire Beaulac, and sister of Mrs. George L. Loiselle of North Main street, Danielson. Mrs. Beaulac, who was born at Dayville, died after a long illness. She leaves her husband and a daughter, Lilica, in addition to her sister.

If James Friery, now starting on a sentence of 90 days in Brooklyn jail, was given a service stripe for every time he has been sentenced to that institution his arms would be much like a finely striped zebra. The term he is now serving is his 47th. James is something of a county nomad, making his abode in first one place, then another, throughout this section of the state. His general headquarters may be set down as Brooklyn. No one has taken the trouble to add up what his various jail terms have amounted to in terms of total time, but it runs into years. He has been going to jail quite regularly for more than 25 years.

Friery was a rugged, rough and tumble fighter a score of years ago, and many are the tussles officers have had with him. The years have taken their toll however, and he is much more docile and nowhere near the battle he was in the old days.

Numbers of his sentences to the county jail have been from the town court of Killingly. Friery's failing has been his long campaigning with "firewater." He has not been given to indulging in higher crimes.

Cards postmarked at Wiesbaden were received here today from Miss Helen Cronin of Danielson, a member of the faculty of Plainfield high school. Miss Cronin has been spending several days of her month in Europe. After attending the Passion play at Oberammergau she visited in Munich and Mainheim. A trip up the Rhine was another feature. Miss Cronin will return here the latter part of this month.

Frank J. Gorman will spend the week end with his family at Groton Long Point, where they have taken a cottage for August.

In the various voting districts of the town registrars of voters are to be in session Friday of this week making the customary enrollment of legal voters, as is done each August, preparatory to the party caucuses to be held in September, prior to the annual town meeting in early October.

The L. S. Ingalls home on South Main street is offered for sale, and will be open for inspection Friday and Saturday afternoons from 2 to 5 p. m. Will sell all or part at attractive price. Come, look it over.—adv.

Stewart Baribeault, age three years, and son of Mr. and Mrs Joseph Baribeault, is making steady recovery from an injury in which his arm was broken a few days ago.

Colon H. E. Babson of Danielson, life president of the 18th Connecticut Volunteers association, will be at Norwich on August 15th for the 62d annual re-union of this aged veterans of the Civil war at the Buckingham Memorial.

A bit unusual for this territory, but not an uncommon thing in many sections of New England, was the night flight over Danielson Wednesday at 11 p.m. of a airplane, which numbers tried to make out but could not locate, though the hum of the motor was distinct.

Incident to the visit here of Joseph A. Williamson, chief warden of the state fish and game commission, he commented on the manner in which opossum are working their way eastward through Connecticut. The animals appeared in the western part of the state several years ago and have now become quite plentiful in that section. For the past two or three years they have been more frequently seen in eastern Connecticut. They are now known to be in Killingly.

Judge James N. Tucker, one of the town's best known citizens, is not particularly well just now, it was said at his home in East Killingly this afternoon. Judge Tucker, now past 80 years of age, was head of the town court for a number of years. He was a newspaper correspondent for close to half a century.

During the long summer vacation schools of the town have been renovated to put them in readiness for the beginning of another school year a little more than three weeks hence. This year there has been necessity for little other than routine upkeep work.

Rev. Sherrod Soule, a graduate of Killingly high school many years ago, and long resident in Hartford, is to deliver the address on Saturday, August 16, at exercises incident to the 200th anniversary of the Thompson Congregational church. His address will be largely of a historical nature.

Members of the Danielson Rotary club at their weekly meeting this evening at Paco lodge made it the occasion of a farewell party in honor of William Sangster, manager of the Danielson division of the Connecticut Light and Power company for years past, and who is leaving to become manager of the commercial department of the Waterbury district of the company. In addition to a flood of good wishes, Mr. Sangster was presented with a pocketbook.

COMPTROLLER CHARGED WITH MALSEASANCE IN OFFICE

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 7.—(P)—A warrant charging State Comptroller Ernest Amos with malfeasance in office in connection with the liquidation of the suspended bank of Bay Biscayne was issued here today upon application of Jack Selby, a depositor.

Amos is charged specifically with violation of Florida statues by employing former officials and employes of the bank to make the liquidators' audit.

Although the federal and state courts have been occupied with much civil litigation as a sequel to the bank's suspension, this is the first criminal action taken.

A man's actual measurement is never marked off on his tombstone.

PUTNAM

ARSON CASE TO BE TRIED LATER IN MONTH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Aug. 7—An arson case, one of the first to be tried in Eastern Windham county in a number of years, will enter court on August 23, when Joseph Ziemba of Quinebaug, is presented before Justice P. P. Tourtellotte of North Grosvenordale, charged with being responsible for a fire of incendiary origin. Ziemba has been under arrest since June and for the past month has been at liberty under bonds.

He was arrested early in the summer by State Officer Royal V. Scranton of the Danielson barracks after the trooper had spent nearly a half year collecting bits of evidence which were at length woven into a case and pressed against the Quinebaug farmer. The state alleges that Ziemba kindled the fire which destroyed a large barn on his property last December. His purpose for this act, the state contends, was to collect the fire insurance.

An investigation by authorities convinced the police that the blaze was one of an incendiary origin. Ziemba's arrest was the result of months of investigation on the part of Officer Scranton and the first case of importance along this line to develop in this vicinity since the conviction several years ago, of Frank Howarth and Lindley Caine, Putnam men, for their part in the setting of a series of fires in this city.

Unless any radical or unexpected change is brought about in the personnel of the city water commission during the next year or so, Chairman Ralph E. Thurston of the board of commissioners proposes to continue the reconstruction work of the water system now underway and extend larger mains through Providence street to tie up with the new 12-inch mains now being laid along School street to the Putnam foundry. If the proposal is carried out, an emergency loop of high pressure mains will encircle the center of the city and thus lessen the fire hazards now existing in that section.

Captain of Police A. J. Dubreuil in his views on the matter of restraining the motor vehicle operating privileges of drivers found operating while under the influence of liquor through the revocation of licenses, is in accord with Chief George Linton of Norwich police and police heads of other cities in the state.

A report from the Day Kimball hospital this afternoon said that an improvement in the conditions of Anna Spitz and Mae Mraczik, Webster girls injured in an auto accident in Central Village Sunday, was observed today. The young women are still carried on the danger list however.

The winner of the recently conducted examination for the Thomas Alva Edison scholarship—Arthur Owney Williams, Jr., of East Providence—is the son of Arthur O. Williams, who was born in Woodstock and schooled at Woodstock Academy, and is nephew of Albert H. Williams of Sprucedale.

Miss Elsie Gallant of Church street, a law student, is substituting this week for Miss Edith Goyette of School street, secretary to Attorney Irving H. Miron. Miss Goyette is enjoying a two weeks vacation.

The drive for the nurses' home of the Day Kimball hospital saw the fund well beyond the $6,500 mark as the campaign entered its 7th week today. Teams are hard at work in every community where the hospital is serving its needs and through the efforts of members the total is rapidly mounting towards the goal of $25,000.

With the Civilian Soldiers.

Saturday, August 2nd, we were relieved of the feeding of about 150 extra men and were complimented on the manner we handled the situation in such short time and on the rations issued to the men. At present the strength of the company is 60 enlisted men and three officers with 56 men present for duty at camp leaving three men AWOL and one man on furlough. Also last Saturday we witnessed the arrival of the remainder of the 43rd Division which included men from Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Connecticut. A former Putnam boy, Gordon Winslow, track star, marched in with the 169th Infantry. All companies arriving at Ayer marched to their quarters from the station with full packs and presented a colorful scene. Monday the infantry units went through drill the greater part of the day. Machine gun companies were given target practice and the clatter of the guns was heard the greater part of the morning. Monday noon the tank company arrived in camp, the tanks being transported by rail. They smashed in through the undergrowth and shrubbery of Second street and are now quartered near the Headquarters Co. barracks. The military police and medical unit are also quartered nearby.

Sergeant Mayotte with a detail of ten men is in charge of a string of horses for officers of the 43rd Div. The Headquarters Co. will not be obliged to drill as all men are detailed on special duty at either the Division Headquarters, staff offices, or own barracks leaving but a few men at quarters. The division will be reviewed by the governors of Maine, Vermont, Rhode Island and Connecticut, or their representatives, on Sunday. By command of Major General Payne, Connecticut day has been changed from August 15th, to August 14th. Either of these two days no doubt will bring in many visitors as the reviews will prove both interesting and impressive. All barracks are equipped with hot and cold water and a short distance from the barracks is a fine swimming pool. The weather to date has been very warm. Mr. and Mrs. Pominville in company with Mr. and Mrs. Lucier were in camp Sunday to visit Corp. A. J. Pominville.

A gathering of Windham County fruit growers of Woodstock and Thompson attended the convention of Connecticut fruit growers in session at Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs today. An interesting programme of events was arranged by officials of the organization. Thursday was observed as "Fruit Growers Day."

A number of Putnam's industrial plants have afforded employes a fortnight's vacation during the annual inventory period.

It was said today by managers of two of Windham county's larger farms that native grown sweet corn will be on the market within a week.

Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's church, said this morning that the camping period for a number of young girls of the parish, which is now in session at the parish Boy Scout at Laurel Pond in North Woodstock, will draw to a close on Sunday.

The installation of a surface drain on Arch street, which will be used to convey excess surface water to the sewer outlet has been completed. The construction work was supervised by Street Superintendent Frederick Dumas.

Miss Caroline Harrington, a graduate nurse, is spending a vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Harrington, of Woodstock avenue.

An alarm at 12:30 p. m. today was for a grass fire in an open lot adjoining the railroad property on Powhatan street. The blaze was extinguished without property loss. The engine and hook and ladder companies at the Union square station responded and returned to quarters a few minutes after the alarm was recorded.

Mrs. Adelard Gravel of Norwich has been visiting this week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Donovan of Lyons street.

Frederick Alvord of Poultney, Vermont, is spending a week's vacation at his home on Walnut street.

Tom Thumb golf, the thumbnail edition of the ancient Scotch pastime, which is taking the country by storm, is serving to attract scores of local people to near-by miniature courses to participate in the latest form of sports enjoyment. Many of the adherents of the game praise its worth and make determined efforts to lower their scores. Whether the dramatic suddeness with which the "half-pint" parody on "real" golf has sprung into favor, will bring about the establishment of a course in Putnam could not be authoritively learned.

Some people make a bluff at hiding their light under a bushel who have no light.

DROUGHT FIRE HAZARDS

Warnings against fire hazards in the woods and along the roadside have been voiced often enough, it would seem, but the present drought conditions make them pertinent again and the extensive and disastrous Cape Cod conflagration gives new point to the warning. Following such a period of prolonged dry weather, cigarettes constitute perhaps the worst fire hazard and the carelessly tossed cigarette is a peril that smokers should guard against. When the manufactured cigarette is thrown aside it will continue to burn until all tobacco and paper wrapper have been consumed. Cigarettes rolled by hand go out more quickly and this is more or less true of cigars.

There are sections of this state where little or no rain has fallen for weeks and the grass and other vegetation are so dry that a spark will ignite it. Grass, brush and forest fires this spring did damage in this section running into the thousands of dollars, and the dangerous condition at the present time will not be remedied until there is enough rain to freshen the vegetation and so place it in the slow-burning or non-inflammable class. Almost every roadside now is potential ground for starting a fire if a cigarette or match is tossed out into the dry grass, so that there is particular reason why smokers in automobiles should watch against being the careless creators of this hazard.

In addition to the serious conflagration hazard, the dry weather cripples fire fighting forces by creating a shortage of water and when fires start they are fought with inadequate facilities. If we could rely upon the synthetic rain which a Virginian man hopes to produce by rain-powder scattered upon clouds from an airplane, all might be well, but there is a remedy that is at our hands and that is the use of such extreme carefulness as the present situation demands.

DOLLARS THAT GO ABROAD

Foreign financing in the United States for the first six months of this year amounted to $804,688,214, a sum larger by $100,000,000 than the total for all of 1929. Both government and private enterprises abroad were represented extensively in the bidding for American capital, largely through bond issues. Not since 1927, when the record mark of $1,592,595,760 was reached in security flotations, has there been such activity of this sort in the money market. If flotations for the balance of 1930 keep up at the rate for the first half year, the total will approach the high mark of 1927.

Our neighbor nations to the south, from the Rio Grande to Cape Horn, lead as fields to which American capital is flowing. The powers of Europe are in second place. Canada ranks next, a fact which, coupled with financing in South America, shows a remarkable ascendency in our economic influence in the western hemisphere. The far east, as was to be expected, was not so prominent. Yet, notwithstanding political and social unrest there, the orient obtained $62,500,000 in April, May and June. The march of dollars far and wide this year has been accelerated, in comparison with 1929, by less immediate home demand for banking's liquid resources.

Some 16 billion in foreign securities, disposed under American auspices, now are outstanding. The inclusion of funded world war debts raises our capital placed abroad to more than 25 billion dollars. Offsetting the amount are foreign holdings, estimated a few days ago by Dr. Julius Klein of the department of commerce, to equal seven and a half billion. Even with this subtraction, the upward and persistent surge of the United States as a creditor nation is pronounced. Probably no development after the world war matches it in international relations.

A GESTURE OF AMITY

In the order for the retirement of the battleships Florida, Utah and Arkansas about a year or eighteen months before the time called for in the London naval treaty, there is something more than a step in President Hoover's economy programme by which he hopes to cut down federal expenditures by $200,000,000 this year. It is a heartening gesture of international amity and confidence for all the world to see.

This decommissioning is due to take place on or before Oct. 1, and shortly thereafter the United States quota of capital ships will have been brought down to the ultimate treaty limits. The plans that are to be carried out in economy lines provide for making a beginning of scrapping a number of submarines and destroyers at an early date, to reduce recruiting and to cut down fuel allowances by five per cent, which can be accomplished largely by eliminating long cruises for target practice. None of these measures will decrease the margin of national safety, it is believed.

What the reaction of the other nations will be to this leadership on the part of the United States in thus anticipating the letter of the treaty date canno be foretold. Great Britain and Japan may consider it a worthy example to follow and then again they may not. But at any rate the United States has shown the way and has given an earnest of its sincerity in the matter of naval limitations. The confidence thus expressed that no major troubles are to be expected in the near future is bound to have its effect in developing a better international atmosphere.

COAST GUARD'S BIRTHDAY

The United States Coast Guard, which is celebrating its 14th anniversary this week, has carried that title for only the last 15 years, when congress combined the revenue cutter service, organized in 1790, and the life saving service, which as a separate entity dated only from 1878. But is it justified in tracing its origin to the earlier service which was established by President Washington.

Within recent years the Coast Guard's activities have been principally associated in the public mind with prohibition enforcement, and not always in a way to bring credit to the service, it is to be feared, and these activities have rather obscured its wide range of vitally important service. While its newest responsibility is one that has kept it pretty constantly in the public eye, a glance at its annual report shows that activity there has not interfered with efficient performance of its traditional duties. These include the rendering of assistance to vessels in distress and the saving of life and property, the destruction or removal of wrecks dangerous to navigation and the prevention of general smuggling. The Coast Guard also gives warning of icebergs and protects the seal and other fisheries of Alaska, besides enforcing the navigation laws governing merchant vessels.

For the performance of this considerable assignment the Coast Guard possesses a fleet of 74 cutters, 24 destroyers, and 360 patrol and picket boats, and the law provides that in time of war it shall operate as a part of the navy. Needless to say, its men are fully fit for that job, and neither of the regular fighting services has a more conspicuous record of gallantry and heroism in time of peace or war than the Coast Guard service.

CHICAGO REVOLTS

Chicago has smarted under the impression and accusation made against it that it is the "crime capital" of the United States, and the city now arises to state that the accusation is false and that it has the statistics to prove that Chicago's murder and homicide rates are not the highest in the country.

These statistics to which reference is made are contained in a bulletin on homicide rates based on population figures of the 1930 census, which has been issued by F. L. Hoffman, statistician of the Prudential Life Insurance company. In a study of killings in 146 American cities it is shown that, in recent years, Chicago has dropped from 34th to 47th place in the list.

It appears that Jacksonville, Fla., has the highest homicide rate, which is 51.7 per 100,000 inhabitants. Chicago's rate last year was 12 and the year before it was 15.2. Such a decline will be a matter of surprise, for during the period named the news reports have broadcast what appeared to be almost a carnival of killings in the Illinois city.

Homicide statistics require careful interpretation. Where murders grow out of gang feuds, and where lawless gangs enjoy the protection of corrupt political organizations, even a relatively low homicide rate has in it elements of disgrace. Chicago has had far too many murders. Its criminal gangs have grown bold to the point of commercializing assassination for the reason that many of the local law-enforcing authorities in the past were either remiss, wilfully negligent and apathetic, or else deliberately friendly to the tribute-paying vice lords.

Effective official team-work would reduce the Chicago homicide rate further by scattering the gangs, drying up the sources of their illicit revenue and putting an end to alliances between the underworld and treacherous public officials.

In aviation there's many a slip between the record and the ship.

The radio might be to blame after all. It wouldn't be the first hot wave it has stirred up.

With a good many drivers it isn't so much safety first as safety when they happen to think of it.

Paris doesn't stop sending out fashion advice just because nobody pays any attention to it. It's a Paris habit.

When the credit men are optimistic, as they are now, that's something. Credit men know a whole lot about the state of things.

Although the gangsters seem to have a way of shooting one another up or down there always seems to be just as many of them as ever.

Having decided upon a policy of "conscientious and lawful steady pressure," all the prohibition bureau has to do now is to decide where it had best be applied.

The United States is working on an airship bigger than the R-100, and it's only a question of time until Mussolini announces that he is going to build one as big as the French republic.

It is likely enough too, that what the prohibition department finds out by its impartial investigation of the liquor situation will be what was popularly suspected, but officially unknown.

Though the new 1,000 foot steamships may dock at New York, Boston boasts they will have to come there for repairs to their hulls because the army base has the only drydock in the world which can handle these ocean monsters.

OUR HEROES

Jean Kent heard the whir of the nickel alarm clock in her dreams. Yet she awakened to its clamor, smiling. The perfume of her bridal bouquet, the music of her wedding march, the splendid beauty of her hero, beside whom she was walking to the altar, still thrilled her.

With a new freshness and charm in her smooth young face she went down to breakfast. No one in the dining room yet except Volney, always the first one of the boarders to be up. Big sandy-haired Volney, eating oatmeal and reading a book. Jean smiled tolerantly as she sat down opposite Volney at the table. He did not interest her. Nothing of the hero about Volney. She thought of him as going through life, wings dragging on the ground, dingy, uninspired to soaring flights in the blue. He did not even seek romance and poetry in the books he read. That volume in his hand was a stupid technical treatise of some sort.

Volney swallowed the last of his coffee, pocketed his book and arose. But instead of going quickly he lingered, looking wistfully down at the dreamy face of the girl opposite.

"Meet me at Tony's for lunch, Jean?" he asked huskily.

Jean shook her head. "I'm awfully busy today, Volney. Extra cataloguing. Thanks a lot, though." Jean was a librarian's assistant.

On her way to work she bought a local newspaper because with a thrill of discovery she had caught a glimpse of her hero's name in the first headline. His picture was there, the account of his latest exploit, a signed statement by him. Standing on the street corner, she read greedily. Then tucking the news sheet under her arm she continued on her way, head high, cheeks glowing with happy pride.

All day her heart sang his praise.

Work hours over, alone in her tiny room, she clipped her hero's picture from the carefully preserved morning daily. Unlocking a drawer of her bureau, she took out a small precious parcel. Other pictures, other accounts. Her heart beat fast with admiration as she glanced over her treasure. Whether standing on the deck of his noble ship, stripes on his sleeves, his nation's flag floating over him, or shaking hands with the president, or receiving a gift of roses, or placing a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier, he was always beautiful, brave, glorious.

Jean had never sailed on a ship, she had never even seen the ocean, she had never laid eyes on her hero in the flesh, but what matter? She understood. It did not occur to her that she was not alone in her innocent adoration of this widely known and picturesque young man. Thousands of other young girls worshiped him just as loyally as she did, dreamed about him, carried the thought of him in their hearts. She did not know that.

The dinner bell rang. Jean locked her treasure away. It was fish night. She went down in her little blue crepe, dark eyes starry as with some delicious secret. She took her place between stout Mr. Coburn and thin Miss Archer. Volney's chair was empty—for the first time. Soon everybody was asking, "Where's Volney?" Suddenly Jean realized that it was rather pleasant to sit opposite Volney at table. She missed him.

The telephone bell rang in the booth adjoining the dining room. Miss Archer jumped up to answer it. Nobody paid much attention until Miss Archer turned round so white, so shaky, that instantly everybody knew something serious had happened.

"Volney!" gasped Miss Coburn. "He's in the hospital. He saved a child from being run over in the street. They don't know whether he's going to live." She covered her twitching face with her thin hands.

There was intense silence. Then some one spoke. Mr. Coburn. Disconnectedly. Harshly.

"That boy—heroic—I always knew."

For three days Jean forgot all about her hero. She thought only of Volney. She carried flowers to Volney. She gave him the first timid cool little kiss she had ever given any man—on his forehead, which the bandage did not quite cover.

"You've got to get well and come back to us. We're just lost without you," she said.

"Sure," grinned Volney.

It was a happy day when Volney came back. In a cab. Limping as he mounted the front steps. Still tied up with bandages, pale, but smiling. There was an ovation in his honor. Mr. Coburn made a little speech—"Our Heroes." He compared Volney with the great popular hero. "To save a little child," said Mr. Coburn, "is just as noble as to save a sinking ship. The same splendid spirit of self-sacrifice inspired both acts."

Jean nodded vigorously. She looked into Volney's wistful eyes seeking hers and smiled. And because she stood right beside him she slipped her hand into his.—Chicago News.

THE SAFETY OF SURGERY

By Dr. James W. Wicks,

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Among the many agencies devoted to the prevention and relief of the distressing effects of disease and injury, surgery holds a leading place and, through the efficiency of its methods, contributes a large measure of safety and comfort to mankind.

The great impetus that has won so commanding a position for surgery was initiated by Pasteur's discovery of bacteria (germs) about 65 years ago. Pasteur showed that bacteria came from the air and caused putrefaction. He also showed that when his test solutions were boiled putrefaction did not occur; boiling killed the bacteria; consequently their activities ceased. This demonstration pointed the way to the achievements of modern surgery.

Prior to Pasteur's work nearly all wounds, such as those received by accident, in the course of "operations" and during childbirth, were followed by infection; that is, the entrance and growth of bacteria in the body. It is commonly called "blood-poisoning." Prolonged fever, foul discharge from the wounds and extreme prostration accompanied infection and all too frequently killed its victims or left him in a state of chronic invalidism. Nothing availed against this devastating affliction. Contrast today, when infection in wounds is infrequent and owing to effective methods rarely produces such disastrous results.

Following Pasteur's discovery Lord Lister, noted English surgeon, attempted to destroy bacteria by spraying wounds with a solution of carbolic acid. His efforts were partially successful, and subsequent improvements have perfected the methods of keeping all steps in the preparation and performance of operative procedures free from bacteria, thus bringing infection under almost absolute control. So the control of infection is a powerful safeguard, for it prevents serious complications, shortens convalescence and reduces discomfort to a minimum. Aided by the beneficent action of anesthetics it has furnished the means of direct attack on diseases hitherto unaffected by any form of treatment and has also made possible the safe and efficient repair of injuries and the correction of deformities. Furthermore, the use of valuable information gained from researches in related subjects such as physiology and chemistry, X-ray, and animal experimentation, increases the control of infection.

Parallel with increased knowledge of surgical procedures have come the resolute insistence that the surgeon's training be commensurate with his responsibilities, the wonderful growth in nursing service and the constant and radical improvement of hospital facilities. So there is no reason for anyone to fear surgical care, if it is advised by an examining physician, and the dread with which many people think of "an operation" is based on ignorance of the safety of modern surgery.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Senator Park Trammel of Florida is a large, slow moving man with a deep voice.

Incidentally, he does not use that gift much in senate debates. Mostly he is content to sit and listen despite the fact that he is doing his third straight six-year term.

Looking down at him from the press gallery, you get an impression that he is a kindly, easy going chap but with rather fixed ideas.

A career variously given to owning and editing a newspaper in his home town of Lakeland, to a try as traveling salesman and finally to growing fruit before he switched permanently to political life bears out your impression of an easy going temperament.

But for 4 years he has been, most successfully, in politics. He started as mayor of Lakeland and since has been through the state legislative mill, served as attorney general, been governor and then was graduated to the senate at Washington.

Now there is further evidence that Trammell is kindly and obliging by nature. One of his senate colleagues, also a veteran, is up for re-nomination with reports indicating a battle. That is Harris of Georgia.

While it is increasingly the usual thing for house members to make frankable accountings to their constituencies when election time rolls near, senators never do that directly.

It simply is not done, just as senators themselves never put their own radio remarks or speeches delivered elsewhere than in the senate into the Congressional Record.

Yet the first senatorial accounting the Bystander recalls seeing in the Record is that covering the most recent services of Harris in the senate. It got there by the kindness of Senator Trammell. So much for his kindly nature.

One portion of the Harris accounting said he had reached a higher place on the appropriations committee than any senator from Georgia before him. And that is true.

Lee Overman of North Carolina, who will be the dean of the senate in age and service when the seventy-second congress convenes due to the retirement of Gillet of Massachusetts and the defeat in the primaries of Overman's colleague and boyhood friend, the senior senator from North Carolina, Furnifold Simmons, is ranking democrat on the appropriations committee. Harris stands next.

But Overman also is ranking democrat of the judiciary committee which headed during democratic control.

Quite likely he would elect that post again if his party came into power, leaving appropriations to Harris.

Little Talks on Thrift

Tone Of Conservative Optimism Now Expressed in Many Quarters

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

It has been noted within the last two or three weeks that individuals, groups and organizations who are closely in touch with the general business situation of the country have expressed themselves in terms of optimism. To say the least, there has come recently quite a change in feeling regarding the business outlook.

It is to be hoped that this feeling of conservative optimism will steadily spread throughout the country because a more confident attitude upon the part of everyone will prove a helpful influence in bringing conditions back to normal.

One of the encouraging factors in the present situation is that deposits in savings banks have been constantly growing. This means great potential prosperity. Regardless of what may be said otherwise, the prosperity of a nation really must depend upon the thrift of the people. An orgy of ill-advised spending might bring great activity and apparent prosperity for a while but it would only be a flash in the pan. It would soon come to an abrupt end. Whereas a nation whose citizens are constantly getting ahead and putting something away for emergencies is bound to enjoy prosperous conditions. There always will, of course, be periods of temporary depression such as we have been passing through during the last few months but the sunshine of prosperity can always be depended on when people are thrifty.

If present conditions were such as to indicate that during the past few months the people of this country have been dissipating their resources and engaging in habits of wastefulness, the outlook at the present time could not be viewed with so much equanimity.

The present sentiments of optimism and hopefulness which seem now to be steadily spreading throughout the nation may be true forerunners of great prosperity. Perhaps they may or may not be somewhat premature. But the fact remains that so long as the American people remain true to practices of thrift, the return of real prosperity cannot be long deferred.

CHILD TRAINING

Answer Children's Questions

Elsie F. Kartack

The old-fashioned saying, "Children should be seen and not heard," should have passed forever from our present day experiences for a greater understanding of what best promotes a child's growth has displaced the meager insight of former days. A recent experience proved the injustice of trying to hold to that worn-out maxim.

We were having a delightful ride in the country. At my suggestion we had turned from the much traveled highway to a road seldom used. I was enjoying the wealth of beauty all about me. Ten-year-old Elizabeth was babbling over with enthusiasm about all the new things she was seeing and her questions came fast. What were those flowers? Could she pick some? What was a silo? What was it used for? Why? Did baby ducks come out of eggs like chickens? Why did the creek run only one way? Could cows swim? Was that why they went into the water? There seemed to be no end to her questions. Her mother became quite impatient and answered her shortly and indifferently. She was intent upon telling me about her new clothes, about a bridge luncheon that she had just given and about Grace Brown's trouble with her husband. As continuous as the stream of questions from the child was the mother's light chatter. I tried to answer some of the child's questions while attending politely to my hostess. Finally, however, in exasperation Elizabeth's mother said, "You must keep still. I want to talk to Miss King and you disturb me."

For a few moments there was silence and then the questions and comments began again until her mother said, "Elizabeth, if you will keep still for half an hour I will give you fifty cents."

To me she said, "That will hold her I think. The silly child has been trying to save enough to buy her father a birthday present and my offer will be an inducement."

And indeed the promise of the fifty cents did seem to produce the desired effect. Several times her face lighted up and she almost spoke only to remember in time. Twenty-five minutes passed when suddenly, with her little face all aglow, she burst out, "Oh Mother, what is that beautiful red bird?"

The mother without turning her head in the direction of the bird, exclaimed, "There, you have lost your fifty cents! You can't keep still for even half an hour!"

Elizabeth's face fell and her eyes filled with tears.

"Oh, I'm sorry. Now I can't buy Daddy's birthday present, but I did want to know what that bird was."

"That," I answered, "was a scarlet tanager. I have one in my garden. If Mother will let you come over after school tomorrow, perhaps we can see it and I will tell you about it."

And at that moment I decided that I was much in need of a little errand girl for several nights so that Elizabeth might earn the fifty cents for her father's birthday in a reasonable way.

A child's education depends very much upon his awareness of things about him, so his questions regarding things that he sees, hears, smells, tastes and feels should be encouraged and he should be given as correct and careful replies as it is possible to give.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

FLYING DOWN WORLD'S LONGEST COCONUT GROVE

"Almost clipping the nuts off coconut trees with our wing tip, we circled low over this undulating palm belt which stretches hundreds of miles down the Brazilian coast, to let our camera men record its odd sights," writes Frederick Simpich, National Geographic society staff correspondent with the seaplane party surveying air routes between Washington and Buenos Aires.

"Thatched-hut dwellers in this 'world's longest orchard,' broken only now and then by barren spots, towns or river mouths, seem to live largely on coconuts and fish.

"Sliding swiftly ashore in the surf, their day's fishing done, is a fleet of 'jangadas,' or the queer sailing rafts of spliced logs seen here by the hundreds. The first I saw, miles from shore with its 'deck' awash and two men standing ankle deep in water on it, gave me quite a start; I thought the men adrift from a shipwreck!

"At low tide the hard sandy beach makes the local highway between villages. A thin traffic stream trickles over it. We see many ox teams, six and eight yokes to a team, hauling the big country carts, their clumsy wheels one solid piece of wood. One day ashore, I heard the hideous scream of such a cart, as its dry axle squeaked under its heavy load. 'Why don't they grease it?' I asked. 'The oxen like the racket. They pull better when the cart squeaks.'

"As auto tourists roam the states, getting gas here and there, and lodging where night falls, so we are touring by seaplane. Across the West Indian island bridge, around the Orinoco delta, into Amazonia, poking into odd nooks and coastal crannies and roaming freely over shallow waters behind the reefs we visit many strange spots.

"Landing at little towns, flying up occasional rivers where no planes are seen, or visiting big plantations, we get a fresh, intimate close-up of country life in parts of Brazil where Americans are seldom seen. Stevens and Gayer made air pictures of the great waterfalls of Paulo Affonso, which occur in the 1950-mile-long San Francisco river at a point about 120 miles upstream from its mouth. No plane ever flew there before. Here an estimated horsepower of 1,200,000 makes a great roar. The gorges and canyons, through which the great river drops 250 or 275 feet in a series of falls, are comparable in grandeur and vivid rock coloration to sections of the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. No landings anywhere; no place for a motor to 'konk!'

"Life on Brazilian estates recalls ante-bellum tales of our own old south. The owners, usually with French culture, live an easy, baronial existence. Servants fairly swarm; cooks, nurses and housemaids must go barefoot, for silence. Grooms, gardeners, chauffeurs, wood cutters, a boy to sweep the yard—everyone to his allotted task—form a social unit on each plantation. Men and women in the cane fields at sunrise; the tonic smell of fresh-plowed earth; white-clad overseers on sweating, fretting ponies, one excited group about a new Yankee tractor. Though in Brazil most farm work is still done with hand tools, the day of the machine is come. From little towns like Macelo new roads split the jungles—as yet mud or dust roads—but a beginning. In the last two years, on these new roads the Yankee-built motor bus has appeared. Out on one such new road, at Leao Utinga, I met a young American from Louisiana, the only one in that region. He was installing more new machines in what is already one of the world's model sugar mills.

"But the old persists. As when slaves built Babel, or moved giant stones into pyramids, I saw 26 men use cross poles to carry a log so huge we in the states could have lifted it only with cranes. And railway track workers, not running their little car as our 'section hands' run a 'hand-car' by pumping, but poling it along with poles, as men push boats in shallow water.

"The small farmer struggles against the myriad ants and other insects that may devour his garden in a few nights, or against land crabs that dig it up by the roots. But his revenge on the crabs is to trap them, fatten them like chickens, and eat them. His daughters may work as housemaids, or laundresses, at about $1.50 a month. But over the hill is a flying field, and big hangars of a French air mail company, with upper class Brazilians going and coming in imported motor cars. Back in the village, in the wet season, unpaved streets are so muddy that motor cars run on the sidewalks, tooting imperiously at pedestrians who mechanically step aside into the mud.

"A man on a belled mule peddles coconut milk. Women wear mourning bands on their arms, and carry from market the jerked beef, black beans and mandioca (cassaba) meal which makes 'Feijoada,' the national dish. In open fields boys kill sluggish doves with sticks, for food. Driven here from the north by dry weather, the birds arrive exhausted, and are easy prey. 'Arriba Coes,' the boys call them, literally 'Flyers from Distress.'

"Here is a store that sells small images of the saints. Before a shelf of painted figures an old woman stands, fumbling in the folds of her long black skirt for hoarded coins. Outside, a chattering later generation hastens to the town's tawdry movie house. On top this tiny place of amusement is yet another Yankee device—a fire engine's siren. When the picture is about to be run, the siren screams a warning. Then all the people from the coconut groves come running."

Stories That Recall Others

Tested and Approved.

A suburban dweller had presented to a neighbor an apple pie, and the neighbor voiced her approval thus: "That pie you sent me was just fine. I ate it without my lower teeth!"

A Novel Experience

Marybelle, taking a motor trip with her parents, went with her father into a quaint-looking old hotel to investigate the accommodations prior to stopping there. She came out with her curls bobbing and her eyes dancing. "Goody, mother!" she cried, "we're going to stay here, and I'm going to sleep in a 'tunnel' bed."

Too Careless

Mary Emma noticed that her older sister was thinking profoundly and asked what the matter was.

"Oh, I can't seem to remember where the Appalachians are," her sister replied.

"Well," said Mary Emma with great dignity," that's just what you get for misplacing things."

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The J. B. Williams Company, Glastonbury.

In 1838 James Baker Williams was taken into partnership by the proprietor of a general store, including a drug department, in Manchester, the firm name being Keeney & Williams. In 1840 the business was sold, with the exception of the drug department, which was retained by Mr. Williams. He took into partnership his brother, George W. Williams, and they continued in business for seven years as Williams & Brothers. They soon began to manufacture a number of articles ordinarily sold in drug stores, among which was shaving soap. After a time they produced Williams Genuine Yankee shaving soap, which is still in existance. In 1847 the business was divided, George W. Williams taking the drug department and James B. Williams the manufacturing business. James B. Williams moved to Glastonbury, where he was able to rent a small building for manufacturing purposes, and where he had the advantage of water power.

A year or so later he took into partnership his brother, William S. Williams, and the firm name became J. B. Williams & Company. This partnership continued until 1885, when the business was incorporated under the laws of the state of Connecticut as The J. B. Williams Company.

The officers at that time were: President, James B. Williams; vice president, William S. Williams; treasurer, George G. Williams; secretary, Bernard T. Williams; superintendent, David W. Williams.

The factories and main office have been located in Glastonbury ever since 1847. In 1906 however, a branch office was opened in New York City. In addition to the Yankee soap the company now makes shaving soaps in many different forms. For the use of barbers it is put up in cakes, powder and cream, and for the individual shavers in the form of stick, powder, cream and shaving liquid. As the business grew, toilet soaps and mill soaps were added and of late years toilet preparations such as tooth powder and paste, toilet waters, talc powder, and Aqua Velva, the after-shaving preparation with a world-wide popularity and sale.

In 1922 a branch factory was opened in Montreal.

The present officers of the company are: President, S. H. Williams; vice president and treasurer, H. K. W. Welch; assistant treasurer, E. B. Hurlburt; secretary, P. K. Williams; assistant secretary, R. S. Williams.

REHN—In New London Aug. 7, 1930, Ida, widow of Axel Rehn.

No need to Change Laxatives

If in your fight against constipation you have been continually increasing your doses—changing from pills to salts and back to pills for relief—you will welcome this interesting discovery of modern science.

It is now known that the success of any laxative depends on uniform internal distribution—that unless it is thoroughly and evenly distributed throughout the intestinal tract irregular and unsatisfactory action will result.

This explains the success of the modern chewing gum laxative known as Feen-a-mint. As you chew this delicious gum the tasteless laxative it contains is mixed with the saliva and carried to the intestinal tract evenly, smoothly, without shock to the system.

Because of its thorough distribution, you will find Feen-a-mint effective in milder doses than ordinary laxatives. With the proper dosage it is not necessary to increase the amount of Feen-a-mint you take nor to switch to another laxative for a change. Feen-a-mint is harmless and contains no habit-forming drugs. Truly the health laxative. Ask for a package at any drug store.—Adv.

DRAW VERDICT UNPOPULAR IN LABARBA-MASTRO BOUT

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—(AP)—In a decision that resulted in a storm of protests from the spectators, Fidel La Barba, Los Angeles, contender for the world's featherweight championship, found himself in possession of a draw, instead of a victory, at the end of ten blistering rounds with Earl Mastro, of Chicago, in the Chicago stadium tonight.

The verdict of the two judges and referee, Little Phil Collins, stunned the spectators as La Barba, in the judgment of the ring-side experts, was decisive winner in seven of the ten rounds. Referee Collins voted for a draw, whereas the two judges were divided on the decision, one voting for Mastro and the other for the Pacific coast contender.

A sweltering crowd of 14,000 spectators greeted the verdict with boos and then with a great uproarous laugh.

La Barba, former world's flyweight champion, set a terrific pace for the Chicago youngster, forcing him on the defense and keeping him in retreat a great part of the time. La Barba's superior speed and greater experience enabled him to step out in front and stay there. He had the advantage in every round with the exception of three, two of which might have been given to Mastro on a shade and the other called even.

La Barba weighed 124 1-4 and Mastro 125.

Tonight's fight was the third encounter, each previously having won a close decision.

Haakon Hansen, Norwegian middleweight, knocked out Henry Firpo, Newcastle, Pa., in the sixth round of an eight rounder.

ASSEMBLES WHAT RECORDS SHOW ON OLD FIRST BURYING GROUND

In connection with establishing the boundaries of the old first burying ground at Norwich Town, compilation of all that appears in printed and written records and of the testimony of living witnesses has been made by Mrs. Edna Miner Rogers, who is on the committees of the Founders of Norwich and of Faith Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., which has about 300 members. Both organizations appointed a committee to support the movement to have the town of Norwich reclaim and maintain the old first burying ground.

The Printed Record

The following is the material Mrs. Rogers has assembled:

The first burial ground of the town of Norwich is described in the book of grants, (pages 22, 23, of the copy) under the heading of "Lands Belonging unto the Towns for a burying place or places."

Abutting easterly on land of John Gager nine rodds, abutting southerly on land of John Gager three rodds, abutting northerly one rodd and three foot on land of John Gager, abutting on land of Thomas Post northerly five rodds andan halfe, abutting on land of Thomas Post westerly eleven rodds, abutting southerly on land of Thomas Post four rodds.

Entred Januar 1693."

The other parcel is the second or Norwich Town Cemetery, and was entered January 20, 1714-15.

Thus is recorded the size of the burial ground; now for its location. It lay on either side of the line between the home lots of Thomas Post and John Gager, this line has been pretty clearly defined, even to the "crooked (Bowing) line 6 ft."

As it must lie a stated number of feet on either side of this line, it can not be moved in a westerly or easterly direction. The question then is, how far did it extend in a northerly direction, or toward West Town street, or in a southerly direction, toward Sturtevant street.

In a letter written at the time of the 250th anniversary of Norwich, Conn., a Mrs. Woodworth of Washington, D. C. in regretting her inability to attend the celebration, says that she was born on Bean Hill in 1823, and that in her childhood, she used to visit her father's aunt, Mrs. Barrett, who lived aside from the main road to Bean Hill; she goes on to say that adjoining their home was a field where she romped and played and that "A lone grave was there and I used to visit it with childish sympathy." Mrs. Woodworth was under the impression that the monument erected to John Mason was at this spot. A simple mound of earth would not have attracted a child's attention, so it may well be assumed that it was the Samuel Gager stone which she saw.

Samuel Gager died in 1740 and was buried in the Gager part of the first burial ground; Miss Caulkins, who copied many of the inscriptions from old gravestones in New London County, says that this stone was standing in 1825, and quotes the epitaph beginning, "By the Bodies of his Parents Here lies the Body of Mr. Samuel Gager," As his parents died early in 1700, this establishes again the fact of early burials at this spot. Again quoting Miss Caulkins, "The Gager family lay in a group near the southeast part of the plot," that is, the first burial place.

The Gager heirs sold this part of their land in 1805, "excepting and reserving hereout one quarter of an acre of land covering the burying ground of the Gager family." (Land Ev. Norwich, Conn.; 33-11.)

Part of the Gager stone was still standing in 1830, when Samuel Case bought the lot, which he sold to Daniel L. Huntington in 1844, the burial place being still excepted.

Fragments of the stone remained for many years, and it is said that when the Mason Monument was erected, these fragments were placed under the monument.

Mr. William S. Case of Bean Hill, was shown the location of this stone by his grandfather, Deacon Samuel Case, who had owned the lot five years, and was told that other Gagers were buried there. Mr. Case is positive that he can locate within a very few feet, the spot on which he was assured that this Gager stone stood.

When the town took a portion of the Gager land, for an addition to the burial place, giving this same Samuel Gager, twelve acres of land in another section of town, in exchange, the logical assumption is that this piece would be all in one strip; that is, it would not naturally be on each side of the Gager graves.

Taking then, Miss Caulkins' statement that the Gager family lay in a group near the south-east part of the burial plot, and Mr. Case's statement that he can closely identify the spot where the Samuel Gager stone stood, in what direction could the burial place have extended?

It could only have extended in a northerly direction, and all the subsequent records and accounts, and the personal knowledge of persons now living, bear out this location.

Let us follow the records through the years and to the present time.

In 1854, a map of New London County was published, on which the "Old Burial Ground" is located, and the size corresponds well with the dimensions already quoted. Mr. Lee had lived on the property for several years, and there were undoubtedly many old persons then living, who were well acquainted with the size of the burial ground.

It is hardly credible that such an encumbrance on the land, could have been placed on that map, without the full knowledge of the owner, and with corroborative evidence.

When Norwich was preparing to celebrate its 200th anniversary, various committee meetings were held to make the preparations. At the eighth formal meeting, held on June 25, 1859. "The committee, after a full discussion, having determined that the procession, on the second day of the celebration, should visit the grave of major John Mason and lay the corner stone of a monument to be thereafter erected to his memory. John A Rockwell was unanimously selected to make an appropriate address on that occasion."

On July 9, 1859, another meeting was held in regard to the monument, and on motion of John T. Wait. Messrs John A. Rockwell, Jedediah Huntington, and Gardner Greene were added to the committee, and later, John T. Wait, Rev. Hiram P. Arms and L. F. S. Foster were added.

At the tenth formal meeting held July 22, 1859. "The committtee reported that they had received two distinct propositions relative to the acquisition of the traditional burial place of Major Mason. The propositions were discussed at some length and were at last referred back to the committee for final action."

At the eleventh formal meeting held July 30, 1859. "On motion of Benjamin H. Paddock, the committee on the Mason monument were directed to purchase of Lyman W. Lee, on the terms named by him, a lot of land 50 feet square, adjoining the old Gager burial ground, with the right of way to the same."

(Norwich Jubilee, 1859, pps 24, 26, 26, 27.)

Only 15 feet square were subsequently purchased. Here it is distinctly stated that the committee were to purchase the land for the monument. "adjoining the old Gager burial ground."

Undoubtedly the reason for the frequent mention of the Gager burial ground, was because at that time, the Gager stone of 1740, still remained, though probably in fragments.

For some reason, the corner-stone of the monument was laid in Yantic Cemetery, September 8, 1859. This reason has never appeared in print, but a local member of the Masonic Fraternity, tells a fetching story in regard to it.

The address of the day was made by John A. Rockwell, on the "Life and Times of Major John Mason", but Mr. Rockwell had evidently expected that the monument would be placed elsewhere, for he said that on the banks of the Yantic, "were the farm and house where John Mason lived and died: and on the same stream, a short distance above, under the shadow of a magnificent oak, the solitary remains of the primeval forest, on an elevation from which you can see around the woods and cultivated fields, comfortable and costly residences, and amid the countless evidence of the industry and wealth of his descendants, rest his remains, henceforth to be marked by an appropriate monument." (Norwich Jubilee, page 149.)

The site in Yantic Cemetery met with such universal disapproval, that it was abandoned.

On Nov. 5, 1859, the committee which audited all the accounts connected with the celebration, stated that a certain sum remained in the treasury, and it was voted, That the balance be placed on deposit to the credit of the committee appointed to erect a monument to John Mason, and that the "same be appropriated toward the erection of a monument in the Gager burying ground, to the memory of the thirty-five settlers of this town; such a monument to be erected either in connection with one to Major Mason, or separate from that." (Page 249.)

1871-1872

Nothing more was done about the monument till January 1871, when John T. Wait, John L. Devotion and James M. Meech, were appointed to contract for and superintend the erection of such a monument as they should deem proper.

Accordingly they made the contract with Albert B. Adams, of Bean Hill, who lived next to Lyman W. Lee and had married one of his daughters.

The Norwich Morning Bulletin of April 19, 1871, states that the monument has been erected and that the inscriptions have been neatly carved by A. B. Adams of Bean Hill.

A petition dated at Norwich, May 1st, 1871, was presented to the May session of the General Assembly of Connecticut, and signed by Rev. H. P. Ames, Jedediah Huntington, John T. Wait, John L. Devotion, James M. Meech, Charles A. Converse, stating that the members remaining, of the committee appointed in 1859, "within the past year caused to be executed an expensive granite monument, on which are inscribed the names of said Mason and said original settlers, and have had the same placed in the ancient cemetery, where the remains of said Mason and said original settlers are interred."

They ask to be incorporated in order that they might take charge of certain funds "and also to watch over and keep said monument in proper repair and preservation." This petition was granted June 15, 1871, and the Mason Monument association was incorporated. A meeting of the corporators was held on Sept. 23, 1871.

It is noted that the contract for the monument was made in January, 1871, the monument was erected in April, the petition presented to the General Assembly in May, incorporation June 15 and a meeting of incorporators Sept. 23, 1871.

Ten months after the monument was erected, the association purchased of Lyman W. Lee, the fifteen foot square of land on which the monument stood "in the center of the same," with a right of way "to said monument on the above described square piece of land adjacent to the old Burying Ground on the Grantor's said premises." (Land Rec. Norwich, Conn.; Vol. 79, page 57.)

The fact that the monument was erected in 1871, and the lot was not bought till February 12, 1872, has caused confusion in some minds.

In their petition to the General Assembly, the committee had stated that the monument was placed "in the ancient cemetery." As Mr. Lee's son-in-law lived next door, and executed the monument, there was undoubtedly much discussion as to the bounds of the old burying ground, the right of way to the old burying ground was protected in the deed given by the Barrett's in 1838, but perhaps to avoid any unpleasantness, this purchase was made. But the committee meetings held in 1859 said that the monument was to be placed in the old burying ground, and the petition to the General Assembly states that it had been placed there.

Note the names of the people who were interested in this monument, both in 1859 and in 1871 and 1872; a minister, lawyers, a statesman, and others, the most influential and prominent men of the town.

In the "History of New London County, Connecticut," by D. Hamilton Hurd, published in 1882, in writing of Major John Mason who died January 20, 1671—2, it is said, "There is no coeval record that points out his burial place, but uniform tradition and current belief in the neighborhood from generation to generation leave no reason to doubt that he was interred where other inhabitants of that generation were laid, that is, in the Post and Gager burial grounds, or first cemetery of Norwich." (Page 254.)

This was quoted from Caulkins' History of Norwich, Conn, (1874) Page 143:

"His son, Capt. John Mason, was wounded in the great swamp fight, December 19, 1675. After lingering several months, he died, as is supposed, in the same house where his father expired, and was doubtless laid by his side in the old obliterated grave yard of the first comers." (Page 255, from Page 147 of Caulkins' History.)

1897

"The first burial place in the town was set apart and consecrated by the earliest settlers to their dead upon a pleasant mound overlooked from the Bean Hill plain and near its southwestern base. The humble headstones that once marked their last earthly resting place have long since been sacrilegeously torn away, the ploughshare has riven their sodden coverings, and the knowledge of the place of their dust has but recently been rescued from almost oblivion and preserved by the erection of the John Mason monument."

"Reminiscences of Bean Hill, Norwich, Conn." In the Connecticut quarterly, 1897, Vol. 3, Page 297. This article was written by Burrell Woodworth Hyde, long connected with the Norwich Savings society. Mr. Hyde was born and brought up on Bean Hill, and his father owned the shop, later Adam's tavern, on the Gager home lot.

Norwich Morning Bulletin, April 9, 1909. Report of a meeting of the historical committee, in preparation for the celebration of the 250th anniversary of Norwich, Conn. Meeting held Monday afternoon, President Gulliver presiding.

"The old cemetery sites will be marked. The Post-Gager burying ground, where stands the Mason monument and which was given in 1661, will be marked. It is here that many of the founders were buried, although there are no gravestones. There will be one signboard for that."

Norwich Quarter Millenium 1909; compiled by William C. Gilman; published in 1912. "Most of the first generation were buried in the old Post and Gager ground where now stands the Mason monument." (Page 76.)

"As intimated in Mr. Rockwell's address, the expectation had been that a suitable monument would mark the spot in the most ancient burying ground, on the road from Norwich Town to Bean Hill, where Major Mason was buried."

No further action was taken, however, for twelve years, when in 1871, John T. Wait, James M. Meech and John L. Devotion, were appointed to superintend the erection of such a monument as they might deem appropriate. Under their direction a granite monument was erected at a cost of six hundred and fifty dollars, on the site of the old Post and Gager burying ground, on land of Lyman W. Lee which was purchased for the purpose and the committee and their associates were incorporated by the state legislature in 1871 as the "Mason Monument association," with perpetual succession, and authority to take charge of certain funds remaining on hand, and to watch over and preserve the monument. The names of the original corporators are recorded on Page 709 of Miss Caulkins' history, edition of 1874." (Ibid, Pages 34, 35.)

The signboard referred to was No. 68, and was placed at the entrance of Lee avenue, near Adam's tavern.

"No. 68. Post-Gager Burial Ground. 1661."

"In 1661 the town bought this land for a common burial place. Many of the proprietors and early settlers were interred in this regular oblong plot, 11 rods long and 7 wide. The last interment was in 1740. In 1872 the present monument was erected to the memory of Major John Mason and the other proprietors.

It is on West Town street, half a mile above the uptown green. No traces of graves remain."

This same record is given on Page 12, in "Notes on Persons and Places in the Ancient Town of Norwich in Connecticut. Prepared for the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the town and of the city the one hundred and twenty-fifth. July 5th and 6th, 1909."

Except that the latter says that the "present monument was erected to the memory of Major Mason and 38 proprietors."

Mason Monument Association

At a meeting of the Mason Monument association held November 7, 1929, the association relinquished the right of way to the Mason monument given by Lyman W. Lee in 1872, in exchange for the privilege of using a roadway to the monument, which it is intended shall soon become a public street.

It could not however, relinquish the "passway and right of passing and repassing from said road (the road leading from the meeting house to Bean Hill) by said house to a burying ground in such way and manner as heretofore has been used and all such right of passaway as existed at the time of the death of said Ezekiel Barrett reference being had to said passway and the usage thereof," which was thus reserved when the Barrett heirs sold the land in 1838 to Daniel L. Huntington; (Land Ev. 47-351), and which was reserved by Daniel L. Huntington in his deed to his niece, Mrs. Lyman Lee, in 1853, "The same being subject to a passway and passing and repassing from said road to a burying ground as mentioned in said Barrett's deed to me, said Daniel L. Huntington." (Land Ev. 58-321).

Living Testimony

Thus read the records and the printed word; now comes the testimony of people now living. Three persons say that in 1858, a man died on Bean Hill, with what was supposed to be small-pox. Deacon Samuel Case, who was immune from the disease, assisted in laying him out and in his interment in the first burial place, from which the body was later removed.

Three people relate that as children they played around the oak tree, but did not go on land near it, because "that was the burying place."

Several persons say that they have been with relatives to the monument and were told that the oldest burial ground was there; one of these is a descendant of Lieut. Francis Griswold who was buried there; two others are Huntington descendants.

Some time before 1909, the then owner talked with the writer about this old burial ground and in 1923, both owners pointed out its location to an interested citizen. It is very evident that few people of the later generations realized the full extent of this first burial place.

The foregoing information in regard to the First Burial Place of Norwich, Conn., is gathered from the town records, from Miss Caulkins' History of Norwich, Conn., (which is the very first authority consulted when any information about Norwich is wanted); from the 1854 map, the official accounts of the 200th anniversary of Norwich, called "The Norwich Jubilee," the 250th anniversary entitled "Norwich Quarter Millenium"; newspaper notices, other printed references and from the testimony of living persons.

SPEAKER URGES PUBLIC TO BEWARE OF STRAY DOGS

"Beware of Stray Dogs" was the title of an address broadcast over W. T. I. C. Thursday by Friend Lee Mickle, A. B., M. S., director, bureau of laboratories, Connecticut state department of health.

"Dog days" are approaching he said—that period of the year when we are told to beware of the "mad" dog. That advice is good but it is just as applicable in January as in August for "dog days" have nothing to do with rabies and dogs may "go mad" or develop rabies at any season of the year upon exposure to the bite of another rabid animal. In other words, the "mad" dog is suffering from an infectious disease caused by a virus, the nature of which although not entirely agreed upon, is probably protozoan. Rabies is primarily an affection of dogs but it may affect any warm blooded animal and is transmitted to man easily by the bite of a rabid animal.

We are not discussing a "new-fangled" disease. Rabies was known and described several centuries before Christ. From the dawn of history the disease has been feared and dreaded. Aristotle 2,400 years ago wrote "Dogs suffer from madness that puts them in a state of fury and all animals which they bite when in this condition become likewise attacked by madness. At lease one out of every ten human beings whom rabid dogs bite likewise become attacked by "madness" unless treated.

You may ask if this disease is important enough to concern you. During a recent ten-year period in the United States 530 people died of rabies. It is true that no human deaths from rabies have occurred in Connecticut since 1917 but within that time in the nearby states of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York and New Jersey over 70 persons have died a most horrible death from this disease. This fine record for Connecticut has been maintained only at the expenditure of a tremendous amount of effort, time and money Since 1906 the Connecticut state department of health laboratories have examined heads of 1449 suspected animals sent in by dog wardens, health officers and veterinarians and have found 712 animals to be suffering from the disease. In each instance the commissioner on domestic animals is immediately informed and the prompt and effficient work of that official and his deputies in following up each case with prompt quarantining or exterminating of infected animals has kept the disease among animals under close control. Due to the wise provisions of our Connecticut statutes and to their rigid enforcement by state and local health officials and physicians, Connecticut has had no human case of rabies in 12 years, until the record is one to be proud of.

Out of the state dog tax Connecticut provides free preventive treatment to all persons bitten by rabid animals. The treatment necessary after the bite of a mad dog is known as anti-rabic or Pasteur treatment in honor of Pasteur who administered the first human treatment to a nine-year old Alsace boy in 1885. It consists in the use of a vaccine prepared from the nerve tissue of animals that have been infected with the disease, the virus being so attenuated, or killed, that it is safe for injection into humans and animals. Not only persons who are bitten by a rabid dog should take treatment but persons whose hands have become soiled with saliva or other secretions. The virus may find entrance to the human body through an abrasion in the skin too tiny to be noticed. Treatment should be given to all persons bitten or licked by a rabid animal or by any strange animal that acts sick or rabid, if doubt exists. There is no known cure for rabies after symptoms develop. Every case of human rabies is fatal.

My advice to those of you who hear me, and to your children, is the advice that I give to my own family. Beware of the mad dog or the dog that acts mad but beware also of any stray animal or any animal that seems sick. Do not pet or handle or feed the stray dog or cat that comes to your home or that you come into contact with on the street, particularly if the animal acts strangely or sick. It may bite or scratch you and frequently that "sick" animal is sick because it has been bitten by a rabid dog.

There are several things to do if a person is bitten by a rabid dog. First, call a physician to properly cleanse and dress the wound. Next, the dog should be captured alive, not killed, and placed under observation. The head should be sent to the laboratories only if the dog dies of the disease. Finally, if the dog is found to be rabid your physician should start anti-rabic treatment at once. Beware of the mad dog.

AGRICULTURAL POLICY CONFERENCE AT STORRS

STORRS, Aug. 7—More than 100 persons representing 30 organizations will attend the Connecticut Agricultural Policy conference for a three day session here. The conference is sponsored by Connecticut Agricultural college and is devoted to an appraisal of problems affecting the net incomes of Connecticut farmers.

The conference is composed of men and women designated as representatives by the state grange, the Farm Bureau Federation, the Farmers' Cooperative associations, the county farm bureaus, the state agricultural societies, other farmers' organizations, and by the Connecticut Agricultural college, the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment station and the office of the state commissioner of agriculture. The deliberations of the conference will be assisted by Dr. M. Slade Kendrick of Cornell university and special research agent in taxation for the Connecticut Agricultural college, Dr. J. L. Tennant, associate agricultural economist at Rhode Island state college of agriculture; State Senator Alexander T. Pattison, State Commissioner of Taxation William H. Blodgett, Dr. H. P. Young, professor of agricultural economics at the University of Vermont; I. G. Davis, professor of agricultural economics at Connecticut Agricultural college; William L. TOWN EXPENSE OF STATE HIGHWAYS IS TOO LARGE

STORRS, Aug. 7—The share of the burden of road construction and maintenance which is carried by the state and federal governments is not large enough considering the purposes for which the roads are used, said D. J. L. Tennant, associate economist of the Rhode Island experiment station, in an address presented at the agricultural conference on taxation today. Interstate and intrastate travel has increased to such an extent that it is no longer reasonable to expect local governments to support the expenses of highways to the extent which has been customary in the past.

They swim daily at Plague Deauville, a tree-bordered artificial pool. After a dip there they proceed to various privates estates where swimming parties are the chief social diversion.

Rundown?

MAYBE IT'S WORMS

YOUR "run-down" child may be playing host to vitality-sapping worms which rob her of nourishment and poison her with their secretions. Worms are much more common than most mothers think.

Look also for the following symptoms: grinding of teeth, picking the nose, crossness, crying in sleep, offensive breath, loss of appetite or weight, nausea or general restlessness. Any one of these signs may be your warning that worms are present.

Wise mothers take no chances with these dangerous and disgusting childhood pests. Even if worms are only suspected they give the child

MALLORY LEGACIES FOR TWO STONINGTON PEOPLE

Dr. Charles Mallory Williams and Mrs. Albert B. Mason, of Stonington, are mentioned as heirs to the $1,250,000 estate of Mrs. Maria Louise Mallory, vice president of the Mallory Steamship lines, according to a dispatch from Greenwich to a New York paper.

Mrs. Mallory's will was probated at Greenwich and bequests totaling $1,250,000 were made, according to Judge Stephen L. Radford, judge of the Greenwich probate court.

The deceased, who, with her husband, was instrumental in sponsoring the United hospital of Port Chester, died in Greenwich June 14 in her 80th year. The largest individual bequest is left to a nephew, Robert Mallory, Jr., of Rye, N. Y., who receives the residence, Clifton-on-the-Sound, in Greenwich, and $450,000.

Mrs. Mallory's share in her father's estate, which has not yet been settled, in Milan, Ohio, is left to a sister, Julia Frances Heyworth, who also receives the sum of $20,000. To James Ormerod Heyworth and Lawrence Heyworth, both of Chicago, nephews, is left the sum of $20,000 each. Frances E. Heap of Mellington hall, Montgomeryshire, England, a niece, receives $20,000.

The United hospital of Port Chester receives $50,000 for a women's ward, and three employes of Mrs Mallory receive $1,000 each. The will directs that the residue of the estate be shared equally by Clifford D. Mallory, commodore of the Indian Harbor Yacht club; Philip R. Mallory president of the Philip R. Mallory Co. of New York; Charles H. Mallory, Bryan Shore, N. Y., president of the Port Chester Y. M. C. A.; Cora Mallory Munson, Dr. C. It employs about 1,000 hands.

CALLED OUT FOR BLAZE ON CITY DUMP

A telephone call was received by the fire department at 8:22 o'clock Thursday evening for a fire at the Hollyhock Island dump on land owned by the city of Norwich. The firemen fought the blaze, which was located in a pile of mattresses, carton boxes and other rubbish for over an hour and a half. Pump cans were used. The dump is located off Falls avenue.

Crossing Lights Approved.

The double, flashing, red signal lights employed at many of the New Haven railroad grade crossings to warn motorists and pedestrians of approaching trains have all been manufactured in accordance with specifications prescribed by the American Railway association to afford maximum efficiency in crossing protection. They have also been approved by many state public utility commissions and highway departments, so that they have come into general use throughout the eastern area of the United States and Canada.

THERMOS CLUB DROPS THIRD GAME IN ROW LOSING TO ITALIAN CLUB

Once upon a time there was a great ball club and it was called the Thermos Bottle. For weeks and weeks it ruled a domain, known as the City league, with an iron hand. Five other clubs respected this great organization and dared not speak out of turn. One day, however, a little prince by the name of Tony Bernard challenged the supremacy of this great Thermos Bottle and almost got away with it. Finding that the little prince had done so well the others in the domain all took courage and each took a crack out of this great club.

For the third time in as many starts the Thermos Bottlers were defeated in the City league last night, losing to the Italians by a score of 3 to 1 in the best game of the week. As a result, the once unbeatable Hastedt clan has been upset by every club in the circuit and now is trailing the Royals and Polish Citizens, joint leaders in the title chase.

The game was different than those played at the campus this week, being much steadier and in the form of a pitchers' contest, whereas the others were wild and loose.

Lefty Lucier and Mike Nickerson hooked up in a duel and for five full frames Mike had a slight edge. In the sixth, however, he weakened to the extent of three hits and was beaten. He yielded a total of 6 bingles against Lucier's three. Lefty whiffed four and the Bottler six.

After a scoreless first inning, the Bottlers scored a run in the second on doubles by Carlie Krauss and Harold Hull. This one counter loomed up larger and larger as the innings went by until, as previously mentioned, the break came in the sixth.

Arico opened the Italians big inning with a safe bunt in front of the plate and immediately went to second. While Mike Nickerson and N. Lemieux were debating as to what to do with Kampf's grounder to the box, Alec went to third and Gil was safe at first. Bill Liberty made an attempt to catch Arico at third a moment later and in the scramble the latter crossed the plate safely. On Pheno Tombari's single to right Kampf came home and Yerrington, the next hitter, was safe on his hit to left. With Tombari on third and Yerrington perched on second, F. Kegler hit a long sacrifice fly to center to score the third Italian run of the inning. Whitted and Dorsey fanned to end the rally.

In the early seventh the Italians made short work of the Bottler attack and the game was over.

For the first time in weeks the Italians played errorless ball, getting through the entire game without a single slip. Arico and Whitted, the latter a new man, were the leading hitters with a pair of singles each.

Two Polish Teams Meet Tonight

The little battle of the century, the long awaited duel between the Polish Citizens and Royals, take place at the Academy campus tonight. These two nines have been at odds all year and have anxiously looked to the day when they could come together. Neither, however, ever dreamed that when that day came the prize for their battle would be the leadership of the City league.

Both clubs are ahead of the Thermos Bottlers, one time leaders, leading the title chase with 7 wins and three defeats apiece. As previously mentioned, the winner of tonight's game takes lone possession of the lead and the loser drops back into second place with the Hastedtmen.

Realizing the value of the prize at stake, both managers have drilled their men to a razor edge. The members of the rival clubs are raring to go and give promise of putting on one of the best exhibitions to date.

Although neither pilot would make known the name of his starting pitcher last night, it is understood that the youthful Boots Greene and veteran Tommy Simcox will hook up.

In view of the rivalry between the two clubs and the importance of the prize at stake, it is expected that the largest crowd of the season will turn out.

DUWELLS BLANK ITALIANS IN JUNIOR LEAGUE TILT

The Duwells blanked the Italian club in Thursday's Junior league game, 11 to 0. It was Stephanik's third shutout victory of the season. The Duwell pitcher was in fine form, allowing but three scattered hits. He was especially strong with men on bases. Not an Italian player reached third during the entire game, Caprilozzi being caught going to third in the fifth. Wilk, twirling for the I. Y. M. C., although not hit very hard, was very wild, issuing five passes, and hitting as many. This coupled with six errors by his team-mates accounted for the scoring.

The Duwells started in the very first frame with two runs. In the second they batted entirely around, singles by Zavistosky, Solenski and Stephanik together with several walks and errors by the Italians accounting for six runs. They added two more in the fifth and a single counter in the sixth bringing their total to eleven. Zavistosky led thee hitters with a double and two singles out of four trips to the plate.

Tonight's Game

Tonight's game in the Junior league will be between the Rotary club and the Y. M. C. A. These two teams met on Wednesday evening, the Rotary winning 15 to 6. Tonight's game is a postponed game which rain interfered with earlier in the season. A victory will put the Rotary back into a tie for first place with the Duwells. While everything points toward a victory for the Rotarians, the "Y" may do the unexpected and upset the dope by winning. The "Y" has not yet won a game in the league and are due for a victory. Probable batteries are Caron and Deschamps or McKenna for the Rotary and Seneski and Stephano for the "Y". The game is scheduled for 6:30 p. m. sharp.

WARD ELIMINATES CHAPMAN IN N. E. AMATEUR GOLF

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 7—(AP)—Consistent putting of Elmer Ward, Norfolk, Mass., golfer, coupled with inability of Dick Chapman, Connecticut school boy titleholder, to maintain the brilliant play which marked him in the earlier rounds, brought the New England amateur golf crown to the Massachusetts man today.

Ward defeated Chapman three and one in the final 36 hole match over the Portland Country club course which found both men in difficulties from time to time and frequent reversal of the lead.

Already having two 30-foot putts to his credit, Ward sank a 25 footer on the 33rd hole this afternoon to take the lead and took the next two holes when the Connecticut youth missed short putts.

Ward had a one hole advantage at the end of the first nine holes this morning in a round during which both players played erratically. The close of the morning's 18 holes found Chapman one up, as Ward ran into trouble on the 14th, 15th and 16th.

In the afternoon round Ward played consistently good golf to even the count on the 19th hole and keep the lead or hold it square until the 30th hole when he missed a short putt.

Chapman's putting was weak throughout the day and more noticeably so in the afternoon round. On the 31st, Ward won although Chapman had the better lies to the green. The Connecticut youth missed another short put.

The 32nd was halved at 4, one over par after the second shots of both players were wide of the pin.

Both were in the rough from the tee on the 33rd and Ward was over the green with his second while Chapman landed in a sand trap. Ward overshot the pin and had a bad lie but rolled in the 25 foot put to take the hole. Chapman missed two short putts on the next hole to put Ward two up.

Chapman was in a trap on the 35th and tried to get out with a putter but was short and then missed two short putts while Ward sank his second putt.

GEHRIG AND RUTH HELP YANKS TO BEAT RED SOX

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—(AP)—Triples by Lou Gehrig and Babe Ruth coupled with Ed Wells' even hurling gave the New York Yankees the second straight victory over the Boston Red Sox today, 5 to 1.

Wells won his tenth game of the season in twelve starts and allowed the Sox only nine hits well scattered. An error by Earl Coombs, who dropped Heving's fly in the second, allowed Oliver to tally Boston's lone run.

Danny MacFayden, only Boston pitcher the Yanks had not beaten up to today, had two bad innings, the first and seventh. A couple of passes and two hits, one of them Gehrig's triple, brought the Yanks three runs in the first and Ruth's three base clout in the seventh added another pair.

CUBS NOSE OUT CARDS IN CLOSE BATTLE

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 7—(AP)—The heavy stick work of Chick Hafey, Cardinals slugger, kept St. Louis in the running but was not enough to defeat the Chicago Cubs, who took today's game, 6 to 5.

Hafey hit his 20th home run of the season with one on base in the first inning and doubled in the eighth with the bases filled, batting in all of the Cardinals' runs.

Bob Osborn, who hurled for the first seven innings, was the winning pitcher. Root finished for the Cubs, Johnson, Bell, Grabowski and Hallahan took turns in the box for the Cards, Johnson being charged with defeat.

The series now stands two games to one for Chicago.

PRINCE W. ROMPS AWAY FROM FIELD AT GOSHEN

GOSHEN, N. Y. Aug. 7—(AP)—Prince W., owned by H. Stacey Smith, of Newark, N. J., and driven by William Hodson, of Hartford, Conn., had little difficulty disposing of a field of five in the 2:14 pace, feature event on getaway day's program of the Orange county circuit meeting today.

Prince W. is the season's undefeated pacer on the half mile circuit.

Harry Brusie, veteran Hartford reinsman, scored his second victory of the meeting in the two year old pace with Coporal Lee, owned by J. J. Roberts of Worcester, Mass.

In the first heat of the 2:11 trot William Hodson and Harry Stokes were unseated when Hodson's entry Happy the Great, stepped into the sulky on which Stokes was mounted behind Anna Bradford's Boy. Both horses were thrown and the drivers had miraculous escapes. Stokes was placed last in the heat and Hodson was distanced. Peter Leonard, owned by E. C. Wilson of Lockport, N. Y., won the heat handily.

With the favorite, Happy the Great, out, William Crozier won the next two heats in the trotting event with Tronuia Britton, owned by James P. Berry, of Hartford, Conn.

There was a graphic illustration of this suffering for sport's sake last night in front of The Bulletin office.

Here were some 400 fight fans gathered in front of The Bulletin office to hear the returns of the Chocolate-Berg bout when a drenching rain storm broke over the city.

The rain came down in drenching sheets but did it drive the fans away? It did not. They huddled under awnings, those that saw the awnings first.

But those that couldn't get under awnings just stood out in the rain and waited until the report of the last blow had come over the wire. That's what I call taking your sports in great big and bitter doses.

If you want to get a real kick out of something you want to look down upon a throng of 400 or 500 fight fans when the announcer is reading a round-by-round report of a big fight.

It's almost a 10 to 1 bet that you can tell just where each and every ones sympathy lies. If his choice lands a damaging blow his face lights up like a cathedral but it it's the other way around what a woe-begone expression.

But they're a great crowd, these fight fans.

FOXX'S HOMER GIVES ATHLETICS A VICTORY

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 7—(AP)—Jimmy Foxx's thirty-first home run of the season with two on base in the sixth inning enabled the Athletics to beat Washington today, 4 to 1, and regain their first place lead of 7 1-2 games.

Foxx's hit was the finishing touch to a pitchers' battle waged by Crowder and Walberg. The game was scoreless until Cronin singled in the sixth stole second and scored on Harris' single to right.

In the A's half of the inning, Haas tripled after two were out. Cochrane then walked and Simmons hit an infield single to short, scoring Haas. Foxx then drove the ball to the roof of the center field stands, scoring Cochrane and Simmons ahead of him.

POWERMEN FORFEIT GAME TO ROBERT GAIR CLUB

The league-leading Robert Gair Owls were ahead of their nearest rival in the Montville Industrial Twilight league, the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. Thursday evening at the Gair diamond at Uncasville by a score of 3 to 2 in the first of the sixth inning with two men out and the bases loaded when Lawless, the Gair catcher, was at bat, struck at a high ball that went by Tucker, the Power catcher, who made no attempt to get the ball behind the backstop and Paddy Ryan, who was on third base walked home, making the score 4 to 2.

When they asked the umpire to send back Ryan to third base, it being a foul ball, the umpire said it was a clean strike and when they did not succeed in changing the decision, the Powermen walked off the field, forfeiting the game to the Owls. Up to the time that the game was forfeited, Ryan was the leading hitter for the Owls with two singles, and Mcrosky had a double and a single for the Powermen.

This puts the Owls within one game of the pennant. By winning next Thursday's game from the Textilers they will take the bunting. The only chance the Powermen have now is by winning their two remaining games and the Owls losing their three games. This would make a tie.

BERG WINS VERDICT OVER CHOCOLATE IN 10 ROUNDS OF TERRIFFIC FIGHTING

POLO GROUNDS, New York, Aug. 7—(AP)—Jackie Kid Berg, a gale of leather sweeping out from the White Chapel district of London, swept over Kid Chocolate tonight, smashed the great winning streak of the ebony "keed" with the ivory smile, and proved once again that the good big man usually can whip the good little fellow.

Berg proved his point to the satisfaction of two of the three officials who peered from the ringside at one of the wildest and most spectacular struggles the fight faithful have ever seen, but he failed to convince a majority of the 25,000 spectators who gathered in the spacious ball yard of the New York Giants.

A pulsing roar of disapproval greeted the decision and for a few minutes there was considerable doubt as to just what the verdict had been.

When the final bell halted the incessant storm of leather, Bellerin' Joe Humphries, the veteran announcer, grabbed the slips of Referee Patsy Haley and the two judges, took a quick look and headed for Chocolate's corner. He took another look, stopped, turned and lifted Berg's hand. His own indecision reflected the varied opinions of the experts gathered down front.

It was a battle of styles, a furious affair that surged from one side of the ring to the other, rarely letting up long enough for either the gladiators or the frenzied patrons to catch a long breath. Berg fought as he always has, running into action, teeth bared, arms lashing out incessantly at the glistering body of the slender Negro, who never had known defeat in 67 engagements.

Chocolate, if he made any mistake, threw aside his marvelous boxing at times to meet the English terror at his own game. The sparkling Negro, giving away almost ten pounds to a full fledged lightweight, did a remarkable job in the endless exchanges at close quarters, but apparently his stamina could not equal that of Berg and he tired badly in the last two rounds.

The sensational Cuban, was infinitely superior to the Englishman when he chose to box, tip Jackie off balance, and whang him on the chin with straight rights that shot Berg's head back. He bored left hooks deep into the Britisher's body, hit by far the cleaner, harder and more effective blows, but in the end the eternal aggressiveness, the gameness and perpetual punching of the young Jewish cyclone caught the eyes of the officials.

Patsy Haley gave the award to Berg along with Joe Agnello, one of the judges. The other, the veteran Charles Mathison, voted for Chocolate. The Associated Press score sheet gave Chocolate six rounds and Berg four and a poll of the ringside critics found thirteen favoring Berg, nine favoring Chocolate and four believed the decision should have been a draw.

After the foulascos, the quick and questionable endings that marred the local leather parties of the past winter and early summer, the battle was a refreshing antidote for the apathy that has gripped the faithful.

From the opening gong the tanned and perfectly conditioned Berg, retaining all his strength at 133 1-4 pounds, raced into action. His plan of attack was simple. He tried never to let Chocolate's head and body get further away than half an arm's length and from that distance he punched incessantly. His punches carried little steam, for he never took time to set himself. His eternal aggressiveness caught the fancy of the faithful and they groaned when the ebony "keed," the master ringman, stepped back and drilled his head with clean, thudding rights.

Chocolate was strong in the clinches, and in the early rounds, tied Berg effectively and beat him consistently to the punch. On The Associated Press score card, Chocolate had a clear margin in the first three rounds while Berg, taking advantage of the tiring Negro, swept the fourth and fifth into his own column. Chocolate rallied strongly to take the sixth, seventh and eighth but the relentless pounding wore him down and Berg easily won the ninth and tenth.

Chocolate scaled in at 124 pounds, two pounds under the featherweight limit, and appeared strong at the weight.

The gate receipts were estimated at $160,000.

The Preliminaries.

Baby Joe Gans, Negro welterweight from San Diego, Calif., bested Eddie Murdock, slightly bald battler from Tulsa, in the ten round semi final staged after the main bout. Gans easily won the decision after cutting Murdock about the eyes in the late rounds. Murdock was floored for a count of two by a right to the chin in the final round. Gans weighed 142 pounds, Murdock 143 1-2.

Sammy Dorfman, New York lightweight, fought a draw with Eddie Mack of Denver in a harsh and rough ten rounder that preceded the main bout. Mack, a tall, loose puncher with either hand did well for the first five rounds but faded under Dorfman's body and head attack in the closing sessions. Dorfman weighed 133, Mack 135.

Petey Hayes of the East Side, won by a knockout in the fourth round over Ray Ortega of Porto Rico. The Portorican was down twice in the first round, once in the third and twice in the fourth, the last time to stay. Hayes weighed 116 pounds, Ortega 114 1-4.

The East Side staged a duel all its own in the second four rounder when Joe Comforti, 124 pounds, won the decision over Sammy Fertel, 122, in a spirited set-to. There were no knockdowns.

Eduardo Corti, Argentine lightweight won the decision from Eddie Reilly of the West Side, in a rough and tumble six rounder. Corti forced the battle all the way and kept Reilly continually on the defensive, Corti weighed 132 1-2, Reilly 130.

ROBINS TAKE GAME FROM PITTSBURGH CLUB

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 7—(AP)—The league leading Brooklyn Robins continued in high speed today, taking the second game of their short series with the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6 to 4.

A husky Robin attack broke up the game with a two run rally in the ninth after Dazzy Vance had relieved Jumbo Elliott at the start of the second inning and kept the Pirates under control. With the score tied at fourall, Ike Boone batted for Vance and walked, Johnny Frederick tripled to drive him home and Gilbert tallied Frederick with a single. Watson Clark pitched the ninth for the Robins and held the lead safe

Ray Kremer started for the Pirates but was relieved by Glenn Spencer in the sixth. The Pirates got to Elliott for a pair of runs in the first on singles by L. Waner and Traynor with Grantham's double sandwiched in between. Vance yielded eight hits and two runs in his seven innings on the hill. Score:

SHIELDS PUTS TILDEN OUT OF TOURNAMENT

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 7—(AP)—Playing before a partisan crowd which enthusiastically cheered him on, Frank Shields, 19-year-old New York schoolboy, conquered Bill Tilden, national and Wimbledon champion, at 6-1, 2-6, 6-1, today in the quarter-final round of the invitation tennis tournament here.

In another upset George Lott bowed to Sidney Wood, tow-headed New York youth of 18, to complete the rout of the singles players whom the United States sent against the French in the Davis cup challenge round two weeks ago. Wood, the conqueror of Ellsworth Vines in the Seabright tournament last week, beat Lott by scores of 6-4, 3-6, 9-7.

Frank Hunter, who ranks second to Tilden in the list of American players, downed Eddie Jacobs of Baltimore at 8-6, 8-6; and Wilmer Allison of the Davis cup team disposed of Richard Murphy, Utica, N. Y., 7-5, 6-4, in the other quarter-finals. Hunter and Allison will meet in one of the semi-finals scheduled for tomorrow while Shields and Wood clash in the other.

Tilden's surprise defeat by Shields was the first time he has lost to a fellow American since he was upset by Fritz Mercur in the eastern championships two years ago at Rye, N. Y.

DUGAS STILL AT TOP OF WESTERN LEAGUE

Lefty Dugas, local boy, playing right field for Wichita in the Western league, last week made his position at the head of the circuit's hitters more secure with 17 hits in 38 trips to the plate, almost .500 to boost his hitting at the end of play August 1, to .372. His nearest rival, Keyes, of Des Moines, had a mark of .355, giving Lefty an advantage of 17 points.

The following are the averages of the two boys according to this week's Sporting News, and compiled by Irwin M. Howe up to August 1:

	G.	AB.	R.	H.	RBI	P.C.
Dugas ...	106	438	87	163	91	.372
Keyes	104	405	87	144	110	.355

Lefty leads the league in hits with his 163 his nearest rival being Jensen, a teammate, who has 145.

Joe Faber, the other local boy in this league, has been moved from second to third position in the Omaha batting order and has justified this change by running his average up considerably in the past few weeks.

Wichita is leading the league with .618 and Omaha was second with .566 on Tuesday morning.

Jack Knig was elected manager for the season of 1930-31, and Peter Shaffer was elected captain.

The New London team this year has a few new players with the team and also is to be fully outfitted with new uniforms this season.

The New London team expects to open their season Sept. 7, with Plainfield, last year's league champs.

The Red Stars defeated the Fitchville A. C. 10-7 at Plainfield last Sunday.

THERMOS ACCEPTS CHALLENGE OF IDEALS

Nobody can hurl a defy in Bill Hastedt's face and get away with it. Tony Bernard tried it Thursday mornnig and Bill don't let a single spear of grass grow under his feet before he's got Tony on the phone and accepted the challenge. Which in a nutshell means that on Sunday the fans will witness a renewal of the feud between the Thermos Bottle team and the Ideals at Martin field.

This baseball feud, if you remember, had its inception in the City league when the Ideals trimmed the Thermos, 5 to 4, only to have the Thermos management protest the game on a technicality. The board of arbitration read the protest and promptly decided to make the score 4 to 4 and there the matter stands although there are rumors that the committee may consider the matter further.

Although this game on Sunday has no bearing on the City league it will serve to satisfy a large number of baseball fans as to the relative merits of the two clubs. The Thermos club since that game with the Ideals has run afoul of bad luck and has lost three games in a row which tends to make the Ideals favorites in the coming encounter.

Manager Bernard says that the game on Sunday will be started early enough in the day so that there will be no danger of its being called on account of darkness. He also states that it will be played under the rules that govern the national pastime with no amendments or revisals of the playing code by any committee. The Thermos management on the other hand requests that there be plenty of police protection on the field to hold the fans in check to prevent a recurrance of the demonstration of the City league encounter.

With these difficulties straightened out there was the matter of what the game should be played for besides the real sport of the encounter. It has been decided that the playing basis will be a 60-40 per cent of the gate after expenses are taken out which makes this game one worth going after. Bernard says he's willing to play for the fun of the thing and let the proceeds go to charity.

MYSTIC

The annual picnic of Fanny Ledyard chapter, D. A. R., was held Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl C. Cutler, West Mystic. The place is the old homestead of the Packer family and has been kept in good condition; all the floors are wide oak boards and it has the old chimney oven next to the fire place. Three long tables were set under the trees. Miss Lucy Kellogg asked the blessing. Clam chowder was served, with sandwiches, pickles, apple pie, ice cream and coffee. Mrs. Estella Baily, regent, called on Mrs. Carl Cutler to explain about the campaign being planned to exterminate mosquitoes. Stonington has raised $4,000, and all Mystic and Groton are asked to co-operate. Groton has about half the amount of acres that Stonington has to be drained. A rising vote of thanks was given Mrs. Cutler for her hospitality. Mrs. Lucy H. Chesebro, chairman of the year book, had the books ready for distribution and received many compliments for having them ready in advance. Guests present were Mrs. Herbert L. Crandall, of New London, Mrs. W. A. J. Kopp, Miss Louise Thayer of Stonington, Mrs. H. C. Bullard, Miss Anna C. Bullard, Mount Vernon, N. Y., Mrs. Elizabeth Kingston of Rockville, Conn., Mrs. Horace Fish, Ridgewood, N. J.; Miss Mary Kellogg, Mrs. Bessie H. Ludwig, Mystic; Miss Marion Stevens, Needham, Mass.

To Regulate Parking.

A special meeting of the Warden and Burgesses of the borough was held on Monday evening and by-laws formulated, that if passed at a special meeting to be held Wednesday evening, August 13, will prevent any parking on Water street from the south side of Omega street to the government property at the point. The street is just wide enough for one car and afternoons and evenings, cars are parked here preventing people from getting to the point, which is one of the most popular spots in Stonington this time of year.

Venders' Licenses $40.

At the meeting of the board of selectmen held this week in the town hall, the matter of licenses for transient peddlers was brought up. Formerly, a nominal sum has been charged when the vender applied for the license which was issued by the town clerk. After the hearing in which the business men of the town took part, the sum of $40 a year was decided for such a license, the same to be issued by the patrolman on duty in the village. The trade of local merchants, especially in the summer season is cut off by venders coming into the town and selling goods at low prices while the local merchant has much larger expense. The state law says that the license shall not be more than $50 and not less than $5, so the above amount was named.

WESTERLY

WESTERLY WATER WORKS IS BEING GREATLY TAXED

(Special to The Bulletin)

On Thursday afternoon for a short time water was turned on in the Wilcox Park fountain at the memorial entrance from Broad street to assist in cleaning out the large basin. For the past two days the town of Westerly Water Works, Superintendent Arthur H. Coy, has been called upon to pump more water than ever before this season. The continued dry spell with increasingly larger number of summer visitors has so far increased the water consumption that both pumps of the water works department have been placed in operation.

The large granite ornamental vase, presented Wilcox Park by the "Women of Westerly" has been cleared and placed at the junction of the knoll walk through the park from the rear of the Memorial and Public Library building and the walk leading over the knoll towards the former Colonial club house at its rear. Plans are being made by the park authorities to have this vase filled with flowers.

Forest Fire Warden Sheffield Green and volunteer firemen were engaged on Thursday morning in extinguishing the last remnants of a brush and grass fire on the Lorenzo Chase farm on the Boston Post road and opposite the home of Maj. John F. Datson. This fire is adjoining a tract of land where cedar poles are taken from swamp land by Charles Henry Crandall.

On Wednesday evening James Babcock, 17, of Prospect street, sustained a fractured right wrist while playing baseball on the Thread Mill grounds.

Frank V. Holbrook of Decatur, Ill., arrived in Westerly on Wednesday after a three days' motor trip from his middle states home to pass a three weeks' vacation visit with relatives at Avondale. He was accompanied by his wife and son. Some thirty years ago as an engineer for the United States government Mr. Holbrook was overseeing the completion of the government fortifications at Napatree Point, Watch Hill, known as Fort Mansfield, since dismantled and sold at public auction to the private syndicate of Watch Hill residents, The Napatree Point corporation.

Mrs. Edward W. Pitcher and daughter, Miss Pauline, are Westerly vacation visitors for two weeks with Mrs. Pitcher's brother, William D. Cameron, and family, at Stamford, Conn.

Hon. Charles E. Champlin of Maple Breezes, Norwich-Westerly road, was a Westerly business caller on Wednesday and Thursday.

Col. Arthur N. Nash is a Westerly business caller in Providence today (Friday).

A former Westerly resident, Richard C. Everson, is the owner of a seashore development and conducts a building business near the fireswept section of Plymouth, at White Horse Beach, near Monoment Point, on Cape Cod.

Police Patrolman Robert M Kesse. on Thursday had a day off duty while Police Officer Paul McCarthy substituted as day patrol officer.

Mrs. Jeannie L. Smith, widow of Peter B. Smith, is critically ill at the Westerly hospital.

Mrs. Evangeline Martell is a two weeks' Westerly motor visitor in Everett, Mass., where she is the guests of friends.

Rev. John Fitzgerald, former pastor of St. Michael's Catholic church, in Pawcatuck now of Naugatuck and Rev. John J. Keane, former curate, now of New Britain, have been Westerly vacation visitors.

Judge Oliver H. Williams will hold session Friday morning of third district court when motor traffic law violators, apprehended by Westerly and state police, will be heard.

Sergeant Ernest F. Stanhouse of the Hope Valley, R. I., barracks of the state police department, visited his Westerly home on Thursday.

Stewart C. Welsh of Chicago and family have arrived in Westerly to take up their residence at the Lyon's cottage, Watch Hill.

The pleasant weather of Thursday night caused large number of autoists not only of Westerly but surrounding towns to park near Wilcox Park on Thursday evening to enjoy the sixth concert of the summer.

NOANK

John Loftus of New London was a business caller in the village Wednesday.

Billy Plumstead has returned after a visit with relatives on Long Island.

Mrs. Hope Peterson is on an automobile trip to Vermont.

Miss Christina Clark of Waterbury is visiting Capt. and Mrs. John Jenssen.

Mrs. Arthur Chapman of Bridgehampton, L. I., is spending several days with her sister, Mrs. Jane Carson.

Clears For Long Island.

The Ferryboat Bristol which has been at the shipyard for repairs has left for Long Island. The menhader steamer J. W. French has been launched after being painted. The menhaden steamer Aquigneck is hauled out for minor repairs at the local shipyard.

Miss Marion Jenssen has returned after a visit with relatives in Fishers Island.

JEWETT CITY

LEAGUE SEASON ENDS WITH GENERAL SATISFACTION

The last game of the Jewett City Twilight league having been played, it may now be said as having passed into the town's history, not only as this community's first trial in an all-local league, but as having been an unqualified success. Financially, the results were far beyond expectations, for after all bills have been paid, E. J. Carroll, treasurer, reports $100 to the good. The board of directors, of whom W. A. Richardson is president, have had little to adjust in the way of misunderstandings. The league has contained fully 60 players who have put up good games, as many readily be determined by the box scores. The baseball public, which often attended during the 24 games, in numbers of from three to four hundred, has been generous in its praise, liberal in donations and considerate in judgment. There have been nine umpires during the season who have given the best of service without a penny of pay. Public acknowledgment is due Napoleon Liberty, who has made the nightly collections and Stanley Malek, who has been the very efficient official scorer. Substantial prizes have been given by Hazard Arremony, George A. Ross and L. E. Boucher. Take it all in all the cooperation of the townspeople has been grand, and in payment, four teams—the Fisk, Campers, Accoe and Kaceys, managed respectively by John Bush, Herbert Thompson, Hal Chase and Eudor LeClaire, have played consistently good ball. The board of directors Thursday passed a vote of appreciation for the services of The Bulletin, in that each meet has been announced in its columns, and on the morning following each of the 24 games, the box score has appeared in full, on its sport page. Plans are being made for a local all-star team to play the winners, with forecasts of a league next season, that may be composed of five teams. One of the results which has been attained is the opportunity which has been given the lads and young men of the vicinity to play the national game. During the season many have admired the work of the younger players.

MACKEREL SHARK 28 LBS. PRIZE OF LOCAL FISHERMAN

Skipper Bill Marshall alias Moby Dick, and "Bib" LeClaire, formerly quartermaster on a local biscuit boat, are just in from a wonderful deep sea fishing trip down off Montauk point. The voyage was made in a 40-foot fore-and-aft menhaden schooner sailing out of Noank. The catch included nine different sorts of fish among which were sea bass, mackerel and a few handsome blue fish.

When passing the western end of Block Island, with trolling lines out, Marshall got a strike that was worth talking about. Captain, crew and all hands laid on to the heavy cod line. In the stiff breeze that was piping down the sound, the vessel came up into the wind, and with everything aback, was near to capsizing. All hands let go the line and sprang to their stations—all but Bill, having hooked his fish he was loath to lose him and held on. Now, some 100 feet astern, could be made out the long, black body of the captive, breaking water, only to dive again, splashing the brine as high as the mast head. Then, with the aid of the ship's windlass, and with a great deep sea cheer, they pulled him over the rail. A great mackerel shark, so full of fight he was, that Bib had to crack him over the head with an oar. In Noank, Mr. Shark measured five feet, three inches and weighed 28 pounds. Bill was out to Charlie Carey's Thursday, buying ointment for his hands, where the line zipped through when the great fish took notions that he wouldn't come aboard.

John LaFontaine, of Boston, is making a summer visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Judson LaFontaine.

At the time the Twilight league started, before any of the scheduled games had been played, Tony Marinello picked the winners. It was his prediction that Fisk would finish first, the Campers second, with about an even thing for the Accoe and Kaceys. It was even so, with the last two teams knotted for third money.

Much regret is expressed all through this section that Dr. F. D. Browning's decision to retire from business is final. Although he is still a young man, he has built up a large and growing practice in which he has made good. His many friends will say that having possessed the happy combination of proficiency in his profession and a fine personality, his business success was assured. Dr. Browning will find pleasing farm interests to occupy his attention on the Browning homestead, the place where he was born.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Hull and Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Mell left Tuesday morning for a ten days' motor trip to Niagara Falls, Toronto and Ogdensburg, Alexandria Bay, Pottertown, Malone, Saranac lake, Lake Placid, Thousand Islands, to St. Albans, Vt., and back by way of Lake George, Glens Falls, Saratoga Springs, Hoosick Falls, Pittsfield, Mass., and over the Mowhawk trail home, about 2,200 miles.

Miss M. A. Burdick has a beautiful rose mallow in bloom in her flower garden at her home on the East Main street highlands. The vine, which is of unusual size, has over 200 blossoms and buds. The marsh mallow of the same species is now blooming wild along the shore where some little tidewater pond makes into the land.

With another day of unbroken drought, the great fields of fodder corn, all through the outlying farming districts, were badly curled Thursday afternoon and standing still. All around one large lot, the edges near the fences were beyond remedy even in event of rain. Within this big milk producing belt, there are dozens of silos that must be filled this fall if the herds of cattle are to have ample winter fodder.

The operators at the local telephone exchange are asking for patience on the part of users of the telephones, inasmuch as the building of the addition to Slater library necessarily makes so much noise that it is often difficult for the operators to hear readily.

Ashland Cotton Co. office employes had an outing at Atlantic beach Thursday evening.

Mrs. Albert Rook and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rook, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Harry Rook of East Orange, N. J., were guests Thursday of their cousin, Miss M. A. Burdick. The family is visiting relatives in Niantic.

RAYON GIRLS' TEAM WINS FROM PLAINFIELD, 10 TO 9

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Aug. 7.—The Ashland rayon girls won from the Plainfield girls in the fight-to-a-finish game this evening, at Ashland park, 10 to 9. The crowd was the largest ever seen on the local diamond. Automobiles lined both sides, the grandstand was packed, while hundreds were standing off the base lines, making a gallery of more than 1,000.

The battery for Jewett City was Either and Roberts, and for Plainfield, Jennie and Bassette. It was no bean-bag contest. The girls played good ball and were in regulation form from start to finish. Each side is credited with a double-play. Several of the girls lined out three-baggers with one runner making two sacks on a single, by means of a ten-foot slide.

The return game will be awaited with much interest.

The score by innings:

Plainfield	7	0	2—9
Jewett City	4	5	1—10

UNION

Old Home Day celebrations are held in Union, each year, on the third Saturday and Sunday in August. Saturday, August 16, the people of this town plan to meet in the Grove at Union Center to welcome former residents and many other friends who come here from year to year. All events of both Saturday and Sunday are on daylight saving time. The Phoenix Liberty band of Stafford will be ready to give a musical welcome to arrivals of friends about 10 a. m., and will furnish music during the day. The schedule will be similar to that of former years. The social period before the noon lunch is always enjoyable. The lunch is on the picnic plan in groups about the grove. The L. B. A. is planning to have a booth on the grounds as usual. The speaking program is to open at 1 p. m. Many will be glad to know that there will be an opportunity (in all probability) to hear both Dr. and Mrs. Samuel McCune Lindsay, who recently returned from an eventful tour around the world. There is a plan for a ball game in the afternoon on the old militia parade ground on Newell Hill. The day closes with a dance in the town hall, music for this event of the evening will be by an orchestra furnished by George D. Neff, of Tolland.

Old Home Day Sunday will be observed at the Congregational church at Union Center, August 17. The pastor, Rev. William Bragg, has charge of the service which will open at the customary hour, 11 o'clock. There will be special music. There is always a delightful gathering of old friends on the church lawn, directly after service.

FOUR BODIES FOUND AFTER FLOOD NEAR NOGALES, ARIZ.

NOGALES, Ariz., Aug. 7.—(P)—Salvador Estrada, commandant of the Nogales, Sonora, municipal police, reported after a check-up at noon today only two bodies of victims of last night's cloudburst and flood have been found, both on the American side of the International line. Early today Mexican police and others reported four had been found.

Early estimates put loss at $100,000, exclusive of merchandise damaged in stores. This amount was about equally divided between the Mexican and American cities.

S. M. Estrada, in charge of rescue work in Nogales, Sonora, said about 100 persons were homeless there and that many others had to leave their adobe houses, which threatened to collapse, due to weakened walls.

When some women sing in order to quiet a crying baby it is adding insult to injury.

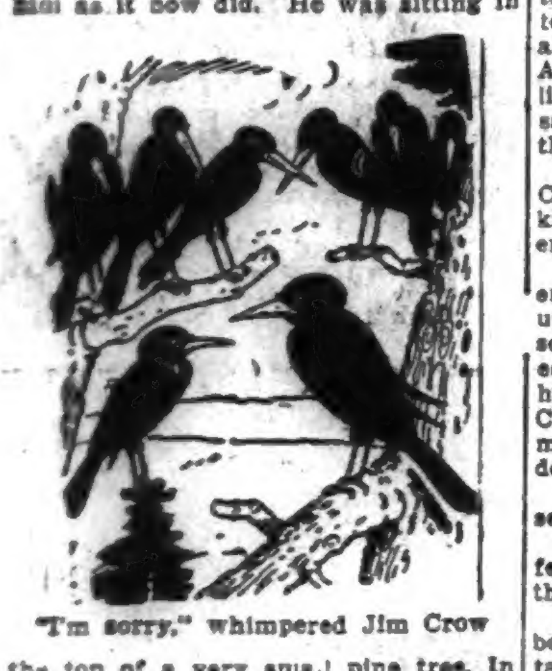
BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Jim Crow Is Tried

He who doth desert his kind
Mercy may not hope to find.
—Jim Crow.

In his short life Jim Crow had more than once been badly frightened; but never had fear taken possession of him as it now did. He was sitting in the top of a very small pine tree. In the trees all about and on the ground were the members of the flock to which his father and mother belonged.



"I'm sorry," whimpered Jim Crow

There were Crows to the right of him, Crows to the left of him, Crows in front of him and Crows behind him. Wherever he looked he saw Crows. And he didn't like the way those Crows loked at him. Indeed, it gave him a most uncomfortable feeling. He wished they wouldn't look at him at all.

At first, Jim Crow couldn't understand what it was all about, but after he listened for a while to the talk of the other Crows—and they all did a very great deal of talking—he began to understand that it had something to do with his having left the flock and gone back to Farmer Brown's. Apparently, the other Crows didn't like it at all. They said so, and they said so in a way that left no doubt that they meant just what they said.

"He is a deserter!" said one old Crow. "He has deserted his own kind. He has gone to live with the enemy of the Crows—Man."

"But Farmer Brown's Boy isn't an enemy," protested Jim Crow, whereupon he was told to keep still. It seemed as if all the Crows there talked at once, as they ordered him to hold his tongue. Even Blacky the Crow, his father, and Mrs. Blacky, his mother, seemed to think that he had done something very wrong.

"What is the punishment for a deserter?" cried an old Crow.

"He shall be killed and all his feathers pulled out," cried two or three young Crows together.

"Of course, it wasn't his fault in the beginning," said Blacky. "He was taken away. He couldn't help himself."

"That was all right," replied one of the oldest Crows. "That was quite all right. But after we brought him back, he left us of his own accord. That is the unpardonable sin. Had he been taken away we could have forgiven him. But he wasn't taken away; he deserted. Now, what do the rest of you think about it?"

Evidently, the rest thought a great deal about it to judge from the way their tongues flew. Such a racket as they made! And one and all they seemed to think that Jim Crow should be punished; that he should be given the most dreadful of all punishments. It looked very bad for Jim Crow. Yes, indeed, it looked very bad for Jim Crow. In fact, it could hardly have looked worse. It seemed as if he hadn't a friend there.

"I'm sorry!" whimpered Jim Crow. "I didn't know I was doing anything wrong. It was just that I felt so much better off at Farmer Brown's. It was easier to get something to eat there. I felt safer there. I had nothing to worry about. I didn't know that I was doing wrong. Truly, I didn't."

"Caw, Caw, Caw, Caw, Caw!" shrieked all the Crows. "Caw, Caw, Caw! This fellow is a traitor! He shouldn't be allowed to live. He should be made an example of."

To all of this one wise old Crow, who was the leader of the flock for the time being, Blacky having left the trial, shook his head and said: "We must do nothing in haste; we must do nothing in haste. Hasty action brings regrets."

Whereupon all the other Crows shouted louder and louder than ever, "Caw, Caw, Caw! Kill him! Kill him! Kill him!"

The next story: "Just in Time."

PRESTON

Mrs. Guy Dawsey and son Stephen Palmer Dawsey, of Oklahoma, are guests of Mrs. Dawsey's mother, Mrs. G. A. Geisthardt.

There will be no service at the Congregational church for the next two Sundays.

The Bible schools of the Congregational and Baptist churches held a union picnic at Mohegan park. The perfect day, the large attendance together with abounding spirit of good will and Christian fellowship that prevailed created an atmosphere which made this one of the most enjoyable picnics in years. The Congregational school, which was the entertaining school, found willing hands on every side that made the responsibilities of the day a real joy. Shortly after twelve o'clock the company was called to the pavilion where a most appetizing lunch of salads, sandwiches, cake, ice cream and lemonade was served. Preceding the lunch, Rev. N. B. Prindle, of Shelton, Conn., a visiting pastor, asked the blessing. Following the lunch, boating and various games were enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holdridge and daughter Ruth, of Worcester, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Krug.

Miss Helen Smith, of East Haven, has been the guest of Mrs. Louise Boswell, for the past few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Krug and daughter Nattlie atended the Eccleston reunion held at Ashaway fair grounds, Sunday.

A large number from this place attended the farm bureau picnic at Gardner lake, Saturday.

Miss Helen Dyson, of East Orange, N. J., has been the guest of Mrs. N. H. Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddy, of Bloomfield, recently visited their daughter, Mrs. Allen Gates, at the parsonage.

Young Woman Interne

Word has been received of the safe arrival in England of Josephine Hopkins. She will spend six months abroad, visiting and studying. Miss Hopkins, who was graduated in June with high honors from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York, recently received an appointment as interne in Bellevue hospital and will enter upon her duties in January.

BEARS WERE ACTIVE IN STOCK MARKET WITH DEALINGS HIGHLY PROFESSIONAL

NEW YORK, Aug 7—(AP)—Stocks and grains continued to move generally in opposite directions today, although corn and wheat, meeting extensive realizing in the late dealings on the Chicago market, closed lower with shares, which were heavy most of the day.

Business on the stock exchange was highly professional. Most of the activity in the 1,450,000 share turnover was provided by traders on the floor who took the short side because it appeared to offer opportunity for quicker profits. The bulls remained passive, giving quiet support to such issues as U. S. Steel, General Motors and General Electric.

Wall street's major interest at present is in the drought and its consequences to that important consumer of industry's products, the farmer.

The bearish sentiment that has expressed itself in declining stock prices this week is generally traced to the failure of business to develop favorable symptoms. July had been widely advertised as the bottom month of the depression, but this view is now being revised. Important banking circles are reported to feel that an upturn could hardly be expected in the quiet midsummer vacation period, but that definite improvement will be noted in September.

Money became more comfortable. Call loans, renewing at 2 1-2 per cent, eased to 2 in the afternoon, reflecting the passage of the August 1 demands.

The undertone of the stock market was heavy all day. A few efforts to rally prices met little response and the selling became rather lively in the utilities and rails, although the declines in the former group were curtailed. Liquidation of the western rails was based on prospective losses to the grain carriers through crop losses. Southern Railway and Rhode Island were particularly weak, both breaking to new lows.

A few other rail shares were depressed, New Haven, New York Central, Union Pacific, Chicago and Alton and Chicago, Northwestern preferred dropping 2 points or more. Pennsylvania sagged nearly a point.

Net declines elsewhere in the list were small, with few exceptions, which included Peoples' Gas, off 15 points, Allied Chemical, off 8, and Eastman Kodak, off 4. American Water Works, American Power and Light and J. I. Case closed about 3 points lower. There were losses of a point or so in Consolidated Gas, Standard Gas, North American, American Can, Warner Brothers and Air Reduction. Radio was heavy on reports that the semi-annual earnings statement, expected about the middle of the month, would show that the preferred dividends had been only partially earned.

Foreign exchanges mostly eased, although the French franc held steady.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—(AP)—Bears hammered all the utilities, oils and specialties in further listless trading in today's curb market. Losses of a point or two were numerous among the more active issues, but there were a few isolated firm spots. Transfers totaled only 867,900 shares.

Electric Bond and Share was subjected to considerable selling, and sagged below 80, but it closed at 80 2-8, off little more than a point.

Power Securities second preferred was a firm spot, jumping about six points in response to the exchange offer of Electric Power and Light preferred. Cosden was a soft spot, dropping more than 3 points. Vacuum dropped 2 points.

In the aviation issues, Aviation Corporation of the Americas, dropped 3 points in light trading, but Detroit Aircraft was active and firm, in response to rumors regarding its new "mystery" ship which is soon to be announced.

Ford, Ltd., was an active feature of the industrials, but continued to meet profit taking, and closed off a fraction. Deere was still under pressure, sagging a point to another new low.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 7—(AP)—The demand for railroad investment bonds on the New York Stock exchange today, still appeared unsatiated.

Carrier obligations climbed another notch in the price averages and for the second time this week the price level was adjusted at a new 1930 peak. The investment department as a whole showed a firm undertone, with stock privilege and speculative issues suffering from the heaviness of equity securities.

One of the favorable factors for the accelerated pace of investment issues this week has been the comparative dearth of new offerings to attract institutions with large amounts of idle funds to invest. Another factor which has given assurance that money rates affecting the bond market will continue easy throughout August.

Considering the quietness normal for this time of year, traders found the inquiry which developed for bonds encouraging the day's sales totaling $7,312,000.

Among the strong railroad bonds were Baltimore and Ohio Ref. 5s, Pennsylvania 4 1-2s, Chicago and Northwestern 4 3-4s and Union Pacific 4 1-2s which reached new highs for the year. Southern Pacific 4 1-2s, New York Central 5s. Convertible Rails were active and most of them lost ground. Chesapeake Corporation 5s were in demand and sold only 1-4 of a point under the year's peak price.

Amusement bonds were also influenced by the weakness of the share market, Loews warrant 6s sagging 2 points, and Warner Brothers 6s reaching a new low for the year, on losses of more than a point.

American and foreign power 5s touched a new high but eased at the close. American Telephone collateral 5s made another new high. Louisville Gas and Electric 5s were strong, advancing 1 point to a new 1930 peak. Detroit Edison 6s were heavy.

Interest in foreign bonds was overshadowed by the inquiry for domestic issues. Prices ruled firm with Belgium 6 1-2s and British 5 1-2s duplicating their peak prices of the year. As other popular European governments held steady. Strength in Bolivian 7s, up nearly a point, and activity in Colombian Agriculture Bank 6s which soared 2 points, featured South American bonds.

Turnover in U. S. governments was negligible and prices were firm.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Aug. 7—(AP)—Overturned by headlong rushes to grab profits, the grain markets underwent big setbacks late today, wheat as much as 5c a bushel and corn 4 3-4. The collapse of values came after wheat, corn, and oats had all soared to new high price records for the season on account of fresh outbursts of immense buying associated with increasing drought damage to corn and with severe curtailment of Canadian wheat yields.

Reports of rains in various parts of the corn belt had some influence toward bringing about lower prices, notwithstanding that no general breakup of the drought appeared to be in sight.

Both wheat and corn were showing rallies at the last, but also giving evidence of being extremely nervous.

Corn closed 1 1-4a2 1-8 a bushel lower than yesterday's finish, wheat 1-4a1 1-4 off, oats at 7-8a1 3-8 decline and provisions 10-17 up.

Bank clearings at 125 cities for July were $46,460,765,000, a decrease of 22.4 per cent from the like month a year ago, compared with a decrease of 6.1 per cent in June, Bradstreet's reports. The total for July a year ago was $59,919,892,000. The total at 125 cities for the first seven months this year was $335,486,708,000, increase of 16 per cent from $399,686,249,000 for the corresponding period last year.

Wall street heard that expansion of the refining and marketing operations of the Cosden Oil Co. which probably will include acquisition or erection of a plant on either the Atlantic or Gulf Coast, is included in the recently announced increase in capitalization of the company.

The American Bemberg Corp. today announced reductions in prices for Bemberg yarns, following reductions made recently by the Viscose Co. S. R. Fuller, Jr., chairman of the board, said the cuts were made to conform with the existing lower level of commodity prices and that sales of Bemberg yarn during the first half this year showed a 40 per cent increase over the like period last year.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

WHEAT AS LIVESTOCK FEED AT PRESENT PRICES

Wheat can be substituted for corn to advantage in feeding livestock when prices are as low as they are at present in some sections of the country, says the United States department of agriculture, in a statement issued late in July. "The average farm price of corn for the United States last month," the statement runs, "was about 79 cents per bushel. At this price for corn, wheat is worth about 85 cents for feeding to poultry and sheep, and about 89 cents for feeding to hogs and beef cattle. The average farm price of wheat July 15 was about 80 cents per bushel.

"Based on digestible nutrients, wheat and corn are of practically equal value pound for pound. Hence, a bushel of wheat is worth more than a bushel of corn in feeding value as a bushel of wheat weighs 4 pounds, or 7 per cent, more than a bushel of shelled corn. But corn and corn products alone make a better ration for cattle than wheat and wheat products alone. It is not necessary to grind corn as a hog feed, but wheat should be coarsely ground or crushed. Wheat, according to experiments made in Nebraska, has proved 5 per cent more efficient than corn for fattening steers when fed with alfalfa hay, a little prairie hay, and straw, bran, and linseed meal.

SQUAB PRODUCTION

Squab production will return a fair profit to persons who are willing to give careful, regular attention to the right kind of pigeons, the United States department of agriculture says, but the profits in this business have been greatly overestimated. In successful plants producing market squabs only, the average annual return above cost of feed is between $2 and $2.50 for each pair of breeders. Poultrymen sometimes raise squabs as a specialty but more commonly as a side issue.

CULLING HENS HELPS LOW EGG PRICES

In a period of low prices for eggs the poultryman has particular need to cull low-producing hens, because in such a period fewer hens will pay their way and also earn a profit than in more prosperous times. Cull hens are frequent visitors at the feed hopper, and the poultryman who markets these loafers as they begin to molt, or who culls his flock closely and systematically, stands a better chance of making a profit from his flock, say poultry specialists of the United States department of agriculture.

The time of molt is an indication of the ability to lay eggs. Hens that molt before September are usually low producers. Those that do not molt until late in September or October are usually high producers. Hens that molt as late as October or November produce nearly 100 per cent more winter eggs and 50 per cent more eggs for the entire year, than hens that molt in July.

Another method of culling the poor layers is to note the physical condition of the birds. A good layer is vigorous in midsummer and has a plump bright comb which appears to be full of blood and is waxy and soft in texture. The wattles and comb of a poor layer at this time of year are shrunken and comparatively hard, and have a pale or dull color. In a good layer the pubic bones, which are on each side of the vent, are flexible in any season, but in a poor producer they are thick and rigid.

TO BONE A LEG OF LAMB

Many people always have a leg of lamb boned for roasting. They say is surprising how many attractive servings can be made from either a hot or a cold boned leg that can be sliced evenly from end to end. Any butcher can bone a leg of lamb for you, or you can do it yourself. The United States department of agriculture tells how it is done.

"In boning, first take out the irregular aitch or pelvic bone at the large end. Cut into the meat on the thinnest or 'stifle' side and lay back a flap of meat deep enough to expose the leg bone and permit its removal. You will have a pocket here for stuffing, or the leg may be sewed together and roasted without stuffing. A good sharp, thin knife is needed for boning."

Anybody can carve a roast prepared in this way, and serve it much more quickly than the ordinary leg roast. For sliced cold cuts the meat is much more shapely than when the leg is carved with the bones in.

REFORESTATION IN 1929

Reforestation in the United States last year restored to tree growth a total of 111,173 acres, the Forest Service of the United States department of agriculture reports. This included the planting of 81,483 acres by 21 states and two territories, 5,920 acres by municipalities, 25,088 acres by industrial organizations, 539 acres by schools and colleges, and 1,516 acres by other organizations. Farmers planted 24,825 acres to windbreaks and woodlots, and other individuals planted 3,659 acres. The Forest Service planted 18,207 acres of land on national forests last year.

RAT SELECTS ITS HOME WITH EYE TO DETAILS

Rats are naturally homeseekers. They have decided preferences for certain conveniences in a new home. They regard with favor an ample and easy food supply, convenient runways, and secluded nesting spaces that are well protected from their enemies. Consequently says the bureau of biological survey, a good first step in checking damage by rats is to make the buildings as unpleasant as possible for the home-seeking rats. For example, if there are dead air spaces between the studding or along the sills of the granary fill them so full of broken brick or small stones that no rat will want to settle. A dump for waste will usually yield discarded sheet metal, which can be nailed into the corners and along sills and timbers that rats are likely to attack when gnawing their way to feed. Raise the corn cribs far enough from the ground so that a dog can run under and put a metal collar around the posts supporting the crib. A discarded section of a disk nailed over the top of the post is just the thing. Make sure that a rat can not follow along a pipeline leading into the house or into out-buildings. Pour cement in the opening through the wall, or use sheet metal. Coarse cinders held together by a thin cement mixture will improve the rat resistance of many farm buildings.

Traps, dogs, and poisons are helpful in destroying rats if they appear, but the biological survey points out that it is better to discourage the rats before they settle down to make a home, reproduce, and multiply.

Hog And Hominy—Heat Producers

By Joseph P. Kane, M. D., New York

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

In the hot weather the mountaineer's "hogs and hominy" or the New Englander's "salt pork and milk gravy" only serve to stoke the human fires and make external heat more intolerable.

Pork contains an excessive amount of fat and fat happens to be fuel, as differentiated from body-building material. This fat when eaten acts, then, in the same way that coal acts when you put it in the stove. In the process of burning it gives off heat, or potential energy. Fatty pork is not, therefore, a suitable food for hot weather; it contains too much fuel. Vegetables, raw and cooked greens, and fruits, make excellent summer foods for the reason that they contain little fuel, or heating value.

Because pork can be salted and preserved in a briny solution, and because facilities in rural districts do not permit of the preservation of other kinds of meat except by drying or smoking, large amounts of pork are consumed. In the rural districts of the north and in the mountainous districts of the south, salt pork forms a staple article of food. Because of this widespread use of pork, the U. S. Public Health Service sent out a broadcast over the radio, warning the public against eating it on a hot day. They pointed out that it is a "heavy" food, a "rought" food they call it, for the out-of-doors worker, for the man who, because of the physical effort required by the nature of his work—that is, for the man who, by his physical labor, burns up a great deal of fuel. Such a man may be able to take care of the excess fuel that fatty pork supplies. But for people whose work requires very little physical effort, the consumption of large amounts of pork may load him down with fuel that he cannot properly utilize, and put him in a condition of misery on a hot day.

The woman with a baby and the woman without one are always sorry for each other.

THE FARMER'S TALK TO FARMERS

WHY MAKE POST OFFICE PAY ITS WAY?

(Written Specially For The Bulletin)

Every so often,—and a good deal too often,—somebody in either congress or the post office department has to start a reorganization of the postal service.

We get used, after more or less squirming and scrouging, to a certain set of postal rates and regulations. We come to know, at least, the rates on first-class mail and parcel post and money-orders. Then, when we've got these things firmly fixed in our noodles, whoopee! out comes an entirely new set of rules and rates which we've got to learn all over again.

There are indications that a fresh disturbance is developing, right now, and that the next session of congress is going to be called on to increase postage rates.

You see, there is a deficit in the postal department's finances. It costs more to deliver the country's mail than the country is paying in postage. It would hurt a lot of officials' feelings if there should be an attempt to reduce expenses. Wherefore they want the income raised by an increase in postage rates. The particular proposition just now seeming to find departmental favor is a plan to increase the postage on letters from a two cent stamp to a two-and-a-half cent stamp.

Now we country folks, who send a letter perhaps once or twice a week and get a paper once a day, aren't going to be hit by any such advance so badly as the big institutions which send out hundreds or even thousands of letters and statements and circulars every day. But just how are we going to buy a two-and-a-half cent stamp? The postmaster won't sell us one for two cents, and we'll be everlastingly slingwhingled if we're going to pay three! If the United States postal service is going to require us to pay two and a half cents for a stamp, then the United States mint will have to get busy and turn us out a few hundred million half-cent coins.

This is only one of the minor complications promised by the proposed increase. We should, probably, circumvent it by hereafter buying two stamps for a nickel,—and losing the extra one before we got round to needing it!

But why should we be kept constantly hopping from one schedule of postage rates to another, in order to enable the department's accountants to balance their books? Really, you know, the postal service is supposed to be for the benefit of the people, and not for its own sake. It isn't supposed to be run for the purpose of making money, but for that of making communication easy, prompt, safe and economical for the people.

Of course, you and I don't know and aren't in any position to find out all about all the problems that the postal authorities have to meet. But there are a few considerations which we can't help envisaging.

The department's expenses are greater than its income, we are told. Well, during the fiscal year 1929, 769,421,000 pieces of mail, weighing 117,021,000 pounds, were carried free by the mails. They included material under "penalty" privilege sent out by executive departments, under "franking" privilege by members of congress, "publications mailed free in county," and "free matter for the blind."

Had these paid the same postage you and I have to pay on similar matter they would have brought into the department $9,931,140. That would have abated the deficit by pretty nearly ten million dollars, as you'll note.

Another unstated but probably much larger part of the deficit is due to the cluttering up of the mails with thousands of tons of advertising stuff which the recipients don't want, and which the post offices delivers to their waste-baskets for less than delivery cost. The amount of such unasked, undesired and undesirable matter daily dumped into the offices of business firms would astonish even a postmaster-general if he could only see it once gathered together and piled over the surface of an average state.

Even common people are more or less plentifully showered with the stuff. For instance, here am I, a retired old farmer living on a side road back among the hills. Yet in the last six days I have received eleven pieces of mail, so self-evidently of an unwanted advertising nature that they've all gone into the waste-basket unopened. They all bore the very lowest permissible postage. It cost the government something to bring that rubbish to me. And it pretty nearly doubled the carrier's load. All for nothing. If, instead of increasing the rate on letters that are of some value to us, the rates on this kind of flub-dub should be doubled or quadrupled, either the department's income would be increased or its delivery costs greatly diminished. Either the advertisers would pay more for the service or they'd cut it out. Whichever they did would be to the advantage of the department's finances,—to say nothing of the comfort of a hundred and twenty odd million people.

Perhaps, though, even these decidedly practical reforms might not put the post office department on a paying basis.

Well, will you kindly tell me why that department should be picked out as the only one in the government expected to pay its own way?

The papers have been full for the last year of talk about the navy. It's a mighty important arm of the government service. It's also an exceedingly expensive one. But nobody dreams of asking it to pay its own expenses.

The army isn't a very big one, as armies go, but it costs us several hundred millions a year in taxes. We pay them just as we pay for the support of other functions of government, and never think of requiring the chief of staff to turn the army into a money-making service.

The state department makes certain charges for passports and visas and consular fees, etc., but no one asks it to report a surplus income, every year.

There isn't another department of the government service which touches so closely so many people as the postal service. It is a part of the daily life in millions upon millions of homes.

Once in a while we need the army or the navy. But we are in touch with the postal service practically every day. It is hard to picture the state we'd all be in if the mail trains stopped running and the carriers stopped delivering. We might as well be in darkest Africa or ice-embargoed Antarctica.

And yet there are those who argue that this peculiarly intimate and vital governmental service should be the only one required to make receipts balance expenses.

Out of the taxes it collects the treasury pays the cost of the army and the navy and the diplomatic service and pensions and hospital maintenance, and so on and so on, but the post office service, which is more intimately connected with the nation's life than any or all of them, must pay its own way, we are told.

Of course, we can all see that there must be postage rates. If no stamps were required for any form of mail matter, the mails would very soon be loaded with every possible form of merchandise from greeting-cards to grave-stones. The use of government facilities to take the place of private shipments must be guarded against. And doubtless the use of postage-stamps is as good a way as any other to effect this. Anyway, we're all used to them, and the buying them and sticking them on imposes no special hardship on most of us. If they help to pay the government for what it does in collecting and delivering the mail, well and good.

But it is hard for some of us to see why they should be required to pay the entire expenses of the mails.

In other words, why should this one form of public service be singled out to be placed on the basis of a profit-making business proposition?

No other branch of government is asked to make its income balance its outgo. They are maintained for the purpose of serving the country's needs, at the country's cost. The country doesn't want money wasted on them, but it wants them kept up to scratch. It doesn't want money wasted in the post office department. And those who know best with what pernickety care the expenditures of that department are watched are not inclined to believe that many dollars are thrown away.

What the country wants of its post offices is safe, sure, prompt, cheap communications. It wants them, whether the sale of stamps suffices to meet the expenses or not.

Furthermore, the country wants reasonable stability and permanence in its postal facilities. It wants postal rates fixed on a fair basis and then maintained, regardless of temporary ups and downs in business. This changing the stamps every year or two makes for unnecessary irritation, to say the least.

The aim of the post office department should be to give the people a constantly bettering service. It should move slowly in new directions, and make sure it is right before adopting new measures. But the increasing its income should always be a secondary consideration with it.

Service first, bookkeeping second, should be its slogan.

THE FARMER.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Capitol Theater, Willimantic

Patrons of the Capitol theater in Willimantic will be pleased to learn that William Haines' latest picture, "Way Out West," opens on Sunday for a three-day run. Western drama was just one location after another for William Haines when he filmed his newest Metro Goldwyn Mayer comedy. Much of it was filmed on the famous Fort Tejon cattle ranch, and the rest in the ancient Hopi pueblos near Gallup, New Mexico. Haines plays a circus barker who becomes a cowboy in the new picture which Fred Niblo directed. Leila Hyams is the heroine, and Cliff Edwards, Polly Moran, Francis X. Bushman, Jr., Buddy Roosevelt and others are in the cast. To miss this picture is like missing your salary on pay day. During the month of August, the Warner Bros. are celebrating their 25th anniversary and unusual pictures are being booked into the Capitol theater during this month.

SIXTY IN PAGEANT AT LISBON SUNDAY

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

An audience that was enthralled to silence, moved to tears, chilled with excitement sat in the Palace theater at the opening performances of "Journey's End," yesterday, and lived and shivered and trembled with the occupants of that dugout. They experienced every emotion of those young officers. They sat with them around the rough table while the earth shook with a great pounding. They breathed in suspense while Osborne, the calm, quiet, first lieutenant set his watch and waited for the attack. They sobbed when he died.

They watched young Raleigh, fresh from an exclusive country school, make his way to the dugout to greet his friend Captain Stanhope, and they saw Stanhope go white with rage and suspicion, Stanhope, who, only a boy himself, had been keeping his nerves steeled with whiskey for over three years, Stanhope, who was engaged to Raleigh's sister, and who didn't care to have her know how he looked now after long months of battle and drinking.

Sunday and on the following three days, the Palace will present William Haines and Leila Hyams in the great new comedy drama. "Way Out West."

Broadway Theatre

Stuart Erwin, who was Helen Kane's blond and befuddled sweetie in "Sweetie" is again seen and heard as her lakadaisical lover in "Dangerous Nan McGraw," which closes its local engagement at Warner's Broadway today. In this uproarous fun and music story of a traveling "medicine show" which gets stranded in the wilds of the glamorous Canadian northwest, Erwin is seen as a callow son of riches whose big ambition is to become an ace soloist on the saxophone.

Miss Kane is the singer and sharpshooting performer in the medicine show. Victor Moore, popular funny man of many a silent film and many a Broadway show, is the screamingly comical "doctor" and impressario of the "med" show.

Strand Theatre

"Male Against Female," featuring Mildred Harris at the head of an all star cast continues its engagement at the Strand theatre in Norwich. This photoplay gives both entertainment and much needed enlightment on sex.

A number of startling facts are exposed by this frank but truthful production. The film has aroused considerable interest and the approval of all who have already seen it. It shows all and tells everything with actual scenes leaving nothing to the imagination.

Owing to the delicate nature of the subjects presented, there are separate shows for women only and men only. Matinee today will be the last performance for women only. Tonight and tomorrow both matinee and evening will be for men only. No children under 16 years of age will be admitted.

NEW LONDON OFFICIALS' ORDER TO CONSERVE WATER MAKES IT RAIN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug 7—Leave it to the city authorities to prove real rainmakers! Without a grain of the exploited "rain powder" they brought down upon the just and unjust a fine shower which proves that anyway, it hasn't forgotten how to rain. Earlier in the day the Powers that Be had taken steps to conserve the local water supply in the face of the worst drought that New London had experienced in many years. While there is no shortage, the city officials believe it a wise move to prevent any needless output of water. With that end in mind they issued notice on all property owners that it is a violation of the law to water lawns, gardens or any form of washing property, including sidewalks, between 9 a. m., and 4 p. m. With rain indicated all day, there was every possibility that the drought would be broken before the end of the week; and when the thundershower started in during the evening, there was rejoicing on all sides.

More Than One Petition

William M. Nordenhold, blacksmith, in the employ of the New Haven railroad, who started the circulation of his petition whereby he might obtain the nomination for member of the city council, has not filed the document, although he claims he will do so within a few days. Nordenhold also states that there are more than one of his petitions being submitted to the voters for their signatures.

PETER BONAR INJURED AT SEA, MAY LOSE TWO FINGERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 7—Peter Bonar, 28, of this city employed by the Portland Trawling company, is a patient at the Marine hospital, Chelsea, suffering from a crushed hand, which injury he sustained at sea. Bonar was aboard a trawler, which was off George banks and when the fisherman sustained his injury a message was sent to the United States Coast Guard base at Boston, requesting that a boat be sent to the trawler, that could be given treatment. A patrol boat was sent to the trawler and after a run of several hours brought Bonar into port

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall or Liggett Drug Store.

He was then taken to the hospital. It may be necessary to amputate two fingers.

FORMALITY OF LICENSE DOES NOT BOTHER YOUTH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 7—Peter Piscatella, a youth residing at 79 Bayonet street, was arrested this evening charged on two violations of the state motor vehicle law, driving without a license and driving a car equipped with defective brakes. He will be in court tomorrow. The automobile, of antiquated model, was being driven about the city by the owner, crowded with his companions. Motorcycle Officer Carlos Stone observed the difficulty that Piscatella experienced in stopping the car and ordered the driver to come to a stop. Piscatella did so, but not until the auto had continued a long distance. When the driver's license was demanded, Piscatella said that he did not have this credential with him and developments revealed that he had not applied for the license this year and had been driving continuously without detection.

TWO WOMEN AUTO DRIVERS GET INTO THE CITY COURT

Two women automobile drivers were in the police court this morning, charged with the same offense, violation of the state motor vehicle law in driving past a standing trolley car that was receiving and discharging passengers. Lula B. Butler, of Northampton, Mass., one of the drivers, pleaded not guilty and because of the testimony being such as to fail to substantiate the allegation, the driver, who was arrested several days ago by Patrolman Louis Wheeler, was found not guilty. She was also charged with driving without her license, having been signed and this count was nolled. The other driver, Mrs. Henry Topham, Thames View, Waterford, was arrested at 2 o'clock this morning by State Police Officer James Dygert. Her case was continued to the 23rd inst.

S. L. Cutler, 363 Bank street, was charged with parking overtime. As he did not appear in court, his bond of $2 was declared forfeited.

PRISONER IN COURT FOR HIS 40TH TIME THERE

The remaining cases tried were for intoxication and there were six of them. One of the men, a farm laborer when employed, which is seldom, appeared before the bar of justice for the 40th time. He was arrested on Bank street last night and besides being charged with drunkenness, was charged with begging. Judge Daniel M. Cronin imposed a fine of $5 and costs. The man could not pay so went to jail where he will stay about three weeks. Two other men were sentenced to 30 days in jail, another was fined $5 and costs and the sixth offender was given suspension of judgment.

Miss Jean Bitters, of Quaker Hill, a patient at Home Memorial hospital, was discharged today.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin D. Colvin, of Nathan Hale street, have returned, having visited in North Woodstock, N. H.

Mrs. Helen Sheflott, Montauk avenue, and Miss Addie Fitch, Riverview avenue, employed in the office of Director of Finance Carey Congdon, are enjoying their annual vacation of two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Brown and daughter, of Springfield, formerly of New London, are spending a fortnight at Hawk's Nest, Lyme.

The driver's licenses of William W. Chase, of this city, and Viola E. Chapman, of Groton, have been suspended by the Rhode Island motor vehicle department. The suspensions are the result of violation of the state motor vehicle laws.

Norwich Girl Lost Temper

A young woman resident of Norwich gave an exhibition of violent temper while making a visit to New London last evening. She went to Ridgewood park, where a carnival is in progress, and as she alighted from the car her head came in contact with the door. Becoming angered, the young woman deliberately smashed the glass of the door with her fist and then seating herself on the running board cried for several minutes. When she became composed she accompanied her friends to the carnival, where, perhaps, she enjoyed herself.

Comdr. John S. Baylis, U. S. Coast Guard academy, is in New York where tonight at the Yankee stadium he witnessed the Jackie Berg-Kid Chocolate fight.

Mrs. Fred M. Greene, wife of Capt. Greene, Bellevue place, and daughters, Edith and Eleanor, are at Jackson, Me., where they will spend the remainder of the summer.

Mrs. Joseph Hall has returned to her home in Cambridge, Mass., having visited several weeks with her sister, Mrs. Lawrence Y. Spear, of Gardner avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Darrow, residents of Pearl street for many years, today moved to their newly constructed residence on Montauk avenue.

Malcolm M. Scott's Petition

The petition nominating Malcolm M. Scott for member of city council was received for record at the office of the city clerk today. The petition was circulated by Joseph A. Stanners. Mr. Scott has been a member of the city council ever since the adoption of the present form of government and his term of office will expire Oct. 1.

SIMINGTON, DRUNK, ARRESTED IN WATERFORD

Robert Simington, colored, a stranger, was arrested in Waterford this afternoon by Constable Chester Brigham, charged with intoxication. He is also guilty of two violations of the state motor vehicle law driving while under the influence of liquor and driving while his license is under suspension. His companion, John H. James, of New Haven, is also locked up on a breach of the peace charge. Simington and James drove to New London early this morning, having attended a party in Essex. They were on Main street much of the forenoon and shortly after 12 o'clock drove down Bank street, Simington at the wheel. Near Shaw street the auto collided with a car of Ohio registration, driven by a woman. Simington, realizing that he was guilty of violation of the state law in driving while intoxicated and while his license is suspended, jumped from the car and instructed James to sit behind the wheel. When Simington had fled and the driver of the Ohio car was remonstrating with James, the latter verbally abused the woman. James started to drive away, but was arrested by Patrolman Louis Wheeler. The woman did not desire to postpone her trip by appearing against the Negro and continued on her journey, but James was locked up and the automobile put in storage. Later, Simington was reported in Waterford lying on the ground close to the highway. Constable Brigham went to where the Negro was reported and arrested him. It was then revealed that Simington and not James had been the driver of the colliding auto, for when Simington was locked up, James declared the truth as to the collision and the events that led to his arrest.

E. C. POWERMEN'S OUTING TO BE AT LAKE OXOBOXO

Plans have been made by the employes of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. at Uncasville to hold their annual clambake Thursday, August 14th, at Camp Meow, at Lake Oxoboxo. Chef William Fingers will serve one of his very best chowders and later in the evening he will serve the boys a real Rocky Point clambake.

The registrars of the town of Montville, Edmond Killeen and Harry Watts will meet for the last time this week to enroll voters to the caucus of their political preference. A similar session of this board was held last Friday, but only a few persons appeared.

Alleged Tar Poured on Bull.

One case is scheduled to be tried Friday afternoon before Justice of the Peace Oscar E. Church of Montville. Louis Chapman of Salem is engaged by Humane Agent Preston of Hartford with cruelty to animals. It is alleged that Chapman had hot tar poured on a bull.

Friends of Harold Botham of Uncasville are pleased to learn that he is gaining rapidly at his home, after an operation for appendicitis at Backus hospital in Norwich recently.

John Lynch of Palmertown left Thursday evening for New York where he will spend two weeks' vacation from his duties at the Uncasville-Sheton Co. He will visit relatives.

Treasurer Ormand Plouffe, of the Montville Industrial Twilight league, has secured a Wild West show, one of the largest motorized shows on tour to appear here for the benefit of the league.

Concerning a well liked little dog, a resident writes: Every one in Montville and many in Norwich are mourning a loving little pal, Monkey, owned by Ray Chester, popular local business man. Ray and his pal went to Norwich Saturday night and in some manner became separated. After going a short distance he found his pal missing. After searching all Saturday night and up to Sunday morning, he found the dog beside the road, dead, near his home. Mr. Chester can only figure that Monkey followed him and some one picked him up and when he arrived home and knew where he was he jumped out, trying to find his master, and was killed. The little dog tried to prove his faithfulness to one who now says he is all done with pets as this is the second pal he has lost.

ANNOUNCE PRIZE ROADSIDE PHOTOGRAPHIC CONTEST

The Connecticut Forest and Park association Thursday announced a prize roadside photographic contest in order to encourage a greater appreciation of the beauties of Connecticut and to arouse the public to the need for roadside beautification. The contest is conducted in co-operation with the American Nature association which is presenting the prizes amounting to $45. There are three first prizes of $10 each and three second prizes of $5 each for the best photographs in each of the following classes:

Most beautiful view taken from a public highway in Connecticut.

Most unsightly view taken from a public highway in Connecticut.

View showing the greatest number of different, unsightly advertisements and roadside stands bordering a Connecticut highway.

All photographs must be taken from within the limits of either state or town highways in Connecticut, but outside the limits of cities and villages. The contest closes November 1, 1930, and photographs must reach the office of the Connecticut Forest and Park association, New Haven, by that date. The prize winning photographs will be submitted to the editor of Nature Magazine for publication.

In commenting on the contest, R. M. Ross, secretary of the Connecticut Forest and Park association, stated that the photographs received might be used at a later date in getting up a booklet on Connecticut's roadsides. It is hoped the contest will assist in showing the need for the elimination of unsightly advertisements and roadside stands bordering our highways. The state of Connecticut, through its landscape division, is spending over $200,000 a year for highway roadside improvement and beautification. Much of this work is to the advantage of the billboard advertiser as the landscape work makes a particularly fine setting for the billboard.

The validity of more than $2,000,000 in promissory notes signed by persons who purchased property during the land boom from the now insolvent Shoreland corporation in Miami, Fla., was upheld by Judge Halsted L. Ritter in United States district court there.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by Bureau of Markets Conn. Dept. of Agriculture

The affect of the hot and dry weather is very marked on the farmers' market. Supplies are decreasing all along the line. While prices were mostly unchanged this morning, demand is improving somewhat.

Sweet corn offerings are not increasing very fast and the market generally was steady with the large yellow varieties receiving the attention of the buyers. Fancy tomatoes were in very light supply. Most offerings were pretty well burned. Beet, carrots, cabbage and squash are the least affected and continue liberal. Green and wax beans, spinach and fancy apples were scarce. Potato market is showing no improvement.

In shipped in produce, peaches continue in liberal supply with good quality in evidence. Oranges and lemons were scarce and high.

Live poultry liberal and in slow demand. Eggs and butter firm.

Tourists passing over the Harland Road to Taftville, frequently exclaim at the beauty of a maple, so perfect in its shape on the right side of the highway, near the farm of Selectman Charles Bushnell.

At the request of City Attorney Charles W. Cassidy in the city court Thursday, the case of Murray Wechsler, 26, of No. 6801 Nineteenth street, Brooklyn, N. Y., who is held under bonds of $2,500 on a technical charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Martin Church, about 80, of Montville, was continued to Thursday, Aug. 21. Coroner Edward G. McKay, who started a preliminary investigation after the accident and had asked for the continuance of two weeks, will hold an inquest on Monday next.

The Montville man was positively identified as Martin Church Thursday morning through a slip of paper, which was found on his person by Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve. The paper bore the name of Ira Wheeler of South Windham. The coroner got in touch with him and was informed that the description given tallied with that of Church. Church was also identified by a woman at the undertaking parlors of Henry Allen and Son Co., Thursday morning.

Mr. Church died while being taken to the W. W. Backus hospital after he was struck by an automobile owned and driven by Wechsler at East Great Plain late Thursday evening, while walking along the highway. It was developed that previous to the fatal accident Church had sought a ride from passing motorists and was nearly struck by a machine. Church, who was deaf, although quite active for his advanced age, was, it is said, walking on the traveled portion of the road.

According to Medical Examiner Gildersleeve his death was caused from a fracture at the base of the skull, a broken right leg, contusions and lacerations. Mr. Church, who is said to have been employed on the Lathrop farm at Raymond Hill, is survived by a niece, living in Massachusetts.

COURT COMMITS MAN TO STATE HOSPITAL

Harry A. Bingham, 35, of No. 609 Boswell avenue, was ordered committed to the Norwich state hospital for observation by Judge Arthur F. Libby at the session of the city court Thursday morning, when he was tried on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses and indecent assault. He was arrested Wednesday morning by State Police Officer Johnson of the Groton barracks, who spotted him among a group of spectators at the city court session.

Bingham admitted in court that he had swindled Neil Connors, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Connors of No. 80 North street, out of $35, after he had secured the money from the family to be used for payment of the tuition fee for the boy's baseball training. He said that he took $25 of the money and paid for his rent, which was overdue, before they started for New York. On leaving Norwich they had with them only $10 and as a result they had to sleep in the park in New York, also beg for some of their meals.

Bingham claimed that as he was sorely in need of money, he thought that his plan of promising Neil a position on a big league team would secure for him the money he needed. He denied that he had made an assault upon Connors, who claimed that he had several times while in a hotel in New York.

COLLEGE EDUCATION IS COSTLY IN CONNECTICUT

It costs more to send a boy or girl to college in Connecticut than it does on the average elsewhere. Of the ninety-six state colleges, the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs ranks relatively high, with tuition fees of $125 annually for residents of the state and $275 for non-residents, as compared with the averages of $81 and $140 per year, respectively, for the state colleges and universities of the country as a whole.

Among the men's schools, Connecticut is represented by Yale university at New Haven and Wesleyan university at Middletown, each with tuition of $400, and Trinity college at Hartford, with fees of $350, as against the average of only $296 for the thirty-four men's colleges in the nation.

Connecticut College for Women at New London is one of six schools that charge the highest student fees of the thirty-two private non-sectarian women's colleges. The tuition at Connecticut College for Women is $400 yearly, whereas the average rate for the schools in its category is only $274, the survey reveals.

COURT FINES SAILOR FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

Edward T. Plante, 24, a sailor aboard the U. S. S. Bushnell, was found guilty in the city court Thursday morning on a charge of driving a machine while under the influence of liquor and fined $200 and costs, which he was unable to pay. Plante was the driver of a machine that crashed into a parked car owned by Roderick Chabotta of the Storer Farm, East Great Plain, on Boswell avenue, Wednesday evening. After the crash the Plante machine mounted the sidewalk and struck and damaged a fence. The accident was investigated by Officer Kotecki.

1930 CENSUS FIGURES GIVE GRISWOLD TWO REPRESENTATI

The towns of Darien, Griswold, New Canaan and Governor Trumbull's home town of Plainville, which because of increased populations, will be entitled to two representatives in the general assembly, may not take steps to nominate such representatives until the official census figures for those towns are received.

Assistant Attorney General H. Rogers Jones Thursday so advised the governor who had asked for such information. Unofficial figures which indicate the towns have exceeded the required 5,000 mark will not suffice, it is held.

Pile Sufferers

End Your Misery Without Salves or Cutting

External treatments cannot permanently end Piles. Nor does cutting remove the cause.

The cause is internal—bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel. The veins are flabby—the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles an internal medicine must be used to heal and strengthen the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, a specialist, after years of study discovered a real internal Pile remedy. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients, with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own druggist.

Don't waste time on external remedies or think of the pain and expense of an operation. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Lee & Osgood with their guarantee of moneyback if it does not end all Pile misery.

TAFTVILLE YOUTHS GIVEN SUSPENDED SENTENCES IN PROVIDENCE COURT

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 7—Two youthful safe crackers, who came here from Connecticut last March and broke into the Purity laundry, yesterday pleaded nolo to charge of breaking and entering and possession of burglar tools when arraigned before Judge Herbert L. Carpenter in superior court and each was granted deferred sentence on the two charges.

Raymond Chevrette, 20, and William T. Turcotte, 21, both of Norwich, Conn., were the youths. Michael Nahigian, proprietor of the laundry, charged that the men broke into the safe and took $379.72 and a small number of postage stamps, while the youths claim that they only had $100 between them, one having $60 and the other $40.

Chevrette has a record of having served 18 months in Connecticut on a charge of robbing the poor box of a church, while Turcotte had no record, the court was informed. The youths' homes are in the Taftville section of Norwich.

DEADMAN'S CURVE IS NO LONGER A MENACE

"Deadman's Curve" at Southport center will no longer form a menace and a hazard to the safety of motorists, when the roads are filled with traffic this fall, on the occasion of the Yale football games.

No longer will thousands of automobiles meet under the railroad bridge at this point when the traffic is at its highest on the post road for motorists will soon be able to travel in safety and dispatch because the new federal aid bridge, now in course of construction over the railroad at Southport will be completed and open to the public early in October.

With the completion of the big steel and concrete bridge, spanning the tracks of the New Haven railroad at Southport, the safety of motor traffic will be increased by 100 per cent and one of the most dangerous curves on the entire Connecticut highway system eliminated forever, says the Bridgeport Post.

The new bridge is the result of years of agitation for some relief at this very dangerous spot, which forms a veritable death trap for motorists and other traffic using the post road. Records of accidents have been piling up for years at this corner, its sinister appearance being heightened by the gloom of the underpass, almost completely blocking out the view of the double curves of the road.

Longest Span Girder

The completed structure will have a 45 foot roadway for traffic with five foot sidewalks, protected by concrete pilaster railings. Each of the seven bents of piers is supported by seven columns, those on the west end of the bridge being so placed as to permit of laying of several additional sets of railroad tracks underneath.

The central span that carries the roadway over the reset railroad tracks is formed by two 43 ton steel plate girders, each 104 feet long manufactured by the American Bridge Co. of Philadelphia. It required three flat cars to transport each of these girders to Bridgeport.

According to J. F. Kiernan, superintendent of the work, the center span girder is as long as any in the entire country and constitutes a new era in structural steel manufacture.

SUES FOURNIER LAUNDRY FOR RENT CLAIMED DUE

Marie L. P. Fournier of New London, has filed a $1,500 damage suit against the Fournier Laundry Co., of New London, according to papers filed in the superior court.

The plaintiff claims that Oct. 21, 1920, she leased for a five-year period to the defendant the street floor and basement at 149-151 Bank street, New London, for a steam laundry, and that when the five years were up the company failed to quit the premises and continued occupancy during November and December without paying rent. The terms of the lease called for a monthly rental of $200 from May 1, 1923 to the end of the time covered by the lease.

It is also alleged that the laundry company agreed to repair damages and that this was not done, expenditures totaling $527 being made by the plaintiff to make necessary repairs. The plaintiff also claimed that she was required to pay the city for water used by the laundry, and that this should have been done by the defendant.

Morning Song

There's a mellower light just over the hill,
And somewhere a yellower daffodil,
And honey somewhere thats sweeter still.
And some were meant to stay like a stone,
Knowing the things they have always known,
Sinking down deeper into there own.
But some must follow the wind and me,
Who like to be starting and like to be free,
Never so glad as we're going to be!

HOOVER CALLS CONFERENCE FOR DROUGHT RELIEF PLANS

Chief Executive Has Invited the Governors of the 12 Stricken States to Meet at the White House Next Thursday to Map Out a Program—Critical Aspect of the Situation is Shortage of Animal Feed Crops—In the Area Affected There Are 2,250,000 Horses and Mules, 6,000,000 and 12,000,000 Hogs and Cattle—There Need Be No Alarm Over the Nation's Food Supply.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8—(AP)—President Hoover today called a white house conference of governors of 12 states for next Thursday to map out a broad, cooperative federative federal state program of relief in the drought stricken areas of the country.

The conference was called after the president had received a detailed report from Secretary Hyde showing the "critical aspect" of the situation to be in the shortage of animal feed crops in states of the middle and far northwest and extending east as far as the Atlantic seaboard. No alarm was felt over the nation's food supply.

Mr. Hoover also conferred late in the day with Ernest P. Bicknell, acting chairman of the American Red Cross, and instructed the relief organization officials to stand by to assist in any possible emergency involving human suffering.

"The situation is one to cause a great deal of concern," the president said in a statement to the press, "but it must be borne in mind that the drought has mainly affected animal feed, the bulk of the direct human food production of the country being abundantly in hand."

"Nevertheless," he added, "there will be a great deal of privation among families in the drought areas due to the loss of income and the financial difficulties imposed upon them to carry their animals over the winter.

"The American people will proudly take care of the necessities of their countrymen in time of stress of difficulty. Our first duty is to assure our suffering countrymen that this will be done, that their courage and spirit shall be maintained, and our second duty is to assure an affective organization for its consummation."

The governors summoned to next week's conference were from Missouri, Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia, Virginia Montana Kansas, Iowa, and Nebraska.

Members of the farm board and leading farm organizations representatives also will participate.

The preliminary survey of the agriculture department showed the animal feed crop shortage to be most acute in the states mentioned. Other governors may be asked to attend the conference, the president said, as feed crop shortages exist elsewhere.

"In any event," Mr. Hoover said, "in the most acute areas we should lay the foundation for effective local and state organization, the object of which is to prevent suffering amongst farm families deprived of support and to prevent the sacrifice of live stock more than is necessary."

In the area affected were said to reside 1,000,000 farm families possessing approximately 2,250,000 horses and mules, 6,000,000 cattle and 12,000,000 hogs and sheep or about 12 per cent of the nation's farm animals. Individual farmers were said to be affected differently and the actual number in distress, therefore, would be much less than the gross figures mentioned.

Considered as a whole Secretary Hyde said in his report to the president, the drought "does not present a serious problem of food supply for the nation."

"The winter wheat crop already harvested is ample," he added. "The spring wheat crop, while it has undoubtedly deteriorated perhaps as much as ten per cent during the month of July, should still be nearly equal to domestic food requirements.

"While the crop of potatoes in the intermediate states is not large, the late crop in commercial sections of the northern states gives promise of a fair to good yield. The rice crop has not been seriously affected. Most of the acreage of edible beans is outside the drought area. The winter supply of fresh vegetables from southern sources will not be planted for some time.

"The crop of canning tomatoes, while short, is not seriously so. The crop of canning peas has already been harvested and was produced north of the Gulf area. The early crop of canning beans was only fair; the late canning bean crop is produced outside the drought area.

"Fruit crops are not large, but are not small enough to constitute a shortage, particularly since the California and other Pacific states fruit crops give good promise."

MOORE TO DEFEND HIS ONE MILE TITLE TODAY

NEW YORK, Aug. 8—(AP)—Featured by the one-mile and six-mile runs, in which fast fields are entered, the fortieth annual track and field championships of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic union will be held tomorrow at Jersey City. The meet will be staged on a one-third of a mile track at Pershing's Field, a public playground.

In the mile event, Gus Moore, Negro star of the Brooklyn Harriers will defend his title against such rivals as George Lermond of the New York Athletic club, a member of the 1924 Olympic team; and Gene Venzke, Swedish-American A. C. Lermond, a leading member of the West Point Military academy track team, ran the mile in 4:15 1-5 earlier in the season.

The six-mile run will bring together Fred Ward, Millrose A. A., national 20-mile running champion; Fred Bayley, New York A. C.; Ove Nilsen, Norwegian Turn society, metropolitan indoor three mile champion; and Max Lamp, Millrose A. A., who finished third in the national marathon championship.

The New York A. C. with 43 men entered, will defend its team championship.

CAROL MAY BECOME ROYAL DICTATOR OF RUMANIA

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Aug. 8—(AP)—Rumors that King Carol would shortly assume the role of royal dictator of Rumania, following his recent orders to provincial prefects for ruthless suppression of brigandage and anti-semitic agitation, were denied by official circles today.

They said the king's action had been misinterpreted as a gesture of dictatorship.

MINIATURE GOLF NOT A GOLF COURSE

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Aug. 7—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice Witschief didn't say what it was but he said it wasn't golf that was being played on the miniature courses that fill the vacant lots of the United States from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

He ruled today that a miniature course proposed for a White Plains residential district didn't come under the provision of the zoning laws which permitted a golf course in the section. He made his decision in a test case brought by a real estate company which had been denied permission to erect a club house on a lot where it proposed to install one of the "golf courses."

ANTWERP, Belgium, Aug. 8—(AP)—The American shooting team, scoring 1910 points today in the prone position phase of the free rifle competition here, beat the previous world's record score of 1906 made in Rheims, France, by another American team in 1924.

The individual scores made today by the American marksmen were: R. F. Seitzinger, Belleview, Pa., 385; Dr. Emmett Swanson, Minneapolis, 383; Harry N. Renshaw, Nogales, Ariz., 381; Gunnery Sergeant Morris Fisher, U. S. Marines, 381, and J. R. Sharp, 380.

TROUBLE OVER THE NEW SPANISH IMPORT DUTIES

MADRID, Aug. 8—(AP)—The automobile situation in Spain today has assumed a serious state because of the new Spanish tariff doubling import duties.

The Ford plant at Barcelona, which recently dismissed its entire mechanical force of 600 men and then took back about 150, has begun a national advertising campaign, using full pages in all the leading newspapers in an effort to dispose quickly of stocks on hand at old prices.

General Motors and Ford are the American concerns chiefly worried about the clause in the new tariff which besides doubling the import levy imposes a super duty of three pesetas per kilogram on non-European cars assembled in Europe. The Spanish authorities say the purpose is to help Spanish shipping by inducing direct importation from the United States of completed American cars instead of Spain's receiving cars from European assembling plants of American companies.

Spanish business circles have heard a rumor that England and France may consider increasing the duties on Spanish oranges, product of an important industy, unless the new Spanish tariff bill is modified. Some observers believe the authorities will modify the schedule before reprisals can develop.

SUPERIOR COURT DENIES LORENZ NEW TRIAL

HARTFORD, Aug. 8—(AP)—Henry O. Lorenz, condemned murderer of his friend, Nile E. Anderson, today lost his last fight to escape the gallows.

His petition for a new trial based on a plea of insanity, was denied in a decision filed in superior court by Judge John Richards Booth. The new evidence of insanity in Lorenz's family in Sweden which was presented at a hearing Tuesday, Judge Booth ruled, was not sufficient to warrant a new trial.

Judge Booth's decision left Lorenz three full days of life. He will be hanged at the state prison at Wethersfield at midnight, Monday.

Walfred G. Lundborg, public defender, who presented the new evidence before Judge Booth Tuesday, said that every means of saving Lorenz from the gallows had been exhausted and that he would not ask Gov. John H. Trumbull for a reprieve.

Lorenz was arrested in Canada for the slaying of Anderson, an uncle of the girl whom he had courted. Anderson's body was found a short distance from the state prison where Lorenz will pay with his life for the murder.

Officials of the company said they had not ascertained definitely the number of men involved. They pointed out that unless the men were working close together all of them might not have been buried.

A Favorite Kipling Story

It is recorded of this well known British author that he once remonstrated with a friend for having sent him a publication from which the advertising pages had been cut out. "Why, you have thrown away the most interesting section," Mr. Kipling said.

If you are not a regular reader of the advertisements in this paper, this is a good time to cultivate their acquaintance. You will find them interesting. You will find them friendly. They show you where to stop and take considerable strain off both shoe-leather and pocketbooks. Act upon their suggestions because it will pay you in many ways. Before you start out to shop, consult the advertising columns of this paper. They will put you in direct touch with the merchandise you want.

WORST DROUGHT IN YEARS HANGS OVER MIDDLE WEST

CHICAGO, Aug. 8—(AP)—The heat-scarred western plains lay gasping under 100 degree temperatures again today as the worst drought in years hung steadfast over most of the middle west.

Missouri particularly was suffering with temperatures over 100 general throughout the state. Experts held out little hope for salvaging the corn and wheat crops now, even if rains should bring relief. It was over 103 in St. Louis at 2 p. m., and 105 at Jefferson City, the hottest of the year. Poplar Bluff had 107.

Southern Illinois also remained virtually prostrated. Temperatures above 100 were common, the blazing sun drying up small streams and wells with monotonous persistence. Centralia reported the temperature at 105 1-2 and it was 106 in Harrisburg.

The blistering heat spilled over into the southwest but was not so intense in the northwest, where scattered showers had brought some relief. It was generally in the 90's in the Dakotas and Minnesota, and Wisconsin also had milder weather, Milwaukee reporting 90.

Light showers in portions of Iowa had a cooling effect, but came too late to give much benefit to crops, experts said. All of Iowa's corn crop, except in four counties, was considered to be 20 per cent or more below normal.

Clouds sheltered Nebraska from the burning rays, Lincoln reporting 88 and Omaha 87.

Chicago and the Lake region enjoyed more or less normal summer weather.

OFFICIAL POPULATION OF THE NATION 122,698,190

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP)— The nation's population was officially announced today by the census bureau as 122,698,190, representing the largest numerical growth since 1920 of any decade in its history.

Census officials said completion of this population count represented only the first step of the fifteenth census and that already they had begun to build upon this basic figure other totals ranging from an enumeration of existing radio sets to a count of the country's industries and farms.

The figure announced for the 48 states and District of the Columbia showed a gain in population of 16,967,570 persons, or 16.1 per cent, since 1920.

Adding in the nation's possessions, exclusive of the Philippines, to which the census law does not apply, the grand total was set by the census bureau at 124,848,664.

ROCKEFELLER RESERVOIR FEELS DROUGHT EFFECTS

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 8—(AP)—So depleted by drought is the nine-million-gallon water reservoir on the Pocantico Hills estate of John D. Rockefeller that permission was given today for the tapping of the Tarrytown municipal system to supply the estate.

Orders have been issued on the Rockefeller acres to curtail the use of water, and the large fountain in front of the mansion has been shut off for the first time in years. Several artificial streams on the estate are dry.

The estate consumes more than 100,000 gallons of water a day. The reservoir is almost dry and two wells have ceased to flow.

LABORER KILLED BY STOREHOUSE EXPLOSION

NEW YORK, Aug. 8—(AP)—An explosion in a storehouse of the Tidewater Oil company in Queens, killed one laborer today, seriously burned another and shook the area for several blocks around.

Martin Brennan, 49, of Brooklyn, was killed and Frank Connelly, 27, also of Brooklyn, was taken to a hospital in a grave condition. The blast was blamed on the accumulation of gas in the basement.

Arrests Of Members Of Bond Theft Ring

Man Caught in Chicago Hotel Had in His Possession $25,000 Worth of Stolen Bonds.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8—(AP)—The Chicago Daily Times today said three members of an alleged $1,000,000 international bond theft ring have been seized in loop hotels by detectives, and that the leader was running into a trap set for him by authorities.

The Daily Times said one of its reporters discovered that the three under arrest have been held incommunicado in a local police station since Saturday and it reported that they are Stanley McCormick, Leo Mergen and R. W. Hampton, alias Bacon, of Indianapolis, Ind.

The newspaper quotes Police Captain Dan Gilbert as saying that Mergen, an ex-convict, had $25,000 worth of bonds in his possession when seized. all of which were stolen securities. The bonds included 100 shares of Ohio Public Service company, two bonds of the Michigan Public Service company and an Erie Forge company bond, the paper said.

Captain Gilbert said the Merville stock was taken in a burglary of the company's New York store on Dec. 2, 1925; the Ohio bonds, with $20,000 worth still missing, were taken in an inside job from the company's safe in Ohio; the Michigan bonds were stolen from a messenger en route from a suburban bank to a downtown bank recently, and the Erie bond was taken in a hold-up at Memphis, Tenn. last year.

AFRIDI TRIBESMEN ARE ADVANCING ON PESHAWAR

PESHAWAR, India, Aug. 8. —(AP)— British troops were in action today against Afridi tribesmen advancing on Peshawar.

The strength of the horde of Afghan warriors was estimated variously at 5,000 to 10,000. The fighting thus far, two advance guard encounters, had not been of a general nature and the casualties were not divulged.

In this city, which is in the path of the attempted invation, it is believed that only a few on either side have been wounded.

Airplanes continued all day today their bombing and reconnoitering flights over the rocky country in which the hostile tribesmen have concentrated in what is believed to be the greatest number attempting to cross the frontier recently.

Every possible precaution was taken in Peshawar tonight to guard the safety of the residents. The city gates were closed and all permits to leave were cancelled. The populace was warned not to leave shelter.

DISPUTES ASSERTION OF CALVIN COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Acting Secretary of the Navy Jahncke issued a statement today disputing an assertion by former President Coolidge in his syndicated column that "A naval office reports that the best (airplane) engine is made abroad."

The assistant secretary said:

"My attention has been called to Mr. Coolidge's statements concerning aviation engines. I believe the navy is regarded as largely responsible for the creation and success of the air-cooled engine which made Lindbergh's flight possible, together with the tremendous advances in aviation that followed. These engines are without superiors anywhere in the world and are produced in quantities by several American aircraft engine manufacturing concerns."

The Coolidge statement was made in one of his articles which discussed aviation.

SAYS U. S. OF EUROPE IS PRACTICALLY IMPOSSIBLE

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., Aug. 8—(AP)—Sanford Griffith, publicist and authority on international banking, of New York city, said in an address here today that a United States of Europe is practically impossible.

Two of the most significant outside forces in Europe today, he said, are opposite poles, Bolshevized Russia and Industrialized America. Popular fear of being enslaved to American goods is not so often appealed to by enlightened European statesmen as formerly, he added, and business interests and the league of nations will bring closer cooperation.

OUTBOARD MOTOR BOATS RACING UP MISSISSIPPI

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 8—(AP)—The "And How" speed boat was the first of the outboard races to reach here today of the field of five which started from New Orleans this morning in a race up the Mississippi river for St. Louis.

The "And How", piloted by C. M. Mickler of New Orleans, docked at 2:15 p. m. to take on fuel, exactly four hours and fifty-four minutes after leaving the starting line.

PRICES TUMBLE IN THE N. Y. STOCK AND CURB MARKETS

Price Average of 90 Leading Issues Recorded the Sharpest Loss Since the Dark Days of Last November—The Day's Losses in a Long List of Popular Trading Favorites Ran From $5 to $17.50—Bears Were on a Rampage as the Exchanges Closed.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8—(AP)—Bulls were left with only a few souvenirs of their latest campaign as the closing gong halted a new bear rampage on the New York stock and curb exchanges today.

The somnambulant stock market finally tripped and fell headlong. With only two exceptions, the price average of 90 leading shares recorded the sharpest loss since panicky days of last November. The day's total sales of 2,812,520 shares on the stock exchange could not be considered a large turnover, but it was more than double any day's business in the past week.

The average of 90 shares tumbled 6 1-5 points to 161, the lowest level recorded since July 9. It was during that week that one of the leading bull operators returned from abroad, traders began to decide that the convulsions resulting from the drastic deflation of June had ended, and bullish sentiment began to make itself felt in speculative quarter once more.

The level of 161 compared with the low of the year of 154, reached on June 24. Save for June, it was the lowest since the levels reached in the selling movement just before Christmas. Today's final level was 20 4-5 points above the bottom level reached in November, and the nearly 45 points below the 1930 peak reached in early April.

The day's losses in a long list of popular trading favorites ran from $5 to $17.75. The drop of 6 1-5 points in the average was exceeded on June 16 with a tumble of 9 4-5, and on December 12 with a drop of 9 3-5. On October 28, however, it broke 25 2-5 points.

The market was yanked out of its recent stupor by a combination of bearish developments, including the increasing uncertainty over the effect of the drought upon the prospects of business recovery, a slackening this week of output at the mills of the United States Steel Corp., omission of the Warner Bros. common dividend, and a fresh break of more than $3 a bale in cotton prices.

Commission house gossip had it that some of the bull leaders favored abandoning operations for the advance until after Labor day. In banking circles little concern was expressed over the market's renewed depression. It was pointed out that stock trading has been in light volume, and almost wholly professional since June.

HOOVER CONGRATULATES ANTHRACITE MINERS

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 8—(AP)—The anthracite operators and the United Mine Workers of America were congratulated by President Hoover upon their having negotiated a new five and a half year contract in a message read tonight at the public signing of the pact in Masonic Temple. Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, who presided at the mass meeting, read the message.

"The final ratification and signing of this agreement comprehends that spirit of joint relationship and cooperation between management and men so essential in productive endeavor, and, especially in the anthracite industry," the president's letter said.

"That you may look forward to a period of uninterrupted peace for more than five years will be very gratifying not only to those directly engaged in the mining and selling of anthracite coal, but, as well, to the public at large, the government, and all who are genuinely interested in the well-being and advancement of the anthracite industry."

VIRGINIA'S TOBACCO CROP DAMAGED BY DROUGHT

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 8—(AP)—Virginia's tobacco crop, heretofore holding its own against drought, tonight was shown in a telegraphic survey of the state to be facing a decrease of approximately 40 per cent in anticipated yield.

The survey was made by the Richmond Times-Dispatch through county farm agents, who said harm has come to the tobacco crop within the past few weeks. At present, they said, the bright tobacco, constituting about three-fifths of tobacco acreage in Charlotte county, stands a damage of approximately 60 per cent, but dark tobacco is damaged somewhat less.

Despite the fact that tobacco had been faring badly during the dry weather, growers had hoped general rains would bring relief. But the sustained lack of moisture now is resulting in small and burned leaves.

A similar survey made two weeks ago showed corn, hay and grass crops were total failures in many sections, and state pastures were barren.

NO SIGN OF RELIEF FROM DROUGHT IN MARYLAND

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8—(AP)—The thermometer in Maryland went on the upgrade again today, and there still was no sign of relief from the drought as it closed its 43rd day of relentless parching of the state's farms and drying streams.

In Baltimore, where the temperature hit 98, one more death was reported, bringing the week's total to nine. At the Keedysville weather station the mercury reached 101 and at Fredericks 103.

Slight rain aided fighters of the series of fires in western Maryland in bringing the stubborn blazes under control.

Many streams have become stagnant pools in which fish cannot live. The Potomac river, which separates Maryland and Virginia, was said to be at the lowest point in history.

A call was issued for every church in the Catholic archdiocese of Baltimore to unite in prayers for rain on Sunday.

WIFE SLAYER ASKS FOR DEATH IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

STINNETT, Texas, Aug. 8.—(AP)—A. D. Payne, Amarillo lawyer, tonight was awaiting punishment for the murder of his wife and maiming of his 9-year-old son with a dynamite bomb in the family motor car June 27, according to his 63-page confession signed and in the hands of authorities.

He pleaded that the punishment, preferrably death in the electric chair, be expedited. He had renounced insanity in making his confession.

"No, sir," he said, "I am not insane. I am just abnormal. I knew I was committing murder and am not trying to dodge the penalty now."

GUARDSMEN SENT TO MARION, IND., FOLLOWING LYNCHING

MARION, Ind., Aug. 8.—(AP)— Intense excitement over last night's mob violence which resulted in the lynching of two Negroes, still prevailed in the city of Marion tonight. As a safe guard against a recurrence of mob spirit, city, county and state police were on duty and two companies of the Indiana national guard were en route here.

Although apparently quieted down somewhat, unrest still pervaded the atmosphere tonight and fear was manifest in many quarters of either a new outbreak or of reprisals for the hanging of Thomas Shipp and Abe Smith last night on the lawn of the Grant county court house.

The latter feat was expressed outwardly late today when Dr. W. T. Bailey and the Rev. William Oglesby, state leaders of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, appealed to Mayor Jack Edwards for state troops to guard lives and property.

News that the state troops were expected soon from Camp Knox, Ky., where they are in training, helped to bring the tenseness to a high pitch.

STORM STOPPED LINDBERGH'S VOICE CARRYING OVER OCEAN

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Storms at sea, which could not keep Col Charles A. Lindbergh from accomplishing his famous flight across the ocean, today prevented his voice from making a trans-Atlantic journey through the air.

Just as he was ready to send his words on a longer voyage than he or any other man has ever made in a plane, a terrific electrical storm broke over the Atlantic and the most ambitious arrangements ever made for a world broadcast went for naught. It was his first formal radio address, and it was to have been heard in the far corners of the world: Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia.

Colonel Lindbergh knew nothing of the sudden opposition of the atmosphere and so he did not know until it was all over that his words had not reached their goal.

He read his prepared address, unmindful that all his vast and waiting audience was deafened by the storm. His considered message to the world about what he thought of aviation, its function and its future.

TWO SHIPS STOPPED FOR APPENDICITIS OPERATION

PANAMA, Aug. 8.—(AP)—How two liners stopped their engines at sea for an emergency operation upon a doctor, who was a passenger on one of them, was told this afternoon by William Gilfillan, purser of the Panama-Pacific liner "Virginia," which docked in Balboa harbor today.

Dr. Walter Hurley, a prominent physician of Brooklyn, N. Y., became violently ill shortly after the Virginia left Havana for Panama on Tuesday. Dr. John Anderson, a friend, diagnosed his illness as acute appendicitis.

A wireless was sent out to the nearby United Fruit liner Turrialba, which came alongside with the necessary surgical instruments for the operation. Within half an hour, the instruments had been transferred to the Virginia and Dr. Anderson began to operate. Both ships stopped.

On arriving here today, Dr. Hurley was removed to a hospital for treatment and observation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—(AP)— The Canadian legation advised the state department tonight that a group of the personnel of the British airship R-100 have accepted the navy department's invitation to visit the naval air station at Lakehurst.

The tentative list of the visitors transmitted by the legation included Wing Commander Colemore, Sir Dennison Burney, C. E. Norway, and either Major Scott or Squadron Leader Booth.

The party proposes to leave St. Hubert airdrome, Montreal, early tomorrow and return by either air or train. The date of the return has not been fixed.

There was no one in the establishment, which has entrances on Main and Union streets and the officers forced in a door to gain entrance.

They found a well-equipped bar, 23 cases of beer, one pint of distilled spirits and in a section where exclusive booths had once appealed to the fastidious, was a collection of beer-making equipment, including 200 gallons of mash, hops, malt and other ingredients.

An investigation is being conducted into the ownership and an arrest is expected soon. The raid was staged by Chief Stanton L. WARNED TO KEEP CLOSE WATCH OVER RUM RUNNER

GREENWICH, Aug. 8—(AP)—Warning was received by Greenwich police today to keep a close watch over John F. Zanetti, 26, of Springfield, Mass., under arrest in a Greenwich hospital on charges of transporting liquor. The warning was received from William Kearns, secretary in the state's attorney's office at Bridgeport, who said that Zanetti escaped from a Hartford hospital two years ago where he was held on a similar charge.

Zanetti was wounded last night in an attempt to escape from Motorcycle Policeman Stephen Clark, of Greenwich, who halted his liquor laden car at the Stamford-Greenwich town line. At the hospital it was said today that the man's condition was serious. He has bullet wounds in his throat and shoulder.

OFFICIALS TO PROSECUTE EX-CONGRESSMAN HERRICK

BALTIMORE, Aug. 8—(AP)—Manuel Herrick, former Oklahoma congressman, in jail here after his arrest while working at a still as handy man at $15 a week, observed today that maybe he had made a mistake in not taking some of the money he said was offered him during his one term as a legislator.

"When I was in congress," he said, "I had as much as $50,000 in bills stacked on my desk—dishonest money. But I said to them, 'take it away,' maybe I was a fool."

Barefoot, unshaven, and clad in overalls, Herrick, 54 years old, would not elaborate on the "dishonest money." He stuck to his story that he took the job at the still, at which he was captured Wednesday with two other men, to get evidence to be turned over to prohibition officials.

All officials, however, went ahead with plans to prosecute him on a charge of manufacturing liquor. In jail in default of $1,500 bond Herrick faces the prospects of remaining there for several weeks until the grand jury acts.

TWIN BROTHERS IN JAIL; FAILED TO FOOL THE LAW

NEW YORK, Aug. 8—(AP)—The twin Wright brothers, John and Benjamin, 17, fooled all of the law some of the time and some of the law all of the time, but they're both in jail now.

John today convinced a traffic court judge that it was Brother Benjamin and not himself who was guilty of leaving the scene of an accident. Benjamin got ten days in the workhouse.

But as John turned to leave the court, a detective recognized him as a suspect in the robbery of a Harlem butcher. John joined Benjamin to await trial.

WARNING TO ENEMIES OF DICTATORSHIP IN PORTUGAL

LISBON, Portugal, Aug. 8—(AP)—The minister of the interior, Col. Matheus, today issued a stern warning to the enemies of the dictatorship that any fresh attempt at disturbance of public order would be repressed mercilessly whether it originates on the left or extreme right.

The minister described the present regime as a dictatorship without a dictator, emphasising that the results achieved have aroused admiration of the entire world.

HOW TO STEER PARACHUTE NAVY ENGINEERS' PROBLEM

PHILADELPHIA—(AP)—Project engineers at the naval aircraft factory at the Philadelphia navy yard are trying to develop a parachute that can be steered toward a favorable landing place.

With the exception that it is difficult to change the course of the drop, the engineers are satisfied that the present silk 'chute as turned out at the yard is about as perfect as possible.

Experienced jumpers have learned how to dodge ponds, streams and trees by changing the speed of the drop. This is done by "spilling," or collapsing one side of the parachute by tugging at the shrouds, so that some of the captive air is released.

J. A. Binnie, project engineer, believes rudders or fins may solve the problem.

A food plant with asparagus-like stalks, eaten by Papago Indians, has been found growing wild in the California desert and thriving where rainfall is as low as four or five inches a year.

It develops that there is opposition to the suggested plan that the borough build sidewalks around the three sides of the triangular Davis park. PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Aug. 8—Two severe electrical storms, one following closely upon the heels of the other, broke over this city a few minutes before midnight Thursday. After deluging the countryside, the storms passed over and went on record as being the worst experienced this season.

Telephone service suffered heavily as 300 stations in the local exchange of the Putnam district were put out of commission by lightning during the two-hour period. Wire Chief W. T. Jones of the district reported at noon today that in addition to the number of stations crippled in this city, communication with about 50 or more stations in the Danielson exchange was reported disrupted. There were no effects of the storm reported in the Moosup exchange, Mr. Jones stated. At an early hour this morning a small army of linemen went out of the local exchange office to begin the work of restoring service. According to Chief Jones it is expected that the switchboard will be restored to normal early Saturday evening.

While Thursday night's storm had its ill effects, the abundance of rain that did no end of good to the growing crops that have suffered from the intense heat and drought of July.

There were no reports of electrical service suffering from the storm. Although fluctuations of the light were current during the height of the showers, the feed was not cut off at any time.

The beautiful summer home of Fire Chief Ralph E. Thurston located on Cape Cod near Hyannis, Mass., is situated at a spot far from forest fires which recently burned over that section of the state.

Yesterday a commercial airplane landed on Larned field in Pomfert. A passenger in the ship was Luke White, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. White of Eden street, who had flown home from Albany, N. Y. Mr. White left Albany and flew to the municipal airport in Springfield, changed planes and continued to Putnam. The pilot of the plane circled over the city a few times before making the landing on Larned field, the site of Putnam's proposed municipal airport, plans for which are already privately under way.

While there is little possibility of the water department being confronted with a shortage of water this season, the commissioners have urged that water should not be used unnecessarily at this time of the year. The municipal supply at Roseland lake in South Woodstock evidences no prospects of becoming inadequate to meet the city's demands. Thursday's heavy rains managed to raise the water level to a certain extent and the forecast of additional rain over the week-end is certain to restore the lake to its normal height.

With the Civilian Soldiers

Under a blazing sun the special troops baseball team defeated the 172d Infantry. Men from the Hq. Co., who played on the team were Lieutenant Murphy, Pvts. Weiss, Holgerson and Murphy.

In front of division headquarters is a large baseball field with a cinder track on the outside edge of it. We have boxing bouts most every night, fighting for championship of the division. Pvt. Earl Blake, 120-pound class, losing his bout on a technical knock out, is a memer of the Hq. Co. from Putnam.

A number of local people will be on hand Sunday at Camp Devens to witness the 43rd divisional review of the national guard troops of Connecticut, Rhode Island, Maine and Vermont now quartered there. The review, it has been said, will be one of the largest military demonstrations staged in New England since the late war. Doubtlessly local residents intending to visit the peace time soldiers on Sunday, anticipate difficulty in ferreting out the headquarters company quarters. There is little necessity for anyone getting lost, despite the fact that the cantonment at Devens is in a full sense of he word, a city in itself. The Putnam company and the two detachments from Danielson are housed in barracks No. 726 on the corner of 2nd avenue and 4th street, while Captain J. J. McGarry and staff are quartered in officers' building No. 716, on the same street. The manuveurs scheduled for the day will commence early in the afternoon.

CRABBING HAS ITS PERILS FOR UNSOPHISTICATED

Two more seafaring men have tried their luck recently; this time essaying to capture the wily crab. So they hied them to Charleston beach, which is the crab mecca this season. Now, crabs take up their residence in an altogether treacherous abode oftentimes. But these old salts thought they knew the points of the compass and proceeded to advance upon the toothsome crustaceans. All without warning, Chester, the expert soda dispenser, apparently was about to disappear from view and Sid started to follow suit. In fact, they were mired, and Chester more so. The strand was mud and very socey and tenacious. After a desperate struggle Sid extricated himself, but Chester was still stuck and moving toward the lower regions, meaning China. The atmosphere was plenty hot, but it became extremely torrid in one way and another. Finally, when it seemed almost the last resort to summon the coast guard patrol, with a mighty yank Sid hove Chester from the miry pit. After they were scraped off, they decided it wasn't a very good day to go crabbing, anyway!

The re-laying of sidewalks which were affected by the laying of the new cement road has commenced on North Main street, in front of the house occupied by James Blair. At the property owned by William Fogarty and occupied by the Ford garage, blasting has been necessary to remove a rock, as two piers are to take the place of the four which are already there. Several property owners along the new road where cinder or dirt walks were affected by the raising or lowering of the curb are to install cement walks.

Chocolate and Virginia Glow

MENTION of VIRGINIA brings to mind many things. Rich in history and in the achievements of her sons and daughters. But in these normal times, Virginia suggests peanuts first of all . . . Nowhere do they grow as well! Big, meaty, rich in "nutty" flavor. A dressing of cream, and sugar, and then frozen in Ice Cream—peanuts are an even greater delight to the taste that way.

Chocolate is included in the combination this week. These two are miles apart in the measure of flavor, but the greater the contrast, sometimes, the better the mating! You'll praise our chef's judgment, we're sure.

A NEEDED INQUIRY

Under the new prohibition enforcement regime the country is to have what it has long needed, an honest and unprejudiced inquiry into the workings of prohibition and its effects—good or bad. It is proposed to report the facts exactly as they are found to be, without regard to their effect. What is sought is the truth, as far as it can be had, and not material for propaganda. Neither the Anti-Saloon league nor the association against prohibition are to be called in to furnish statistics to bolster up one side of the other. There is absence of the usual boastfulness in the announcement by the new prohibition director of the policy which he proposes to have govern his department.

There has been considerable sidestepping in the past in approaching the prohibition problem, but Mr. Woodcock announces that the time has come to put an end to that and to face the problem squarely and honestly in the temper of the scientist. During his campaign President Hoover spoke of prohibition as an "experiment noble in principle" yet the purpose of the government investigators is not to determine whether this experiment has been a success or a failure, but to give the people such facts as may enable them to make that decision.

That there is great need for such an investigation should be clear to all, regardless of the opinions they may hold. Meanwhile, we are to have a more intelligent effort to enforce the law. It is planned to tackle the big fellows, to break up law violation as a business or commercial enterprise, to respect all the constitutional rights of the citizen, and to forbid and stop shooting by enforcement officers, except in self-defense.

SOUTHERN REPUBLICANS

Plans are being made in the south for what is to be called a "convention of protest" by republicans of that section, who propose to meet in Atlanta next week, but there is no indication from Washington that the administration is wavering from its demand that the party in the south rehabilitate itself in public respect. President Hoover is holding to his demand that the republican party in Georgia, Mississippi, South Carolina and other southern points become something else than a mere patronage machine, and his method of discipline is to deprive it of its role of employment bureau by filling official positions in accordance with the advice of those who have the real interests of the organization at heart.

Shortly after his inauguration President Hoover called for a republican house cleaning in the south and gave the old line party leaders there to understand that his words were not to be taken as an idle gesture. The warning was repeated later and when nothing resulted he took matters actively in hand, which is the reason for the agonized cries from some of the former republican dictators south of the Mason and Dixon line.

Federal appointments there have been made through advisory committees, a procedure which seems to have worked out well, without producing anything startling as to the charge that President Hoover is thereby building up an effective organization for himself in the southern states. In fact it would be the best thing for the south if the present democratic monopoly could be traded for a genuine two-party system. This is the purpose of the present movement, which is meeting with such a measure of success that it threatens the occupation of the old political hacks and bosses.

SENATE CONSENT

Senate consent to presidential appointments was intended as protection against dictatorial nominations that would place unfit or incompetent personages in important offices, but there seems to be a growing practice on the part of the upper house to consider it a duty to find reasons for rejecting appointees whose names are presented before them. No sooner does President Hoover send a nomination to the senate than a committee begins looking for flaws in the man's record. Matters that have no bearing on his fitness to discharge duties with which the president would intrust him are dragged into the open and examined with minute detail. Such curiosity has gone beyond the bounds of propriety in some instances and the country has become rather disgusted. It is small wonder that the president is having difficulty finding high grade men willing to accept appointment on the new tariff board and the federal power commission. It has been reported in Washington that in the last two weeks a number of men who were asked to go on the tariff board refused on the ground that they do not care to take a recess appointment with the foreknowledge that when congress meets in December they would, in all probability, have to undergo an inquiry by the senate.

The senate has a right to guard against the appointment of undesirable men to federal positions, but it is not called upon to view with alarm every man chosen by the president for some important work.

MORE TOURISTS THAN EVER

Apparently it is a mistaken notion to believe that the present season would see a curtailment in tourist travel, due to the very serious crimp which was put in many persons' resources by the stock market crash and slump in values, or the generally slackened tide of business. The official figures do not support that view, whether they relate to tourist travel here or abroad. During the week ending July 12 there were 1,297,933 visitors to the two-score national parks, compared with 1,163,243 for the corresponding week of last year. The Yosemite is the most popular park with Rocky Mountain park second. The Yellowstone now ranks third. Looking abroad, we also see more Americans taking their summer season lay-off in foreign travel this year than last. During the first six months of 1930, the figures show that 198,120 United States citizens sailed for Europe as passengers. The number last year was close to 10,000 less, as the passenger lists at that time contained 188,755 names. The estimate of the department of commerce is that Americans will leave about half a billion dollars behind them in Europe.

Not so much is heard nowadays about "See America First". The automobile automatically encourages that idea anyway and people require no urge to go touring to distances that may embrace only their neighboring states or take in cross-continent trips. And yet while the number of home tourists has so greatly increased, there has been no diminution in the number of those who go abroad. Business conditions apparently exert little influence on the holiday-making of the American people who let little interfere with the annual vacation which has become an established institution.

GROWING UP

Uncle Sam has a family that puts him up among the population leaders among the nations of the earth and is constantly on the increase. According to a census bureau tabulation of the 1930 census figures, the last ten year period was an era of growth that compared favorably with any other similar decade and our population count for the "continental area", which is the part included between Canada and Mexico and the two oceans, is 122,698,190. When the territories and outlying possessions are added the figure rises to 124,848,664. The increase in the continental area from 1920 to 1930 was 17,339,809, a gain of 16.1 per cent, which compared with 14.9 per cent from 1910 to 1920 and 21 per cent from 1900 to 1910.

Except for Russia, China and India, the United States is a long way ahead of any other nation on earth in the number of persons living under its flag. China is the real giant among the nations for its population is estimated at 400,000,000, while crowded India, whose troubles perplex the British empire, has nearly 320,000,000 souls and Russia claims 182,000,000 in its domains that extend in both Europe and Asia.

None of the five states which held the leading places in the 1920 census have been displaced from that eminence, but continue in the same rank as before, these being New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio and Texas. California has had the remarkable increase of 64.6 per cent in the last ten years and this influx of new people within her borders has raised the state from eighth to sixth place and will give the state no fewer than nine new seats in the house of representatives. Iowa people, it is said, have flocked to California in the last census period which may have accounted for the fact that Iowa has dropped from 15th to 18th place in the ranks.

By the time we have passed through the growing pains of another decade, we shall number about 142,000,000 if the same rate of increase is maintained.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Probably no one in these days but an unreasonable crank will register an undiscriminating protest against smoking, that is during this present life. It is doubtless a great pleasure that the majority of men and many women enjoy. Science has not yet discovered that the moderate use of tobacco is harmful to the body, therefore along this ground the question does not enter the field of moral discussion. There are some phases of the habit that are open to criticism. 1. Boys of tender age are apt to be stunted by the use of tobacco and especially by cigarettes. 2. The habit is altogether too expensive for many people. 3. The majority of men smoke too much, and that means some bodily ailment sooner or later. 4. Many smokers have very bad habits, in that they blow the smoke into other people's faces. The non-smoker, whether man or woman, is entitled to some consideration.

Do we fully realize the import of what is usually called the minor graces? Those little things that do not rise to the dignity of character, and yet have much to do in establishing a man's reputation. Take, for illustration, the grace of sociability, which is simply amiability working on the job. Why can't we give a touch of good nature to the act of shaking hands with one another and in the exchange of usual civilities? Sociability opens for us rich mines of pleasure and satisfaction which otherwise would remain undiscovered and closed. The man who carries a grouch around with him never gets anywhere either with himself or with others. It is a touch of sociability when passing boats give a mutual salute. It is a recognition which makes both parties feel a little better. Men on a fishing smack clad in overalls and jumpers, or on a dainty yacht dressed in white flannel will wave their hands at you. These are minor graces that mean more than you think.

Scientific men have very much to tell us about the "uniform activities" and "regulatory processes" of nature. Now it all sounds very big and learned, and may have some basis of fact in theory, but to the common every day observer of natural phenomenon, it is all pure bunk. Ask your learned man of science to explain the unseasonably hot day in winter and the relatively cold day in summer, and his glib answer will be that it is only "a variation of type." But when this "variation of type" sits on the throne most of the time; while here in New England this "variation of type" sits on the throne most of the time; and while here in New England there are at least seventeen "variations of type" jostling one another for places on the throne in the course of a single day, the common everyday observer begins to inquire just what that type is. Certainly the weather is as funny as anything!

There are many people in the world today, as there always have been, who amount to something. There have always been a great many men and women who have thought much of themselves, and have been perfectly justified in doing so. There has also been an equally great, and perhaps a vastly greater number, who have been highly thought of by others, and in so doing there has been no error of judgment. The general who conducts a great military campaign, leading a vast army into a victorious campaign, thinks something of himself and others think he is right. But there are times when the biggest man on earth is made to feel very small. Let him be on a steamer just out of sight of land when something happens to the engine—something that may happen any moment—The sea may not be rough, but the craft plunges with the long swell. The danger may not be very great, but how helpless the passengers feel! How little is man in such an emergency!

Sympathy arises in human hearts through the identity of susceptibility. Every living being knows what it is to be cold, hungry and sick, although it be not to the point of fatality. It is because we are susceptible to those things that we sympathize with those who have been touched by them. When we see others in affliction we not only see that they suffer but how they suffer, and probably why. Because we at any time are liable to experience the ills of life makes us very sensitive for those who are touched by them. This identity to others through a liability to suffering is the basis of all our benevolent work and societies. Without it there would be no home missionary societies, no American Boards, no Red Cross work. They are all the outward expression of this idea; as we know something of what suffering is, we will feed the hungry, clothe the naked, shelter the homeless; cure the sick. There is no greater work than this.

The whole world rejoices over the fact that the Irish question that was so disturbing not so very many years ago is now practically settled. Naturally there are some differences of opinion in regard to some questions in Ireland as there are in the United States. There will always be differences of racial viewpoints and principles. But the whole civilized world rejoices over the settlement of difficulties before resorting to warfare. It is no more expected that there should be no collisions in the Irish parliament than in the United States senate. The world rejoices that in these days there seems to be the reign of peace and reason in the legislative halls of Ireland in which the world rejoices. Nobody any longer wants to witness the overthrow of reason and good will that have been shown by both parties in this unfortunate country. The common weariness of strife has led to the hope that a real settlement has been found. The meeting in London some years ago of Dominion premiers with their broad statesmanship and unbiased judgment is helping this cause. Ireland with a strong dominion parliament would have a greater voice in world councils than a free republic with six coerced counties. In the latter case she would be no more than Finland.

According to the New York Times —which seems to speak with authority—we have in a realistic cartoon, a new version of the discovery of poison ivy. It would appear that our common ancestor, Adam, when the hour came in his existence that he decided "to be clothed upon lest he found naked," went in quest of a Palm Beach suit as the summer approached. Finding nothing at the clothiers that fitted his immaculate form, and being disgusted with the high prices, he concluded to make his own suit out of a beautiful vine having a three-branched leaf. Now the innocent Adam was dealing with poison ivy, and as the sewing was easy he made a long, flowing robe that put it all over the new fig leaves that Eve wore and made her jealous. A few hours later when the ivy began to show out its disposition, Adam began to yell and Eve began to laugh. Soon it became no laughing matter, for in the cartoon Eve has a look of horror and has poked her fingers in her ears; Adam is using language she never heard before. That night he danced all over Paradise trampling on Eve's flower beds and stepped on the tail of the snake who had suggested apples to them. Those of us who have ever come into real contact with poison ivy will "cast no stones" at Adam for the things he said when Eve laughed at him.

HER WANDERERING UNCLE

"Arrive Sunday afternoon stop looking forward to visit with you folks—Uncle Hiram."

"Well, if that isnt a fine how do you do!" exclaimed Mildred, reading the telegram aloud to her husband.

"Who is Uncle Hiram?" Lawrence asked.

"My mother's brother, whom I have never seen and have never been interested in seeing. He ran away from their foster home when he was only 16 and joined a wandering show troupe. That was twenty-two years ago, the year I was born. Mother heard from him occasionally before she died. He was wandering around over the world into first one thing and then another. He didn't amount to much and since mother went I had heard nothing from him until his message came. I never told you about him because he's the family black sheep and I thought I would never see him."

"Where was the telegram sent?"

"Lockport, Iowa, where he and mother lived as children. I suppose he has wandered back there, all broken down from tramping, and took a crazy notion to see me. We just can't have him here Sunday; we have our post-nuptial theater party at the Grand that evening, you know."

"Yes," grinned Lawrence, "and the play is 'Her Wandering Uncle.' We'll have to take your wandering uncle along."

"We will not!" snapped Mildred. "I certainly won't present such a man to our friends. It would be all the worse to have to tell them he was my uncle. Moreover, the house has been sold out for weeks and we couldn't get a ticket for him. I'll wire him not to come in such a way I hope he will take the hint we don't want him ever."

She seized the telephone and dictated: "Impossible to see you Sunday. Don't know when we can."

"Your telegram could not be delivered because Mr. Hiram Adams had gone from Lockport," the telegraph office advised her an hour later.

Mildred threw up her hands in despair. From then until Sunday, try as she would, she could think of no plan by which Uncle Hiram could be kept away. In midafternoon of that day there came a crashing knock on the front door. Mildred answered it herself.

"Well, well, well," roared the visitor. "So this is my little niece, Middie. lookin' sweet and perty, and just like her mother. Spose you're too grown up to give your unk a kiss, but I'm sure tickled stiff to see you!"

"Come in," Mildred said shortly.

"And this is your man," he breezed, crushing Lawrence's hand in a mighty grip. "Young lookin' buck, ain't he?"

Mildred experienced hot and cold flashes and her heart pounded like a trip hammer in chagrin and anger. He was awful, atrocious, much worse than she had pictured him in her most pessimistic expectations. Cheap, worn, baggy, loudly checkered gray and black suit, yellow shoes, green socks, blue shirt and pink tie! His hair was uncombed, he was unshaved and how he slouched around! He talked noisily, mostly about himself, and fairly rocked the walls laughing at his own jokes. Mildred was on the verge of calling the police when he drew out a black pipe, spilled tobacco on the floor filling it, tossed his burnt match into a corner and made dense clouds of strong smoke.

"I'm looking for a soft job with a lotta pay; got one for me?" he bellowed at Lawrence. "How's to put me up here for the winter?" to both of them. "When do we eat?" to Mildred.

"We are not eating here today," Mildred flared, her temper snapping. "Lawrence and I are going to have dinner with friends downtown and then we are all going to the theater; sorry we can't take you along."

"All right; all right, Middie," he smiled, apparently blind to her manner. "No time for your unk until tomorrow, then, eh?"

With that he jumped up, grabbed his hat, pulled it well down and clattered out.

"I'll not be at home when he returns," gritted Mildred.

The play, "Her Wandering Uncle," lived up to its glowing advance notices from the moment the curtain arose in the first act that night. There was a hush as the leading man came on.

Mildred stared, then her head swam. She grew weak and faint. Her eyes almost burst as she looked from the actor to her program. H. Wesley Adams, the star she had heard so much about, and her Uncle Hiram were one and the same man!

"But I shall never, never forgive you," Mildred said, covering admiration with mock petulance, to her handsome, well groomed, soft spoken, famous Uncle Hiram at the happy party at which he was a most welcome guest after the show.—Chicago News

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

The Call of Jesus

Who can measure the joy that must have filled the heart of blind Bartimaus, when, in answer to his repeated appeals for the healing mercy of Jesus, it was said to him, "Be of good comfort, rise, He calleth thee." The call of Jesus meant for him sight instead of blindness. It gave assurance that his darkness would be changed into light; it promised a life so changed that it meant a life of light and joy, a new life. Jesus is ever calling to those who are in need, changing their sorrow into joy, their darkness into light, their sickness into health, their poverty into riches, their ignorance into knowledge, their weakness into strength, and their insufficiency into completeness.

In many varied ways does the call of Jesus come into human lives. Godly parents consecrated pastors, earnest Christian friends are often Christ's ambassadors to summon to the Saviour those who are in need of His forgiving mercy.

There are many other voices calling to the human soul besides the voice of Jesus. There are siren voices which are luring men and women to the shipwreck of their lives and the destruction of their souls. Vain pleasures, the lust of gain, inordinate ambition, these are some of the voices which are sounding in the ears of humanity and which often threaten to drown the voice of the master. Very insistant at times are the appeals that are made to human pride and prejudices and fear, and too often the sweet and tender voice of the Saviour is lost upon human ears.

The call of Jesus is the supreme opportunity which can come to any human life. It marked the crisis in the life of blind Bartimaus. It has marked the decisive point in the eternal destiny of a great multitude, who having heard the Master's call, have responded to it gladly, and in so doing have found peace and rest.

There are varied hindrances which oftimes oppose us as we strive to heed the call of Jesus. Insidious temptations present themselves, and at times there seem to be insuperable obstacles against our coming to Jesus. Yet if we have faith, if only as a grain of mustard seed, we shall be able to overcome these hinderances, and shall find ourselves at last walking in the way that leadeth unto life everlasting. Having heard the call of Jesus ourselves it becomes our imperative duty to bring others within the sound of that voice which has brought peace and joy into our own souls. Christianity is a mission any religion and our duty as disciples of Christ is not fully performed until we have done all within our power to bring the call of Jesus to the knowledge of every living creature.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8—That quiet little man from New Jersey, Dwight Morrow, has disclosed the basic formula of his own diplomatic triumphs.

It is "neighborliness" in international relations.

And he thought it desirable, also, to define "neighbor" in the sense in which he meant it—the sense in which he applied his formula down in Mexico as ambassador.

"Neighbor," Morrow said to a banker's convention in New Jersey, "is a very old and very find word—your neighbor is the person who lives next door.

"He is the person you have to get along with—not because he is the same kind of person you are, not because he belongs to the same church that you do—but simply because he is your neighbor; because he is there and you are where you are."

And if there has ever been stated more simply and understandably a yardstick for measuring diplomatic relationships, the Bystander never has seen it.

Short of embarking on the discredited business of imperial aggrandizement by force of arms, direct or indirect, no nation can afford to overlook the give-and-take necessities of neighborhood life, whether among states or individuals.

The Morrow "neighbor" speech was made in the afterglow of that senatorial primary victory he rolled up. Perhaps that tempered all his views with more than usual tolerance and kindliness.

But be that as it may, Morrow's report to the bankers on Mexico and its people doubtless was pleasing south of the border.

Mexicans must view with regret Morrow's approaching departure for the political turmoil at home. For he said of Mexican-American relations:

"International law really means, when you get down to the basic principles of it, that you do not ask of other people things that you do not recognize their right to ask of you. * * * If in our dealings with our neighbors we could only appreciate that other peoples have sensitive feelings just as we have, life would be easier. * * *

"We want to be judged by what we desire to be rather than by the distance we fall short of the thing we desire to be. And so do the Mexican people. They are trying to make themselves a self-governing nation.

'The only way that nations learn is the same way individuals learn. All nations learn to walk by trying and falling, by getting up and trying again.'

YOUR HEALTH

Sciatica

By Beverley R. Tucker, M. D.,
Richmond, Virginia
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute,
Washington, D. C.)

In the first place if you have pain down the outside of one or the other leg be sure to consult a good physician and arrive scientifically at the diagnosis of sciatica; do not jump at the conclusion that you have sciatica.

Sciatica is an inflammation of the largest nerve in the human body and the pain runs through the sciatic notch, deeply seated in the lower part of the buttocks, down the outer side of the leg to the outside of the ankle and under the foot to the base of the great toe. Pressure along the course of this nerve causes excrutiating pain and other pains around the pelvis, hips or in the legs should not be confused with it. Bilateral sciatica, which is sciatica of both sides, is extremely rare and when pain is on both sides it is usually due not to sciatica but to a tumor in the lower part of the spinal canal.

Sciatica occurs from some local or general infection; in consequence one should undergo a most thorough medical examination and have corrected any form of infection that may exist. As soon as sciatica is absolutely diagnosed the patient should immediately go to bed. It is unwise to treat sciatica while the patient is up. The extremity should be wrapped in woolen blankets or cotton wool; osteopathy, massage and electricity should never be given during the acute stage. Absolute physiological rest is essential. The patient should not take morphine, cocaine or any form of opiates and should take as few coal tar preparations for the relief of pain as possible. Absolute rest makes the inflamed nerve subside and the pain gradually disappears.

After the pain has practically subsided gentle massage may be given. During the course of the condition if the pain is very excrutiating the proper application of diathermy is of value. Liniments containing salicylates may be applied but not rubbed in. When the pain has subsided the patient may start getting up for a few minutes and gradually increase the time until he is walking about. The treatment of a severe case of sciatica takes from four to eight weeks.

The banker was also known as the village wit.

"Do you know, I think my boy will be a great detective," he said to the postmaster one day.

"Why?" asked the postmaster. "Why should your boy make a great detective?"

"Well," confessed the banker, "as soon as he got a car of his own he started running every one down."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

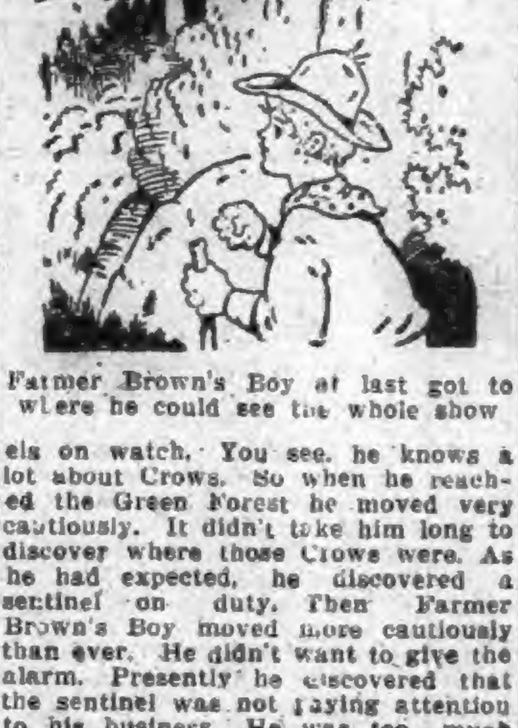
Just in Time

"Just in time!" How much they mean,
Those little words so often seen.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

It just happened that Farmer Brown's Boy saw Jim Crow when the other Crows forced him to fly over to the Green Forest. Farmer Brown's Boy had happened to be looking down on the Green Meadows when the other Crows arrived. He saw them surround Jim Crow and presently he saw Jim Crow fly away with them.

"I do believe," said Farmer Brown's Boy, talking to himself, "that those Crows made Jim Crow go with them. That's the way it looked to me. Now, I wonder why. I wonder what they are up to. I do hope they don't mean any harm to Jim Crow. It looks to me as if Jim is trying to get away from them. I believe I'll follow to see what's going on."

So Farmer Brown's Boy waited until the Crows had disappeared in the Green Forest. Then he hurried after them. Farmer Brown's Boy knew that they probably had sentinels on watch. You see, he knows a lot about Crows. So when he reached the Green Forest he moved very cautiously. It didn't take him long to discover where those Crows were. As he had expected, he discovered a sentinel on duty. Then Farmer Brown's Boy moved more cautiously than ever. He didn't want to give the alarm. Presently he discovered that the sentinel was not paying attention to his business. He was too much interested in what was going on amongst the other Crows. So, moving very, very carefully, Farmer Brown's Boy at last got where he could see the whole performance. There sat Jim Crow. Yes, sir, there sat Jim Crow in the middle of a circle of Crows and Jim Crow looked most forlorn and unhappy. In fact, Jim Crow looked frightened.



Farmer Brown's Boy at last got to where he could see the whole show

Every now and then a Crow would lean forward and jabber in Crow talk. When he had finished, another would do the same thing. Farmer Brown's Boy suspected that Jim Crow was the subject of that Crow-talk. Yes, sir, that's what he suspected. Once, and once only, did he hear Jim Crow say anything. Meanwhile, the voices of those Crows sounded more and more angry. They did so. They sounded very angry indeed. Farmer Brown's Boy began to feel uneasy. He didn't like the sound of those angry voices. He had a feeling that things were not going altogether too well for Jim Crow. However, he didn't want to interfere.

"I'll wait," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "I won't interfere until there seems to be real need of it; but I won't let anything happen to Jim Crow. It looks to me as if this is a trial. Yes, sir, that's what it looks like. If it is a trial, I want to know what they're going to do to Jim Crow."

So Farmer Brown's Boy remained hidden where he was and listened to all that went on. The Crows became more and more excited; they did more and more jabbering. Finally, at a signal from one old Crow, who seemed to be the leader, they all started for Jim Crow. Poor Jim Crow. He was in the middle of a whirling black crowd. Feathers began to fly and they were Jim Crow's feathers. Yes, sir, they were Jim Crow's feathers. Farmer Brown's Boy waited no longer. With a loud yell he sprang forward.

Such a scattering of Crows as there was then! They beat the air frantically with their big, black wings. Forgotten was Jim Crow. There was but one thought and that was to get away. As for Jim Crow, he was a sorry looking sight. In just that minute or two before Farmer Brown's Boy had interfered, feathers had been pulled out from all over him. If birds could cry, Jim Crow would have cried from pure joy at the sight of Farmer Brown's Boy. He jumped up on the shoulder of Farmer Brown's Boy and crowded against his face, all the time doing his best to tell him all about it. You see, he knew that Farmer Brown's Boy had stepped in just in time to save his life.

Little Talks on Thrift

Savings, Though Amounts Be Small, Are Steps Toward Financial Independence

(By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift)

An interesting story, with a fine thrift application, is told about one of America's wealthiest men and most able financiers. When he was a boy he visited his grand parents. In the household was an uncle who never appeared to be very busy. The boy's curiosity was aroused, so he asked his grandfather why it was that this uncle was able to lead such an easy life. "He used to work hard but he saved his money and now he is living comfortably on the interest," the grandfather replied.

This made a great impression on the boy. He had never heard of interest before but he thought that if it was such a powerful thing that it could relieve an elderly man from all financial worries, it must be very fine. He resolved that he, too, would work hard and save all the money he could so that when he became old he could live on his interest.

One of the greatest advantages of practicing thrift lies in the fact that while we are earning an income during our active, productive years, we are also able to safeguard ourselves against the consequences of an enfeebled physical condition in old age, sickness, unemployment and other adversities.

The writer recently was told the story of a family in which there were seven wage earners. Five members of the family were earning $150 a month each while two others earned $250 a month each. This made a family income of $1250 a month yet it was stated that not one penny was saved. Then came unemployment for several members of the family and today they are far from prosperous.

Some other families with a far smaller income than this have been able to save systematically and safeguard themselves against the days of unemployment and distress.

The building of an estate may seem to be a slow process but, as Benjamin Franklin said, money is of a prolific nature and begets money. When we begin saving regular amounts even though they be small, we have taken the first step toward financial independence.

U. S. GOAL FOR BEST GROOMED ROADS

WASHINGTON—(AP)—To its world leadership in good roads, the United States is seeking to add supremacy in beautiful roads.

Dressing up the highways is seen by Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau of public roads, as the next step after establishment of smooth roadbeds and easy grades.

State highway departments have chosen to organize their own programs of applying "make-up" to nature but federal assistance is available for planting shade trees along routes of the federal-aid system.

Massachusetts, rounding out the 10th year in its beautification work, is acknowledged as the pacesetter.

Native trees, shrubs, and flowers are preserved for raw shoulders and scarred landscapes.

Oregon, in developing the beauty springs in fountains made of native of its highways, has locked natural materials for the convenience of travelers.

In North Carolina a program of beautification has been preceded by a survey of what is termed the "billboard rash."

"The first step in any campaign to beautify roadsides must be to eliminate the advertising signs, not only on the right-of-way but also on the private property alongside," says Mr MacDonald.

California has planted trees along 600 miles of highway. Oklahoma has planted 40 miles, and extensive programs are underway in Indiana, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Michigan.

In Pennsylvania, unauthorized signs lining the highways are removed in semi-annual cleanups which, on one occasion last year, netted more than 25,000 boards.

Though the thermometer skips to 100 degrees Washington is a cool enough summer resort for them as they dash from pool to pool clad only in briefest of jerseys.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Wolverine Motor Works, Inc., Bridgeport

The Wolverine Motor Works was organized and started business in Grand Rapids, Michigan, in 1894, and the company was incorporated under the laws of Michigan in January 1899, holding its charter continuously under the state of Michigan since that time.

On September 24th 1900, Charles L. Snyder, the father of the company's present president, became the president of the Wolverine Motor Works, Inc.

In 1907 the plant together with its executive organization and the majority of its workmen was moved to Bridgeport. The product, since the organization of the company, has been internal combustion engines of the heavy duty type, primarily for marine service; but also used extensively for stationary purposes. The engines operated originally on gasoline and later adapted to the use of other fools such as kerosene, alcohol, distillate, suction producer gas, and for the past eight years, the product has been principally engines operating on the Diesel principle and using crude oil as fuel.

In this period the developments have naturally covered a wide range and many changes have been noted in style, principle of operation, sizes and refinements, as well as in the variety of the uses to which the product has been applied.

In 1896 an engine was sold to be used in a "buggy." This possibly was one of the first horseless carriages which later became known as automobiles. The product enjoys a wide distribution in the marine and stationary fields, both in the United States and in foreign countries.

The present officers of the company are: President and treasurer, Louis I. Snyder; vice president, Paul H. Korn; secretary-auditor, Gilbert R. Carroll.

INTERVENTION BY U. S. IN NICARAGUA DEFENDED

UNIVERSITY, Va., Aug. 8—(AP)—Intervention by the United States in Nicaragua was defended as a distinct social trend by Dr. Charles L. Batchelder, of New York city, in an address before the institute of public affairs at the University of Virginia tonight.

Dr. Batchelder said the intervention in Nicaragua is an outgrowth of the increasing submergence of individual rights before the needs of society.

"Nationalism," he said, "is being replaced by internationalism, to the great benefit of the human race. The emphasis upon the rights of the individual is being replaced by the superior claims of the rights of society."

Although admitting that the interests of the United States in Nicaragua are primarily commercial and economic, and are connected with the necessity of protecting the Panama Canal, at the same time, he said the United States is doing a social service by aiding the Nicaraguan government.

Mark Wollard, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Wollard of 55 Reservoir avenue, Meriden, who disappeared last December from Seaside sanatorium, Crescent Beach, leaving behind two notes, expressing dissatisfaction with life and bidding his family goodbye, has been located working in a hotel at Yellowstone park, Wyoming.

News of his whereabouts was brought to the missing boy's parents by a New Haven man who met and had a lengthy conversation with young Wollard while visiting in Yellowstone park recently.

Wollard was at one time an inmate of the sanatorium and when cured had taken a liking to his surroundings and had become ver yfond of Dr. John F. O'Brien, who is in charge of the hospital, and asked that employment be provided him. He was put on the orderly staff and during his employ was said to have performed his duties well. Shortly before his disappearance however Wollard appeared to be despondent and became very moody.

Taken To Hospital

William N. Andrews, of No. 347 Main street, prominent antique dealer, is a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital. He was found Thursday afternoon in a weakened condition in his bed on the third floor of his home, which was locked. Mr. Andrews had not been seen for several weeks and when his attending physician, Dr. W. T. Browne, failed in several attempts to gain admission to the house, Selectman William S. Murray and Judge Nelson J. Ayling of the probate court were appealed to. They, with Police Officer Edward Burns, went to the house Thursday afternoon and breaking in the back door, found Mr. Andrews. At the hospital his condition was reported improved Friday.

James Mullins Improved

James Mullins of No. 51 Spring street is confined to his home as the result of injuries received by a pitched ball in the Smoke Shop-Thermos game Tuesday night. He was reported to be improved Friday by Dr. Clarence G. Thompson, his physician. Mullins was hit by a ball thrown by Butsy Weisgraber, hurler for the Smoke Shop, and was rendered unconscious.

BOY, HIT BY BASEBALL BAT, MAY LOSE HIS RIGHT EYE

Michael Kelly, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kelly, of No. 35 Lake street, hit by a baseball bat, at the Lake street playgrounds, may lose the sight of his right eye. The boy was one of a large number of children who were watching a baseball game at the playground, when he was struck in the face by a bat which slipped out of the hands of a batter. The boy, knocked down by the blow, was taken to the office of Dr. K. K. Markoff, where his injuries were treated.

Five stitches were required to close a deep gash over the right eye, after which the boy was taken to his home. His face is so badly swollen that he has lost, temporarily, the sight of both eyes. The boy, according to his father, is in serious danger of losing, permanently, the sight of his right eye.

FRESH AIR CHILDREN ARRIVE NEXT WEEK

The 20 "fresh air" children, who are to spend a two weeks' vacation in Norwich, will arrive here next Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, according to a letter received by Miss Mary E. Bundy, assistant secretary of the Norwich chamber of commerce from Leslie M. Conley, representative of the New York Herald Fresh Air fund. Last year families in Norwich and vicinity provided for the care of about 40 children. The letter received by Miss Bundy reads:

Your list of invitations for "fresh airs" to spend vacations in Norwich has been received. You and your committee have done a very kindly piece of work; the hosts who are opening their homes are mighty generous. The Tribune fund thanks and congratulates you all for the friendly spirit you have shown. The vacations you are to provide never will be forgotten—we are sure of that.

The schedule for both the arrival and departure of your party is as follows:

Going trip on August 13th. Children arrive Norwich at 4:01 p. m.

Return trip on August 27th. Children leave Norwich at 1:10 p. m.

We trust you will find these arrangements satisfactory.

The fund will do its best to send you a pleasant group of children; but since we are dealing with thousands of youngsters, we cannot know each of them personally. We do know, however, that each child has been guaranteed to us as really poor by a responsible charitable organization. And we know for ourselves that the tenement sections in which they all live are terrible places—unfit for the habitation of animals, let alone growing boys and girls.

Your guests will be children who need sunshine and fresh air both physically and spiritually. The host who deals with one of them sympathetically and understandingly will find a deep satisfaction in doing so.

WILLIMANTIC, August 8—In a decision filed tonight, Coroner John H. Yeomans of Tolland county finds both drivers, John W. Manyak, of Hartford, and Dona Thibeault, of Putnam, responsible for the accident at Columbia Four Corners last Saturday afternoon in which Adelia Miller, aged seven, of South Manchester, was killed. The Miller girl was riding with Manyak who was found negligent in that he was operating at an excessive speed in approaching the intersection.

Thibeault is found negligent in his failure to keep proper lookout for approaching automobiles. Manyak, who is at liberty under bonds of $1,000, is scheduled to appear in Columbia town court next Monday. In the accident, two women, riding with Manyak, were injured and two men, in the Thibeault car, were hurt.

POLICE NOT TO TAKE UP TRANSIENT DRIVERS' LICENSES

Explaining more in detail his ideas regarding the seizure of licenses of operators arrested on charges of driving while under the influence of liquor and reckless driving, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins E. Stoeckel has again written to the chiefs in the various police departments in the state.

The commissioner reiterated his contention that the prime object in confiscating the licenses of these types of offenders is to deprive unfit drivers of their rights to operate motor vehicles in the state at the earliest possible moment after they have committed one of the offenses.

Regarding out of town drivers, the commissioner told the police chiefs that he did not want them to take up and keep the licenses of non-residents who are transiently operating cars in Connecticut under proper credentials issued by some other state or country. "In such cases where the operators come under your purview," the commissioner wrote, "I ask that you proceed in the ordinary manner so far as arrests, etc., are concerned, and that you give me the particulars in each case if they warrant the suspension of the right of such operator to operate in this state (provided the court action is insufficient to that end) but that you do not actually take up the license itself."

Police may take up the local licenses of those operating while intoxicated, those guilty of wilful evasion of responsibility and reckless drivers.

WINS SIX-YEAR-OLD SAYBROOK BOUNDARY CASE

There has come to the office of the clerk of the Middlesex county superior court the full opinion of the supreme court in a boundary case from Saybrook which has been in dispute for more than six years. The decision of the superior court is reversed and judgment is rendered for the defendant, Charles B. Mack, Helen R. Spencer is the plaintiff.

Back in 1923 the defendant bought of Bessie R. Rutzler a tract of land adjoining the property of the plaintiff on Oyster river. The defendant planned to maintain a fish market on the site. This did not please the plaintiff.

Then it was discovered in behalf of the plaintiff, in an examination of the deeds, that the boundaries were not as she supposed. A claim of trespass was asserted. An action followed, the complaint dating April 24, 1924. This was tried before the court, Judge Newell Jennings presiding, and in December, 1926, judgment was rendered for the defendant. No appeal was taken from that decision.

Then in April, 1927, a new suit was begun, with several prayers for relief. It was tried before the court with Judge Alfred C. Baldwin presiding. The defendant, through his counsel, claimed that the action in no sense raised new issues, that the various prayers for relief simply raised the issues which had been previously decided. The court was asked to direct judgment for that reason. But judgment was rendered for the plaintiff, the court finding trespass. From this decision the appeal was taken to the supreme court.

The tribunal of review finds error, Associate Justice Frank D. Haines writing the opinion. The contention that the second case merely raised again the issues decided in the first case is sustained. This is now allowable in court procedure, hence judgment fo rthe defendant.

The curious part of the dispute is that owing to some mistake in accepting boundary marks it does appear that 100 feet of land is involved. Here it is that the principle of law comes in which allows the grantee to claim the interpretation of a deed most favorable by him because the terms are made by the grantor. The court in the first trial decided in favor of the defendant, and that ruling remains, as no appeal was taken from it. The case is rather unusual, but it is held to confirm two well known principles of law and as such is important.

To the Norwich Playgrounds.

Although we have no summer playground system, for boys and girls, here in Taftville, we do raise baseball players, which fact I know no one can, or will deny, but, our boys are denied games with the Norwich boys.

We boys, namely the Hillcrest Juniors, a team composed of Wequonnoc school, and Sacred Heart Parochial school, have tried to get games with some of Norwich's junior teams without success, but we are giving one more try. We would like a game with any of the Norwich playground teams for next Wednesday at Taftville, and promise a return game in Norwich if so wished for. If this challenge is accepted answer through The Bulletin or write: Armand Lavasseur, Pion Block, Taftville, Conn.

"WILD MAN" PROVED TO BE HARMLESS WOODCHOPPER

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 8—(AP)—The "wild man" who over a period of weeks frightened residents of the exclusive Tatnuck section, was exposed today by police as a harmless but enormous woodchopper, living in the Paxton woods. The wild man was first reported by milkmen who, on their early morning rounds were approached by a huge, hairy being, they said, with a club in his hands. The club was disclosed as a milk bottle with which the woodchopper said he had tried to buy milk for his breakfast coffee, adding to police he could not understand why the wagons made away as fast as they saw him. Police, withholding the name, were convinced, they said. Tatnuck residents were unduly alarmed.

FEDERAL DRY AGENTS REPULSED AN AMBUSCADE

BELTSVILLE, Md., Aug. 8—(AP)—Federal prohibition agents repulsed an ambuscade and exchanged half a hundred shots with an unknown number of men near a still site near here early this morning and later arrested three youths on charges of manufacture of liquor.

Two federal agents working on a tip, lay in hiding near the still and vats of mash, while their leader went to Washington for dynamite with which to demolish the liquor making apparatus. While they were waiting for the leader to return, bullets whizzed over their heads. They took refuge behind trees and returned the fire.

Two hours later three men returned to the still in a truck. They were captured in a short struggle.

Hoover bridge is a rustic 100 foot span across North River skirting the 60 acre camp tract. It is constructed of logs and river rock, connecting the camp grounds with a swimming pool and the councillor's cabin.

WAUREGAN PLAYS ST. JAMES CLUB ON SUNDAY

Merssier will do the pitching for the Indies with Deloge catching. There is expected to be a good attendance and if weather permits there should be a good game.

20,000 CHINESE REBELS CAPTURED IN SHANTUNG

SHANGHAI, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Twenty thousand northern alliance rebels, said nationalist government dispatches tonight, were captured in Shantung province during the past week.

Taian city was reported captured in operations south of Tsinanfu, while east of that city insurgents were forced to withdraw westward.

In counter claims General Feng Yu-Hsiang asserted his northerners had overwhelmed nationalists in Honan province, thrusting them back to Kweiteh, which was expected to fall into insurgent hands "shortly." Feng said 1,000 prisoners and 300 cartloads of supplies were captured.

State officials of the middle west generally have taken no action toward drought relief and in several states expressed the opinion yesterday that government aid would not be required to tide over farmers and stock raisers hit by prolonged heat and dry weather.

Complete re-organization of Durant Motors, Inc., and its alliance with unidentified European automotive interests were announced at Lansing, Mich., by William C. Durant, founder of the company.

Billings in the San Francisco Preparedness day bombing case, may prove a highlight in the pardon hearing for the two before the state supreme court at San Francisco. She has indicated that her former identification of Billings as the man who carried a bomb in a suitcase, may have been wrong.

CITIZENS GO INTO CITY LEAGUE LEAD BY BLANKING THE ROYALS

Traveling at the same dizzy pace which last week carried them by the Thermos Bottlers, the Polish Citizens last night swept by the Royals 6 to 0, into undisputed leadership of the City league. Tommy Simcox, ancient and honorable moundsman, made a desperate attempt to check the rush but his efforts were in vain. A fourth inning rally that had the "old master" wobbling and wallowing gave the Cits enough runs to win by the proverbial mile. Five clean smashes, three of them for extra bases, accounted for five Cit runs in the "big inning." These five counters and another, tallied by the winners in the opener, were all the runs of the game.

While all of this was going on, Johnny, elder of the Greene boys was turning in another of his brilliant mound exhibitions. Favored by overcast skies, Johnny had the Royals swinging miserably. He allowed but three scattered and scratchy hits in the six innings of play and did not allow a single member of the Panek clan to get into the third base region. But three men got as far as first and these earned their way because Johnny gave no free tickets. He fanned six.

After giving the Royals their licks in the early first the Cits came in during their half of the session and drew first blood, scoring once on Cummings' wild heave of Cimmy's easy grounder and Lamory's single into left.

Lamory, who by the way has been clouting at a dizzy pace in the past three games, started the Cit rampage in the fourth. He smashed one of Simmy's slow ones into deep left for three bases and romped home on West's double into right. Lloyd Jarvis grounded out to Natorsky and Tony moved onto third. Finn, the next hitter, walked and scooted to second on the first pitched ball. Both he and West counted when Johnny Greene hit into right, Johnny moving to second on the play at the plate. Dee Gaudette continued with the attack by slashing a long double into center that scored Greene. Paradis struck out and Cimmy hit for one base, but was out trying to stretch it to a double.

During the entire period of play there was but one error made, the Cits getting through the night without a slip. Their infield worked like a smooth running piece of machinery, Cimmy and West enacting the roles of main springs. Cimmy got six assists and Tony 9 putouts. The latter made nice plays of several bad throws to the bag. The best Royal on the defense was Marowsky. He covered the short field in good fashion, handling 7 chances perfectly. Lamory was the leading hitter.

The game was witnessed by fully 3,000 fans, the crowd rivalling the Thermos-Citizen game.

SENATORS TAKE HARD BATTLE WITH INDIANS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8—(AP)—The Senators today outhit and outfought the Cleveland Indians, coming from behind to win the opening game of the series 5 to 4.

After the Indians had combined two walks and two doubles in the fourth to score three runs off Fischer, rookie speed ball pitcher making his debut here, the Nats began to pound Schoffner hard, finally tying the score in the sixth when Pinch Hitter Harris lashed out a double after Spencer had tripled.

Washington broke the deadlock in the eighth, when Manush doubled and was brought home by Cronin's fourth hit of the day. Porter led the Cleveland hitters, crashing out three singles and scoring two runs. Score:

OPINION SHARPLY DIVIDED ON BERG-CHOCOLATE DECISION

NEW YORK, Aug. 8—(AP)—A dozen impromptu demonstrations in the halls of Madison Square Garden as to how Jakie Kid Berg beat Kid Chocolate —or how Chocolate beat Berg but failed to get the decision—failed to settle any of the arguments welling in the fight marts today over the accuracy of the decision handed down after ten furious rounds in the Polo grounds last night.

Critics tried to demonstrate in pantomime to other experts how the Whitechapel whirlwind's aggression and eternal punching brought him to the finish line a nose ahead of Chocolate. But in rebuttal other critics peeled off coats and went through motions intended to convey an impression of grace and boxing ability such as the sleek Negro displayed in one of the greatest battles New York has ever seen. These latter displays were intended to show that Chocolate really won the fight even though he lost the decision.

Everyone, from the managers of both fighters and the promoters down to the faithful in the street, were content with the fight itself. After the miserable failures of other highly ballyhooed shows, the clean, ferocious struggle of Chocolate and Berg was generally considered just the tonic boxing needed to rise from the doldrums in New York. Only the promoters at Madison Square Garden were dissatisfied with the situation.

Frank Bruen, general manager of the Garden, now contends that he has no match for September among the lightweights inasmuch as Berg insists that he be paid 27 1-2 per cent of the gate to fight Al Singer, the champion, for the 135 pound title. Since Singer is entitled to 37 1-2 per cent and the challenger only 17 1-2, the wage problem may halt the match.

Bruen hopes that Young Stribling, the Macon slugger who knocked out Otto Von Porat in Chicago and Phil Scott in London all within three rounds, will return from England in time to arrange a heavyweight tilt between the southerner and either Victorio Campolo, Primo Carnera, or Jack Sharkey for September. If a heavyweight bout can be made, the lightweights will be abandoned for the time being.

Whoever fights in the big open air show scheduled for Sept. 11, it seems likely that there will be no radio broadcast of the proceedings. The Garden experimented with the Chocolate-Berg fight, keeping it off the air to compare the gate receipts for this match with those of the Al Singer-Sammy Mandell lightweight title fight, which was broadcast. The Garden finds that Chocolate and Berg drew considerable more than Singer and Mandell and the inference is that radio broadcast detracts from the gate receipts.

Chocolate and Berg fought before a paid attendance of 34,922, considerable more than the estimates from the ringside, with a total gate of $181,178.38 and net receipts, after taxes had been deducted, of $152,377.18. Chocolate and Berg each received 25 per cent of the net. The Singer-Mandell match grossed $163,388, with a net of $129,633.

Berg plans a short vacation before going back to work. Chocolate will leave next week for Cuba "to mend his broken heart."

PITCHING OF GROVE AND SHORES GIVES A'S TWO GAMES

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8—(AP)—Airtight pitching by Mose Grove and Bill Shores today, gave the Athletics both ends of a doubleheader with the Chicago White Sox and further increased their grip on the 1930 American league pennant. The champions won by scores of 5 to 1 and 4 to 1.

Jimmy Dykes' home run in the third inning provided the winning tally in the opening game. The victory was Grove's eighteenth of the season against four defeats. In the sixth inning, Al Simmons hit his twenty-eighth homer of the year with two on base.

Shores, allowing only four hits in the second game, bested Ted Lyons. Al Simmons, with two runs driven in and one scored, led the Macks to triumph.

PIPGRAS' PITCHING GIVES YANKEES WIN OVER BROWNS

NEW YORK, Aug. 8—(AP)—George Pipgras' brilliant pitching plus some timely hitting on the part of Harry Rice gave the New York Yankees a 5 to 3 decision over St. Louis Browns in the opening game of the final western invasion today. It was the Yanks fourth straight victory, and Pipgras' thirteenth of the season.

Pipgras set the Browns down in order for five innings but in the fifth the Missourians got to him for two runs, two hits. He then clamped down again and gave out only three more safeties. Rice's part in the game included a single that drove in the first New York run, a home run that was responsible for the second and a base on balls that forced in a third.

WALTER SYDLO BREAKS LEG IN SLIDING TO BASE

Walter Sydlo, the sterling little catcher of the American Legion Senior team, is lost to the club for the remainder of the season as the result of breaking his left leg in a slide to a base at the Providence street grounds last night. Sydlo will be greatly missed as his work behind the bat was a big factor in the success of the club.

A. L. Team Unable To Play.

The American Legion Seniors will not be able to play the Montville Indies Sunday.

There ain't no justice.

The one who said "Let your conscience be your guide" never met the arbitration board of the City Twilight league or he would have saved his breath, if you know what I mean.

Yes, sir, the arbitration board sustained the protest of the Thermos team management and declared that the Ideals' protest was without grounds.

Why is it that the board made their decision within 24 hours after the protest was received, then reserved it, only to sustain their snap judgment at this late date after the Thermos had lost three games in a row?

Sure, their decision was made on the rules of the league but the rules were all wet in the first place. For example: They say a man can advance one base on an overthrow but he must make it. Well if he must make the base the ball must be in play and when the ball is in play he can make as many bases as he can for he runs at his own risk. If he didn't have to make it the ball would be dead.

But what's the use of talking about it. It looks like "right or wrong that's our verdict and we're going to stick to it."

But I wonder what's the joker in the deck.

GIANTS TAKE BOTH GAMES FROM PIRATES

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 8—(AP)—Taking advantage of the breaks and aided by steady pitching, the New York Giants took a doubleheader from the Pittsburgh Pirates today, winning the opener 9 to 1 and the nightcap 7 to 2.

Bill Walker kept the Pirates eleven hits well scattered in the first encounter while Pittsburgh played very erratic ball behind Meine and Chagnon. Hogan led the Giants attack with four hits with Lloyd Waner getting the same number for the Pirates.

Carl Hubbell was the whole show in the last game, holding the Pirates to five hits, only one of which was made after the second inning. Terry starred at bat with three singles and a triple while home runs were hit by Comorosky, Hogan and Roettger.

HERMAN LEADS ROBINS TO WIN OVER CARDINALS

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 8—(AP)—With Babe Herman showing the way, the league leading Brooklyn Robins pounded out an 11 to 5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals today.

Herman was at bath four times, hit safely four times, including two homers, scored four runs and drove in a like number. In his home run activities he was assisted by Wright and Flowers, who got one each.

Meanwhile Ray Phelps was breezing to his twelfth triumph of the season, letting the Cards down with ten scattered hits, one of which was a circuit drive by Hafey. Haines started for the Cardinals but had to be relieved by Lindsey in the fifth.

HOMERS BY GRIMM AND BLAIR WIN FOR CUBS

CHICAGO, Aug. 8—(AP)—Home runs by Charlie Grimm and Clarence Blair, coupled with effective pitching by Bush, gave the Cubs a 6 to 1 victory over Boston in the first game of the series today.

The National League champions had a 2 to 0 lead going into the seventh when they put on a batting spree at the expense of Sock Seibold. The assault included the homers of Grimm and Blair. Boston's single run was the result of a personal effort of Berger, who found Bush for a home run in the ninth. A perfect throw to the plate in the sixth by Kiki Cuyler completed a double play and halted the most serious Brave effort. Score;

IDEALS AND THERMOS CLASH IN FIRST GAME OF SERIES SUNDAY

Hear ye, Hear ye. On Sunday the baseball war between Tony Bernard's Ideals and the Thermos Bottle club will be resumed after an armistice of nearly a week. The scene of this bloodless conflict will be the J. B. Martin field in Taftville where many a good ball club has flourished only to be cut down by a stronger opponent. More incentive for victory was given the Ideals when they got honorable (?) mention in the battle of protests by the City league arbitration board last night.

When the Thermos and Ideals try conclusions Sunday it is expected that the only available seats at game time will be the apple trees in centerfield. This game between these two clubs has caused more comment than the world's series and the interest is at fever pitch among the dyed-in-the-wool baseball fans who like their baseball played according to regulation. It is not necessary to print the rules that will govern this game as Hank Morin will announce the ground rules in his melodious voice just before play starts. Both teams have agreed to file no protests the next day.

But on the level and all joking aside, this game on Sunday will be well worth seeing as each club has a strong line-up which include some of the best players in eastern Connecticut. Both teams are determined to win, the Ideals to show that their victory in the twilight league was no fluke and the Thermos to show that it was.

Bob Shaw will be on the mound for the Ideals with Jimmy Murphy behind the bat. The Thermos will use either Nickerson or Kotch on the mound.

PHILLIES POUND BENTON TO WIN FROM REDS

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 8—(AP)—Philadelphia opened its final series of the year here today by driving Benton from the mound and slugging out an 8 to 5 victory. Brickell, recently acquired by the Phils from Pittsburgh played a spectacular game. He singled and tripled in five times at bat and made a remarkable long running catch of Durocher's drive to the flag pole with two on base.

The Reds, far behind, obtained some consolation runs in the ninth, singles by Walker and Meusel, a double by Stripp, two passes and an infield hit accounting for three runs.

NEARLY 200 CANADIAN ATHLETES READY FOR MEET

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 8—(AP)—Nearly 200 athletes comprising the dominion's best were assembled here tonight in readiness for the Canadian track and field championships tomorrow. The meet also will decide the personnel of the team to be entered in the Empire games at Hamilton a week later.

In the 100-meter dash, Percy Williams of Vancouver, the Olympic sprinting king, will race a crack field including Leigh Miller, Johnny Fitzpatrick, and Ralph Adams, all of Hamilton, and Harry Warren, Vancouver.

Williams, who was clocked at 9 4-5 for a 100-yard dash on grass on Wednesday, believes he is in better form than when he was beaten by Eddie Tolan, University of Michigan Negro, earlier in the season.

BATTALINO GETTING IN SHAPE FOR BOUT WITH TAYLOR

HARTFORD, Aug. 8—Bat Battalino is hard at work for his return bout with Bud Taylor, the "Terre Haute Terror," to be staged Monday evening, August 18, at the Hurley Stadium in East Hartford.

Bat has chafed under the defeat Taylor handed him out in Detroit several months ago and has been awaiting this chance to redeem himself.

Right now the champion is doing road work and going through the usual gymnasium routine, bag punching, calisthenics, and the rest, but he will not start boxing until next week, giving his injured right eye, opened when Cecil Payne butted him in their bout at Cincinnati, a chance to heal thoroughly.

Taylor is due in Hartford on Sunday and Monday will begin training at Hart's Tourist Camp, located on the Berlin turnpike about a mile below the municipal links at Goodwin park. Eddie Long, Taylor's manager, and a sparring partner will accompany the Terre Haute blonde on the trip to Hartford.

The former meeting between Taylor and Battalino was a great battle with Taylor getting the decision. He had the champion on the floor early in the fight and had a wide margin on him in in-fighting while Battalino was well out in front in the long-range milling. It was a gruelling fight.

BOARD SUSTAINS PROTEST OF THERMOS

The arbitrators of the City league at a meeting last night took up the much protested Thermos Bottle-Ideal game and decided that the affair would stand a 4-4 tie. They further ruled that the two clubs would play off the contest after all the other regularly scheduled games have been finished. According to this, the contest will be played on the night of August 27.

As will be remembered, the Ideals finished on the long end of a 5 to 4 score at the end of six innings on the night of July 29. The following day the game was protested by Bill Hastedt, manager of the Thermos on the grounds that the winners had scored two instead of one run in the opening inning of the game because of a misinterpretation of ground rules. The Thermos protest was upheld by the league governors and they made the official score 4-4. Bernard, Ideal manager, then entered a counter protest, claiming that the Bottlers had also benefited by a misinterpretation of the ground rules.

The governors, however, found that the latter protest was without grounds and accordingly made a final decision.

Ruth Alexander, whose flying has won records on the west coast, plans a non-stop flight from Agua Caliente to Vancouver and later, to her home at Irving, Kas.

Paarpoint corporation vs. E. Worth Co., Ltd. Continued two weeks.

Writ of meane process — Thomas Michaelvich vs. Charles H. Main.

Criminal docket — Robert Kamm, charging a violent assault, upon the manager of the Charlestown airport. Continued two weeks for trial.

State vs. Leon Sinclair of Bar Harbor, Me. This case grew out of an automobile accident at Hope Valley, R. I., when the defendant, aged 24, fell asleep at the wheel of his auto in Hope Valley, on July 7th, and having picked up two marines at Bridgeport, one Edward Dee Melton, was so badly injured that he died at the Westerly hospital where all were taken. The complaint charged reckless operation of automobile so as to cause death and on which arraignment on Aug. 1st the defendant had pleaded not guilty and was released in bail furnished by Helen M. Leffey, of Malden, Mass. Attorney John J. Dunn, representing the accused, had the case bound over to the September term of Washington county superior court.

In the civil calendar, Judge Williams had himself declared disqualified in the case of Charles E. Chappell vs. Frank H. Brown of Ashaway and if Attorney Dunn, representing the plaintiff, and Attorney Ferguson, for the defendant, cannot reach agreement, the case was continued one week for trial by the court clerk or the papers will be transmitted to Judge James O. Watts of the second district court by agreement.

Michael D. G. Papalia vs. Holden P. Ballou was continued one week for trial, by agreement.

In the case of Charles G. Simpson vs. Russell L. Slocum the statement was made that the plaintiff submits to decision from the defendant to recover costs.

In the manslaughter trial, Marcus L. Whitford, an attorney in Indiana, and former navy lieutenant, and father of Eleanor Whitford, whose death from being hit by the blasted stone occurred in the South county hospital and where her injured sister, Dorothy, now continues a patient in serious condition, took the stand as the first state's witness. He testified that the accident occurred about 12:20 p. m. on the day in question, when his wife and self occupied the front seat and the two daughters were in the back seat. Whitford testified that as he approached a point close to where the accident occurred he heard a man yell, and he either had something in his hand or stooped down to pick up something.

When the man yelled, Whitford said he stopped his car which was going between three to four miles an hour and reversed it. The car, he said, had backed up about two feet, when he heard a crash. The man, he said, was standing about 150 feet away.

The witness said he did not see the explosion, but heard the noise and the crash. The stone, he said, which he later identified in court, came through the top of the car, striking Eleanor. When he got out to go to her she lay on the floor.

A stone, apparently weighing about 25 pounds, and small pieces of stone, which Whitford testified were picked up in the back of his machine, were introduced by the state as exhibits, as well as the leather top of the car and four pictures which were taken of the machine after the accident.

Attorney Benjamin Lubchansky, of New London, for the defendant, with Associate Judge James O. Watts, of Wakefield, R. I., on cross-examination of Whitford, learned that he saw no warning signs on the highway. He said he doubted if he moved his car over two feet after he put it in reverse. He said he paced the distance roughly from the car to the point of the explosion and he judged it to be around 175 feet. Whitford said that another man came from the right of the highway and passed in front of his car just at about the time of the crash.

Elisha J. Card of Hope Valley, 17 years old, testified that he was working on the Charlestown road setting poles for Mr. Jerue on July 25. He said he was about 300 feet from Mr. Whitford's car when the crash came. Card told the court of another blast about 15 minutes before the second one, the latter hurled the stone. Card said he had heard no warning of the blast.

Contractor Jerue, of Hope Valley, who was engaged in the work of setting telephone poles in the highway, testified to hearing three dynamite blasts on the day in question. He said he had been warned that there would be blasting and thought all were over when two had been fired. He warned the men working for him to move back and thought that the 300 or more feet the stone traveled was an unusual distance.

In the afternoon session, Prosecutor Ferguson impeached much of the testimony given by Joseph Benvenuti, who drilled the two-foot deep holes in which Redento Tunucci, the defendant, placed the load before he made the fatal blast.

A motion for a dismissal of the case after a long hearing was denied the defendant's attorney, and the defense testimony was put on with Joseph Benvenuti as the first defense witness. Prosecutor Ferguson previously told the judge that an unsuccessful attempt had been made to get the district medical examiner before the court and that a trooper from the Hope Valley barracks had been unsuccessful in the quest.

The defendant, Redento Tunucci, on the witness stand in his own defense, testified to 15 years' experience and on the fatal blast a 1-2 stick had been used of 40 per cent dynamite but that nothing had been done to cover the blast as the drill holes had been put in sideways to send the rock sideways into the fields by the roadside. Judge Williams found the defendant probably guilty and he was bound over to the September term of Washington county superior court, in the sum of $2,500 bail.

FAITHFUL CARRIER ASHBY GETS VACATION AFTER 30 YRS.

John K. Ashby, local mail carrier who has been on the job for 30 long years and has worn out 30 green carts and 62 pair of shoes, has served under 6 different postmasters. He is always on the job, never has been late or missed trains in those long years. In the summer, Happy John has to make several trips to get the mail that goes to Groton Long Point. The distance from the railroad station to the post office is around one quarter of a mile. Everybody knows when John leaves the station, for he is always whistling "Beautiful Kate," or "Over There." He can remember snowdrifts, when it took him over 20 minutes to get out with his green cart or sled. Sometimes he had to be pulled out by a pair of horses. Around Christmas time, in one week 400 bags of mail will be landed at the village post office for the holidays.

Whistling John sure is kept busy. Sworn in by the late Dr. Weaver, of Pearl street, he can see many changes—many old-timers have gone to another world. The shipyard once had 12 barges under way at once, with over 800 men, making more noise than the World war. John is lame, but sure can cover some ground. It is funny to hear him tell about the morning the Big Ben clock never went off and he almost over-slept. He had ten minutes to go up to the office and get the mail down to the station. Running up the road, one shoe on and the other in his hand, going like a 100-yard dasher, the sweat rolling off him in drops big as balls on the Stonington course, he got Uncle Sam mail on the train two minutes ahead of time. "Gee! that was a close call and the fastest I ever made it on the run!" he said.

People get medals for saving someone in the water, who almost gets a call to Davey Jones' locker, but this gray haired carrier doesn't get any medal for his record and faithful services. With a smile he says that he will carry the mail until Al Smith is made president of the United States. Seeing the summer people come each year and go and having a real rest at the shore, Whistling John is still on the job without a day off. So Edward Andrews, who runs a market on Pearl street says, "Why don't you have a vacation of a week?" "Can't get anyone to carry the mail!" So Eddie told him if he wanted to go he would carry the mail, and not to worry.

John went home that night and was dreaming of his first vacation in 30 years, and was some happy to think he could be away from the mail for a little while. The time at last came, and the faithful mail carrier had on his new clothes and soft boiled shirt and a straw hat, nice black shoes, all ready for the capital city of Connecticut, known as Hartford, to see his sister. John made a mistake—he was going at 6 o'clock in the morning by automobile but got up at 3 o'clock and waited, all dressed for the auto to come. It seemed a week long, so he thought he would light a match to look at his watch and it was 5:30. Not going back to bed, but putting on the coffee pot and getting something to eat, soon the auto horn blew and John was ready for his vacation, off for a rest and having the best time of his life. He saw Hartford for the first time and when his vacation was up he came back to the village, ready for his job again. He told about his trip to Mr. Andrews, who did his friend a kind favor. Happy John says he never saw such a city for traffic. "Believe me, a fellow's got to keep going if he doesn't get run over!" He saw such beautiful flowers in Betty park he took a snap shot of them and shows the pictures. "I gained 8 1-4 pounds in that week and sure enjoyed it, my first vacation!" he says. It took Happy John over two hours to tell about his trip. Faithful John is back behind the green cart, good for 30 more years for Uncle Sam. All the villagers hope that John lives to be a hundred and will still be carrying the mail.

A Mother's Song

At the door of a gorgeous drinking dew
He stood with a frown on his boyish face
While friends stood round and urged him on
To enter the tempting place.

The scene was bright and cheerful,
They greeted him with a smile,
All else was then forgotten
And he stopped to chat a while.

The men around him gather,
They banter him as they stand,
With a foaming glass of liquor
Extended in each hand.

"Now what's the matter, old fellow,"
You're not in a lion's den,
It's only a game and a drink, boy
Among the bravest of men.

But he seemed to shrink in a frightened way
But they laughed as they took him along,
"Ah, now, you must not look like that
But come and sing us a song."

He said, "My friends, I cannot sing
For the only songs I know
Are hymns my mother used to sing
To me so long ago.'

"Sing us one," a rough voice said,
"No doubt there's some one here
Whose memories of a home are bright
And a mother's songs are dear."

Then smiling as he glanced around,
"You'll join with me," he said.
His voice was a trifle husky
But he proudly raised his head.

The silence seemed to deepen,
The room was very still,
And men who never thought of prayer
With tender memories filled.

And what a spell those old hymns wrought
As on and on he sang;
Man after man joined in the songs
Until the rafters rang.

They joined and sang that grand refrain,
Till every crannie of that hall
Re-echoed with the sweetest strain
Of "Crown Him Lord of All."

The song is done, the echoes die,
And still no sound is heard.
It's plain to see that every heart
By that old hymn is stirred.

The boyish voice than spoke again;
"It's time that I should go."
There came from many a bearded lip
A "Thank you," whispered low.
For the hymns a mother taught her boy
So many years ago.

THE CAPTAIN'S DAUGHTER.

We were crowded in the cabin:
Not a soul would dare to sleep;
It was midnight on the waters,
And a storm was on the deep.

'Tis a fearful thing in winter
To be shattered by the blast,
And to hear the rattling trumpet
Thunder, "cut away the mast."

So we shuddered there in silence;
For the stoutest held his breath
While the hungry sea was roaring
And the breakers talked of death.

As thus we sat in darkness,
Each one busy with his prayers,
"We are lost!" the captain shouted
As he staggered down the stairs.

But his little daughter whispered,
As she took his icy hand,
"Isn't God upon the water,
Just the same as on the land?"

Then he kissed the little maiden
And he spoke in better cheer:
And we anchored safe in harbor
When the morn was shining clear.

HAPPINESS

Why am I happy? I can't help but be,
In the midst of this ocean of Gladness;
That blots out the memories of heart-ache and sadness;
I would that more knew what it means to me.

Watching and hoping, to wait day by day
For the old friends whose faces we know;
And the new ones, each with its own splendor and glow,
Our faith and our work to repay.

How can I be happy when others are sad?
I'm doing my bit to make the world brighter,
Banishing cares, making burdens seem lighter,
Through spreading the message,
"Grow Glads and Be Glad."

GOOD TIME AT PICNIC

Dear Cornerites: A few words of appreciation for the enjoyable time at Alfara's picnic, July 30th. Such an abundance and variety of good things. I must confess, I yielded to temptation and consequently I had to go on short rations for a while after. I'll wager Alfara and her staff of helpers did not need to be rocked to sleep after their strenuous day. The weather being perfect, there were members from miles around and there was ample room for all under the canvas.

Foxglove is planning to have a picnic Aug 13th, and as Hartford is only 18 miles from Southington, I shall make an effort to go. I read Cassagnac's letter of Aug. 2nd, and I'm so sorry that she considered my letter a jumble of wet propaganda. Now, in justice to myself, I want to say that I put in thirty years of my life working against the saloon and its degrading influence, and every word she says about is true, but from my personal observation, I can say truthfully that prohibition has accomplished little. I know I did not venture any plan that would better conditions, as longer and wiser heads than mine have puzzled their brains over this matter and seem no nearer a solution, but something will have to be done, as the country is combating a force far more dangerous than war, because of its secretiveness, and public luke-warmness of cooperation, either through fear, or an inclination to "let the other fellow do it." Of course we know that alcohol will always be manufactured, as it has its uses in the manufacturing of different medicines. Why, even Lydia Pinkham would go out of business, as it contains a percentage of alcohol as a preservative. Some of our greatest workers on enforcement have thrown up their hands and admitted they were getting nowhere under the present enactment. My letter a few weeks ago merely expresses the opinion of a large majority of open-minded men and women who are not afraid to express their opinions on a matter so serious and so vital to the welfare of our country. Remember we are fighting millionaire bootleggers who have well-paid agents, who in turn corrupt our officials, who are our only hope of winning in this war for prohibition. The bootlegger has replaced the saloon who makes a big profit because he has no license to pay and floods the "speakeasy" with poison liquor.

Well, we are in the experimenting stage, and we must creep before we walk, but I have no doubt some wise brain will formulate a plan that will prove to be satisfactory to all. Best of wishes to all the sisters and our editor, and as Phil Cock says over the radio, I hope to meet you subsequently.

SIS HOPKINS.

THIRST QUENCHER RECIPES

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Here is a recipe for an unusual beverage that is inexpensive and always suitable, no matter what the season of the year.

Coffee punch: In a bowl place a block of ice. Make your coffee by the drip method, which means it should be finely ground and that it will be full of fragrant flavor. The coffee should be fully a half stronger than usual because of the dilution by the ice. For this punch use four quarts of coffee. Pour it over the ice and add a cup of heavy cream and two-thirds of a cup of powdered sugar. Next comes a quart of vanilla ice cream which should be placed in the punchbowl in large spoonfuls, and a cup of chopped maraschino cherries and their juice. When thoroughly chilled this punch makes a popular drink and the above quantity will serve a large party of thirsty people.

Here is a recipe for a beverage that is delicious. Try it some day and note the flavor:

Iced tea: Make an old-fashioned pot of tea and set it aside to cool. Two or three hours later, strain and squeeze the juice of one lemon into the liquid. Stir in three tablespoons of sugar. Pour the whole into a larger dish filled with pieces of ice. Serve when thoroughly chilled with slices of lemon or orange.

Here is another thirst-quencher, the following quantity being sufficient for sixteen liberal glasses.

Ginger sorbet: Chop fine one-half pound of candied ginger and add it to two quarts of water and two cups of sugar. Boil for fifteen minutes. Cool and add enough water to make ten cups of liquid. Then add one cup of lemon juice and the juice of four oranges and serve in glasses half filled with crushed ice or diluted with ice water.

MY GAZING GLOBE

Dear Social Corner: Have you a gazing globe in your garden? While riding about the country I have noticed a number of these shiny spheres and one day I told my family that I had one. They had never noticed it and were quite mystified when I told them how I enjoyed looking at its reflected views while at work in the kitchen. Then I had to show them what I was talking about and they agreed that the glass in the back door was as good as a costly gazing globe set on a pedestal in a fine garden.

Now come with me for a moment and we shall see what my gazing globe reflects for us today. There is the blue sky, the green of grass and trees, the little path between the lilacs and the crimson ramblers, the white house across the drive, the wooded hillside and in the distance back on the hill another white farmhouse. Close by the back door there is an apple tree and over by the garden wall we see the children swinging in a hammock beneath another tree. Do you wonder at my liking to pause to catch these pretty pictures as I go in and out?

I have just read "God's Garden," that fine poem sent in by Aries. There are so many people who never see or appreciate the beauty of His garden. If we had to work to grow them, the wild flowers would mean more to some of us. Not one of the four different kinds of lilies that I planted has blossomed. But down in the swamp meadows and along the roadside there are many turk's cap lilies. Son brought me a big bouquet of them and the room was filled with their fragrance. On the garden wall there is a wild clematis vine in full bloom. No one knows how it came there but it is so pretty that we have let it stay and spread as it will.

Aries: From one of your letters I guess that you and I live in adjoining towns. I should like to see your "Happy Thought Garden" for your description sounded very interesting.

Try Again:—Why haven't we heard from you lately? I hope that your health has improved and that we shall meet again sometime, but not at the place where I saw you last. Mother isn't there now as they let her go home the last Friday in July.

PICKLED WATERMELON RIND?

Dear Corner Writers: Will some one kindly give a recipe for sweet pickled watermelon rind? A friend asked me to get this recipe through the Corner. This may have been given on the Corner page recently, but, if so, she has missed it, and the favor of its repetition will be greatly appreciated by her and me.

One of the writers, earlier in the year, told of a humming bird coming up to her window in which was a red geranium. This brought to mind an experience of mine some years ago.

We had nasturtiums covering a high back fence. I was gathering some and, with quite a bunch of the spicy-scented flowers in my hand, I was stooping to gather the flowers near the ground. A humming bird approached and remained whirring its wings in front of my face a few seconds. A little fearful of that long bill, so near my face, I kept myself as motionless as possible, and, to my delight, the tiny creature came and sipped the sweets from the flowers in my hand.

Many weeks ago a writer told of flowers in her garden which were like delphiniums, but smaller and more delicate in appearance. As I have not seen the paper every week, she may have learned what they are before now.

From her description, I thought it was larkspur, which is also, I understand, delphinium, but an annual and smaller, the horn being more noticeable and the flowers more delicate.

I have only a slight acquaintance with hardy delphinium so maybe I am not qualified to speak on the subject, but larkspur, a friend from childhood days, is to me much more beautiful. I like the blue larkspur, I call that shade inspiriting blue. Bachelor's buttons also have it in a slightly different shade. And, indeed, I do not care very much for either larkspur or bachelor's buttons in any other color. When I hear or read the names of these two flowers, I see blue which, all will agree, is a better state of mind than "seeing red."

All success to the garden lovers and good wishes to all from

ON TIPPING

Dear Social Corner Editor and Members: I read an article the other day titled "The Courteous Way," that set me to wondering. This told one the proper way to act upon a pullman or in a hotel. "Order what you want from the menu and when you pay your bill tip the waiter a quarter for all meals but dinner, which means a slightly larger tip. As you near your destination, let the porter brush and dust you when he asks and tip him then at least a quarter. Tip him about fifty cents a day on long trips."

I wonder why one feels they must tip waiters and porters. Do you tip the boy that delivers the groceries at your home or the repair man that fixes your phone? Do you tip or thank the man that delivers your mail no matter when the sun shines or it rains or hails? If ill and in hospital do you tip the nurse when she brings your tray or serves you in any way? How about the schoolteacher? Does she get an extra quarter a day to train your children the proper way? As for the Sunday school teacher, how about her pay?

No, Theoda, I had not heard about the new grand niece. I wonder is it E. baby? I haven't seen E. for over fifteen years. Have you any butterfly weed in your wild flower garden, if so, when is the proper time to transplant it? I have tried two years and failed.

Virginia: Where is the answer to that puzzle? I have looked in vain, was the answer "Air"?

I should have enjoyed being at your picnic Alfalfa, what an ideal day! Hope we have several reports about it in the Corner. If I know who is who I went to school with your son at one time. Does he live at home?

I hope Little Sister and all other sick ones are much improved.

TWO WONDERFUL DAYS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Just a few lines to tell you about two wonderful Social Corner days. The one spent at Canterbury Bell's was a most pleasant one, lovely day, delightful grounds, with flowers in bloom everywhere, and an appetizing dinner. A very pleasant social time after dinner, of music and readings. Meadow Lark sang for us, then Triplets recited a humorous one about a German family, and Calamity Jane rendered The Stein Song, then all joined in singing America and other songs.

Canterbury Bell was so generous with slips of flowers, about everyone had some to carry home. I told her her flowers would be growing all over the state. Canterbury Bell, am sure we extend our sincere thanks for all your kindness. It was through the kindness of Helper, I attended the dinner. Many thanks to her also.

Alfara invited us to a picnic at her home in North Windham.

Seventy were present. We were all together in a large tent, tables and seats were there for all. Then dinner was served. Beans and salad, chicken pie, mashed squash and string beans, mashed potatoes and sliced cucumbers, sandwiches, rolls, pie and cake and cheese, hot coffee and ice cold root beer, in fact we had everything good to eat. It was a feast. After dinner, music and dancing were enjoyed. Alfara, thank you again for a most enjoyable day.

Nema: Was so pleased to see you, did not know until later, the sad time you have had. It is so hard to part with our dear ones.

I called Foxglove, and Aug. 13 is the date for her picnic, Hope I can attend.

Here's hoping we will soon have rain.

OLGA.

RAIN-MAKERS WELCOME

Dear Social Corner Friends: The Reader's Digest gives some bright stories in each number on its repartee page. Here is one I am sure will appeal to all of us who have sadly watched our flower gardens perishing beneath an almost tropical sun. "A few years ago, Helen Keller toured the country and lectured on the subject of 'Happiness.' After each lecture the audience was given the opportunity of asking her questions. Everything from the sublime to the ridiculous was asked. Her ready repartee was shown in the following:

Gentleman: "Can you feel colors?"

Helen Keller: "Yes, I can feel blue."

I guess that is the color we amateur gardeners can feel too. A few days ago I remarked to the goodman that while most of us were using considerable energy in bemoaning the fate of vegetation in general some few of the type who "stand out above the crowd," would doubtless be using their gray matter in thinking out some plan whereby a measure of relief might be obtained. So it was with special interest that I noted in yesterday's Bulletin that an enterprising Virginian had ordered rain powder from Mexico to be used on the clouds above his section of the Old Dominion. A hearty welcome is assured to any rain-makers. We may well be thankful to those enterprising spirits who act instead of wailing and whose motto is "Never say die!" One can but fonder at such a time on the great waste of water that goes on. Some using this precious fluid so carelessly, so also in the case of food and clothing. There will be no lack of problems for keen minds to solve for a long time yet. I was glad to read Cassagnac's thought provoking letters and am hoping she will write often. Do favor us again while you are camping, Friendly Voice. Your letter reminded me of Whittier's lines: "Give to us the cedarn valleys, Rocks and hills of Maine!"

With best wishes PEN AND INK.

DILL PICKLES RECIPE

Social Corner Editor and Sisters: In a recent issue of your paper I noticed a request for recipe for dill pickles, so I am sending one that I have tried and found to be the same as the ones we buy at the stores, and which cost so much.

Dill Pickles: Put cucumbers, any size you wish, into jars or barrels four inches deep, then a layer of dill one inch deep, then another layer of cucumbers and one of grape leaves. Alternate the cucumbers with dill and grape leaves until jar or barrel is filled. Make a pickle of four gallons of water to one of cider vinegar and four cups of salt. Stir well and pour over cucumbers.

FOXGLOVE'S PICNIC

Dear Social Corner Editor: Have received several telephone calls and letters in regards to my pinic. Do not wonder you made a mistake, as I have been laboring under the impression that this week was the week of the 13th. My picnic is Wednesday, Aug. 13, (not 18). Hope all roads will lead to Southington that day. Please correct the date as you have it Aug. 18 instead of the 13th. Thank you.

THE KITCHEN TOUR

Dear Social Corner Sisters: There was a request in Saturday's Social Corner for an account of the kitchen tour July 9th. I will try to tell you about my trip that day and what impressed me most.

Tuesday was a very busy day with us planning and leaving things around here so that the family wouldn't miss us too much. In the evening it looked as though it might rain the next day, but the morning finally arrived, and as some one said "A day made for the Farm Bureau folks." It coludn't have been better.

We left home a little before 9 as we were to go for some friends of ours from a nearby town. After getting our load we were ready. Five women and a small girl. We started for the Military Highway where they were to meet in front of the new county home, where we could overlook the state hospital and its grounds.

We found about 15 cars there and more arriving all the time until when we left at 10 o'clock there must have been from 25 to 30 cars. We were given a small flag to be placed on the left side of our car and two green diamond shaped tags marked "New London County Farm Bureau Kitchen Tour", one for the front and the other for the rear.

Leaving there about 10 o'clock we passed by the state hospital where we noticed their roads and walks bordered by geraniums and white washed stones. Over the draw bridge and down to Gales Ferry where we swung to the right and through the village until we came to a pretty house under some trees where we all alighted. Such a crowd couldn't get into one house at a time so eight or ten went in at a time as there was more room more could go in. In the front door where at the right was seen a breakfast nook where an addition had been built on especially for it, around through the house, out the front door and into our cars, and off again.

I forgot to tell you the line was led by a state policeman who when we came to a crossing where there was much traffic he would stop his motorcycle and act as traffic cop, giving the tour the right of way. Want to say that while in New London the tour had the right of way, did not stop for red lights or signals of any sort. The cop on ahead seemed to open the way.

We skirted New London, out most to Ocean beach, we went to Waterford where we got out again. Here while waiting to climb quite a long flight of stairs we greeted our friends in the crowd. It was here that I saw one of my near neighbors for the first time, that day didn't even know she was planning to go on the trip. Climbing the stairs, we saw a very pretty kitchen all done in green and white, furniture painted green, linoleum on the floor mostly green, the side walls were green.

As we were going down the front stairs met Grace who told us to go back the front steps were broken. Too many women to pass over one set of small steps at a time.

To our cars, down the road a short ways, and back by a large farmhouse over a small bridge, past a large golf course where we left our cars, and walked a short distance to a private beach where we had our basket lunch with lemonade served by the farm bureau folks.

Such sand as there was on this beach, you don't often see. So nice and white and lots of it. An airplane passed over while we were eating. An ideal spot for the afternoon but we must be on our way and coming back the other side of the city we came up along the waterfront, past the children's bathing beach, through the business part of the city and over the drawbridge to Groton. By this time there were 31 cars in line. Here we saw a can opener and knife sharpener on the wall, also an outdoor window refrigerator, but what impressed me most was the old fashioned dishes and oh so many of them. At least two china closets full and shelves all around the room. The dining room seemed full of them.

From there to Old Mystic, past a friend's house but no time to stop. Here we saw where an old chimney ha dbeen removed to make room for a modern bath room. We were ready for a drink of water by this time. The stores handling ice cream did a big business while we stayed but I don't think the men and boys in the mill across the street did much.

Now over country roads to Cider hill where I saw an old fire place had been painted a light color to make the room lighter. In this the wood box had been placed. Some one here wanted to know where the cider mills were.

Once more on our way towards the Westerly road, now we could hear thunder rumble once in a while. Now there was a line of 34 cars with 150 women and it wasn't any wonder the men in the hay fields and by the side of the road stopped work and watched us as we went by. As some one said, "All these women after one man," meaning the state policeman.

We stopped at Preston Plains when we saw a modern house with all up to date appliances.

One more stop to be made but more thunder so we decided to quit and go home. Wasn't in the thunder shower but was in a hard rain for about the last six miles. We arrived home after driving a distance of over 80 miles, a tired crowd but had seen quite a lot of country we had not seen before.

It seemed remarkable to me with so many cars for such a distance and no accidents of any kind, only one flat tire. And then the men make fun of women drivers.

Hope there will be other letters, would like to read what others thought of it. Yours for the success of the Corner.

FORGET-ME-NEVER

HOW GARDENS SUFFER

Dear Social Corner Members: Will anything at all be left of our gardens after all this heat and dryness? I went out into my garden early this morning and again early in the afternoon and after that—well—I haven't any great desire to inspect it tonight—I'm afraid my dreams wouldn't be happy ones!

Pernickety's Paradise, Betsy Bobbett? Rather I should say Pernickety's Purgatory these days! Isn't it discouraging though, to see the flowers dry up and die?

I think that tomorrow I shall try mulching at least one bed of gladioli with rotten manure and leaves from the bottom of the hotbeds. I shall hoe the ground up well first, of course, and then water them and then spread a thick layer of mulch. Do you think it will work? My first gladbloom opened this morning. Chateau Thierry, as usual, the earliest to come, but what a poor specimen it is! I didn't even bother to pick it and as a general thing I can't resist picking them.

Two letters from Social Corner members which I have received lately have pleased me very much—one from Samantha and another with some pink pyrethrum seeds from Betsy Bobbett. I was so very glad to get them for I admire the pink flowers and have wished that I might have at least one to replace the plant which winterkilled two years ago.

It has seemed too dry to think of planting the perennial seeds in the coldframe. It is out on the hill where the sun beats down all day and the poor things would dry up before they could ever have a chance to come up.

Lady of Fairchance: The double lily you gave me opened yesterday. Isn't it odd! I counted five distinct layers of petals instead of the usual one and I was rather surprised to find that it was almost exactly the same shades as the old, common kind. All the plants you gave me, lived and have grown well. The boltonia is trying hard to grow taller than the pear tree near it and the physostegia is full of buds—it does look much different than mine.

Someone told me today that I talk like a seed catalogue! I wonder if that is really true? Perhaps I had better stop talking quite so much and give other people a little more chance to express their opinions!

PERNICKETY

ANIMAL PETS

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: Our page has been so scant lately I felt I should do my bit toward keeping it full.

Sumac: I laughed over your story of the skunks. An uncle of mine, out hunting, killed a mother skunk and found several babies in the nest. He carried them home alive and kept them. There was never any odor from them as they were perfectly tame and could be handled like kittens. In fact, they played with the kittens and the mother cat mothered them, too. Sometimes when he went to the store the little skunks would follow him, tagging along like dogs. After awhile they died. He always thought their deaths were caused by fleas, caught from the cats.

My mother often tells of a squirrel which her mother once had. A son-in-law gave her a baby squirrel which he had captured. Her cat had kittens and she placed the squirrel with them. The mother cat gave it the same care as her own babies, nursing it and washing it. When it grew up it had a cage but the door was always open and it came and went at will.

Here is something I discovered about "lightning bugs." When I was a child I was told that the glow we see from them was caused by the lifting of wings. I always supposed it to mean that their body, under the wings, glowed and when they raised their wings it revealed the glowing spots. But one evening last summer I saw one alight on a window pane. It seemed to be a sort of brownish bug, probably an inch in length. I watched it raise its wings several times but saw no glow. I noticed that its body for about a quarter inch at the tail end was a sort of cream color. As I watched it this part suddenly glowed for a second or two with a bright light, then resumed its former appearance. It did this several times while I watched it. I can best describe it by saying it was exactly as if that part of its body were transparent and it had turned on a flashlight within it. Maybe you all know this, but I did not until then and I found it very interesting.

Lowthorpe and Meadowlark: Looked for you at our last meeting. Wanted to show you my kitten's picture. I weighed him again last week and he weighs 10 3-4 pounds.

AMERICAN GIRL (Club 6)

A REQUEST, A SUGGESTION, AND A THOUGHT

Dear Social Corner Friends: A very hot day and yet my duty inspires me to write at this time. Some time ago Sumac asked me to send in this recipe as she had eaten of it and pronounced it O. Kay.

Pineapple Rice: ½ cup rice cooked in two quarts of salted water until tender but unbroken. Drain and pour cold water through rice to prevent sticking, 2 cups of crushed pineapple, beat one cup heavy cream until stiff and sweeten with 1-3 cup powdered sugar, fold cream and pineapple into rice and serve in sherbert cups. Cherries or sugared strawberries on top if desired.

Pernicktey: May I suggest a name for your garden? (A Spot most Fair). I have a very lovely garden myself, and do enjoy picking and giving to those who have not any.

Betsy-Bobbett: I would be pleased to give you a bulb of Lemon Lilly, Day Lilly and also two other kind.

Scottis: My thoughts are with you continually.

Aunty No. 1: So glad to hear you are on the gain.

Joan, the faithful has passed on. She was a dear old lady, and how we will miss her. I love a letter she wrote me saying she did love the Social Corner, and enjoyed the meetings so much, was always so willing to play the piano for us all.

And life's long night is ended, and the way, lies open onward to eternal day. Best wishes to all.

TRUE BLUE.

GARDEN CARE WITHOUT WATER

Dear Editor Social Corner: A little note of thanks is due you for the prize slip received a week ago. I certainly do say thank you. How warm the sun is, how it takes the strength of many kinds of plants. Geraniums, phlox and verbenas seem not to mind it yet at all. As we cannot water our garden we stir lightly the top soil after a rain. This prevents evaporation and keeps the roots moist.

Pernickety: Sorry if you have lost your asters. I am disappointed too, in the Chinese for-get-me-not. It is a beautiful blue but loses the petals so soon leaving long stiff stems of seed pods or burrs that catch on and hold like the pitch forks, cockles and burdocks, known to us all.

Hope all the sick and shut-ins have a kind friend at hand these warm days.

ROYANCO.

SEEING LONDON SIGHTS

Dear Social Corner: Again I am in the old world, Europe. Sailed on Majestic, June 27. Nothing unusual happened on board ship. We had two stowaways, one a lad of 17. He was at the table of six college boys two mornings for breakfast and they asked "why." He disappeared but they soon found him. I do not know what they will do with him, but was told he must work his passage out and back in jail in England. The other was older in third cabin hiding. We landed at Southampton and took a train to London. It's a nice ride, so many lovely gardens. If there is only six feet of yard it's full of flowers of every color. We are in London for two days only. Decided to see Parlimentary square and public buildings. There is a column 177 feet high with statue of Nelson, huge lions by Landseer, and a beautiful monument to Edith Cavell at White Hall, the Cenotaph, white marble, England's memorial to her heroes of the World war. Visited the army headquarters and also saw the statue of our own Abraham Lincoln, Westminister Abbey, Scotland Yard, horse guards and royal guards. We saw them change horses. It's called parade, and it is. They come out by two's, line up with officer at head. He puts them through, as a little American boy said, "their stunts," a guard with banner heads them, another officer inspects them. They take out and return sword to scabbard with two jerks, all of it is done in jerks. Then outside guards come on horseback, dismount and their horses follow after them. This they do twice a day. They have scarlet coats, peek hat with scarlet fringe at back of peek and a wide gold chain under the chin. Much gold lace and bright gold braids, a breast plate of gold, white pants and high black boots that flair at the top. They stand

SHARP BREAK IN PRICES IN NEW YORK STOCK AND CURB EXCHANGES YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Aug. 8— (P)— The dribble of liquidation that had been coming into the stock market this week, suddenly swelled into a flood today, sweeping away most of the remnants of the July rally.

The price index of 90 leading shares dropped 6.2 points, the largest break since mid-June, when the market was approaching the bottom of the early summer decline. At the close, the composite figure stood at 161, the lowest since July 9, when it was 160.9. The year's low is 154.

Losses ranged from 2 to 9 points in popular investment stocks, although there was the usual number of more severe declines in erratic shares. Support was meager and the bear faction, which supplied the impetus for the break, failed to cover, leaving final prices the lowest of the day. The market was heavy at the opening.

Trading increased substantially, totalling slightly more than 3,300,000 shares, of which 900,000 shares changed hands in the last hour when the liquidation was at its height.

U. S. Steel, which on Tuesday sold as high as 170 1-4, came under severe pressure. The bears, deciding that the unfavorable operating figures constituted news well suited to their cause, offered the stock freely on the theory that a break below previous resistance points would open up the remainder of the market. With only minor interruptions, Steel slumped to 161 where it closed for a net loss of 5 1-2.

American Can was one of the weakest issues, tumbling 9 points, under liquidation based on the assumption that the drought would curtail the demand for its product.

American Telephone was another bear target, dropping 8 points to 202 3-8 against its year's low of 200 1-8. Air Reduction, Allied Chemical, Autostrop, Foster Wheeler, Ingersoll Rand, Underwood-Elliott-Fisher, United Aircraft, Diamond Match, American Foreign Power and Electric Power and Light, lost 4 to 6 points, Westinghouse Electric. American Tobacco B, Eastman Kodak, Houston Oil, and Stone and Webster, 6 to more than 8, and General Motors, General Electric, Radio, Bethlehem Steel, Gillette, Johns Manville, Standard Il of New Jersey. North American, Consolidated Gas and A. M. Byers, 3 to nearly 5. The largest loss was in J. I. Case, off 17 3-4. Vanadium and Worthington Pump broke 13.

Warner Brothers Pictures, whose directors omitted the quarterly dividend, closed off 6 3-4 at 28 1-8, a new low. Southern Railway, Transamerica, Rock Island, Louisville and Nashville and Corn Products also made new lows.

A renewal of profit-taking in the grains, partly inspired by reports of the possibility of rain, sent corn down about a cent and a half net. Wheat was unchanged to 1-2 lower.

Except for the French franc, which were firm, important foreign currencies eased. There was no gold movement

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(P)—A large wave of liquidation finally developed out of the recent ripples in today's curb market, and converging upon the utility shares, swept important issues 1 to 8 points lower.

Total sales were swelled to 614,500 shares, moderate in comparison with past performances. The decline was relatively moderate, when compared to the losses suffered by big board stocks.

Electric Bond and Share was the principal target of selling, declining four points to 76 in a heavy turnover. American Gas and Electric, recent firm spot, lost 5 1-2.

The natural gas issues were less actively sold, although United Gas and Missouri Kansas Pipe Line lost about a point.

In the industrials, Deere was subjected to bear selling on the basis of the prospect of impairment of the agricultural implement business by the drought. The stock dropped 7 to a new low at 65, then rallied to 70. Dresser class B stock and Aluminum company lost about 5.

In the oils, Gulf tumbled about 8 points to the year's low at 117. Humble lost about four, and Vacuum dropped nearly 3, then rallied 1. Cities Service dropped a point, but was quickly supported and cut its loss to 3-8, closing at 27 3-4.

In the investment company group, Goldman Sachs sagged about a point to another new low at 15 3-4.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—(P)— With the exception of a few prime investment issues, the forward movement of bonds was checked today in sympathy with the share market. Wide irregularities in price movement was mirrored in the closing prices with the domestic list of bonds suffering considerable unsettlement. Sales expanded to the highest point of the week, reaching $9,495,000.

The list of popular convertibles turned downward in the wake of equity issues, and losses averaged more than a point in about a dozen issues, with Warner Brothers 6s depressed the most on the movement.

Some liquidation developed in investment bonds. The performance of carrier obligations was of a mixed variety. About a dozen high grade issues soared to new highs for the year, with other carrier obligations ranging from steady to easy. The same was true, to a lesser degree utilities on comparatively thin sales. Foreign dollar bonds held steady. Quickened interest was displayed in U. S. governments and fractional gains were the rule.

Passing of a dividend by Warner Brothers, while partially discounted previously, caused further recessions in the convertible six per cent bond which sagged 3 1-2 points and then recovered about a point before the close, resting at the lowest figure of the year. Philadelphia, Reading Coal and Iron 6s, and Chicago and Northwestern 4 3-4s, St. Paul 5s and Chicago Rock Island and Pacific 4 1-2s lost about as much.

In the face of the downward trend, Canadian National 4 1-2s, Chesapeake and Ohio 4 1-2s "A," Chicago and Northwestern 4 3-4s. Pennsylvania 4 1-2s, New York Central refunding 5s and 4 1-2s, Great Northern 5s, Union Pacific 4 1-2s, New England 5s, and Boston and Maine 5s reached new 1930 peaks.

Best grade utilities ruled steady. American and Foreign Power 5s were active and sold around the year's peak price.

Liberty 4th, 4 1-4s, were quite active and sold up to within 1-32nd of the year's high before receding. Treasury issues were very firm, with the 4 1-4s gaining 1-5 of a point.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—(P)—Wild price fluctuations that for velocity and extent rivalled war time market changes, found a climax today in about 8c a bushel collapse in corn. Forecasts pointing to general relief next week from the drought that for weeks had devastating millions of acres of corn and other crops were mainly responsible for a quick reversal from new soaring of grain values. Wheat tumbled down 4c with corn, but brisk rallies both in corn and wheat prices were in progress as the day came to an end.

Corn closed extremely unsettled, 7 3-8a2c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Wheat closed irregular at 1-4c enet decline to 1-2c gain, oats 1-2c off to 1-8c up and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10c.

CONSEQUENCES

WHAT CHANCE HAD POOR MICHAEL OF RENOUNCING ROMANCE WHEN SECRETLY PURSUED BY A WOMAN SCORNED?

By
SARA J. WARDEL

LOVE is a game of consequences in which beauty plays no inconsequential part.

To Michael, even her name was beautiful. Lillian Lee. It sounded like water trickling over stones in the brook, like wind sighing in treetops on a summer night. Lillian Lee. It felt good when he rolled it around in his mouth, whispering it softly to himself.

For Michael, being an artist, was sensitive to beauty. It had an almost chemical reaction on his emotions. He could not exactly analyze the thing. It was too delicate. He only knew that beauty, wherever and in whomever he found it, went to his head like wine. And Lillian Lee was more than a beautiful name. She was a beautiful woman. He was in love with her and for six months now he had walked in the rarefied atmosphere of a dream.

But beauty is a bubble that bursts. It burst for Michael one late winter afternoon, when Lillian invited him to tea and told him that she was going to marry Spencer Fulton. She had never been lovelier than in the clinging tea gown that caught glints of the fire in its rosy gauze. But her voice was as brittle as the clink of silver teaspoons against eggshell china cups.

"Michael," she said coolly, "I'm going to marry Spencer Fulton. He has money and no idiotic notions about burying himself in the wilderness."

It was the subject of a six months argument. Lillian's father was an important trustee of the Art Museum. She wanted Michael to stay on as an instructor at the institute, painting works of art on the side which her father's influence would see hung in various galleries. There was dignity attached to such a position. They would live in Lillian's town house, use her town car, trot to Europe now and then, go south in the winter and occasionally Michael would sell a picture. The critics would give him favorable comments. Lillian's father would see to that. And she would be known as the wife of a highbrow young painter—

"Mrs. Storey, the Mrs. Michael Storey, my dear, Her husband paints those fascinating modernistic things that no one can understand."

But Michael, as soon as spring came and the roads were navigable, meant to move into the old stone house which he had bought in the country and design church windows. He wanted to take Lillian with him and make her his saint in stained glass. No operas, no supper-dances, no first nights, no formal dinner-dances! Lillian shuddered. Michael was the most romantic man she had ever known. It was hard to give him up. But Lillian was sensible enough to know that woman does not live by romance alone. So she said "yes" to Spencer Fulton, a middle-aged banker with a bald head and two ex-wives but the correct social background. And Michael, cursing the love of beauty that was his downfall, stumbled out into the gathering dusk of a chilly March evening, a disillusioned man.

IT WAS his night to criticize at the art school and, somehow, in a daze of pain, he got there. He found the students in an uproar. They thrust half a dozen newspapers at him. A girl's face smiled back. He stared at it stupidly.

"Miss Talbot's won a beauty prize, sir," chanted the yellow-haired, blue-smocked girl nearest him.

"And who the dickens," inquired Michael sourly, "is Miss Talbot?"

The class turned to point out a girl who sat on a high stool at an easel with her back turned. Now she switched around and her face was scarlet.

"It was only a joke," she stammered. "I just sent by picture in for fun."

Brown eyes appealed from under slim black brows. Copper curls, less permanent than they are advertised, danced as brazenly as if they were natural. Miss Talbot was a very pretty girl, but Michael saw her from behind smoked glasses. He was through looking for beauty in women. It was a snare that trapped idealistic young men and then let them down so hard that their toes stung. He walked over to her without a glance for such minor details as perfectly modeled features in a face so translucently white that it glowed with the pale luster of a star. Sternly he studied her canvas. It was an attempt to catch the lines of a classic figure, modeled centuries ago by an ancient sculptor.

"Rotten!" pronounced Michael. "You had, my dear young lady, better stick to beauty prizes. There's no future for a pretty girl but matrimony. She hasn't any business fooling around with art. I should advise you, Miss Talbot, to go get your man. But be practical about it. Make sure he has plenty of money. Art, romance and, I may add, beauty are mistakes, indulged in only by fools."

The rest of the class maintained a respectful and sympathetic silence. Miss Talbot sniffed. Michael turned rudely on his heel and walked out of the room. He was through with art classes. He was through with students. He was through with beautiful women. Everything was suddenly very unimportant.

The next day, though it was early March and the roads poor, he did what he had long threatened to do. He buried himself in the wilderness. His stone house was more or less of a ruin and he almost ended all his earthly sorrows by freezing to death. But there were several trusty fireplaces and Michael grew brawny chopping wood to fill their greedy maws. Nights he sat at the kitchen table and drew plans under the smoky flare of an oil lamp. They represented the changes he would make in the old place as soon as the ground thawed out. There was to be a trellised porch of stone flagging, open overhead to the stars; an old-fashioned garden of phlox and marigolds and hollyhocks; a guest house for his strictly bachelor guests.

The old barn adjoining the house would make a fine studio, with plenty of room for the scaffolding and all the rest of the massive equipment that goes with making church windows. There would have to be an electric kiln as soon as he got the wiring installed. Michael intended to build a little Gothic chapel for displaying his stained glass. But all that would have to wait.

THE house came first. He intended, ironically, to make it fulfill his every dream of beauty. It was to be the sort of home a woman craves, and when it was completed he would keep every member of her sex out of it. A jewel of a house it was to be, mellow old stone against a background of green foliage. A house-by-the-side-of-the-road kind of place, lighted windows shining through prim white curtains at night, smoke drifting idly upward from the red-brick chimney to tell of altar fires within. But the gods of his altar would be the disillusioned ones a woman-hater worships. Never again would he bow down to soft white flesh and the lying lure of its beauty.

So spring came again to the world and found Michael busy if not entirely happy. He turned the soil with his own hands and planted the hard brown seeds that the sun would later nurse into scarlet and purple flowers. He hammered and sawed and planed. One day, miraculously, he found himself singing above the whir of his tools. That night he knelt at the window, to sorrow with the plaintive wail of the whip-poor-wills, but the moon washed the garden in silver and he slept instead, his head on the sill. A man who works all day with his hands, his feet on the earth, has a hard time cultivating insomnia.

Gradually the place took shape. He named it Block House for the great hulks of gray stone that gave it permanency. No other building material would have satisfied his mood. Wood was too flimsy; stucco too cold; brick too crudely flamboyant. The foundation upon which he built this time must be lasting. Beauty was as necessary to Michael as food and drink. But it should be beauty built on a rock, not the slipping sands of a woman's smile; beauty that defied the winds of destiny and stood imperishable while the frailer castles of other men, reared to mortal goddesses, fell.

In the end Michael had what he wanted and was content to call it good. The great living room with its wide-boarded, waxed floors smiled and curtsied in the June sunlight like an old-fashioned girl in crinolines. Mirrored surfaces reflected the bowls of flowers that Michael picked every day and placed on table and broad window sills. The Boston rocker, bought on the first monthly anniversary of Lillian's wedding, stood in the corner under the 1790 sampler. The hooked rug, grim reminder of her second month of happiness, lay in front of the fireplace. The furniture had been rubbed until it shimmered mistily. The house had, in very truth, become Michael's mistress, and there was no care he was too weary to give it.

Every morning he mopped and dusted and scoured brass. Every evening he lit candle tapers and sat for long hours at the old mahogany piano, letting the keys ripple under his fingers as he played his house to sleep. Then softly he tiptoed from room to room, closing shutters and locking doors with all the caution of a man who wishes only happy dreams for his loved one.

IT WAS a pleasant fancy, but Michael woke one day with a rude shock to the fact a mistress, whether a house or a woman, needs money. He was already deeply in debt, for he had borrowed heavily to make the needed repairs on his property. Much as he hated to stop puttering around, doing delightful little intimate things for his house, it was high time that he went to work. He had long been neglecting orders for church windows. The Cleveland cathedral commission was bombarding him with requests for the first sketches.

So, with a wrench and many backward glances, he tore himself away from Block House every morning for an eight-hour vigil over the drawing board, where his designs were slowly taking shape. They were immediately approved by the board of directors and ordered completed at once. Michael was behind time and found himself in a predicament. The only solution lay in finding an apprentice to help him with the routine labor on the job. Any country boy with strong arms, straight back and a true eye would do.

Michael, his mind full of the problem, was driving up from the village with the back seat of the rumbling old flivver full of provisions when a lad in dingy blue overalls held him up for a lift. The youngster looked sturdy and his face, through its layer of red-orange freckles, was bright.

"Want to earn a little money, youngster?" asked Michael.

"You bet. Need somebody over to your place to clean up? Ma says you're all alone and it must look terrible without no women around to keep an eye on things."

"No thanks, kid. I make out all right alone. Not very fussy, I guess. But I want some one to give me a hand in the studio. Cut glass, you know; solder up the panes and do my firing. I make church windows."

The boy's eyes, behind the steel-rimmed spectacles that gave him owlish wisdom, snapped.

"Gosh, mister, I reckon you're an answer to prayer. I been making sketches and drawing things on paper for a long time. Clouds and trees and things like that. But I don't seem to get nowhere with it. I wanted to go off and study, only the folks can't spare me at home and there ain't much money."

Here was luck. Michael mentally patted himself on the back.

"What's your name, youngster, and where do you live?"

"Jo, sir. I'm 17 and I come from the farm over there on the hilltop."

That meant that the boy could go home nights. There need be no invasion of Block House, no one to spy on him or interrupt the sacred privacy of his dream.

"Fine business," said Michael, pulling up at the foot of his own driveway. "Be over bright and early tomorrow morning."

"Gee," sang the boy as he swung his bare feet out of the car, "that's the way even Michelangelo got his start, ain't it mister?"

Michael drove on thoughtfully. The almost frightened joy in the boy's face haunted him. One thing was sure. The kid was in earnest. He would make a good apprentice. Michelangelo! Tie that one! Michael smiled to himself.

But a shock was in store for him. He wakened in the morning to the sound of shrill whistling from underneath his window. It was too persistent for a bird. He looked at the clock. Quarter to 6! Michael rubbed his eyes and jumped out of bed. Then he rubbed his eyes again. For there, on his front doorstep, sat a girl! A very ragged one, to be sure, but nevertheless a thing that wore skirts.

"Who are you?" growled the owner of Block House, "and what do you want?"

The girl looked up, startled. Under the sprinkling of freckles her face paled.

"Why, I'm Jo, and you said to be here early. I've come to work."

Michael groaned. So the boy that wore faded overalls was a girl and he had hired her for his apprentice! Of course, it would never do. He was through with women, had sworn never to have one of them around the place. Somehow he must make excuses and get rid of her.

"I'll be down in a minute. Just wait—" he muttered, scrambling into his clothes.

But when he faced her in the cold light of early morning he found it hard to frame the words. She was so small and so intensely eager, like a kitten quivering with expectation of a bowl of cream.

"I'm afraid," stammered Michael, "that you won't do. You see, I thought you were a boy. A girl isn't strong enough to handle the heavy part of the work."

"But I am, mister," she pleaded. "I'm terrible strong. Look——"

SHE doubled up her thin arm in its muslin shirt until the muscle flexed and hardened.

"—— and I do so dreadfully want to learn how to be an artist."

Under the steel-rimmed spectacles her eyes were mute beggars. Michael stared at her helplessly. The scratched bare legs below the frayed hem of her corduroy skirt were oddly pathetic. The glare of the early sun on her plain, pale face was not kind to the scattering of red-orange freckles across the bridge of her nose. Her hair fell, stringlike, around her shoulders. Certainly there was no trace of beauty here, no hint of the thing he feared. And he was desperately in need of help. No harm in trying her out. He shrugged his shoulders

"Come ahead, then, I'll see what you can do."

What she could do proved to be enough. Jo attacked work with the savage fierceness of a tiger cat. It fell before her onslaught and Michael soon found that he would have difficulty keeping her busy. He set her a task calculated to last all morning and turned to his drawing board. Within an hour she was back at his side, hammering for more. He inspected what she had done and could find no fault with it. Obviously, he was not going to be able to fire her on grounds of laziness or incompetency.

"Wouldn't you like me to go up to the house and start lunch, sir?" she suggested as the shadows grew shorter and the day approached noon

"No!"

Michael frightened even himself with the violence of his explosion. The girl must not be allowed to enter Block House. It was his and no female thing could approach it. He softened his voice.

"You'll have an hour off every day, Jo. You can go home for dinner. I'll scratch up a bite for myself. Never eat much when I'm working hard."

Heavens, she'd probably tell her folks that he was a regular Bluebeard with a house full of skeletons. He'd have to be careful. These country folk were curious. There would be a sheriff's search warrant out against him.

But the girl was apparently satisfied. The next day she brought a lunch basket with her and offered to share it with him. He refused. Every noon he spent an hour in the house, sometimes just stretched out on the old horsehair sofa in the living room, breathing in the peace that the place spelled for him. The girl knew better than to disturb him. He had made that clear.

Usually he returned to find her already back at the workbench, filled with that insatiable hunger for art that continued to amaze him. At this rate, thought Michael with satisfaction, they would finish the first window on scheduled time.

Week followed week until autumn was upon them. It had been nearly six months now since Michael had read the newspaper reports of Lillian's elaborate wedding. He dated everything from that. The pewter dinner plates, the whale-oil lamp, the pie-crust table, the Boston rocker, the hooked rug and now the beautiful old Governor Winthrop desk stood as souvenirs of his sorrow. There was a certain grim satisfaction in spending the money he would have lavished upon a beautiful woman for the enhancement of her substitute. The house seemed to absorb some of his feeling for it. Michael fancied that at times she preened herself like a vain and lovely lady.

Three windows had been delivered and installed, thanks to Jo's tireless goading of him. When he was tired and would have preferred to lie under the elm tree, looking up at the sky and remembering his grief, she drove him on with her incessant demand for more work. She seemed a sexless little creature. Michael got to thinking of her as the neuter member of a beehive, one of the workers. Lillian had been a queen bee. He wondered whether she was driving Spencer Fulton as she had wanted to drive him.

Then one day Michael learned that beauty always demands its toll, whether it is the cruel beauty of a woman or the more impersonal beauty of a house. He was using the last faint twilight of a brilliant October day to stud his bedroom ceiling with silver stardust. Already a crescent moon hung there and all the splendor of the milky way. It was a room that captured the very spirit of night and yet, to the initiate of romance, did not promise sleep. Michael leaning forward to touch the tip of a five-pointed star with his brush, slipped and fell from the top of the high stepladder. There was a searing pain in his right shoulder, and when he tried to move his leg crumpled up under him.

"This," he said to himself as he lay stretched out on his back looking at his handiwork on the ceiling, "is one way of seeing stars!"

Somehow the night managed to drag itself out, with Michael sometimes cold and sometimes hot from the flashes of pain that ran through his body every time he tried to reach the bed. With morning would come Jo, and somehow she must be kept from rescuing him. But she was not that kind of a girl!

When 10 o'clock came and he had not yet appeared in the studio she went in search of him. Weak from pain and lack of food, he heard her fumbling with the lock and called out for her to leave him alone. Something in the tone of his voice must have told her that he was in trouble. For, horrible infamy, she pushed open the door, which he had not fastened the night before, and walked right in.

Michael hunched along his stomach across the floor, trying to reach the head of the stairs and ward her off. But a whirling black cloud swallowed him up. When Jo dropped to her knees beside him he was unconscious. She dragged him to the bed with arms that had not found leaded panes of glass too heavy. Then she yanked a dusty bicycle with a flat tire out of the woodshed and pedaled to the nearest village for a doctor.

"Fractured shoulder and broken ankle," pronounced the gentleman with the black bag an hour later. "Six weeks in bed."

Michael groaned. It hurt worse than having the smashed bones set, and that was bad enough. Afterward he was too weak to protest when Jo brought him a cup of strong black coffee and trickled it down his throat in teaspoonfuls. So she had been messing around in his kitchen already. She had found the shiny little percolator, the hot-dish holder shaped like a rooster, the tidy row of red and yellow pans. In the fashion of women she had probably peeped into every closet and drawer, including the supposedly secret ones of the Governor Winthrop desk! He swallowed the coffee and hated her.

Telegrams, sent via the doctor to Dave and Harry, his ancient allies of Latin Quarter days in Paris, were returned with the cheering message, "Not found at this address." Probably kicked out for not paying their rent or else hoboing over Europe, he surmised.

"I," announced Jo firmly the day of the returned telegrams, "am going to take care of you."

Considering the fact that he was flat on his back with nothing heavier than a pillow to throw at her, there was very little he could do except threaten to fire her when he got on his feet again. She took his wrath stolidly.

"Somebody's gotta feed you and clear up after your victuals," she told him. "Besides, the rose window's promised for next month. There ain't another person round here that could finish it. I'm staying."

Thereafter Jo took on two jobs. Half the day Michael lay in bed and cursed loudly at the constellations on his ceiling while he listened to the aggravating cheer of Jo's whistle from the studio. The rest of the time he lay in bed and cursed softly under his breath as he heard her moving about downstairs. By this time she had probably wrecked everything. The Boston rocker was undoubtedly out in the middle of the room instead of over in the corner under the 1790 sampler on the wall. The candlesticks were tarnished and the calico cushions in the armchair instead of primly in the corners of the horsehair sofa where they belonged. The flowers had not been changed since his accident. He was sure of it, but he stubbornly denied himself the privilege of giving her any instructions. No Michael was not an old maid. He was a bachelor, and Block House, having taken the place of a very lovely lady, was his love.

UNDER the circumstances it was irritating to have Jo serve him such perfect meals. She used the best china and set the dishes tidily on a doilied tray with a tiny nosegay of flowers. The bouquet was different every time Michael got in the habit of looking forward to it, though he would never admit as much even to himself. The girl had a way with flowers. She loved them. You could tell that by the clever way she had a putting a sprig of purple phlox with a handful of black-eyed susans. Only folks who knew flowers would guess that they went together so perfectly. Grudgingly, Michael conceded her that much. The way his invalid appetite responded to her chicken broths and popovers admitted, without the necessity of words, her talent with the oil stove.

But nothing quite discounted the fact that Jo was painfully plain. He was grateful for that much, at any rate. The tendency of a sick man to fall in love with his nurse is too well known to require comment. Fortunately, Michael's weaknesses concerned beautiful women, not useful ones. If it were not for the steel-rimmed spectacles, the red-orange freckles, the hair that fell like limp seaweed around her shoulders and the clothes which she seemed always to have jumped into with a single leap, he might have taken some interest in her.

The rose window was finished now, except for the final modeling up of faces and hands. Jo had done all that she was capable of doing. It awaited the touch of Michael's magic fingers before it could be fired. He was frantic to get at it. Three days longer, said the doctor. Two days! One day!

ON THE afternoon of the last day, when he was as restless as a water bug and Jo had inconsiderately left him all alone while she drove into Philadelphia to select a few last-minute glasses, a beautiful woman came, in the brutally selfish fashion of beautiful women, to claim her own. Lillian, who had once been the lovely Miss Lee and was now the charming Mrs. Fulton, drove her sport roadster up Michael's driveway and came to a decisive stop in front of Block House. Finding the door open and no one to answer the rap of her smart knuckles in their tan-leather driving gauntlets, she did a Goldilocks-invading-the-cottage-of-the-ThreeBears act and walked right in.

For Lillian was extremely curious about this hermit retreat of a man whose heart she was reputed to have broken

"Hello!" sang Lillian softly, and upstairs Michael's heart stopped beating for the fraction of a second. Stopped and then hardened to the consistency of asphalt. But a hot sun softens even the hardest asphalt, and Lillian, standing in his doorway, may fairly be compared to the merciless splendor of a noonday sun.

She sank picturesquely to her knees beside his armchair, making him suddenly conscious of the fact that he needed a shave. From the top of her cornstalk-yellow hat to the tip of her blond satin slippers, Lillian was a golden girl. Her eyes were topaz with a strange, excited glitter. Her hair was amber and wore a halo when she pulled off her hat.

"My darling!" she exclaimed. "You've been sick!

"Michael, you're the most romantic man I ever knew. Life is simply blotto without you. Every morning Spencer's mustache catches the yolk of his soft-boiled egg. I'm going crazy watching for it. I can't stand it. I tell you. I'm going to divorce him—for you, darling. We can live on the alimony and you won't ever need to worry about working again. Oh, Michael, I've come home at last!"

The last was a faint cry, her head buried in his lap. He looked down and saw that it caught and held the light of a thousand sunbeams. Slowly his hand buried itself in the fragrant mist. For just a second he felt an impulse to tighten his fist and pull the treacherous tangle out by the roots. But beauty made its old appeal. Caught up in the glory that filled his room, he was helpless.

"My Golden Girl!" he said tenderly and let his fingers trace the loop of the curling tendrils at the base of her neck. She raised dew-drenched eyes to his and lifted her lips.

"I'm an utter idiot," thought Michael. "I'd give up Block House to get out of this mess. But I'm going to kiss her. I feel it in my bones."

And he bent slowly forward.

"What's this?" said a cool voice from the doorway. "A nice way to be acting when your wife's in town!"

TWO startled pairs of eyes flashed in the direction of an entrancing vision in white. White swagger flannel suit, white cloche pulled low over a faultless face, white silken legs from white suede sports shoes. It was Michael's favorite color. He had said so only yesterday.

"Shame on you, Michael! That's what comes of leaving a susceptible husband with the door unlocked!"

The mouth was a rosy triangle, three-cornered and provocative. Below it protruded a firm little chin and above it a deliciously straight little nose. Add laughing brown eyes under slender brows captured in a face so translucently white that it glowed with the pale luster of a star, top the whole with the tight copper curls of a brand new permanent and you have a dim picture of the girl to whom Michael now whispered "Jo!"

He looked frightened. Lillian was watching him closely.

"Is this true, Michael?" she demanded. Michael, still staring, tried to say "No," but opened his mouth and was surprised to hear himself saying "Yes" instead.

"You must be Lillian," smiled Jo, with (could it be?) a trace of pity. "So I'll forgive everything for the sake of old times. But Michael has been very sick, you know. I think he's entertained callers enough for today. You'll have to come back again when he's stronger."

Graciously and without giving Lillian a chance for a backward look, Jo led the way downstairs. Michael heard the whir of the starting motor and the vicious lurch of its takeoff. He sat perfectly still while the retreating hum of the wheels died out on the air. But he was not thinking of Lillian. He was wondering where he had seen the pale translucent glow of that little face before. It lay like the shadow of a dream in his subconsciousness. Suddenly, with a shout, he jumped to his feet. The doctor had said not until tomorrow. But hang it all, there would never be another today!

He found her in the cool, dark spaciousness of the living room, where great bowls of flowers were not tarnished. The Boston rocker stood correctly in its corner under the 1790 sampler. The calico pillows were primly in place on the horsehair sofa. But his eyes did not register such unimportant details. They were hunting for a girl whose white beauty eclipsed the splendor of the sun with the more subtle magic of the moon.

"Jo!" he crooned over the crumpled little sobbing figure on the sofa. "Jo, don't. I love you."

"But I'm a cheat," she mumbled into the calico pillow. "I'm not a farm girl at all. I just bought that farm place to be near you. I'm not 17. I'm nearly 23. Even the freckles weren't real. I painted 'em on. I never needed those horrible glasses, either. They were a fake like the rest of me. My name isn't Jo at all. It's Joan——"

"Talbot," he interrupted eagerly. "You were in my art class and you won a beauty contest and I've known it all along," lied Micvhael, because how otherwise could he explain his stupid blindness?

She flopped over and dried her eyes, knowing that he lied and that her beauty must always be a sword to parry the attacks of other lovely ladies.

"But why did you do it?" he begged, remembering the service of little brown hands.

"Well," she mumbled, this time into his shoulder, because he was holding her, "you told me to go get my man—"

"—— so you did!" he concluded triumphantly.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

without moving a muscle and when mounted you never see horse or man move, except when they come out of the arch where they are stationed. We visited the royal museum where Queen Victoria and Prince Albert's royal robes are, even the crown with jewels removed and paste in their place. I have always thought of Queen Victoria as a large, stout woman, but her bridal dress and many more are narrow at the shoulders and you could almost span her waist with your hands. Queen Alexandria's dresses also were small, some of them with waistline under the arms. There was also beautiful work of her hands, a cradle cover and hangings on white satin in colored flowers, roses and lilies beautifully done and bright as if new; satin, a lovely ivory, also lace, cutwork, bead work done by queens. We were at the health office where a woman has just been appointed head, first time a woman ever held the position. St. James park has a lake in it center with every kind of bird. Herons that have their own rock, swans and thousands of small birds and flowers of every kind.

We went to the Buckingham palace, the home of the king and queen. She was returning from a reception and we waited with the crowd to see her. I have never seen a picture as pretty as she is. They drove slowly and she bowed and smiled at us all. She sat very high in her carriage, wore a turban hat as you often see in her pictures, trimmed high in front. A lady and two men in auto with her, chauffeur and guard in front, also guards at entrance. At every arch a royal guard stands without moving. I did see one move his eyes but not his hands, head or feet. We came back to the hotel for dinner and thought of "kitty cat, kitty cat, where have you been. Been to London and saw the queen." Sailing tomorrow for Norway.

4,500 U. S. WORKERS ARE DUE TO RETIRE

Approximately 4,500 government employes will be retired on account of age during the present fiscal year which began July 1, it has been disclosed by the United States civil service commission and the retirement division of the pension bureau. Of that number, some 2,300 are the oldest in the federal service who have already been employed from 4 to 12 years beyond the retirement age, most of whom will be retired on Aug. 31.

This means that there will be about 4,500 vacant positions to be filled.

The new retirement law, approved May 29, last, and effective July 1, carries the provision that "after August 20, 1930, no employe shall be continued in the civil service of the United States beyond the age of retirement for more than four years, except that where the head of the department or establishment certifies and the civil service commission agrees, that by reason of expert knowledge and special qualifications the continuance of the employe would be advantageous to the public service" further extension of two years may be granted.

TESTS SHOW PINE TREES DON'T GROW IN COLD WEATHER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pine trees go to "sleep" in the winter when the temperature falls below about 45 degrees Fahrenheit. Sleep of trees is the dormant period when they are leafless.

The pines never are leafless but nevertheless stop growing, it is shown in a report to the American Philosophical society by Dr. Daniel T. MacDougall, director of the laboratory of plant physiology of the Carnegie institution.

He tells of a Monterey pine tree near the shore of the Pacific in California, which has been watched with scientific precision for 12 years. Its trunk has grown uninterrupted, winter and summer, for as much as three years at a time.

At temperatures about 45 above zero Fahrenheit the trunk stopped growing to resume after the weather warmed.

Ordinary deciduous trees such as beeches and maples, says Dr. MacDougall, show growth of trunk for not more than 40 to 70 days in a year.

Drilling Well At Franklin

The Willimantic artesian well driller has moved his apparatus from the home of M. J. Shea, where he sunk a well giving 4 1-2 gallons a minute at a 182-foot depth. He is drilling now on the farm of Arthur Smith of Franklin.

Harry Fishbone has installed a large Kelvinator in his place of business.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

Constance oldest of the three beautiful daughters of Richard Bennett, star of stage and screen, is seen as the lovely war nurse and spy with Eric von Strobeim in "Three Faces East," the Warner Brothers and Vitaphone mystery drama, current at Warner's Broadway.

Miss Bennett is of the seventh generation of theatrical folk on her mother's side and also inherits a line of histrionic talent from her father. Her mother, Adrienne Morrison, former wife of Richard Bennett, bequeaths parts of the heritage of the theater.

Miss Bennett's grandmother, Rose Wood, came to the United States from Scotland with the famous Wood family and went on the stage at the age of eight. Later, she became leading lady for Lester Wallack in the old Wallack stock company in New York. She was also with Maurice Barrymore and Georgiana Drew in the Philadelphia Stock company.

Miss Bennett was born in New York City and educated at fashionable Long Island schools. Then came a finishing school in Paris and her social debut in Baltimore and Washington. Her first movie role was in "Cythere."

Her elopement with Philip Plant, youthful millionaire, for a time interrupted her career.

Talking pictures were instrumental in bringing her back and she made her return to the screen with Richard Barthelmess in "Son of the Gods."

Palace Theater

William Haines and Leila Hyams, two of the most accomplished and most popular screen stars of the present age, come to the Palace theater for a four-day's stay, starting tomorrow. On Sunday the Palace will commence its presentation of "Way Out West," a comedy that has set the nation roaring with laughter. Both Mr. Haines and Miss Hymans give surpassingly fine performances, and the work of the supporting cast is great with Cliff Edwards and Polly Moran who ad plenty comedy.

This is the way the picture gets off to its hilarious start: When the circus plays in a little western town, Windy (William Haines), the barker and side show grafter, sets up his fake roulette wheel and when the cowboys troop in from a neighboring ranch, he fleeces them, cleans them out, leaves them broke, or whatever you like. Then La Belle Rosa, a dancer of the circus, steals the money and legs it out of town

The cowboys come back, find that the wheel is a "phoney" one, and demand their money back. Windy only wishes he had it to give to them, but he hasn't, and so maters take a dangerous turn. The cowboys decide to lynch Windy, but all of a sudden change their minds, and decide that it would be worse punishment to take him back to the ranch with them, put him to work, and take his wages away each month until they have made good their own losses.

Today for the last time, unfortunately, the Palace presents that superb drama of the trenches, "Journey's End," starring a cast of distinguished British and American actors. Those who have not yet seen "Journey's End" and who plan to see it before it goes, now have their final opportunity.

Strand Theater

Today is the last day of "Male Against Female" for men only at the Strand theater in Norwich. Performances will be both matinee and evening.

In this special production which features Mildred Harris, sex is portrayed in a most frank and daring manner for broad minded people. Nothing is left to the imagination. It shows and tells everything.

Men who have already witnessed this remarkable production have obtained a life's time education in two hours

"Male Against Female" is a fearless picture in its truths about sex and dares tell everything and shows all with actual scenes. The management of the Strand theater has sent out a warning to all men who have not seen "Male Against Female" that today both matinee and evening will be their last opportunity to view this attraction. No children under 16 years of age will be admitted.

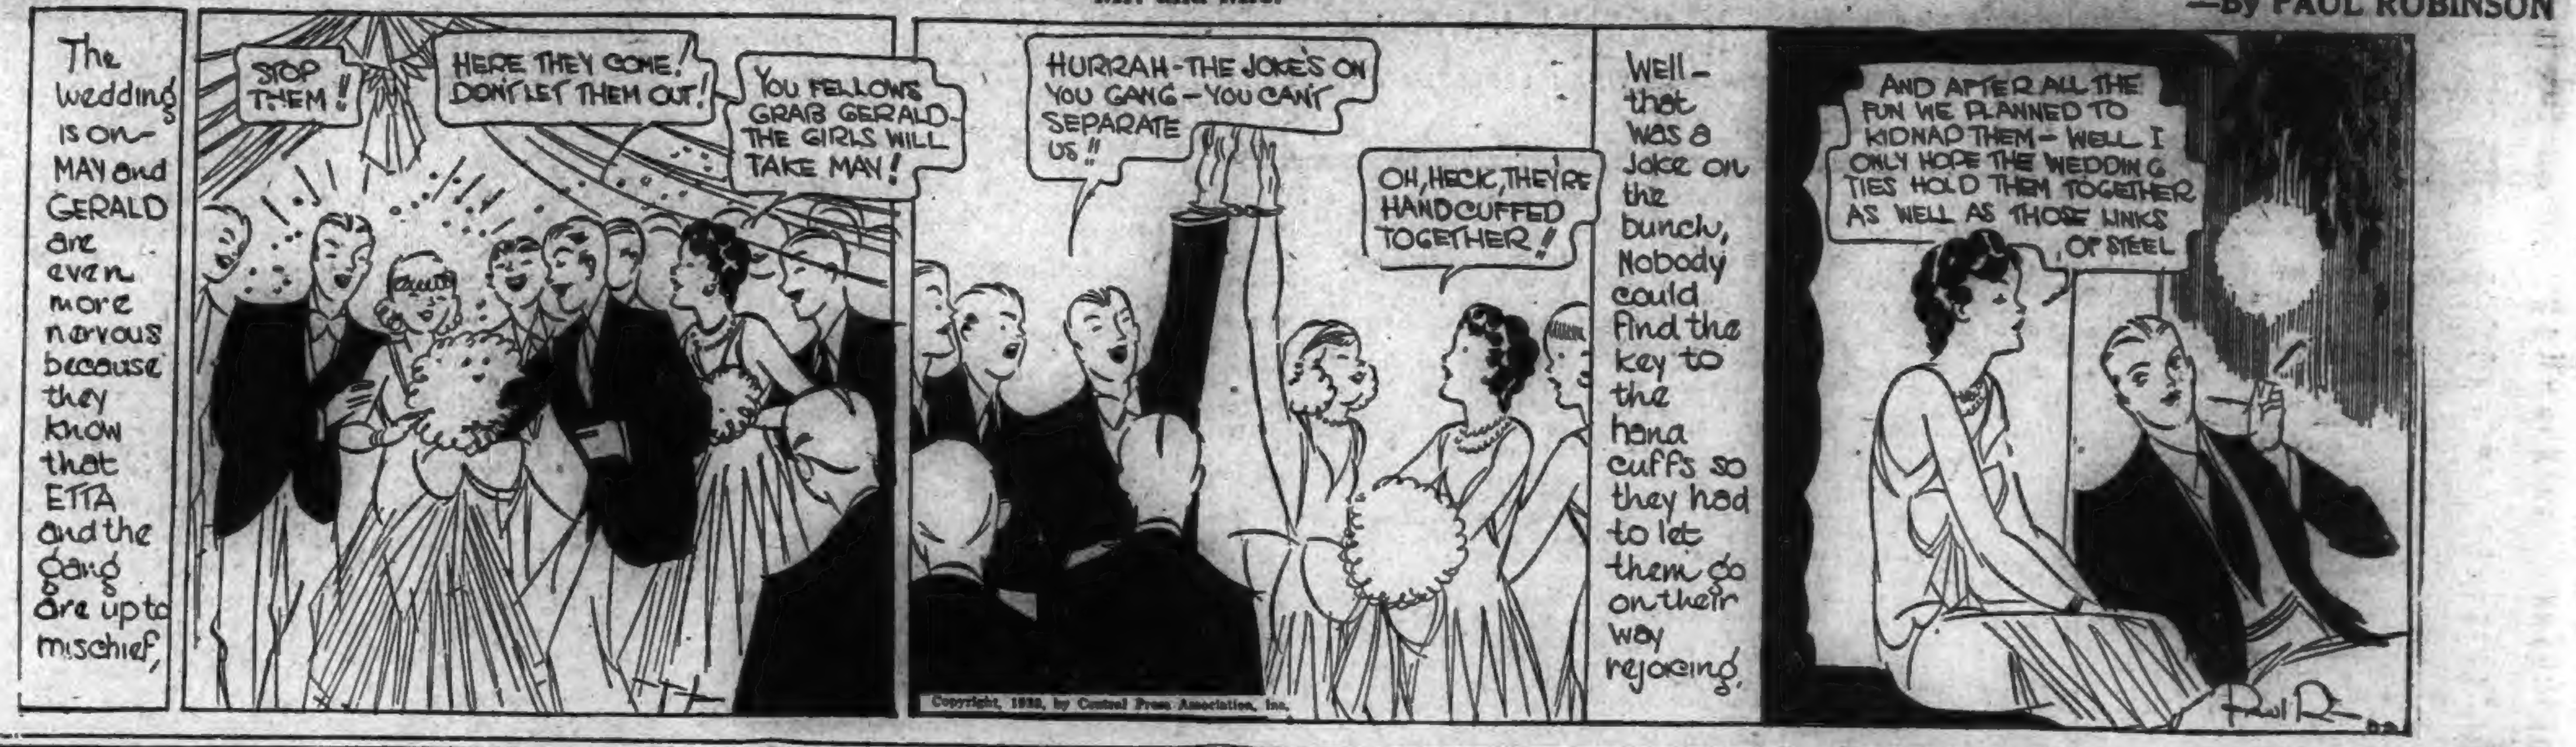
ETTA KETT Mr. and Mrs. —By PAUL ROBINSON



The wedding is on—MAY and GERALD are even more nervous because they know that ETTA and the gang are up to mischief, STOP THEM!!
HERE THEY COME! DON'T LET THEM OUT!
YOU FELLOWS GRAB GERALD—THE GIRLS WILL TAKE MAY!
HURRAH—THE JOKE'S ON YOU GANG—YOU CAN'T SEPARATE US!!
OH, HECK, THEY'RE HANDCUFFED TOGETHER!
Well—that was a joke on the bunch, Nobody could find the key to the hand cuffs so they had to let them go on their way rejoicing.
AND AFTER ALL THE FUN WE PLANNED TO KIDNAP THEM—WELL I ONLY HOPE THE WEDDING TIES HOLD THEM TOGETHER AS WELL AS THOSE LINKS OF STEEL

STATE PIER OFFICERS REQUEST ARREST OF TWO NEW LONDON WOMEN.

(Special to the Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 8—Mrs. Mary Woodward, wife of a sailor in the United States Coast Guard, and Josephine Mahoney, were arrested this afternoon by Traffic Officer Dennis Cavanaugh, charged with lascivious carriage and will be presented in the police court tomorrow. The arrest of the two young women resulted when officers at the state pier made complaint against them because 10 sailors were under medical care at the sick bay. One of the sailors was sent with Officer Cavanaugh for the purpose of identification and in a short time the women were found in front of the Crocker house block, State street. One of them was in conversation with a sailor, but her discourse was ended abruptly with her arrest and that of her companion.

Two continued cases will be tried in the police court tomorrow morning. An apparent degenerate, George King, of 4 Elm street, is charged with indecent assault, as a result of his acts with a small boy on the night of Aug. 4 when he was arrested by Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Automobile Patrol Officer William Corcoran. Sigmund Wenger, New Haven, is charged with violation of the city and state automobile laws. Wenger was in New London July 29 and parked his automobile more than a foot from the curb and he was driving without a license in his possession. When Wenger was presented in court the next day he requested a continuance until tomorrow.

Comdr. George Wilcox, stationed in Washington, has resumed his duties after having spent several days at the New London station.

Peter Piscatelle, 79 Bayonet street, was in the police court today charged with two violations of the state motor vehicle law, driving with defective brakes and driving without an operator's license. The case was continued to Sept. 14.

Matthew C. Fyalla, U. S. Coast Guard, state pier, was charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in driving with improper markers and without having signed his license. He was fined $10 and costs on the former count and a nolle was ordered on the latter charge.

John H. James, New Haven, and Robert Simington, Deep River, both colored, were presented in court as a result of an automobile accident yesterday, James being charged with intoxication and Simington was charged with driving while under the influence of liquor and driving while his license is under suspension. The cases were continued to tomorrow and in default of bail the two men went to jail. James and Simington drove to New London from Deep River early Thursday and they had been drinking. They obtained additional liquor here and when they started to return to Deep River shortly after noon, Simington was doing the driving. On Bank street the car collided with a machine of Ohio registration driven by a woman.

Fritz Huettner, Hartford, was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman John Clifford charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in passing an automatic danger signal at Main street and Crystal avenue. He gave a bond to insure his appearance.

MISSING MARK WOLLARD IS AT YELLOWSTONE PARK

(Special to the Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 8—Mark Wollard, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Wollard, 85 Reservoir avenue, Meriden, who disappeared from Seaside sanitarium, Crescent Beach, last December, where he had been under treatment and who, it was believed, had committed suicide, is alive and well, for he has been located at Yellowstone park, Wyoming, where he is employed in a hotel. The youth will return home the latter part of next month. When Wollard disappeared he left two notes, both of which indicated that he would commit suicide. Nothing had been heard from the youth until a few days ago when a New Haven man who was at Yellowstone park identified the youth and subsequent conversation brought the admission from the boy as to his identity.

SMOKED IN HIS BED— SET THE MATTRESS AFIRE

A still alarm was received at fire headquarters at 5:30 o'clock this morning for a fire in the residence of Morris Rifkin, 76 John street. Nameaug Engine company responded and extinguished the blaze, which was confined to a mattress, which had been set afire by a lodger smoking in bed. The damage was trivial.

Quimby-Svenberg

Arthur E. Quimby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Quimby of Willetts avenue, and Miss Agnes Svenberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Svenberg of 111 Mohegan avenue, were married last night at the parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal church by Rev. Charles E. Spaulding. William Rowzee of Groton, was best man and Miss A. Florence Smith attended the bride. After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Quimby held a reception at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Quimby will reside at 125 Squire street upon the conclusion of a wedding trip Mr. Quimby is employed by the Connecticut Power company.

Miss Dorothy Andrews, 30 Groton street, is entertaining Miss Helen Schomburg, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Two train riders were arrested last night by Special Agent Harold Swanson of the New Haven railroad. They were locked up and will be in court today.

LICENSE, REGISTRATION MEAN NOTHING TO R. R. OLIVER

Raymond R. Oliver, 86 Smith street, was arrested this evening by Motorcycle Officer Carlos Stone charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law on two counts, driving without either license or registration in his possession. He was ordered to present himself for trial in the police court tomorrow morning.

Adrian Boone, colored, was arrested last night by Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty charged with breach of the peace, upon complaint of his wife. He was locked up in default of a surety on his bond of $50 and will be in court tomorrow. Boone went to his home, Douglass street and when he quarreled with his wife, the latter sought and obtained her husband's arrest.

Joseph Renzoni, 212 Shaw street, was arrested this evening by Automobile Patrol Officer William Corcoran, charged with reckless driving and will be included in the prisoners to tell their story to Judge Daniel M. Cronin in the police court tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. James Denehee of Worcester, Mass., formerly of New London are spending a week with relatives in this city.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Arthur Keefe

Mrs. Minnie E. Keefe, 49, widow of Arthur Keefe, formerly of New London, died yesterday at a hospital in Bridgeport, after a lingering illness She is survived by two sons, John R. and Arthur F. Keefe, both of Bridgeport; three brothers, John, Robert and Maurice Murray of Ireland and a sister, Mrs. Patrick Donovan, of this city. Mrs. Keefe moved to Bridgeport about 10 years ago.

FOUR DRINKS MADE RUSSELL SEND IN FALSE ALARMS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 8—The fire department probably put in the busiest three-quarters of an hour in its history late last night, for within that period three false alarms were sent in, during the time that a fierce electrical storm prevailed. Two of the alarms were unquestionably false and so was the third, but the last was not intended to give the department a needless run. As a result of the two alarms known to have been false, Thomas Russell, 21, of 32 New street, employed at the plant of the Robert Gair company, Montville, was arrested on a technical charge of breach of the peace. He was in the police court this morning, but his case was continued to Monday next in order to permit a further investigation into the sending in of the false alarms. Russell will not admit sending in the alarms, nor will he deny that he did so, for he said that he had been intoxicated earlier in the night and if he did ring the alarms he had no knowledge of doing so.

The first alarm was sent in at 11:13 from Box 14, corner Crystal avenue and Lewis street and was responded to by four companies. When the department arrived at the location of the box it was discovered that a fire did not exist. Before the companies had returned to quarters an alarm was sent in from box 115 in front of the Winthrop school, Mill street and but three blocks from where the other box is located. Again it was discovered by the three companies responding that there was no fire. At 11:50 the third alarm was sent in, coming from Box 32, corner Bank and Golden streets. Four other companies responded and as was expected, no fire was to be found. However, in the case of the last alarm, when an investigation by the police was made, it was determined that a woman sent in the alarm for smoke from a standing locomotive in the union station yard of the New Haven railroad had passed over the roofs of buildings on the east side of Bank street and the woman believed one of the buildings was in flames.

While Automobile Patrol Officers Augustus Ray and William Corcoran, with Patrolman George Perkins, upon whose beat the boxes are stationed, were investigating, the officers observed Russell as he emerged from Grove street to enter Williams street. Instead of continuing through the latter street to Cedar and Bayonet streets to go to his home, Russell entered the swamp opposite Grove street. He was intercepted and questioned. Not giving a satisfactory account of himself, Russell was taken to police headquarters and questioned further, but would not admit sending in the false alarms. When arrested Russell was without either shoes or socks and he could not give an excuse for this part of his raiment being missing. Russell said that when he came to New London upon the conclusion of his day's work he went to a speak-easy and had four drinks, from that time until a short while before being arrested he said his mind was a blank. Today when Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith continued the investigation he interviewed the young man's foster-mother, for Russell was adopted by her several years ago. She said that Russell was industrious and faithful and gave her practically all of the $24 that he earned each week. The young man's employer also said that Russell was one of the most faithful workers of the Gair plant.

LIEBERMAN STOCK, STATE ST. WAS DAMAGED BY WATER

The store of Lieberman, 60 State street, dealing in children's wear, was damaged as was much of the stock early today when the police discovered the store flooded. Sergeant John Courtney in passing the store at 3:30 this morning found the store floor deluged. He summoned Patrolman Clarence Wells and entrance to the building was obtained. Going to the second floor and where offices are maintained, it was discovered that a water pipe had burst. The officers then made their way to the cellar where the supply of water was shut off, but by that time the stock had been drenched.

ROBT. BISHOP CHAPPELL IS SEEKING RE-ELECTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 8—The tenth petition nominating a candidate for office of member of the city council was filed at the office of the city clerk today when that of Robert B. Chappell was received for record. Mr. Chappell is concluding his first term as a member of the council. Of the four candidates nominated by the New London Taxpayers' league, E. Frank Morgan, Ray C. Smith and Edward Prentis, Jr., have filed their notices of acceptances. The other candidate of the league, Edwin Cruise, has not filed his acceptance. The other candidates, not endorsed by the taxpayers' league, who have filed notices of acceptance are Councilor James H. Murray, Mrs. Emily C. Spiers, Francis DeGange. By tomorrow, it is believed that petitions nominating William M. Nordenhold and Councilor William C. Fox will have been filed, as tomorrow is the final day in which petitions will be received. A petition nominating Lawrence D. Sullivan for office of selectman was filed by Benjamin W. Rogers, but it was not accepted because of its invalidity for many of the signatures were in lead pencil and not in ink, as required by the city charter. Mr. Rogers made it known that he intended to file a proper petition during tomorrow.

CATHOLIC CH. REPORTS SHOW BIG ANNUAL REVENUES

Printed reports of the annual collections of the two Roman Catholic parishes of New London have been distributed to the parishioners and while the total is not given in either list, the great number of names and the liberal amounts donated indicate the big revenues which these large parishes receive, and which are necessary for their upkeep. SALEM MAN CHARGED WITH CRUELTY DISCHARGED BY MONTVILLE COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

MONTVILLE, Aug. 8—Louis Chapman, of Salem, was arrested by State Trooper Clarence Hoxie of the Groton barracks last Monday afternoon on a charge of cruelty to animals, on a complaint issued by State Humane Society Agents Preston, of Hartford, and Martin, of New London. They claimed that Chapman, who is foreman of a gang of workers for the state, ordered one of his men, Friday, August 1st, to pour a pail of hot tar on the back of a bull, owned by William Turski, of the Salem road, in the town of Montville, opposite the road which the men were oiling. When Chapman was interviewed by the humane agents who asked him if he knew who threw the tar, he claimed that he didn't know, but that he was responsible for his men. But when asked by Justice Church, who tried the case Friday afternoon, the same question, he said that he didn't order any of his men to throw tar on the bull, but had told them if the bull ever made an attempt to come over the wall they were to let the bull have it; but he didn't mention with what. The day the bull's right side and flank were blistered, they were using a product called tarvia which doesn't require heating when applied to the surface of the road. Justice of the Peace Charles Brown, of Colchester, was counsel for the accused. After Judge Church heard all the testimony, he ordered the accused discharged, there being no evidence to convict the accused of the charge of cruelty to animals.

MUCH OPPOSITION TO STOCKEL'S RECOMMENDATION

Opposition is steadily increasing throughout the state to the recent recommendation made to police by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel that they take away the license of any automobile operator who is suspected of drunken driving, as soon as he is arrested, says the New Haven Journal-Courier.

The recommendation is being ignored in New Haven. In Waterbury the corporation counsel has notified the police officials that they are not required by law to comply with it. Corporation Counsel John J. 'Connell of Derby has ruled that the delegation of authority to the police by the commissioner is unconstitutional, and the Derby police will also ignore the request.

Commissioner Stoeckel's stand has secured the support of Ralph H. White, research secretary of the finding committee for law enforcement in Connecticut. Mr. White, in a letter printed in the Journal-Courier Monday, accused the courts of failure to sufficiently punish intoxicated drivers.

SEWERAGE NUISANCE MUST BE ABATED

Town Health Officer Harrison S. Gray and Chief Inspector Scott of the state department of health were in conference Friday morning in regard to the complaints received of sewerage flowing from residences in the vicinity of Adams Tavern, Norwich Town, into the brook on land owned by W. S. Case nearby and causing a nuisance to other residents near and adjoining the course of the stream.

After an examination of the residences in that section by the health authorities, Health Officer Gray issued an order that the nuisance must be remedied by September 15. In most cases the families were willing to cooperate and dispose of their sewerage in a lawful manner. It is understood that the sewerage will be discharged in cesspools.

BRITTON SAYS CORN BORER NOT ALONE IN SWEET CONR

Connecticut housewives who find insects crawling about their sweet corn, need not always be alarmed for fear of the European corn borer. Bad as this pest is, he does not cause all the mischief in corn, according to Dr. W. E. Britton, entomologist of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, which cooperates with the United States Department of Agriculture in the quarantine that forbids the shipment of any corn out of eastern and southeastern Connecticut.

"Two other insects also attack corn, the corn ear worm and the common stalk borer," Dr. Britton said Friday, "but neither inflicts such economic damage as the corn borer. None of them is poisonous."

PLAYGROUND CHILDREN ATTEND PALACE THEATRE

Friday morning, 1,400 playground children from all sections of the city marched in orderly array to the Palace theatre to witness a special showing of all-talking pictures, and countermarched to their respective play centres at about noon with the order and precision of military units.

The free movie entertainment for the children was made possible by the cooperation of Manager R. B. Hamilton, of the Palace theatre, who donated the use of the theatre, services of employes, and his talent in selecting a fitting programme.

The appearance of "Way Out West", featuring William Haines, at the local playhouse, marked the initial showing of the picture in the state. With Lupino Lane in "The Evolution of Dance", a Grantland-Rice "Sportlight", and a news weekly, this feature picture provided an enjoyable morning for the youngsters, who manifested their pleasure in frequent and spontaneous applause.

During the progress of the entertainment the juvenile audience was addressed by Mr. Hamilton, who voiced his pleasure in being able to cooperate with the recreation commission, headed by William J. Fitzgerald, in making the day a happy one for them, and expressed his admiration for the executive genius of Mr. Fitzgerald in arranging for the affair.

He was followed by "Santa Claus", in the person of Mr. Fitzgerald, who reminded the children that it was his sole desire to provide recreation, instruction and amusement for them each summer and that their gratitude could be best displayed in their frequent attendance at the play centres and by their loyalty and obedience to their respective play leaders. He announced that the recreation commission would again attempt the task of transporting all regularly enrolled playground children to Ocean Beach on Aug. 26, and that this year a fleet of buses would be chartered for that purpose, for which contributions from local citizens and organizations would be welcome.

This type of instructive movie entertainment has been available for the local children for the past three years, and the show Friday was a further indication of Mr. Fitzgerald's ability in securing the whole hearted cooperation and assistance of those with whom he comes in contact.

COUNTY AGENT RECOMMENDS APPLE MAGOT SPRAY

Fruit growers in New London county have received a recommendation from County Agent Walter T. Clark of this city, that a third apple maggot spray or dust be used about August 10 but not later than August 15. The county agent says: For liquid, use three pounds of lead arsenate to 100 gallons of water, and for dust a 90-10 sulphur lead arsenate is satisfactory. This application should be used on McIntosh and later varieties. Do not spray or dust summer and early fall varieties in August.

For sooty fungus and apple scab, on any late varieties but McIntosh, use either one gallon of liquid lime sulphur or four pounds of dry lime sulphur instead of dry mix to avoid a residue at picking time. Any mixture with a spreader applied in August is likely to stick to the fruit long enough to cause uneven coloring at harvest. This is particularly true of the McIntosh and for this reason either a sulphur lead arsenate dust or a spray of only lead arsenate and water are recommended.

Great Britain because of past years experience with apple maggot is refusing to accept the low grades of American apples between July 7 and November 15 and will accept the best grades only after careful inspection. Fruit growers who are planning to ship apples to England this year will save future trouble by first being sure that the fruit is free from apple maggot.

POETRY

The Sandpiper

Along the sea-edge, like a gnome
Or rolling pebble in the foam,
As though he timed the ocean's throbbing,
Runs a piper, bobbing, bobbing.

Now he stiffens, now he wilts,
Like a little boy on stilts!
Creatures burrow, insects hide,
When they see the piper glide.

You would think him out of joint,
Till his bill begins to point,
You would doubt if he could fly,
Till his straightness arrows by.

You would take him for a clown,
Till he peeps and flutters down,
Vigilant among the grasses,
Where a fledgling bobs and passes.

New Horizons

Never was there path our childhood used to roam
So long it led not in the evening home!
Nor could magic of the unknown track
Prevail against the hearth that called us back.

Over the same hilltops, wild-rose or gray,
Our evening and our twilight alway lay;

And when evening fell all the unknown stars
Grew homely shining through our window bars.

Now we have fared to the country o'er the hill,
And unknown journeys lie beyond us still—

Ways unadventured, countless paths to roam,
But none that leads us in the evening home.

Onward, not homeward some adventure calls
With every dawn, and every evening falls

Over new horizons, wild-rose or gray,
And old stars shining on the unknown way.

Strange look and far, no: those we saw of old,
Safe moored in haven skies above our fold.

BRUTAL SLAYING OF COUPLE IN MYSTIC DUE TO JEALOUSY

Stanley Bogue Has Confessed the Murder of Mrs. David Roberts, With Whom He Boarded, and Ole Ostberg, Another Boarder, who is Said to Have Supplanted Bogue in the Affections of Mrs. Roberts—The Slayer Used an Axe and Attempted Suicide by Slashing His Throat.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

MYSTIC, Aug. 10—During a fit of jealousy early last evening, Stanley Bogue, 34, a lodger at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. David Roberts, residing in the old Benjamin farm, Groton, and but a short distance off the New London and Mystic road, near here, attacked and brutally murdered Roberts' wife, Eva, aged 52, and Ole Ostberg, another lodger.

Bogue attacked the couple with an axe, wielding the deadly weapon upon the skulls of the man and woman, who died almost instantly.

Bogue then attempted to bury the bodies in the cellar of the lodging house, and after failing at suicide the slayer gave himself up to the state police. He has confessed to the double killing and is locked up at the Groton police station, together with the woman's husband, and James Collins, a third lodger, both being held as material witnesses. Bogue was arrested by Sergeant George Webber, of the Groton state police, and Officers Arthur Kaith, Frederick Johnson and Arthur Whitmarsh. Later Bogue was brought to New London police headquarters and his fingerprints taken.

Bogue is said to have been the "star" boarder at the Roberts' house for about three and one-half years, and until several months ago, when Ostberg went to the house to live. When Ostberg succeeded in taking the place of Bogue in the affections of Mrs. Roberts a feeling of hatred entered the heart of Bogue and the fatal ending Saturday was the result, for Bogue felt keenly the discontinuance of the intimacy between himself and the woman.

Bogue was at the Roberts home when Mrs. Roberts and Ostberg returned from Mystic about 6 o'clock last night. The entrance to the home of the man and woman angered Bogue, who is said to have attacked the couple with a flow of abuse.

While the trio were in the kitchen and during the heat of the chastisement, Bogue seized an axe and attacked the couple, the weapon falling with deadly effect upon the skulls of Mrs. Roberts and Ostberg, causing a horrible mutilation of the heads, the man and woman succumbing to their wounds. The bodies were taken to the cellar by Bogue and where he attempted to bury them, but because of the existing condition he was unable to do so.

Bogue then went to a field about a quarter of a mile from the Roberts home and attempted suicide by slashing his wrists. Failing in his effort to do away with himself, Bogue returned to the Roberts home and shortly before midnight communicated by telephone with the state police barracks. He refused to reveal his identity, but requested that an officer be sent to a location which is about eight miles from the Roberts home as he was in possession of valuable information.

Officer Arthur Kaith went to the appointed place and finding Bogue there, the officer was told in detail of the double slaying.

Kaith informed Sergeant Webber of the nature of Bogue's story and together with Officers Johnson and Whitmarsh the troopers, accompanied by Officer Kaith and Bogue went to the Roberts home, where the mutilated bodies were found in the cellar.

Coroner Edward McKay, Norwich, and Medical Examiner Frank W. Hewes and Prosecuting Attorney Harry Brogan were informed of the double murder and they also went to the scene, after which Bogue was locked up and the bodies taken in charge by a Mystic undertaker.

GAVE HIS LIFE TO SAVE THAT OF HIS FINANCEE

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 10—(AP)—Robert Conrod, 24, of Southington, gave his life today to save that of his fiancee Miss Alice Bradley, of Southington, to whom he was to have been married this fall.

He plunged into the waters of Long Island sound off Momauguin beach, a nearby summer resort, when he noticed his fiancee was having difficulties in the choppy sea. A weak swimmer, she had gone out beyond her depth. Conrod succeeded in reaching her side and supported her until help arrived. Two men swimmers took the girl ashore. Then Conrod, his mission accomplished, sank beneath the water. His body has not yet been recovered.

Conrod and Miss Bradley, together with their mothers, were spending the week-end at Momauguin. Conrod, friends said, had planned to teach the girl how to swim.

Another drowning was revealed at the beach when a woman bather stepped upon the body of Arthur Greenburg, 23, of New Haven, in about four feet of water. Her screams brought others to the scene who took the body ashore and made vain attempts at resuscitation. Greenburg had gone out in a canoe several hours before with two companions and all three were thrown into the water when the craft capsized. The other two swam to shore.

Holdup In Gambling House At Savin Rock

Thirty Patrons Were Forced to Kneel While Robbers Picked Up $2,000 Stakes.

NEW HAVEN, Aug 10.—(AP)—Thirty patrons of an alleged gambling establishment at Savin Rock, an amusement resort in West Haven, early today were forced to kneel against the wall while five robbers picked up $2,000 in gaming stakes, took watches and cash from the men and escaped in a sedan parked outside.

Arthur Raffile, alleged proprietor of the establishment, told police today that shortly after midnight he answered a knock at the door and on opening felt the muzzle of a revolver pressed against his side. Two men followed him into the room and as they entered, he said, two others already in the place, drew revolvers and joined the raiders. The robbery was executed with dispatch, two of the robbers holding the patrons at bay while the other pair collected money and watches.

In the flight from the place, the bandit car sideswiped another car but continued on its way at a high rate of speed.

The total stolen by the bandits was estimated to be around $3,500.

Play was brisk in the early hours of Sunday, when the two bandits poked revolvers at Raffile and ordered him to "get inside. We mean business."

Joined by their allies, already inside the establishment, a small cottage set back from Beach street, the robbers made a thorough job of the robbery. One patron is reported to have lost an $800 diamond ring. Still another attempted to save his watch by putting it under his hat. One of the robbers, noticing the ruse, struck him over the head with the butt of his revolver, breaking the watch.

Outside, a large sedan stood with its engine running and containing three more men. The four inside backed quickly out of the cottage and into the machine. In the hurry to escape the car started roaring down the street before the rear door had been closed. It banged against another car parked in the street and careened wildly for a few seconds before the driver could recover control.

Tonight, an automobile believed to have been that used by the bandits, was discovered abandoned near Milford. The rear door was damaged and a bullet hole was found in the rear. The automobile bore New York state license plates and an extra set of markers. It was reported stolen from Louis Noberini, of Brooklyn.

Just how the first two of the gang managed to get inside the gaming place is a puzzle to the gambling fraternity here as the place, they say, is "as hard as the white house to get into without identification, credentials and introductions."

RESCUES MADE BY FOUR SING SING PRISONERS

OSSINING, N. Y., Aug. 10—(AP)—Confronted with the dilemma of risking a prison escape or letting four persons face possible death unaided, Sing Sing guards today chose the former alternative and found that there is honor as well as courage among convicts.

Four prisoners, temporarily released, rescued the chief of police of the New York Central railroad, his brother-in-law and their wives as their rowboat was sinking in the Hudson river. Then they returned within the walls.

Those saved were J. D. Roosa, the police chief, Mrs. Roosa, Albert Graff, and Mrs. Graff, all of Chappaqua, N. Y. Their rescuers were Irving Brown, Joseph Oates, Anthony Triano and David Weller, all short-term prisoners from New York.

Most of the 2200 convicts were massed in the recreation yard when the riverfront gate was opened.

Three years ago two men drowned near the spot after guards refused to allow prisoners to go to the rescue.

Drought No Cause For General Alarm

Reports Received by President Hoover Say the Distress is Localized.

ORANGE, Va., Aug. 10—(AP)—Preliminary reports received by President Hoover on the drought situation were said today to indicate that the distress is localized in a few communities and that there is no cause yet for general alarm.

No further steps toward relief of the stricken sections are to be taken, it was said, until the detailed reports from county agents showing the results from surveys are handed to the president tomorrow by Secretary Hyde.

President Hoover has made no specific plans for presentation at the governors' conference in Washington Thursday, but he will ask each to appoint one man as a representative from his state to compose a rehabilitation commission.

This group will co-operate with the Red Cross and the government in whatever relief steps are taken, under the plan of the president. Each of the 12 governors summoned to the conference has advised the white house that he will be present or send a representative.

President Hoover was said to be pleased with the action of the railroads in cutting rates to permit freer movement of livestock, feed and water through the affected regions, but at this time he plans no further requests for specific reduction in rates.

He will leave it to the railroads themselves to act under the provisions of the Interstate Commerce Commission order permitting emergency reductions.

The chief executive also was said to believe that no appeal to the country for funds to relieve the distress would be necessary unless the situation became more acute.

He also does not contemplate calling congress into special session to deal with the problem unless it becomes more vitally necessary.

BANK ROBBER, FRUSTRATED, KILLED SELF AND COMRADE

FORT WORTH, Tex., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Nathan M. Martin, 30, who caused his own and another's death by exploding a vial of nitro-glycerin in the Stockyards National bank during an attempted robbery, apparently died leaving a detailed motive for his act a secret.

Police today found Martin's automobile parked nearly three miles from the bank. The doors were locked. The bomber's bank book and a note to his widow were inside.

The note read: "Honey, forgive me for all I have ever done, as I am in a position to where I can't stand it no longer." As a postcript was written: "Here is all the money I have." Inside the bank book was $4.55. The book showed a balance of $157.

Entering the bank yesterday, Martin walked to the desk of W. L. Pier, the president, said he was desperate, was carrying a vial of nitroglycerin, and would blow up the institution unless he received $10,000.

Pier signaled and police were called. Then the president walked into a cage, apparently to obtain the $10,000. Fred L. Pelton, vice president, talked to the intruder.

When two policemen hurriedly entered Martin hurled the vial to the floor. The interior of the bank was shattered, and Martin and Pelton were killed. Two other persons, one a boy, were injured.

When they were directly in front of them, they say, one of the Negroes brandished a revolver, warning them to stay where they were. Then he turned the gun on Middleton, fired a shot into his head, and ran down the road.

TERRORISTS CONTINUE BOMBING IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Terrorists bombed the wrong garage early today, but police were unable to determine whether the other bomb that ushered into the new week had wrecked the right grocery store.

The first blast tore a hole in the roof of a garage on the North Side, but Police Captain Hugh McCarthy expressed belief that another garage, two doors distanct, was meant, since the latter had been renting space below the regular scale.

Police suspected that sale of merchandise on Sunday was responsible for the attack on a grocery store on the South Side. Damage was estimated at $500 to $1,000 in each case.

CRIME COM'N RECOMMENDS WAGE PAYMENTS BY CHECK

Finds It the Most Logical Solution to the Payroll Hold-Up Problem—Report of the Commission Says that Payroll Banditry During 1929 Resulted in Monetary Loss of Several Million Dollars—In Six Months 19 Persons Were Killed and 32 Injured

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Payment of wages by check is recommended by a special committee of the national crime commission as the most logical solution to the payroll holdup problem.

"Of all suggestions for the improvement of the crime problem in the United States," the committee's report, announced today, said, "the most constructive as well as the one most likely to gain wide acceptance is that which proposes to cut off crime at its source; that is, to prevent it."

The report then goes on to point out that payroll banditry is one of the most serious professional crimes in the country, available records showing that during 1929 the monetary loss was several million dollars and that during the first six months of the year 19 persons were killed and 32 injured in payroll holdups.

"It is clear," the report said, "that a workable system of payment by check is the most efficient, economical and safe method of disbursing money to employes."

Only two states — Maryland and Missouri—prohibit such a practice, although several other states have qualifying laws, most of which prohibit such payment if the worker objects. The attitude of labor has changed in the last few years, the committee found, and if the checks are simplified and made easily negotiable, it believes the opposition would be small.

One or two of the original committee of 19 disagreed with the findings. Prof. Raymond C. Moley, of Columbia university, chairman, said in a letter to the other members, and only 14 names were signed to the report.

These includes: E. L. Rossiter, treasurer, New York Central railroad; T. B. Clarkson, treasurer of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co., Washington, D. C.; A. S. Van Benthuysen, assistant treasurer, New York World; George L. Radcliffe, Fidelity and Deposit company, Baltimore; Grover Whalen, former New York police commissioner; Major Richard Sylvester, president, International Police Chiefs association, Wilmington, Del.; John L. Conover, auditor, Public Service company of New Jersey, Newark; Guy A. Thompson, attorney, St. Louis; Charles E. Fox, former district attorney, Philadelphia; W. C. Coapman, assistant treasurer, North East Electric company, Rochester, N. Y.; Byron A. Fones, treasurer, Salts Textile company, Bridgeport, Conn.; E. W. McCullough, manager, department of manufacture, Washington, D. C., and Waldo Newcomer, chairman boar dof directors, Baltimore Trust company, Baltimore.

BODIES OF MISSING COUPLE FOUND IN SHALLOW GRAVE

STOW, Mass., Aug. 10—(AP)—The bodies of William Stefanovicz, Stow farmer, and his wife, missing since May, were discovered in a shallow grave in a woodlot near the farm by four youths late today. Detective Edward P. O'Neill said it was unmistakeably a double murder.

The youths, Joseph Eshtook, Emerson Pickering, Hobart King and Cahrles Learned, were attracted to the spot by the barking of a hunting dog. The heel of a woman's shot and a man's elbow were visible above the ground.

The bodies were disinterred in the presence of Assistant District Attorney Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex county. Both were clothed and on the body of Stefanovicz was a bloodstained brown velour hat cut almost to ribbons.

The disappearance of the Stefanovicz couple first attracted attention from the state and county authorities this week. Joe Stefanosky, a farm hand employed by Stefanovicz, had told neighbors the couple had gone to Chicago. Meanwhile he took charge of the farm and disappeared a few days ago taking with him $800 cash in rents and the proceeds from auctioned cattle.

State police and detectives have engaged in a search of the farm and swamps nearby since then, suspecting a double murder. They recalled the story of a previous owner of the farm, "Tiger" Hale, who disappeared 70 years ago and was believed to have been killed, robbed of $4,000, and his body tossed into a quicksand.

Anderson, at the state prison in Wethersfield shortly after midnight, standard time, tomorrow night. Anderson was murdered by Lorenz on the night of March 31, in Wethersfield only a few hundred yards from the prison, and his body was taken to a field near the Connecticut river, where it was found by a passerby the next day. The motive of the crime was never disclosed, although at the trial in April, it was hinted that Anderson had information concerning the private life of Lorenz which the latter feared he would disclose to friends.

The condemned man fled to Canada, where he was arrested in Windsor, Ont., and confessed to state officials that he had committed the murder. He was tried by three superior court judges, pleading guilty to murder, and was sentenced on April 25.

DIVER RECOVERED THE BODIES OF TWO GIRLS

CHICAGO, Aug. 10—(AP)—A deep sea diver today recovered the bodies of the two girl passengers and pilot of an airplane that plunged through a gigantic steel tank and sank in the waters underneath in one of the most unusual accidents in aviation history.

The victims were identified as Mary Laws, 25, a bank employe, her sister, Eugenia Laws, 22, a stenographer and Orville Suchy, the pilot, who six weeks ago received his transport license.

Investigators believe the plane was struck by lightning yesterday afternoon as it maneuvered laboriously through the squall that swept in suddenly from Lake Michigan. Witnesses said there was a blinding flash of lightning and a moment later the ship, its wings buckled helplessly against the fuselage, dropped straight down from a 1,000 foot altitude.

WILLIMANTIC, August 10—Ernest Dubois, 26, of 60 Church street, has been arrested for the manufacture and possession of liquor with intent to sell, in connection with a raid staged on a speakeasy at the former Mary Ann tea room Friday night. Dubois surrendered Saturday to Chief Stanton L. Briggs of the Connecticut prohibition department and was notified to appear before Federal Commissioner Earl Mathewson at Norwich at 10:30 o'clock Monday morning to answer to the above charges. At the time the raid was staged there was no one in the establishment, the officers gaining entrance by forcing a door. Dubois is otherwise known as E. O. Wood. One of the owners of the building, which is in the name of Stiles and Harrington informed the police that she was unaware of the fact that the former tea room was being occupied until a few days ago. The authorities have reason to believe that Dubois is probably taking the "rap" to save someone else from implication.

Grady took an invitation to enter the establishment when the young man for whom the invitation was intended fled upon seeing the chief in the vicinity.

The local branch shop of the Atwood Machine company, located in the Willimantic Machine company on Milk street is to suspend operations September 1 for an indefinite period, it was announced Saturday. The suspension affects only five or six men, however, as most of the work for some years past has been done at the company's main plant in Stonington, where all of it will be done in the future. The company renewed a lease on the plant in July for another year and according to the terms of the lease the large building must be heated during the winter and other upkeep maintained. That no business would be carried on there during the fall and winter was given as a certainty, however. A "spotty" market for silk and cotton machinery, which is the product of the concern, has brought about a gradual reduction of hands at the Willimantic plant, so that only five or six men have been employed in the past year.

The plant is two stories high and of modern brick construction. It was built 30 years ago for the Willimantic Machine company, a local organization which followed the dissolution of the Morrison Machine company. In 1916 the local concern leased to the Atwood company. Up to about 1918 between 75 and 80 men had been employed at the plant and a good sized payroll was carried. The Willimantic Machine company not only owns the building but also about 90 per cent of the machinery.

In his finding, which was made fully public Saturday, on the inquest into the death of Adelia Miller, 7, of South Manchester, at Columbia Green one week ago Saturday, Coroner John H. Yeomans has the following to say regarding the alleged negligence of both drivers involved in the fatal accident: "The accident happened about 2 p. m. when the weather was clear. The marks on the highway indicated that John W. Manyak of Hartford applied his brakes and slid the wheels of the coach about 40 feet befre striking the roadster. The vision of the drivers was obstructed by a gasoline truck parked in front of Lewis' store.

"Thibeault testified that he saw the coach some distance from the corner, but that was so far away he paid no attention to it, thinking he would pass the intersection before the coach got there; that he did not see the gasoline truck, and that he did not again look to his left until he was in the intersection and the coach was nearly upon him. If he saw the coach as he testified, he must have caught a glimpse of it between the store and the gas truck and his glance must therefore have been a fleeting one. He could not have seen the approaching car long enough to judge its speed, and considering the respective distance which each car had to travel to reach the intersection, to judge which car would reach there first. It was therefore incumbent on him to approach the intersection with great caution and to keep a sharp lookout for the approaching coach. On the other hand, if he did not observe the coach until he was in the intersection he clearly failed to keep a proper lookout.

"Thibeault apparently observed the coach as soon as it came into view past the gasoline truck, but was traveling at a rate of speed which made it impossible for him to avoid a collision.

"I find that said death was caused by the negligent and careless manner in which John Manyak and Dona Thibeult operated their respective cars as they approached the intersection and that no other person or persons materially contributed to said death."

With the finding of Coroner John H. Yeomans, that both drivers were negligent in the fatal accident at Columbia Green, one week ago Saturday when seven-year-old Adelia Miller, of South Manchester was killed, Dona Thibeault of Putnam, has been placed under arrest on a technical charge and released under bonds of $1,000. John W. Manyak, driver of the car in which the Miller girl was riding, was arrested at the time of the accident. He is also at liberty under bonds of $1,000.

Both drivers will be arraigned in the Columbia town court Saturday, August 23, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon. The Manyak case had previously been scheduled for this Monday night but a joint trial has been ordered by Justice of the Peace Mrs. Fannie Dixon Welch. State Policeman Charles Hill of the Stafford Springs barracks, assisted by Deputy Sheriff Harvey S. Collins of Columbia, is in charge of the investigation.

Rev. G. Barton Williams arrived in town Saturday to take charge of the pastorage of the Walters A. M. E. Zion church for this conference year. Rev. Mr. Williams is a native of Elmira, N. Y., and a graduate of the Elmira Free academy. He studied at Cook academy where he took up special work in religious education. (Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, August 10—Four young people were hurt, one of them quite seriously, and the driver, Chester C. Goodell, 21, son of Mary V. Goodell of 594 Farmington avenue, Hartford, was arrested for speeding, as a result of an accident at Guay's curve in Chaplin at 10:50 o'clock Saturday night. The car catapulted down a 50-foot embankment when it failed to negotiate the sharp curve. Lucille Benoit of 361 1-2 Green street, Putnam, was taken to St. Joseph's hospital by Deputy Sheriff Ernest A. Holland of this city. She was treated by Dr. E. J. Sheriff Holland arrested Goodell for speeding and notified him to appear in the Chaplin town court before Justice of the Peace Theresa Daubeneck at 8:30 o'clock, d.s.t., Monday evening. According to the story told by members of the party Goodell had just passed another machine and was traveling about 45 to 50 miles an hour upon approaching the curve. It was foggy at the time. The sedan tore through the state fence taking down one post and three rails and turning over twice over boulders in its wild plunge to the foot of the bank. The front wheels, springs and all, were ripped from the machine which was otherwise damaged.

DANIELSON

CAT LIVES FOR 15 DAYS IN DRY WELL WITHOUT FOOD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Aug. 10.—If a cat hasn't nine lives, and merely the customary one that particular one is hard to terminate. Out of East Killingly, producer of many unusual nature interest stories, comes a new and authentic tale about a cat that lived 15 and 1-2 days in a dry well before it was rescued.

This particular cat disappeared from the home of Lucius Whitney. After two weeks had elapsed the feline was given up for dead. Then a boy passing along the highway opposite Paine's store heard a faint meow, and tracing the sound out discovered the kitty at the bottom of an old well that no longer contains any water.

It is a rather picturesque part of the story that it was finally decided to lower a small basket into the weel on a rope, and one hears that the exhausted cat promptly crawled into it and was hauled up to safety. The animal was exceedingly weak and thoroughly famished but, with good care, has apparently fully recovered. The condition of the cat's paws indicated that it had tried valiantly to climb out of the well, but without success.

Road-Scraper in Accident.

The town's gasoline driven road-scraper is in a local garage for repairs and its operator, at the time of the accident that befell it, is nursing a badly burned arm. Fred Warren, who is a competent operator and thoroughly familiar with the machine, was working it on Coomer hill, over in the northeastern part of the town, when the time came to feed some more gasoline into its tank. It is understood that the motor was working at the time. Somehow the gasoline became ignited and flared up, burning Mr. Warren severely before he could get away from the danger zone. Men working on the road with him were at such a distance away that they could not render immediate aid. The gasoline in the tank continued to burn, and damaged the coils before the blaze was smothered.

The machine has seen several years of service and is of no great value, as measured in dollars. It will be repaired, however, and put back in service. The past winter it was given a thorough overhauling and has functioned well on road work since last spring.

Now comes the offer of the proprietor of a rodeo to donate 10 per cent. of the receipts of his "main" show to the Day Kimball Hospital Nurses' Home fund. When it gets into this territory the rodeo will do business in the town of Brooklyn. It will be the first rodeo ever to show anywhere hereabouts. Mrs. Albert S. Field, of Brooklyn, an active worker for the nurses' home fund, made it clear, stressed the fact, this afternoon, that the local members of the fund committee are not sponsoring the rodeo. They have merely accepted a proposition that they take 10 per cent. of the receipts of the main show, assuming no responsibility whatsoever for the exhibition by so doing. They understand that it is a thoroughly legitimate enterprise and likely to be of much interest to the general public.

Bird lovers are noting with keen interest the appearance in Killingly this summer of two different species of white eaglets in considerable numbers. They are rated as members of the heron family. A stray one has been noted from time to time for nearly ten years past around the ponds and reservoirs at East Killingly, but they are there now in numbers. A flock of the smaller ones also may be seen about the shores of Alexander's lake.

James E. Smith of East Killingly said this afternoon that not in 50 years have these birds been seen in this town in such numbers as during the current summer. He was a member of a party out observing them yesterday afternoon.

They are to be seen about the different reservoirs at East Killingly by anyone sufficiently interested to seek for a sight of them. Mr. Smith said there are two species of them over there—the little white ones, standing about two feet in height and commonly known as little white herons, and the large variety, standing close to four feet in height.

Both kinds flock together, and are regarded by many as old and young birds of the same species, on account of the difference in size, but they have various characteristics to distinguish them. Mr. Smith says that some know them as egrets, and relates that they yield plums during the breeding season.

The birds are protected, and there is a heavy penalty for killing them.

Wednesday of this week brings the annual field day of the Windham County Farmers' association, at the fairgrounds in Brooklyn. There is to be a clambake and a program of entertainment. The principal speaker is to be D. A. Murdock, of Providence. His subject will be The Market Demands of the Consumer.

Danielson girls, numbered among others from various towns, are nearing the end of their two weeks' stay at the Tri-County "Y" camp at Black pond in the town of Woodstock. The girls went into camp on August first to remain for a period of two weeks. The local girls are expected to return on Thursday.

Miss Wanda Niejadlik of Prospect avenue is spending her vacation at Misquamicut.

FUNERAL.

Mrs. Ademage Beaulac.

Relatives and friends from Danielson were at Plainfield Saturday morning to attend, at St. John's church, at 9 o'clock, the funeral services for Mrs. Ademage Beaulac. The officers of the solemn high mass of requiem were Rev. Harry Chagnon of Moosup, Rev. John H. Landry, pastor of St. John's parish, and Rev. Ludovic Paradis, of Occum. Burial was in St. John's cemetery, Rev. Fr. Landry conducting the committal service. The bearers were Theodore L'Homme, Alfred L'Homme, Severain Beaulac, Philip Beaulac, Napoleon Beaulac and Alfred Bousquet, all nephews.

Honorary bearers were representing the Ste. Anne society: Mrs. Durfee Pichie, Mrs. Edmond Jodoin, Mrs. Alma Goibelle and Mrs. Henry Jodoin. There was a large attendance at the funeral, and many beautiful flowers. Martin T. Burns was in charge of the arrangements.

Clouds so low-hanging that at noon today the semi-darkness that prevailed was like that just before night, foreshadowed a thunderstorm that brought a smart downpour and a drop of 12 degrees in temperature in about as many minutes.

Shoe repairing, while you wait, if you like, and shoe shining at the new Goodyear Shoe Repairing Store, Jodoin block, 70 Main st.—adv.

Approximately half a hundred of the members of Carpenters' local, No. 623, embracing membership in Killingly and villages of the town of Plainfield journeyed to Rocky Point today for the annual outing. A shore dinner was the big feature of the affair.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Dowe and their children are to be away on a brief vacation the first three days of this week.

There was a large congregation at the morning service at the Nazarene church today, when the pulpit was occupied by Adam Zajas, the boy preacher, of Woonsocket. Mr. Zajas is, apparently, about 20 years of age.

Chief John McFarlane remarked this morning that in his opinion the traffic through Danielson over the week end was just about the heaviest he has ever seen. There was practically a constant jam of cars in the business section.

Good news comes out of East Killingly. King George Jacques is coming to be his active self again, after having been partly incapacitated for weeks by lameness. Next Sunday he is to arrange a clambake at Old Killingly pond for members of the Danielson fire department.

Threatening weather this morning was the cause of reducing very considerably the delegation that had planned to go to Camp Devens to witness the review of the 43rd division, including soldiers from Danielson.

Rhode Island drivers continue to be the worst offenders in respect to attempting to turn cars around in the heart of the business section, thereby blocking traffic, instead of driving around a block.

PUTNAM

SOUTHBRIDGE YOUTH HELD IN JAIL FOR HEARING

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Aug. 10—Defaulting in bonds of $500, Carl Anderson, youthful Southbridge, Mass., bootlegger was committed to the county jail in Brooklyn Saturday, at the order of Justice A. R. Scranton of South Woodstock. He will be given another hearing on Friday, August 15. Anderson, who resides on Elm street in Southbridge, was presented in the Woodstock justice court Saturday afternoon at one o'clock, by State Officer Lionel Poirer of the Danielson barracks, and was charged with owning and keeping intoxicating liquors for sale. The scene of his alleged offense was on the premises adjoining the dancing pavilion at Stone Bridge in South Woodstock. The warrant charged him with committing the prohibition law violation on Friday evening, August 8, while a dance was in progress at the pavilion.

In court, Anderson requested for a continuance of the case in order that he might retain counsel.

Miss Gertrude C. Warner, well known teacher, author and musician, and daughter of Mrs. Edgar M. Warner of South Main street, was resting comfortably today following an operation for appendicitis which she underwent at the Day Kimball hospital late Saturday evening. Miss Warner was suddenly seized with an attack of the disease and was rushed to the hospital at about 10:30 o'clock. The operation was immediately performed, and this afternoon a hospital report said that her condition was improved.

Miss Warner is a member of the faculty of the Israel Putnam school and is an instructor in the primary department there. In collaboration with her sister, Mrs. Mayo D. Hersey (Frances Lester Warner), Miss Warner has written children's books.

A new case of breaking and entering was recorded on the police records Friday evening when Patrolman Benoi Durand, while making his midnight rounds in the business section, discovered that a window in the rear of the Arnold's Sea Grill on Bundy street, had been forced open, but nothing of value taken.

During the height of the excitement incited when Sergt. George L. Gardner, and a platoon of state officers of the Danielson barracks swooped down upon the area surrounding the dancing pavillion at Stone Bridge in South Woodstock Friday evening, a Chevrolet touring car, owned by Oscar Gronlund of Putnam Heights was stolen by some by-stander, who apparently was without means of transportation home. The car was parked on the bridge in a darkened spot, remote from the center of activities. Gronlund in reporting his loss to the police stated that a wallet containing about $25 belonging to him, together with pieces of clothing, which were in the car, were also taken. State and local police are cooperating in an effort to recover the car, which it is believed will be found on the roadside, abandoned.

Telephone repair crews today had practically effected repairs to all of the stations which were put out of commission Thursday evening when this city was struck by a severe electrical storm. As communication with more than 200 stations had been disrupted, much time was required to restore conditions on the switchboard of the exchange to normal.

Excellent weather conditions prevailing today inspired many Putnam people to leave bright and early this morning for the military depot at Camp Devens, Ayer, Mass., where the entire 43rd division, comprised of national guard units from Maine, Vermont, Connecticut and Rhode Island are assembled as a fighting unit. At three o'clock this afternoon the division passed in review before Governors Trumbull of Connecticut, Weeks of Vermont and Gardiner of Maine, and a large staff of military officials and guests. The headquarters company of this city, under command of Capt. J. J. McGarry was among the units of special troops, represented when the 43rd mobilized for the first time during its five-year period of existence.

Sergt. George L. Gardner is acting in command of the state police barracks at Danielson in the absence of Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, who is enjoying his annual vacation.

A number of members of the Windham county bar, have taken an interest in the unusual case which developed a week ago in Grosvenordale with the arrest of two young men on charges of liquor law violations. One of the offenders faces an additional charge—that of stealing three gallons of alcohol which had been procured by the police to be used as evidence against the boys. Despite the fact that the evidence was mysteriously removed from possession of the state police and as yet has not been recovered, the case is to go to trial on August 23, in justice court in North Grosvenordale. The boys under arrest are Edward Noga and Walter Krzemien, both under age, who operated the Colonial Beacon filling station on the Grosvenordale road.

The old swimmin' hole at the Five Mile river in the East Putnam district is a favorite bathing resort of Putnam people these torrid days.

TAFTVILLE CAR BANGS POST, DEMOLISHING MAIL-BOX

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Aug. 10—Louis Faucher, of Taftville, driving a Chevrolet coach, Saturday evening at 11:50, mounted the curb at David Hale Fanning park, and struck the U. S. mail-box, which was fastened to a 6-inch cement post. The steel box and iron cover were demolished. When the post was broken off, flush with the curb, letters deposited late Saturday night were scattered over the road. With two flat tires, Faucher kept going until he reached Lenox avenue, where he turned in and abandoned the car. W. B. Bromley reported the smash to Officer Vegiard, who was on his regular beat on another street. While the car was being towed off the state highway, the driver and the man who was riding with him, showed up. The officer held the driver for appearance in the Griswold town court this (Monday) morning. He will be charged with evading responsibility. It is claimed that Faucher was intending to drive up East Main street instead of North Main street and changed his mind too late to make the turn at the entrance to the park. Witnesses say that there was a heavy blanket of fog through all this section at midnight, Saturday.

VALUE OF BIG PUMPER AT FIRE NEAR TADPOLE

The big pumper again demonstrated its value late Saturday evening when sent to Tadpole, a mile run, to help in saving the property of Ralph Stott and John Potts. A large garage, owned by the latter was burned, also a Ford car owned by Mr. Potts. A new Buick, owned by Mr. Stott was saved. The loss of $1,500 is partially covered by insurance. The pumper dropped its suction pipe into the Quinebaug river, enabling the firemen to save several other buildings. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Six times since the pumper was purchased it has been able to give efficient help, when calls have come for outside aid, because of the fact, that it is a pumper. When water is available, 500 gallons a minute go to the spot under 125 pounds pressure. In case of fire trouble within the borough limits when the hydrants are available, the engine is not needed.

WESTERLY

ASS'T U. S. TREASURER HOPE GOES FOR SAIL ON U. S. S. PORTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Aug. 10—The United States destroyer, the Porter, or "C. G. 7" of the New London base arrived off East Beach and came to anchor Saturday night, at Watch Hill. So close inshore did the 350-foot government craft which draws some 14 feet of water, come to the beach at times especially about noon on Sunday that a rumor spread that the boat was ashore and a number of Westerly people proceeded to the beach to see what was presumed to be a second craft on the beach so far this season. The fact that several trips were made from the Watch Hill Coast Guard station to the destroyer by Capt. George W. Streeter in the station power boat added some color to the rumor until close observers saw that people were put aboard the larger craft by the smaller boat, the reverse of which process would have been in order had the larger boat gotten into difficulties.

The true situation was that the Porter was off Watch Hill by reason of the fact that Walter E. Hope, assistant secretary of the U. S. treasury, and right hand man of U. S. Treasurer Andrew W. Mellon, was a week end visitor to Watch Hill, stopping at his summer home, Ridgecrest, Ridge road and planned on Sunday afternoon to take a sail with his family and Watch Hill friends. Due to the sudden storm with thunder and lightning which followed with squally weather the water became rough and the party delayed sailing. At 1:30 p. m. Sunday, however, the weather cleared and Captain Streeter of the Watch Hill Coast Guard station with the station boat put Mr. and Mrs. Hope aboard with some 18 or twenty guests, which necessitated several trips to the destroyer from the coast guard station on Watch Hill point. The destroyer with Assistant Secretary Hope and party aboard then departed for Newport to return later on Sunday night. Mr. Hope came to Watch Hill Friday in a government seaplane.

While observers on East Beach were watching the destroyer, the racing sloops or possible defenders of the America's cup, the Weetamoe and the Resolute were seen passing Watch Hill on a westward course.

Fred E. Carlisle of Springfield, Mass., a summer visitor in Stonington four months of the year, was before Acting Judge, Clerk Herbert P. Clark, on Saturday noon in a special session of third district court, after being apprehended in Hopkinton about 6:20 p. m. Friday night by a trooper of the Hope Valley barracks of the Rhode Island state police. He was charged with the operation of his automobile at a rate of speed greater than reasonable and proper which the officer reported as clocked at from 55 to 60 miles per hour.

After pleading guilty in his own defense the accused informed the court that traffic was not heavy on the road and that he had not "cut in" on traffic and in the 9 years he had been coming to Stonington this was the third time he had been stopped by an officer. On this trip he said he was being accompanied by his mother, aged 77 years whom he had met at the North Station in Boston when the train was over an hour late which was another reason for his higher rate of speed. Acting Judge Clark inquired if he had read recently of the efforts of state police officers to make the Nooseneck Hill road a safer thoroughfare where already they had occurred five deaths and several serious accidents, the respondent replying that he had not read local papers, but that his auto on last Friday had undergone the Massachusetts "save a life" test and bore the sticker for light and brake test, the latter having only recently been relined. On adjudging the accused guilty Judge Clark imposed the minimum fine of $10 and costs of $3 which were paid, and the defendant discharged.

Michael Dyer of Worcester, Mass., charged with speeding on the Nooseneck Hill road at the Meeting House Bridge was before Acting Judge H. P. Clark on Sunday morning in a special third district court session on complaint of Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown. On being found guilty a fine of $10 and costs was imposed by Clerk Clark and when paid the defendant was discharged.

The large three-story wooden frame house at 111 High street, known as the property of Hannah L. Crandall, widow of late John Crandall, to whom it was conveyed in two deeds one of August 26, 1918 and one of December 2, 1917, the latter from the late Mary E. Chapman, was sold at public auction at 11 a. m. Saturday. The lower apartment is occupied under a three-year lease by the Westerly Visiting Nurse association.

The sale was made to settle the estate of Hannah L. Crandall and under a Washington County Superior court order with Cornelius F. Reilly as commissioner and others as complainants and Mrs. Catherine Brennan Hart and other heirs as respondents. The land is bounded easterly and northerly by land of the estate of Joseph Potter and southerly by land of Grace Methodist Episcopal church and westerly by High street, and occupied during her lifetime by Hannah Louise Crandall, the land being taxed at $800 and building at $5,500.

The auction was conducted by Auctioneer Russell Lee Slocum and the petitioners represented by Attorney John J. Dunn, who stated that the house built many years ago had 25 rooms and could not be replaced for $30,000 and was located in a section where there was no land for sale. The bidding was started at $7,000 by Alfred Louis Perine, of Ashland, Mass., who was born in Hopkinton and whose wife, Theresa Elizabeth Riley, was a legatee, Mr. Perine residing here when his father, Berfiglie Perine, rebuilt the Westerly-Bradford state road in 1924. The bids were added in $100 raises until $8,000 was offered by Howard E. Thorp and the property finally stuck off at $8,100 to the first bidder, Alfred L. Perine.

H. Wayland Lanphear, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Lanphear of 19 Beach street, a World war veteran and formerly employed at the King Bottling Works off Canal street is seriously ill at his home.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Jeannie L. Smith.

The death of Mrs. Jeannie L. Smith, and a Norwich resident for a number of years, in her 66th year, occurred at the Westerly hospital on Saturday evening, where she had, in three weeks' illness, been a patient since July 17, when she underwent an operation.

Mrs. Smith was born at Glasgow, Scotland, on September 23, 1864, being the daughter of the late Robert and Jeannie (Napier) Scott. Coming to this country in her youth, she was married at Lowell, Mass., on October 25, 1889, to Peter B. Smith, who died in 1917. From Lowell, Mr. and Mrs. Smith removed to Norwich where all but one child were born.

Five children were born to the couple, and three survive, they being John Smith and Misses Jessie L. and Jean N. Smith, all of Westerly. A son, Robert S. Smith, died in 1916, and another son, Matthew, died in infancy.

Pain Yields to MUSCLETONE

Having a very badly sprained ankle, I decided to try your MUSCLETONE, so I sent for a bottle. I applied it each night and found much relief from the pain, after only a few applications. The swelling went down in a surprisingly short time, and the ankle is quite well again. I have only MUSCLETONE to thank, as once before when I had a similar ailment, it was weeks before I could use my foot. I hope someone else will read this and give MUSCLETONE a chance to help them in some way. Mrs. Alice Richards, 19 Heath St., Newport, R. I.

Has Many Uses

I have used your MUSCLETONE for rheumatism, lumbago and stiff joints. I am very glad to write you that your remedy has done me more good than any other liniment that I have ever used. I have recommended your MUSCLETONE to my neighbors and they have the highest regard for your preparation. I assure you that I will always keep a bottle at home, as it is simply wonderful. Eugene Ratelle, 98 Rathbun St., Woonsocket, R. I.

When a man has rheumatism so badly that it is downright agony to even move and suddenly regains complete freedom from pain—the chances are that he has learned the secret of MUSCLETONE.

Almost a million people now have found relief through this new discovery. So far as the painful part of rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, neuralgia, lameness of muscle, bones and joints is concerned you may forget it with the first application. Relief actually comes in 7 to 10 minutes. Chronic cases and those unusually severe will of course require continued treatment for a while but isn't it wonderful that the relief you seek is now so easily obtained?

MUSCLETONE is a new discovery in medical science. You no longer dose the system with violent or nauseating drugs. The treatment is applied directly to the part affected and neutralizes accumulated toxins. You can almost feel the pain leaving.

We urge only that you make this test. MUSCLETONE is now obtainable at any good drug store. Buy it today. Use one half the bottle and if you are not entirely satisfied return the remaining half to the druggist and he will refund your money. The price is $1.00.

NEW REPUBLICAN LEADERSHIP

By the choice of Senator Simeon H. Fess of Ohio as national chairman, with Robert H. Lucas of Kentucky, now commissioner of internal revenue, as head of the executive committee, the republican party put the direction of its immediate future activities in the hands of two men whose experience and abilities should give hope of an aggressive and successful campaign. The reorganization has been impending for several months ever since the disclosure of embarrassing financial transactions on the part of Mr. Huston, the retiring chairman, made his retirement only a matter of time.

The work of the committee, under its new executive and directing heads, is of particular importance on the eve of a congressional election. What Mr. Fess proposes to do, with the assistance of Mr. Lucas, is to appeal to public opinion with a record of the administration's achievements and a description of its capabilities and qualifications to remain in power. There are some handicaps which must be overcome, which have in them much of a psychological influence. The country has suffered from economic reverses within the past year that have checked the prosperity that was in full swing when Mr. Hoover came into office. In addition a national calamity has occurred in the widespread drought that has already cost the nation, it is estimated, no less than a billion dollars and may cost much more before nature sends relief. For this ill fortune the republican party is, of course, in no wise responsible. It is an act of nature comparable to flood or conflagration for which nobody is responsible. But psychologically it reacts against the party in power, which is the present executive administration, and this makes an added difficulty for the republican organization in the campaign, which bears with so much importance upon the maintenance of the party's situation in congress.

NO CIVIL WAR VETERANS

For the first time in 65 years the probability is presented that congress will be without a member who is a survivor of the civil war service, on one side or the other. When voters go to the polls in November to choose house and senate members, the names of veterans promise to be conspicuous by their absence on the ballots. Death has taken all except scattered handfuls of the hosts that fought under either Union or Confederate flags, and the advanced age of the men still living keeps them from seeking to enter the list of nominees. It is not without a sentimental wrench to the hearts of the people that we realize that soldiers of the 1861-1865 period are passing from the stage of public affairs, although the process has been long under way.

The congress that will end its existence in March, to be succeeded by the one named this fall, contains a single representative from either the ranks of the Blue or the Gray. Charles M. Stedman of North Carolina came to the house eighteen years ago. Regularly he has been returned from the first district of his state. He remains alone, looking in vain through the legislative halls at Washington for a companion in arms from the armies that struggled under southern banners, or a chance to recall the crisis of the past in conversation with somebody who would understand because of participation on the side of the north. So the student who turned from college graduation to the battlefield, rose from private to major, and became a lawyer after peace was declared, is retiring voluntarily. His span of existence lacks just a few months of having covered nine decades.

The North Carolina man has had eighteen years in the house, a period long enough for him to see the advancing years push farther into the recesses of memory the fateful flow of events in the sectional schism of the nineteenth century. While he has counted off one year after another, he has seen new eras and issues arise in the generations that have succeeded him.

AMERICAN POLICY IN CHINA

It is announced by the department of state that the Washington government contemplates no change in its policy in or towards China. That declaration was made following a call at the department by the British ambassador, who, without submitting any specific proposal, desired to know what steps the United States government considered to be necessary and proper in China in view of the bandit developments along the Yangtse river.

When disorders have arisen in any part of the country, it has been the policy of the American authorities to do their best to help Americans withdraw to places of safety, even though this has meant abandoning to marauders property owned by Americans. The United States now apparently sees no necessity for joint international actions. It has been measurably successful thus far in protecting American citizens and their property, and in due time claims for damages will be presented and pressed.

One of the anomalies of the Chinese situation is that all foreign protests and admonitions have to be addressed to the nationalist government at Nanking, which alone has received recognition from western nations, whereas the outrages complained of are committed by rebels and bandits over whom Nanking has no authority. Plainly, there is nothing to be gained by scolding the nationalist government at this time of crisis and peril. Its very existence is precarious and uncertain. No one knows what the future may bring forth in war-ridden, disunited China. About all the western nations or Japan can do now is to remove their respective nationals from the war zones and await military and political developments.

LOOK TO THE STARS

From earliest times man has been a star-gazer, studying the mystery and the movements of these travelers in space, which Longfellow has so poetically called the "forget-me-nots of the angels." August is the month of shooting-stars and the week that begins today is the period for the most dazzling meteoric display. All the astronomers will be peering into the heavens and thousands of amateur star-gazers will be counting ribbons of faint light as they race across the sky, for this is the special time when the earth swings its way through the mysterious stream of the Perseids, many of which will enter our atmosphere and be seen as more or less brilliant bursts of light as they are consumed.

Meteors look larger than they are, from the glare and flaming effect due to their momentary combustion. The finer meteors on entering the air only weigh a few hundred, or, at most, a few thousand pounds, while the smallest shooting stars visible to the eye may probably be equal in size to coarse grains of sand, and still be large enough to evolve all the light presented by them.

From an astronomical standpoint, the Perseid meteor display is of particular interest because it is the only annual meteor shower that has never failed to re-appear through a period of many years. This meteor river reaches out an immense distance into space, the stream being estimated at 70,000,000 miles wide, and the earth spends a month, from mid-July to mid-August, in cutting across it.

If the man in the street wants a ring-side seat at the celestial display, let him select a spot where he has a clear view of the sky towards the northeast and rather low down towards the horizon where the earliest performers will appear after the curtain of night has been drawn. But after midnight, and fairly overhead, will be the best time to see the Perseids.

A HOOVER VICTORY

That Henry J. Allen was re-nominated as the republican candidate for United States senator from Kansas will be regarded generally as a Hoover victory. The president naturally took no part in the Kansas primary campaign, but the support of his administration and his policies became an issue. Allen made a campaign that was brief and concise. He had belonged to the moderately progressive faction in the senate and had supported President Hoover in important controversies between the chief executive and the senate majority. He asked the people to support him for the nomination if they were anxious to have somebody in Washington who would help rather than hinder the president.

Governor Clyde M. Reed, seeking renomination for that office, made his campaign largely with the attacks upon the federal farm board, which by implication, at least, constituted criticism of the policies which were known to have President Hoover's support. Reed was easily defeated by Frank Hauke, former state commander of the American Legion, and a staunch supporter of the federal administration.

The country will see in the Kansas results a political lesson. If the republicans of the state had any fault to find with the Hoover administration, there was an opportunity to express it by voting against Allen. Likewise the farmers could have shown their disapproval of the administration by voting for Reed, but they declined to do so. As an agricultural state, Kansas has the same troubles that have afflicted other farmers of the nation. When it clings to men who are proved supporters of the nation and rejects those who hold contrary views, the administration may well feel gratified. The farm relief board, and especially its much abused chairman, Mr. Legge, may contemplate the results of the Kansas primary with legitimate satisfaction.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Chinese bandits evidently are interested in executions only in wholesale lots.

The man on the corner says: The noise of raindrops on the roof was a welcome patter-song.

The president probably feels that Washington is a good vacation town when congress has gone home.

Pretty soon now the college coaches will have to go back to the grinding toil of earning their pittances.

Perhaps it was hope of tourist business that prompted Canada, right in the midst of the hot spell, to put in a claim for arctic regions.

The New Orleans beauty queen who was chosen beauty of the universe can join with Alexander in sighing for other worlds to conquer.

The Nanking government seems to be another case of responsibility without authority, or, anyhow, without punch enough to get things done.

Probably nobody will take more interest in that trustworthy information on the liquor traffic, which the prohibition bureau will assemble, than the bootleggers.

New York is discussing the question of whether a motorist has the right to talk back to a traffic cop. He may have the right, but if he does, he shows little discretion.

It seems to be finally dawning on the federal departments that the way to avoid a deficit is not to make the outgo larger than the income. This seems simple enough but a good many public officials, other than federal, haven't found it out yet.

IN THE TOILS

In the short interval between dinner and leaving for his evening office hour Dr. Leboe relaxed into a roomy chair in the living room and picked up a magazine. Frowning slightly, his glance leaped to two others lying on the table near by.

"Alice, have you been subscribing for more magazines?"

Mrs. Leboe looked up a little guiltily "Yes—I received a club rate by taking three."

"But, dear," a trifle impatient, "why order more when we already take four every month besides the weekly?"

"That's what I told the agent, but he suggested that you keep those for the table in your reception room and I take these for at home. He was such a nice young man, a college chap and so gentlemanly."

"Successful, seeing you fell for his talk. But that's the way with you women—just let a silver-tongued young collegian with a smooth way about him direct his eloquence at you and, presto, he has your order. Use some backbone and will power in handling such people. Do I allow—"

Guests dropping in put and end to his oratory.

The next morning's mail brought Dr. Leboe a letter from a large photograph company announcing that they were prepared to extend a much-needed service, that of making a collection of the photographs of the prominent physicians of the city. That is to say, they were inviting well-known, outstanding physicians to appear at their studio and submit to three poses for their photos.

"At not 1 cent expense to you," he read further. "We take these exposures, develop the proofs and allow you to select the one most satisfactory to you, which we then place on file for future reference so that a photograph of you is quickly available as the occasion arises."

Hm-m. No charge for the sittings. Perhaps it might be a good idea to look into this. Of course, he wouldn't order any. He had always been opposed to having pictures of himself around the house, or unloading them onto helpless friends. However, if he was going to take in important affairs, such as reading a paper in the forthcoming medical convention, or being elected president of his club one never knew when one's photograph might be in demand, and if these people wanted to have him sit for them free of charge—

He changed to his best suit, bought a new tie, because none of the two dozen he had seemed just the right one for a prominent physician to be photographed in for publication purposes, and had a hair cut. Arrived at the studio, he was first asked to give his name and other details to the imposing, striking-looking, velvet-voiced blond in the outer office, following which he sat for the pictures.

In a few days he returned to make the selection of the one he was to permit them to use when necessary.

"Ah, Dr. Leboe," smiled the blond goddess on his way out, "how do you like your proofs?"

"I think they're very nice."

"I thought they turned out exceptionally well, but I knew they would. Your face is just the type that takes so splendidly. And how delighted your family and friends will be," the Lorelei enthused, "to have such a wonderful likeness of you!" He stated firmly that he did not intend to order any photographs. He stated other things more or less firmly but when he left she had his order for a dozen $18 pictures.

"But, James!" protested the amazed Mrs. Leboe when the pictures arrived some weeks later, "you always said you wouldn't have a picture of yours around the house. And such expensive ones!"

Dr. Leboe cleared his throat. "Well, my idea really was for them merely to have a negative in case any organization of newspaper would need a picture of me in connection with some article." He broke off abruptly. "What's so awfully humorous?" he demanded, as peal after peal of laughter came from the doctor's wife.

"Oh, James!" she gasped finally, "who was it that said something about using backbone and will power in resisting sales talk?"

He stared, puzzled for a moment, and then a smile twitched suddenly at his mouth. "Look here, Alice, if you will promise me not to tell this around I will buy you those amber beads you admired in the jeweler's window last night."

Mrs. Leboe agreed.—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10—It is not so often that a politician gets a chance to see a symposium of his colleagues' views on his activities, particularly a bi-portisan, or perhaps it might be called tri-partisan symposium.

Things like that only happen after his death as a rule, and veterans of the house and senate probably take those memorial services for departed members a little lightly.

They have too much of the ritualistic about them, too much of the thing done for custom's sake, to be very impressive.

So George W. Norris of Nebraska must have felt a little elation when chance revealed to him that his Washington friends were circularizing his state with such a symposium.

It was prepared by Judson King, Washington news writer, who did the same thing for Nebraska's grand old man of republican irregularity back in 1918.

That time, however, former Rep. Bill Kent of California—who had a flourishing cattle business in Nebraska on the side—was the instigator and financial angel.

The new Norris bulletin, of which the first 200,000 copies are reported to have been shipped into Nebraska late in July, is quite an affair.

It carries quotations from a dozen senators, headed by Hiram Johnson of California, and four members of the house, all saying to Nebraska voters that they ought to give Norris of McCook another time at bat.

There are nine republicans, two democrats and one farmer labor senator on the roll. The democrats are Dill of Washington and Walsh of Montana and the farmer labor man is Shipstead of Minnesota.

The republicans in addition to Johnson are Howell of Nebraska, McMaster, South Dakota; LaFollette, Wisconsin; Cutting, New Mexico; Brookhart, Iowa; Frazier, North Dakota; Borah, Idaho; Nye, North Dakota.

It rather looks like an excerpt from one of those tariff roll calls of last session, before Joe Grundy of Pennsylvania unhorsed the coalition.

What is far more surprising about this "Norris of McCook" bulletin, however—and its author was careful to fix it that way just in case the other George W. Norris had managed to keep on the primary tickets in Nebraska—is its back page.

That is headed "The Press Gallery Speaks for Norris" and below are pieces by some 28 Washington news writers expressing personal support of the senator.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Moral Principles Involved

Mr. Editor: Let us hope that the assemblage of the evidence about the First Burying Ground of Norwich Town, so clearly put forward by Mrs. Rogers in your issue of last Friday may bear fruit.

The Society of the D. A. R. founded (as I understand it) in all humility not to exalt ourselves but to acknowledge then and forever our obligations to those who went before us, has always had for one of its aims the "pouring of oil on troubled water" but it holds truth and justice paramount to all other considerations and for that reason the Faith Trumbull chapter has, after careful study of the question, come forward in the defense of this, our earliest and most historic cemetery.

Aside from the laudable object of protecting the bones of first settlers from desecration we find that moral principles are involved in this question and that the preservation of this spot has educational value.

It is dangerous for the younger generations to grow up without any idea of how slow and painful has been the journey of humanity from its first wretched condition. Let them not think that they can learn, unaided, in a short life time all they need to know.

The man who can look farthest backward is the man who can look farthest forward.

EDITH HUNTINGTON WILSON,
Chairman of the committee on historical research and preservation of the Faith Trumbull chapter of the D. A. R.

YOUR HEALTH

Free Air

By R. M. Filson, M. D., Hartford, Ct.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute, Washington, D. C.)

This is a sign which we see all over the country at practically every service station. It ought to remind us that air is one of the few things which we use that costs us nothing. Air is a vital necessity to all human beings. Without it we can live but a few moments and since it is on the free list, there is no reason why each one of us should not have a sufficient supply to keep us healthy and strong. Fortunately, we seldom hear of death resulting from a complete shut-off of the air supply, but many illnesses can be traced to neglect in providing ourselves with an adequate amount of good fresh air.

Air lacking in freshness is generally referred to as impure or stale air. The impurity may be due to its having been breathed several times; to dust, smoke fumes, and so forth. This type of air may maintain life, but it certainly is unhealthy. Such conditions, if present, are found inside buildings. The outside air, even in cities and industrial centers, is always fairly good as nature purifies it and keeps it circulating. Every one who has been out in the open spaces of the country will have noted the stimulating effect from the pure air with which he was surrounded. Thus it is, that no matter where one lives or works, he may be sure of plenty of good air if he remains outside of buildings. If he must be inside, it is necessary to use some means of changing the air or it soon becomes stagnant and impure and unfit for breathing. Signs of the unhealthy nature of such air will not be long in appearing. Those exposed will feel tired and heavy and lack pep. They will have dull headaches and may feel sick at the stomach. These signs should be regarded as danger signals showing the need for a greater supply of fresh air. If no attention is paid to the signals, people continuing under these undesirable conditions, will grow pale, the quality of the blood will become impaired, there will be loss in weight and strength with increased susceptibility to colds and other minor ailments which are difficult to shake off and may develop into long periods of illness.

If we always remember that whether at work, rest or recreation in buildings, it is necessary to make provision for a supply of fresh air, we may avoid much of the ill effect resulting from lack of ventilation. A properly regulated opening of windows and doors will practically always insure the necessary supply of fresh air. It is a fact that a liberal and constant supply of fresh air during the hours of working and sleeping is one of the greatest of natural elements in promoting health. It is also true that this great nature tonic is free for the taking. Let us, therefore, adopt the following simple measures since they cost us nothing and will lead to increased health and happiness:

1. Spend as much of our spare time as possible out of doors.
2. Take up outdoor recreations and amusements.
3. Walk to and from work where possible. To walk once a day is better than not at all.
4. When outside, breathe deeply and a couple of times each day take several deep breaths, forcing all the air possible out of the lungs and then filling them up with a fresh supply.
5. Keep living rooms at home ventilated through open windows and doors in good weather. In winter or bad weather open the windows several times a day for a few minutes. This will change and freshen the air without causing discomfort.
6. Keep bedroom windows open all the year around.
7. If an indoor worker try to teach the value of ventilation if there is objection to open windows.
8. When weather permits, get outside at noon.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Peter Rabbit Doubts His Eyes

Your eyes, although they be well
schooled,
Are not immune to being fooled.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit thinks his eyes are pretty good. Yes, sir, he thinks they are pretty good. He knows they are not as good as the eyes of some of the other little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows, but he believes them good enough to have faith in. He knows that they do not compare with the eyes of such people as Redtail the Hawk and other members of the Hawk family. But when he sees a thing he is sure of what he sees.

So it happened that Peter was very much puzzled. He had been over to the Old Orchard, and while he was sitting near the old stone wall that is on one edge of the Old Orchard he saw Striped Chipmunk whisking along the old wall as only Striped Chipmunk can. Peter and Striped Chipmunk are old friends. Striped Chipmunk didn't stop to speak. He was in a hurry. He disappeared between the stones of the old wall. Peter knew that somewhere down underneath Striped Chipmunk had a hole in the ground and that his home was there.

Peter had almost forgotten Striped Chipmunk and was sitting, half dreaming, when he caught just a glimpse of some one popping out from between the stones of the old wall and almost at once disappearing again. Peter's eyes flew wide open. Yes, sir, they flew wide open. He stared and stared and hoped that whoever had disappeared would reappear.

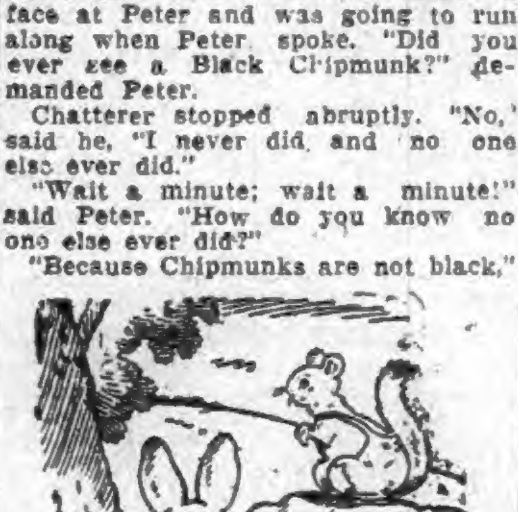
"That wasn't Striped Chipmunk, but it was Chipmunk," declared Peter. "It must have been a Chipmunk. It was just the shape of Striped Chipmunk, and it ran like Striped Chipmunk, and it had a tail like Striped Chipmunk. But, unless I'm color blind, it was black. Of course, that couldn't be. Chipmunks are not black. It must be that I was more asleep than I thought I was. Perhaps I was wholly asleep and dreamed it."

Just then Chatterer the Red Squirrel came whisking along the old stone wall. At once he saw Peter. Peter saw him. Chatterer made a face at Peter and was going to run along when Peter spoke. "Did you ever see a Black Chipmunk?" demanded Peter.

Chatterer stopped abruptly. "No," said he, "I never did, and no one else ever did."

"Wait a minute; wait a minute!" said Peter. "How do you know no one else ever did?"

"Because Chipmunks are not black," declared Chatterer in his most decided way.



"Wait a minute, wait a minute!" said Peter

"Why shouldn't there be a Black Chipmunk as well as a white Red Squirrel?" demanded Peter.

Chatterer didn't know just what to say. You see, he had once had a son who wore an all-white coat. It had happened only once, but that once did prove that a Red Squirrel could be white. "That's different," said Chatterer lamely. "White coats do happen once in a while."

"So do black coats happen once in a while," retorted Peter, who just then happened to remember that Reddy Fox had once had a son with a black coat.

Chatterer remembered at the same minute, and so he couldn't say a word of denial. Still, he wasn't ready to believe that Peter had seen a black Chipmunk. "Peter," said he, "you were dreaming. There may have been a black Fox, for I remember now that Reddy Fox did have a black-coated son. And, now I think of it, I believe that I've heard that in some places there are black members of my cousin's family, Happy Jack and Gray Squirrel. But I have never known of a black Chipmunk, and I don't believe you've seen one."

"Neither do I," said Peter. "I must have been mistaken."

A little fellow of 5 years fell and cut his upper lip so badly that a doctor had to be summoned to sew up the wound.

The mother, in distress, could not refrain from saying:

"Oh, doctor, I fear it will leave a disfiguring scar."

Tommy looked up into her tearful face and said:

"Never mind, mamma, my mustache will cover it."

Not Informed

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Yale & Towne Manufacturing Co. Stamford.

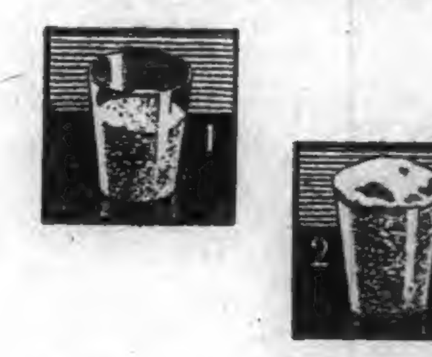
During March, 1868, the organization now known as The Yale & Towne Manufacturing company, commenced production in Stamford. Linus Yale, junior, lock-inventing genius, and Henry R. Towne, a young engineer of American and European training, were founders. Four years before, Mr. Yale had given the world the celebrated flat-keyed pin-tumbler lock, an adaptation of the pin-tumbler mechanism that had safeguarded the treasurers of the Pharaohs 5,000 years before. The lock industry was revolutionized. Rings of keys were reduced in weight from pounds to ounces.

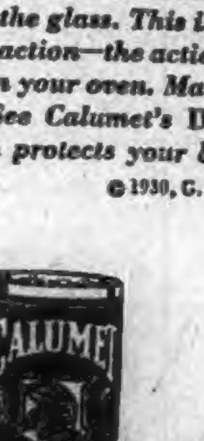
Manufacture at Stamford began with 35 employees and 15,000 square feet of floor space within a 5-acre area. Today the Stamford plant contains 27.5 acres with 1,011,321 square feet of floor space and 4500 employes.

Yale & Towne plants are located at St. Catharines, Canada; Philadelphia; Cincinnati; Holyoke; North Chicago; Lockport, Ill.; Chicago; Velbert and Solingen, Germany. The combined area of the Yale & Towne Manufacturing company's production system totals 169.3 acres, with a floor space of 1,889,841 square feet and a payroll of 7500 employes.

In 1869 the complete manufacturing line consisted of Yale bank locks, Yale pin-tumbler key locks, and Yale post office lock boxes. Now the line includes locks and hardware in thousands of varieties, door closers, electric trucks and chain hoists.

The company officers are: Schuyler Merritt, chairman of the board; Walter C. Allen, president; Joseph A. Horne, vice president, production; E. C. Waldvogel, vice president, sales; Charles W. Sager, vice president; Ernst A. Damm, vice president; J. H. Towne, secretary; Addison Boren, treasurer; Fred Dunning, assistant secretary.





Calumet's Double-Action has come to town to help you with all your baking

MAKE THIS TEST—See for yourself how Calumet Baking Powder acts twice to make your baking better. Put two level teaspoons of Calumet into a glass, add two teaspoons of water, stir rapidly five times and remove the spoon. The tiny, fine bubbles will rise slowly, half filling the glass. This is Calumet's first action—the action that takes place in your mixing bowl.

After the mixture has entirely stopped rising, stand the glass in a pan of hot water on the stove. In a moment, a second rising will start and continue until the mixture rises to the top of the glass. This is Calumet's second action—the action that takes place in your oven. Make this test today. See Calumet's Double-Action which protects your baking from failure. © 1930, G. F. Corp.

IF YOU want to know why Calumet has become the most popular baking powder in the world—make the double-action test.

Double-Action. Here it is. Two risings, not merely one Calumet's way of making cakes high and fluffy—biscuits light and flaky. Women all over town are proving this to be true.

The first action of Calumet takes place in the mixing bowl. Then in the oven a second action swells through the batter and makes your cake rise perfectly—even though you may not be able to regulate your oven temperature accurately. Make some hot biscuits or a cake today—see what splendid results Calumet brings!

Only One Level Teaspoon of Calumet to a Cup of Sifted Flour!

That's the usual Calumet proportion. Be sure to follow it even though you may have been using nearly twice as much with other baking powders. You'll be delighted with this economy! And more than delighted with the results Calumet gives you. Perfect texture! Perfect flavor!

All baking powders are required by law to be made of pure, wholesome ingredients. But not all are alike in their action. Not all will give you equally fine results in your baking. Calumet is scientifically made of exactly the right ingredients, in exactly the right proportions to produce perfect leavening action —Double-Action. Get a can of Calumet from your grocer today. Notice Calumet comes in full-sized one pound cans.

FITCHVILLE BOY SAVED FROM DROWNING AT GARDNER LAKE

Charles Main, 13, of Fitchville, was rescued from drowning Saturday afternoon at Gardner lake, by Harry Hannon, of Baltic, who dove for him twice. It was the fifth rescue made by Mr. Hannon in the past few years.

The near drowning occurred at the annual picnic of the Fitchville Baptist church Sunday school. The boy, with other members of the Sunday school, was swimming near the shore. He has been learning to swim, and at the time he went down was swimming alongside a boat to which he had been clinging. Believing himself in shallow water he let go the boat. When he tried to touch bottom he found himself in deep water, and becoming panic-striken, sank. He had gone down for the third time when Mr. Hannon, diving twice, found him at the bottom. Mr. Hannon brought him to the surface and to shore. First aid was applied to revive him and in the meantime a hurry call was sent to a Norwich physician.

The nearly drowned boy was placed in a machine and rushed to the W. W. Backus hospital in this city, where after receiving treatment, he was later discharged. Sunday, the boy was little the worse for his harrowing experience.

His rescuer, Mr. Hannon, resides at No. 184 High street, Baltic, and is employed at the Hartford office of the Southern New England Telephone Co. He is spending his annual vacation at his home. The Main boy, who lives at the home of Leroy Lathrop in Fitchville, is the fifth person Mr. Hannon has saved from death.

Recently, he rescued a drowning person at Crystal lake, and two or three years ago saved two girls from drowning at Atlantic beach. Sometime ago he rescued a person from drowning in a river in New York state.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel has accepted the offer on behalf of the state.

Five of the directors of the foundation are members of the faculty of Yale university and others are prominent in the fields of education, business and philanthropy. Extensive statistical and legislative data has been compiled by the organization, much of which has been the basis of new traffic laws, regulations and procedure in various cities and states of this country and Europe.

Many of the traffic ordinances in New York city are based on a code prepared by William Phelps Eno, of Westport and Washington, D. C., founder of the organization and chairman of its board of directors. A plan for traffic control at the Rond Point on the Champs Elysees in Paris, prepared by the foundation, has recently been put into effect. New Haven is also using some methods of traffic control recommended by Mr. Eno. Information of this type will be made available to towns and cities of Connecticut, through the motor vehicle department, and the foundation plans to co-operate in any special studies of particular conditions, anywhere in the state, which are requested during the campaign.

The suggestion for participation in the Save-a-Life campaign was made by Mr. Eno recently, shortly before he left for a stay in Europe, and the offer was made by Professor C. J. Tilden, of the department of engineering mechanics at Yale, who is vice president of the foundation.

Mr. Eno has carried on studies of highway traffic regulation since the early days of automobile traffic. His work has been instrumental in the establishing of many organizations devoted to similar work. He established the foundation, which has a generous endowment, and it was incorporated in 1921, and since it has been operating as an important agency in its field.

Besides Mr. Eno and Professor Tilden the board of directors includes President James R. Angell, William J. Cox, Professor Winthrop M. Daniels and George P. Day, of Yale university; Dean A. N. Johnson, of the University of Maryland; Thomas H. MacDonald, director of the federal bureau of public roads; William J. Eynon, Washington, D. C., and Philip G. Bartlett, Major Charles A. Benton, H. Edward Bilkey, David J. Ely, Alfred Hawes, Amos R. E. Pinchot, Henry B. Platt, Reeve Schley and H. H. Sprague, all of New York. Mr. Bartlett is president and Mr. Ely, secretary-treasurer of the foundation.

Girl Scouts Camp

In spite of the intense heat, the Girl Scouts at Camp Sacajawea, Mohegan park, have had a very active schedule. The walk being an unusually cool one, the girls are not tired when arriving at camp, and enter the daily routine with enthusiasm. A new phase of work, handicraft, was introduced the past week and rapid progress is being made by those making futuristic vases under the leadership of the camp director, Miss Catherine Sullivan. Tuesday, the park was filled with the smell of cooking as the girls gathered in patrol to prepare their luncheon.

During the rest period the scouts gathered and sang their camp songs, which they have been learning. The most anticipated period in the schedule, the swimming hour, follows quickly after the rest hour.

Mrs. Frank Rinella, who is directing the pageant which will take place at the close of the season, spoke to the girls about their costumes. These costumes of crepe paper are made by the scouts themselves.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by Bureau of Markets
Conn. Dept. of Agriculture

Reports from all over the state agree that the continued hot dry weather has resulted in much damage to the quality of the bulk of fruits and vegetables offered. Demand for many of these has also slowed up due to the same extreme weather conditions. The total amounts of products on sale has not been materially decreased except in a few cases but high grade receipts have decreased sharply for a number of products.

The local morning's market found tomatoes and green and wax beans firm and in very light offerings. Sweet corn, cucumbers and peppers were more liberal and prices generally lower. Potatoe and onions were in heavy supplies and generally weak.

Apples of ordinary quality were liberal but fancy stock was scarce and in good demand. Very few native peaches have reached the market but the shipped ins continue liberal.

Eggs and butter were firm and native eggs were advanced in the better grades. The grain market was firm with advanced prices generally prevailing.

MAY CULTIVATE CURLS FOR BIG WINTER HATS

PARIS, Aug. 3—(AP)—Are women going to cultivate Gainsborough curls to accompany their big velvet Gainsborough hats next winter?

The hairdressers' league of style headquarters thinks they will and is preparing for a busy season with curling iron.

Milliners are not so sure.

One of the women designers who takes a leading part in launching big hats of velvet for formal afternoon occasions of autumn and next winter says that softening curls are not necessary for successful wearing of big hats.

She wears the wide brims herself with short hair and a clipped neck.

It's the same style of hairdressing used for the berets and bonnet styles of advance autumn and the current season.

"No, I don't think women will give up their short hair and present pretty outlines of head and neck," a Rue de la Paix dressmaker said.

He asserts that sausage rolls are the chignon a la mode.

They must be soft and worn at the nap of the neck, he says.

Fringes, otherwise bangs, are the hair style of the immediate future according to a he-hairdresser who operates on both sides of the Atlantic.

"Short hair is doomed. In fact it's already gone," he said positively. "Curls are coming in."

NOTORIOUS SMUGGLER ARRESTED IN HAVANA

HAVANA, Aug. 10—(AP)—Isaac Weinstein, notorious alleged smuggler who has been a fugitive from justice for more than 13 months, was held without bail today following his arrest last night on a charge of attempting to sell a "gold brick" to a Havana merchant. Police said the brick was of copper.

Officials charged that as the leader of a foreign band of smugglers Weinstein reaped a rich harvest more than a year ago by smuggling aliens into the United States.

Police confiscated a quantity of fraudulent immigration seals, revenue stamps, passports and other official papers. Officials intimated Weinstein would be deported immediately unless United States authorities in Cuba wished to take action against him.

"Now I Feel 100% Better"

"People told my mother how good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was for young girls, so I took it. I used to feel miserable at certain times but now I feel 100% better and have gained a little in weight too. I am only nineteen years old. I do not work but of course I help mother with the housework. We are both much pleased with the results from the Vegetable Compound and we recommend it to other girls who need it."—*Bernice M. PRICE OF MILK RAISED IN NORTHERN NEW JERSEY

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 10—(AP)—One cent a quart will be added to the retail price of milk in most northern northern New Jersey communities tomorrow. Prolonged drought, which made it necessary for dairymen to feed their cows instead of sending them to pasture recently brought an increase of 37 cents a hundred pounds in the wholesale price.

SERIOUSLY INJURED WHEN MOTORCYCLE SKIDDED

CHESHIRE, Aug. 10—(AP)—Thrown from his motorcycle when it skidded, Steven Ballog, of Stamford, was severely injured about the head here today. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital, Waterbury, where it was to be determined whether there was a skull fracture. John Orusasky, also of Stamford, riding with Ballog, escaped with bruises.

The Yacht Club at Santa Barbara, Cal., has a living emblem on the free end of its flagstaff. It is not a golden eagle which tops the flag, but a dun and gray sea gull which perches atop the knob. The same bird roosts there almost motionless nearly all day unless disturbed. It usually takes its post in the late morning and maintains it until evening.

IDEALS TROUNCE THERMOS, 9 TO 5, IN FIRST GAME OF CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES

By trouncing the Thermos Bottle team 9 to 5 Sunday afternoon at the J. B. Martin field, Tony Bernard's Ideals proved to a thousand or more fans that their victory over the Bottlers in the City league was no fluke. Dan Driscoll was in charge of the Thermos instead of Bill Hastedt, but this has absolutely nothing to do with the result of the game, in fact, Driscoll had a stronger club than that which plays in the City league.

The Ideals landed on Kotch in the first inning to score three runs, only to have the Thermos tie the count in the fourth and go into the lead by scoring a single run in the first of the fifth. The Ideals came back in their half of the fifth to score two runs which put them out in front again. In the seventh the Ideals rallied and scored four runs driving oKtch from the mound. Nickerson finished out the game and held the Ideals.

The game was played under regulation baseball rules and the umpires had full charge of the game being unhampered by an arbitration board. There will be a second game of the series next Sunday and Manager Driscoll has warned Manager Bernard to watch out. Although he is not trying to alibi himself in any way, Mr. Driscoll says that he will have his regular club in the field and it will be a very different story. The score:

SHYMAS SPLIT EVEN WITH THREAD CITY TEAM

The Shymas, who have won 21 out of the 25 games played got an even break in the week end series with the Willimantic All Stars, losing the Saturday game at Taftville, 10 to 9, but easily defeating the Stars in Willimantic, 11 to 3, on Sunday. Saturday's game was a hectic affair with the Stars getting seven runs in the first inning off Faucher and Dudek, but Pete Raymond stopped the rally. The Shymas rallied in the fifth to drive Rivers from the mound but Lefty Smith checked the rally. In Sunday's game Sammy Raymond held the Stars to four hits while fanning eight. The score:

MISS LINDSTROM WINS LONG DISTANCE SWIM

ST. GEORGE, Staten Island, New York, Aug. 10—(AP)—Lisa Lindstrom, of the Women's Swimming association of New York, won the national senior long distance swimming championship for women today by a margin of 30 feet over her teammate, Eva Bein.

Miss Lindstrom covered the four and a half miles from Great Kills to Midland Beach in two hours, five minutes, 17 3-5 seconds, 34 seconds ahead of Miss Bein. In third place, several hundred yards behind, was Dorothea Dickinson, still another member of the W. S. A., and fourth was Dorothy Nalevarko of Baltimore.

Miss Lindstrom and Miss Bein staged a thrilling finish for the benefit of some 10,000 spectators. At the halfway mark, Miss Lindstrom led by about 200 yards and she retained this advantage with only about half a mile to go. From there to the finish line, however, Miss Bein staged a spurt that just failed to win for her.

Challenge

The Fisk Rubber B. B. club, winners of the Twilight league, challenge such teams as Shymas, Willimantis Stars, N. L. Colored Giants, Fitchville, Colchester Townies, St. James of Danielson, Wauregan and Plainfield or any other fast club for Saturday or Sunday games. The manager of Fisk has a wonderful baseball club and is out to win from any who may accept this challenge.

THE SHOE ON THE OTHER FOOT

His official title was "Captain of Police", an an efficient officer was he. He could take down your name, address, your age, color of your hair and eyes quicker than it takes to tell about it. He could even take your fingerprints if it were necessary. He could ask you more questions per minute than you could answer per hour. If you passed a traffic signal, which you positively didn't see, he could tell you the evils of your unobservance and the dire results of your negligence. He could ask you conundrums like: "What do you suppose we have traffic lights in our city for?", or, "Don't you know there's no excuse for you passing a traffic light, aren't they perfectly visible?" And then in a very pleasant way tell you that you would have to deposit $2 as a bond for your appearance in court.

One day not so long ago this same efficient captain of police was driving in another town. In that town they also had traffic lights and the officers on duty were as equally efficient as in the captain's town. But the captain, being human, neglected to see a very red light, which according to his own oft-repeated statements, meant "STOP". The captain sailed right by the light as grand as you please until the shrill blast of a police whistle brought to him the realization that everything was not as it should be. He pulled to the curb and waited.

A blue-coated arm of the law stepped up to the car, and like all good officers, says: "Whadda you mean by driving by a red light like that, huh?" "I didn't see the light," meekly responds the captain. The officer then asks about his eye-sight, tells him of the dangers of driving by a red light, wants to know how long he's been driving and how's 'taters down on the farm and all those things witty officers can think of. And to all these our captain answered meekly and without spirit, "Yes, sir" and "No, sir", as the occasion demanded.

Just about the time the officer was ready to pass out the membership to the "Two-Dollar club" another officer appeared. He looked at the violator of the sacred law of red lights. He grinned and asked: "Aren't you Captain Blank of the Squeedunk department?" Our captain admitted the allegation. When his identity became known, the officer, who had stopped the captain, put his tickets in his pocket and waved the captain onward. A case of recognizing the profession, as it were.

And now when you get tagged for passing a red light just say to the captain: "I didn't see it, you know how easy it is to pass a red light, don't you, captain?" And maybee he'll let you go — MAYBE.

FANDOM FACES DULL WEEK IN BOXING

NEW YORK, Aug. 10—(AP)—Another dull week in the cauliflower industry finds fight fans left with hardly a dozen bouts of any general interest during the next six days.

In the metropolitan district, principal interest will center around the second American appearance of Justo Suarez, Argentine lightweight. Suarez, who outpointed Joe Glick in his first American start, faces Herman Perlick, one of the famous Kalamazoo twins, in the feature ten rounder at the Queensboro stadium Tuesday night. Perlick, a rough and ready customer with a good left hand, gave Jack (Kid) Berg a stiff argument here recently and should extend Suarez to the limit.

Dexter Park's regular Monday night show will be headed by a ten rounder between Eddie (Cannonball) Martin, former world's bantamweight champion, and Marty Goldman of New York. At the Newark velodrome tomorrow night, Arthur Dekuh, big Italian, takes on Bud Gorman, Kenosha, Wis., heavyweight. Baby Joe Gans, Los Angelos Negro welterweight, battles Harry Wallach of New York in a ten rounder at the Golden City arena Friday night.

At Braves field, Boston, tomorrow night, Jimmy Braddock, Jersey City puncher, takes on the Ponca City, Okla., trial horse heavyweight, Babe Hunt.

Maxie Rosenbloom, world's light heavyweight champion in the eyes of the New York State Athletic commission, resumes his Pacific coast campaign in a six rounder with Nate Brown of Philadelphia, at Spokane, Wash., Wednesday night.

K. O. Christner, Akron, O., heavyweight, takes on Max Baer, of Livermore, Calif., in a ten rounder at Oakland tomorrow night, and on Wednesday at San Francisco, another easterner, Bobbie Ray of Pittsburgh, meets Madison Dix, Bellingham, Wash., welterweight, in a ten round bout.

SHIELDS AND VINES ARE ELIMINATED IN TENNIS PLAY

RYE, N. Y., Aug 10.—(AP)—Two of America's best among an outstanding crop of tennis youngsters were eliminated in the second round of the eastern grass court championships todya.

Frank Shields of New York, 12th in the national ranking, was defeated by a virtual unknown, Arthur S. Fowler, of New York, 3-6, 6-4, 6-1.

The second favorite to fall by the wayside was Ellsworth Vines, Jr., of Pasadena, winner of the recent Metropolitan Turf court title. Vines was beaten by Bryan Grant, slightly built Atlanta youth, in three sets, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

Most of the other favorites advanced without trouble. Big Bill Tilden, defending champion, won two matches today to gain the third round, as did John Van Ryn, of East Orange, N. J. Eddie Jacobs, of Baltimore, Dick Murphy of Utica, N. Y., Cliff Sutter of New Orleans, and Wilbur F. Coen, Jr., of Kansas City. Fritz Mercur, of Bethlehem, who had won his first round match yesterday, defeated A. Lincoln Halberstadt of New York, 8-10, 6-3, 6-2 to gain the third round today.

Both British entrants, H. G. N. Lee and S. J. Perry, were beaten. Lee was eliminated in the first round by Edward W. Feibleman of New York, 6-2, 6-8. Perry, after beating Isidore Biltchik of New York, 6-1, 7-5, was beaten in the second round by Suter, 6-3, 6-3.

Driver Hurt in Collision

Miss Anna Stockdale of Union street received a slight cut on her hand and a sprained leg in an automobile accident at the intersection of Uncas street and Lincoln avenue Friday afternoon. A car driven by her collided with a machine operated by Selectman William S. Murray of No. 70 Prospect street. Miss Stockdale's car, after the collision, mounted a curbing, ran across a lawn and hit the residence of Leonard P. Church of No. 36 Uncas street. Both machines were damaged.

CITIZENS PLAY TWO GAMES THIS WEEK

The Polish Citizens, who during the past week slipped by the Thermos Bottlers and Royals into the lead of the City league title chase, face a busy week as the pack swings down the home stretch. They go to work twice during the coming five days opening the week tonight with the Smoke Shop. Friday they meet Tony Bernard's pets, the Ideals.

The Royals and Bottlers, who both occupy runner berths, work but once each this week, coming together Wednesday evening in another of those "little battles of the century." This game, by the way will be played for the benefit of the "kiddies beach fund," all money taken in to go to the annual all-playground outing, to be held at Ocean Beach during the latter part of the month.

The remainder of the week's schedule is as follows:

Tuesday—Italians vs Ideals.
Wednesday—Italians vs Smoke Shop.

As the chase narrows down to the final swing there is still some doubt as to which club will win the pennant. Two weeks ago the Bottlers looked the part of sure champs. At this particular date the Citizens do.

Although they hold a full game lead the Polish boys still have plenty of hard work ahead of them and as the old saying goes "nothing is certain in baseball." Who would have thought a week ago that the Bottlers would lose three straight? Yet that is what happened.

Last Monday they topped the circuit with a full game margin but during the week lost twice, once to the tail-end Smokers. In the meanwhile the Cits took both the Italians and Royals, winning from the latter last Friday night. As a result of the many upsets of the past week the official standing at the present time is as follows:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Polish Citizens	8	3	.728
Thermos	7	4	.637
Royals	7	4	.637
Italians	5	6	.455
Ideals	3	7	.300
Smoke Shop	2	8	.200

SETS UNOFFICIAL MARK FOR 150-YARD BACKSTROKE

BEMUS POINT, N. Y., Aug. 10—(AP)—In an exhibition race, the feature of an outdoor swimming meet conducted here today under the auspices of the Niagara association of the A. A. U., Joyce Cooper, British women's open champion in the 150 yard backstroke, established a new, but as yet unofficial world's record for that event. Her time was one minute, 55 4-5 seconds.

Swimming against Eleanor Holm, with whom she jointly holds the official world's record of 1 minute 56 1-5 seconds, Miss Cooper led her opponent by two yards at the end of three laps over the 50 yard course and clipped two-fifths of a second from the all-time mark.

A stiff breeze was blowing, and the open water was choppy. Two out of the three laps were swum with the wind at the contestants' backs, and for that reason A. A. U. officials, four of whom clocked Miss Cooper, said the new record may not be recognized.

ELKS CLASH WITH Y TONIGHT IN JR. COOP

Tonight in the Junior league, the Y. M. C. A. meets the Elks at the Duwell field. The Elks, still in the race for the league pennant are out to win while the "Y" are out to gain their first victory of the season. Although favored to win, the Elks may have a battle on their hands as the Y. M. C. A. are due to win a game. Probable batteries are LaVarge and Dugas for the Elks and Senseski or Rusillo and Stephano for the "Y". The game is scheduled to start at 6:30 p. m. sharp.

Following the game, there will be a meeting of the executive board of the Junior league at the Duwell club rooms.

WILSON'S THREE HOMERS HELP CUBS IN DOUBLE WIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 10—(AP)—A pair of highly polished pitching performances by Charlie Root and Pat Malone and Hack Wilson's home run bat gave the Cubs victories in both games of a doubleheader with Boston today and enabled the National league champions to take a reef in the lead of the Brooklyn Robins.

Root turned the Braves back with three hits to win a 6 to 0 decision in the opener, in which Wilson blasted out his 37th and 38th home runs of the season. Malone came up with a five-hit bit in the second game to win, 11 to 1, as Wilson got his 39th homer.

Wilson drove in four runs in each game, and his home run total as the day ended was only three shy of the National league record set last season by Chuck Klein of the Phillies.

More than 45,000 spectators saw the double victory, and more would have seen it had there been room in Wrigley field. Before the first game started the ticket windows were closed and several thousand prospective customers turned away. The score:

HALLAHAN AND GRIMES TURN BACK ROBINS IN DOUBLE

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Brilliant pitching by Wild Bill Hallahan and steady mound work by Burleigh Grimes gave the Cardinals a double victory over the Brooklyn Robins here today. The double defeat for the Robins while Chicago was winning two from Boston reduced Brooklyn's lead over the Cubs to one game. The Cardinals won 8 to 2 and 4 to 0.

In the nightcap Hallahan was the master all the way. He allowed the National leaguers only five hits and fanned 12. In the third, fourth and fifth innings he struck out seven of the nine men to face him, five of the strike outs coming in a row. Elliott and Moss also pitched creditably for the Robins but they had no chance with Hallahan in such scintillating form.

For six innings the first game was somewhat of a pitching duel between the veterans Grimes and Adolfo Luque, but Adolfo blew up in the seventh and was taken out after the Cardinals had scored three runs. Adams, the first batter to face his successor, Dudley, doubled, sending two more runs across the plate. Thereafter Dudley held the Cardinals hitless. The scores:

WHITEHILL WINS NINTH STRAIGHT FOR TIGERS

BOSTON, Aug. 10 — (AP) — Earl Whitehill won his ninth consecutive game for the Detroit Tigers today, turning back the Boston Red Sox 4 to 2.

Until the ninth the Red Sox went runless and made only three hits, but in the last frame they combined two singles and a double with a sacrifice fly for a vain rally which netted two runs. Until the ninth they had gone runless for 17 straight innings against the Tigers, for they were shut out yesterday.

Stone went hitless today after hitting safely in 27 consecutive games. The score:

HOMERS PLAY LARGE PART IN YANKEE'S VICTORY

NEW YORK, Aug. 10—(AP)—The Yanks outslugged the Browns to take their sixth straight and their third in a row over St. Louis by a score of 14 to 11 today.

Home runs played a big part in the scoring. Ruth hit his 42nd, while Combs, Goslin and Blue also rapped out circuit clouts. Goslin drove in four runs while Ruth sent in three.

The Browns started off with a four run lead but Coffman could not hold it, while Holloway who relieved Pennock failed to last. Johnson wasn't much better but got credit for his second victory in two days. The score:

BUSINESS WAS DULL LAST WEEK, BUT THERE ARE EVIDENCES OF EXPANSION

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Just at the season when a quickening of the wheels of industry is to be expected, old man weather threatens to throw a monkey wrench into the machinery.

The protracted drought over a major portion of the nation's important agricultural areas has caused marked improvement in grain prices, and may send prices of other farm products kiting.

In the meantime, aside from a few automotive, gas pipe manufacturing, radio and other fabricating plants, industry continues to mark time. After abnormally large declines in July, pig iron and steel production has continued to fall off. Iron Age, last week, placed steel mill operations at 54 per cent of capacity compared to 56 per cent for the four preceding weeks. U. S. Steel is reported to have cut its operations during the past week from 64 to 61 per cent of capacity. Youngstown Sheet and Tube plans to operate at 55 per cent during the coming week, a reduction of 5 per cent.

Evidences of seasonal expansion of business are by no means entirely lacking. Money in circulation increased about $40,000,000,000 in the first week of August, just as it normally does after reaching low levels in July. The monthly survey by the federal reserve board again found banking conditions highly favorable.

Most surveys of employment look for some improvement during the remainder of the year. A study of the situation by Standard Statistics company led it to "expect that the fall months will see many people taken back into industry, and the hours of part-time workers increased." Despite numerous wage reductions, many of the nation's large employers have firmly opposed such moves.

Most of the statistics coming to hand were none too favorable. Freight car loadings for the week ended July 26 were off about 9,000 cars, and again at the lowest for the week in eight years. Both pig iron and steel ingot production during July were the lowest since 1924. An increase in U. S. Steel's unfilled tonnage for the month, therefore, was not surprising. Building contracts let in July showed a drop of 44 per cent from July, 1929.

The firmness of commodities was not uniform, dairy products advanced, reflecting the drought, but cotton sold off sharply on publication of the government's crop estimate.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The reorganization committee of the Wickwire Spencer Steel Co. has formulated an amended plan as a result of arbitration with Class B noteholders which provides that holders of Class B notes are entitled to receive 10.686 per cent of the stock of the new company, equivalent to 10.8171 shares of new stock per $1,000 principal amount of Class B notes. The plan provides an increase in the stock of the new company to 368,397 shares from 329,030 shares.

Subsidiaries of the National Electric Power Co., operating in 15 states along the Atlantic coast, reported a total output of 133,466,771 kilowatt hours in July, an increase of 3.7 per cent over 128,758,484 for July a year ago.

In line with the movement now under way in France to retire loans floated in the United States, the Est railroad of France, which sold a $20,000,000 7 per cent bond issue in 1925, has elected to redeem on Nov. 1 the outstanding portion of the issue amounting to $19,663,000. The bonds normally would not mature until Nov. 1, 1954.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theater

Possibly because it followed right on the heels of a sombre war film, but more likely because it is a roaring hotbed of laughter itself, the moving picture "Way Out West," which opened at the Palace theater, yesterday, took the audience by storm. Its dialogue, action and setting are well-night irresistible, while its plot is perhaps the funniest that has been seen in Norwich this year.

William Haines and Leila Hyams are the stars of "Way Out West," but the rest of the cast is so good that it must be mentioned. It includes our old friend Polly Moran, (Marie Dressler's sidekick), Cliff Edwards, Francis X. Bushman, Jr., Vera Marsh, Charles Middleton, Jack Pennick, Buddy Roosevelt and Jay Wilsey.

The picture is an uproarious farce. Haines is presented as a barker at a circus carnival who runs a crooked roulette wheel. So successfully does he operate this dishonest device that when a group of cowboys canter over to the little western town where the circus has pitched its tents, he cleans them out of every cent they have. Then to cap the climax, La Belle Rore, the devastating circus dancer, runs away with the cash.

Consequently when the cowboys come back and discover that they were cheated, Haines has nothing to give them except fine words. Naturally this does not make a hit with the cowboys at all. They want their money back and if they can't get it, they intend to do the next best thing.

Broadway Theater

Enthusiastic applause followed the course of the exciting sequences of "Three Faces East," the latest Warner Bros. and Vitaphone production, last evening at the Broadway theater.

The all-star cast is headed by Eric von Stroheim and Constance Bennett. Others prominently cast are Anthony Bushnell, William Courtenay, Craufurd Kent, Charlotte Walker, William Holden and William von Brincken.

The action takes place on the French battle front and in London and is concerned with the machinations of spies—the German spy played by Eric von Stroheim, and the English spy, by Constance Bennett. The thrill among many thrills comes from the love story of the two. The conflict grows more and more tense as it nears the climax when the two are forced to decide between love and love of country. "Three Faces East" is the greatest play of the type ever produced.

HOUSEWIFE SHOULD FIND THINGS OUT

The other day at a college reunion a group of graduates who had all abandoned hopes of other careers to follow the way of marriage and housewifery were commenting on the courses they had had in college that had proved the most useful since graduation. More than one of these women expressed the opinion that certain courses that are seldom found on curriculums would have proved more useful than advanced Greek prose or Anglo-Saxon, for instance. One of the women suggested that no woman's education ought to be regarded as complete until she knew enough about practical electricty to renew a burned-out fuse.

One does not have to go to college to learn these things. It is simply a matter of making up your mind you will know them and then asking some one who does know to show you. It is such a simple mater. You can find out all you need to know about fuses in 5 minutes at the electric light headquarters where you pay your bills.

Another thing you ought to know is how to regulate the air cock in the gas stove or hot-water heater, so that the mixture of gas and air will be satisfactory.

You ought to know how to stop a leak in the radiator and how to stop the pounding in the pipes if you use steam heat. You ought to know how to read an electric light or gas meter and how to adjust a new washer.

None of these things is difficult. Many of them would save you much time and anxiety at some time or other if you knew them. And you could learn it all in less than a day if you started out with an inquiring mind and asked instruction of steam fitter or electrician.

SOUTH ENGLISH, Iowa, Aug. 10—(AP)—Mrs. Nora O'Neill, mother of two pretty girls and distinctly feminine, has been head of a road grading gang for 25 years.

Her outfit includes attractive green and white bungalows on wheels brightened inside with flowered cretonnes. She has 49 mules and 18 workmen.

First-Edition Forger Busy

With the rapid rise in prices of modern first editions in Europe has appeared the "first edition forger." Alteration or deletion of dates on title pages, the addition of spurious authors' signatures, the insertion of false title pages and even the reprinting of "rare" modern pamphlets, are among the devices of the new craft.

POETRY

The Night

I think that I have never seen a night
So near perfection. The big, yellow moon
Gave the whole lake an iridescent light,
And every wavelet had a tinkling tune
To toss upon the fragrant breeze. The air
Was bland like wine and honey, and there seemed To be fresh, mellow beauty everywhere
You looked. It was indeed as if you dreamed—
A night for young love, music, poetry,
A night to breathe, be satisfied, and gaze
And store your thankful heart with memory

And on that night, six of us, dinner done,
Free of all care and cark and teen and dule,
Stayed in a stuffy room from eight to one,
Smoking cigars and shooting Kelly pool.
—Ted Robinson, in Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Wildness

Love forged for me a golden chain
To bind my straying feet.
I dwelt in scented rose-leaf rain
And found the young years sweet.

But when I hear the wind sweep by
Or see the white clouds pass—
The spaces of the open sky—
Birds soaring o'er the grass—

There is a little place in me
That cries like any child
To be as forest things are free,
Lonely, and strange and wild!
—Blanche Shoemaker Wagstaff.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"What I have to say will give you food for thought, my son."

"I guess I won't feed my thinker, pa."—Exchange.

Joax—I know a man who nicked Gene Tunney under the chin and stretched him right out.

Hoax—You don't say! Who was it?

Joax—Tony, the barber.—The Pathfinder.

Householder—"Put all that stuff back in the sideboard at once, d'you hear?"

A little Portland girl was penning a leter to her grandmother.

The Newly-weds had bought a chicken, and as Newly-wed was an amateur at carving, his wife insisted on his learning how to carve from the cookery book, so that he should not display his ignorance before their guests.

When the fowl appeared on the table, the host was plainly at a loss how to begin.

"Why don't you carve it, dear?" asked his wife anxiously. "You know exactly how to do it."

"Of course I do, love" said Newlywed, "but I can't find any of the dotted lines."—Boston Transcript.

With the day of her birth set down in the parish records of Parral, Mexico, there is no question as to Mrs. Nicholas Coverrubias, of El Paso, Tex., being 120 years old. She says she expects to live fifty years more. In appearance and vitality Mrs. Coverrubias does not seem to be more than sixty years old.

Moving stairways to the first thirteen floors are contemplated for a projected 100-story office building in New York. This will leave the elevators free to serve the higher floors. Another innovation will be the use of glass and metal to surface the building above the fifth floor, providing ample light. The exterior of the lower floors will be of marble.

WOMEN'S PARTY TO KEEP UP FIGHT FOR EQUALITY

AUGERVILLE-LA-RIVIERE, France Aug. 3—(AP)—Recent amendments to the Cable act are inadequate, says Mrs. O H. P. Belmont, president of the National Woman's party.

The amendments remove chief discriminations against married women in the nationality law and facilitate recovery of the nationality by American women married to foreigners.

"We are now planning to introduce in congress another bill to remove all the inequalities between men and women which still remain in our nationality law," Mrs. Belmont said.

A campaign will be waged to keep congress constantly reminded, she said that:

American women but not American men lose citizenship upon marriage to foreigners ineligible to citizenship in the United tSates.

Foreign men but not foreign women married to foreigners ineligible to United States citizenship can be naturalized in the United States during the marriage.

American women married to foreigners may not give American nationality to their foreign born children.

BATHING-SUIT BEACH LUNCHES IN VOGUE IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3—(AP)—South American women of the capital prefer comfort to style in hot weather.

Wives and children of diplomats go to the nearby beaches to spend the entire day in one piece jerseys. They divide their time between the water and the beach. Most of them are good swimmers.

There is little attempt at striking attire though most of them buy their clothes in Buenos Aires, noted for its smart costumes.

Annapolis Roads Beach and Country club is the favorite resort of the diplomatic crowd. They motor over early in the morning and do not return until after sunset.

The big cars are driven by chauffeurs and the girls of the legations are carefully chaperoned for their beach parties.

Mornings are spent swimming and reclining on the beach under gay umbrellas listening to the radio on the edge of the sands. Bathing suits are worn at the picnic luncheon served in a private room of the club.

Women To Race Powerful Planes In Nine Day Air Derby to Chicago

Gladys O'Donnell (right) and Ruth Elder are women pilots entered in the national women's air derby.

LONG BEACH, Aug. 10—(AP)—Bigger, stronger wings will be spread by women this year in the national women's air derby for large type planes which starts here August 17 and ends nine days later in Chicago.

Many an airplane whose cockpit before has been filled only by man this year will flash away from the starting line with a woman at the controls.

Entrants include such noted women figures of aviation as Ruth Elder, Gladys O'Donnell, Claire Fahy, Florence Lowe Barnes, Bobbie Trout, Margaret Perry, Edith Feltz and Vera Dawn Walker.

They will bring to the race airplanes with speeds ranging from 150 to 170 miles an hour, far faster and more powerful than the fledgling ships they flew in their first national race last year, which was won by Louise Thaden, of Pittsburg, with Gladys O'Donnell, of Long Beach, second.

The speed-wing biplane, the low and high-wing monoplanes will make their first public appearance with women pilots.

The route of the derby stretches from Long Beach to San Diego, first night stop, Calexico, Cal., Phoenix, Ariz., second night stop, Tucson, Ariz., third night stop, Lordsburg, Deming, Roswell, N. Mex., fourth night stop, Lubbock, Amarillo, Tex., fifth night stop, Enid, Okla., Wichita, Kans., sixth night stop, Kansas City, Mo., seventh night stop, Des Moines, Ia., eighth night stop, Elgin, Ill., Madison, Wis., and Chicago.

Postmaster General's Wife Prefers To Be "One of The Crew," She Says

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10—Mrs. Walter F. Brown, of Ohio, wife of the postmaster general, is today shining with added luster and is placed right in the center of the limelight of political publicity, for the name of her distinguished husband is given the place of honor in the list of the prospective chairman of the republican national committee.

In these days when the woman's vote is the deciding factor in national elections the wife of a candidate for the chairmanship counts quite as much as the candidate himself.

More than thirty million will be eligible to vote at the next presidential election.

If the wife of the national chairman can fill the bill, she must be of a type that will command the honorable attention of the women citizens of the country, and one who will not keep her husband in hot water by her too free expression of "what's what" in the world of politics. She can bring hundreds of thousands of women voters into the party fold.

And Mrs. Brown is of that type, though she is so modest and self-effacing that she would be the last person in the world to admit that she would be a valuable asset.

It is expected Senator Fess, also of Ohio, who was chosen chairman at a meeting of the committee last week will serve only until after the November election when Mr. Brown will be selected for permanent chairman and continue in office through the presidential campaign of 1932." President Hoover is said to be urging that this program be carried out.

And what does Mrs. Brown say about it? And what does she say about her official position as wife of the postmaster general?

Well, Mrs. Brown smiles, then answers all questions along that line by saying, "My interests are in Mr. Brown and his interests. We always work together. He leads and I merely follow. When he does big things I just trail along and pick up the little details and things he doesn't have time to attend to, and I pass them along to him." Mrs Brown's dark grey eyes smile into your own eyes and she adds: "You see, I was brought up by my mother not to be conspicuous. So I am somewhat conservative and leave the publicity and public work in the hands of Mr. Brown. He leads and I merely follow."

Mrs. Brown says all this without a suggestion of disapproval concerning the women of more advanced ideas, who advocate standing side by side with men in political life, or acting as pilots along the course of political office seekers. As a result even the women who stress progress, are not offended when Mrs. Brown shunts herself to a side track, they know she plays the political game, even though it is done from the home circle.

When asked if she liked sports, she said, "Mr. Brown used to race a motor boat on the lake some years ago, but we now have a sail boat." That was all right as far as it went, but it threw no light on her sportsmanship, so we tried again. "Did you take part in those races?" was the query.

This time Mrs. Brown was ready to declare her sporting platform. "Oh, no," said she, "I had nothing to do with the races, I went along in the boat, Mr. Brown was captain; I was merely the crew!"

Mrs. Brown is by no means of the meek, lowly or 'me too, type of woman. She is simply conservative and quiet.

She is always becomingly and smartly dressed, she has light brown hair, carefully arranged, is cordial though somewhat reserved in her manner.

And it's a pretty safe guess, that, when the postmaster general becomes chairman of the national committee, Mrs. Brown will be found "going along as the crew."

On Watering Garden

Artificially watering, if properly applied, will prove an advantage to the garden during dry perions, but may prove an injury if not properly done, says, the United States department of agriculture. Frequent light sprinkling of the garden is termed injurious. The proper method, says the department, is to soak the soil thoroughly about once each week, preferably in the evening, and then loosen the surface by cultivation as soon as the soil is dry enough to work. No more water should be applied until absolutely necessary: then another soaking should be given.

Movie Films Quickly Developed

The invention of a developing machine for motion picture film that has a capacity of 1,000,000 feet of film per week has been announced. The original machine is already in operation at Universal City and the company is building two more. It is claimed that by the new process sound track; smaller lines can be developed than heretofore, due to slower processing. The film moves at the rate of 10 feet per minute, permitting the development of sound wave frequencies as high as 12,000 per second. Thirty minutes from the time a piece of film goes into the machine it is out, completely developed and dried and on a reel for projection.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

The mica in stoves can be cleaned by washing it with vingear and water.

A few slices of lemon, or a few spices, cooked with prunes, add a delicious flavor.

Soak the potatoes in cold water for two hours before boiling and they will be white when cooked.

Keep the brown sugar in an open jar in the icebox and it will remain lumpy.

Meat should never be put into the icebox wrapped in paper, as the paper has a tendency to absorb the juices.

Never operate the rolling pin backwards and forwards when making pastry. Roll it forwards only and then lift it.

The water in which beef has been washed is an excellent tonic treatment for plants, and especially for roses and geraniums.

Experience has taught that steamed vegetables hold their flavor much longer and are more healthful than cooked in any other way.

When chipping parsley, add a little salt to it. The parsley will chip much finer and the salt also freshens the parsley.

Always dump fresh berries from the box into a plate or dish where the air can circulate through them. They will keep much longer.

A thick slice of ham makes a delicious supper dish when covered with sliced raw potatoes and a little onion, cooked in milk and then seasoned.

If the meat grinder requires oiling, use a drop or two of glycerine This will act as a lubricant and will prevent any disagreeable taste or smell.

A saucer of fresh milk placed in the larder will keep meat from taint. The milk will become so impure that no animal will touch it.

Rolls and bread can be freshened by wrapping them in a medium wet cloth and placing them in a pan with a tight-fitting cover. Put in the oven and give ample time (about a half hour) to steam. This treatment will produce an orginal freshness.

REAL RUSSIAN COFFEE

The recipe is: Boil or percolate seven tablespoons of coffee with six cups of water in the usual way. Stir two tablespoons of cocoa with a little water to a paste, and when the coffee percolates add the cocoa to it. Simmer for five minutes longer and serve piping hot with sugar and heavy cream.

HINTS FOR THE COOK

To cream yolks of eggs and sugar, or to cream butter and sugar, are directions often found in cooking recipes. To cream eggs and sugar the latter should be seived into a basin, the yolks of the eggs dropped on top and then the two worked together with a whisk until they are light and frothy and a pale lemon in hue.

Fillets of fish intended for stuffing must have the dark skin removed. There is method in the order in which they should be skinned. Remember soles should be skinned and filleted but plaice should be filleted and then skinned.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

If you must be outdoors keep on the shady side of the street and walk leisurely. Do not be foolish and run for a car.

The full weight should not be on the heels but should be distributed on the ball of the foot and the heel, with a little more pressure on the ball of the foot to be prepared for the next step.

To soften hard water, put a pound of bran into a muslin bag and place in four quarts of water. Boil about fifteen minutes. Add enough of the bran water to your bath to make the water milky.

Here are some of the fattening foods: Milk, cream, butter, white bread, pastry, pork, ham, bacon, olive oil, foods cooked in or made with lard, rice, oatmeal, macaroni, sugar, bananas, nuts, ice cream and cakes.

PRETTY PARASOLS

New beach parasols are made with only four sides, instead of the regular six or eight. Some are white linen, embroidered, others gaudy prints, still others delicate pastels. It is smart to match your parasol with your bag and shoes in color.

WOOD PANELED ROOMS

In the case of a wood paneled room, the walls and the woodwork become one. Generally they are both stained or painted the same color, but occasionally doors and panel borders are treated distinctly from the panel centers. Where paneling is effected by means of mouldings, lining, stenciling or plaster casting on the plastered walls, the woodwork is treated separately from both the walls and paneling if the wall is a contrasting color, thus forming a tie-up between woodwork and walls. For example, a pale peach wall could have panels stenciled in light jade green and woodwork painted in the same verdant color.

IN A GARDEN

The perfect gift from a grateful guest to a hostess who loves to work in her garden, consists of a large wicker basket with a handle and a support that can be driven into the ground to leave both hands free for clipping. All sorts of garden tools can be included with the basket if one desires.

COSTUME SLIPS

It requires four seams instead of two to make the better-fitting costume slips hug the form without a wrinkle. For none other than the princess line looks well beneath the present frocks. Crepe de chine still is the favored summer medium.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Foundation garments are necessary to the fit of the modern dress.

Summer party frocks in the nursery set include pale pink voiles and organdies.

Plain gold jewelry, bracelets especially, are an important sports wear note.

Peasant dresses and brother and sister suits are favored by well-dressed youngsters.

It is expected that button-on and smocked frocks will replace straight from the shoulder models in children's departments.

The lace or self-fabric evening scarf is reported from European centers. Channel's fringed chiffon gowns have graceful scarfs, also fringed.

The belt on a pinkish beige angora jersey frock is made of pink and beige silk braid lacing strips of the jersey together.

In recent importations of lingerie pale apricot has registered as an important color. Salmon and apple green are also novelty colors, and all of these are frequently combined with laces that are gray-beige in tone.

THE CHIC OF YELLOW

Now that summer is really here one sees evidence that the predictions of the vogue of yellow were well founded And it is especially smart in a one-piece dress and cardigan of silk knit.

COLOR TOUCHES

or the white sports blouse of eyelet embroidery done in red and trimmed with narrow red lace. Some blouses like this have berets to match, lending a little color to the sleeveless white jacket suit.

WHITE GLOVES

As hot days come, white gloves grow more popular. With short sleeves or no sleeves at all, short white gloves, or pull-ons of six or eight button length are very summery and smart looking.

NOVEL ENSEMBLE

You may have wondered whether printed chiffons would replace the very popular white for evening wear. White continues to hold the center of the evening fashion stage. Organdie is a frequent sponsor of the vogue for white. The combination of brown with white is a novel scheme for the evening ensemble.

LAUNDRY HINTS

If you boil your new clothesline for half an hour before you use it, it will not stretch or tangle and will last much longer.

Adding a teaspoon of salt, or a few drops of turpentine or glycerine to starch when making, will prevent starch sticking to the iron and leave a nice gloss on your linen goods.

New sheets or white lace curtains which have not been washed before should be steeped overnight in a bath of cold water in which has been dissolved two handfuls of common salt. The salt brings out every bit of the lime dressing, and both soap and labor are saved when the articles are washed the following day.

CONCERNING WOMEN

The women of Spain are credited with being the best dancers.

Margaret Bondfield, British minister of labor, is 57 years of age.

Upwards of 2,500 widows of the World war have married in England in the last fiscal year.

According to a recent ruling of a French court, a French woman is obliged to obey her husband, regardless of what nationality he may be.

Foot specialists blame much of the nervousness of women on ill-fitting shoes. Some even go so far as to give aching feet as a contributing cause of divorces which are the outcome of irritable tempers.

HANDY SCISSORS

A pair of sharp scissors save much time. Grapefruit can be prepared neatly, vegetables cut quickly and cold meat diced for salads or cream sauce in a jiffy with the scissors.

FLOWERS LAST LONGER

Cut flowers will keep longer if leaves which are under water in the vase are stripped from the stems.

SUMMER CLEARING

Before the torrid days come, put away every single knick-knack, unnecessary picture, vase, lamp, pillow, table cover, rug, piano decoration and other extras. A room sparsely furnished with no furbelows is much cooler looking and more restful.

EASY TO CLEAN

The bag of white patent leather which complemented a few spring costumes of black and white grows smarter and will be carried for summer. It is one bag that is little trouble to keep clean.

Old and new pieces are attractively arranged here

By ELSIE DREW KENNEDY

It often is surprising how much more alive a room becomes if we deport from the much too habitual and slavish subservience to the "suite," and assemble our own furniture.

Often, of course, this is forced upon us, when we are fortunate enough to have one or two fine old pieces which we wish to retain, or when certain furniture has to fill gaps for economic reasons.

It is well to remember in this connection that old things, even if they seem a bit odd or awkward, have an intrinsic, quite uneconomic value of their own.

In the room sketched above, the owners were fortunate enough to have several old ladder-back chairs of walnut and a table large enough to serve for dining purposes, thus forming the nucleus of a charming group of diningroom furniture.

The mahogany Georgian low-boy with its shell motifs and ball-and-claw feet is new, but a well-designed piece, and the corner cupboard, also new, presents the divided pediment of this period and matches it in feeling.

On its shelves have been placed some pieces from the dinner set, copied from an old Wedgwood design, with a gay little pattern adorning a rich cream background, while one or two Wedgwood plates and some odd dishes repose on the engaging little hanging shelves, which were homemade.

Plates thus disposed do a great deal toward creating an atmosphere of friendliness and hospitality with their cheerful luster and spots of color. Incidentally, good reproductions of old China are inexpensive.

Since this room has a sunny, southern exposure, the walls are painted in a warm gray, with baseboard trim, shelves and corner cupboard painted a light stone blue. This shade takes on a deeper tone in the draperies of mohair—a durable, fairly inexpensive fabric with dignity. A stiff, shaped cornice is covered with this, accented with yellow linen binding, and the glass curtains are of marquisette.

Draperies of printed linen, or even a heavy widely spaced cretonne with yellow and blue predominating would also strike a nice balance between the formal and informal quality of the room.

It is always good to keep the floor dark so it shall seem to afford a good foundation. Here it is painted black, and the rug is a dark gray velour. The table scarf is yellow linen.

Brass candlesticks and a deep bowl for fruit are as sturdy and 18th century-looking as the low-boy itself, and their polished, gleaming surfaces contribute a nice note.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Kinds Of Play

Not all the play with which children occupy themselves is equally good for them.

Recently I had opportunity to observe the activities of a group of pre-school children who indulged in what seemed highly undesirable kind of play.

True, they were physically active from morning till night, but their activity was aimless and singularly lacking in mental content and constructive ideas. There was very little make-believe or dramatizing of the world about them.

Their chief preoccupation seemed to be in making one or the other of the children in the group as unhappy as possible, either by teasing him and leaving him out of their play, or by hurting him physically.

On the other hand I also have seen what seemed ideal play among children, who like the first group, had not the benefit of supervision.

Here there were elaborate play schemes and cooperation in carrying them out among as many as three or four children at a time. Indeed, so absorbed were they in what they were doing that they paid little personal attention to each other.

One might say the children of the first group were as surely learning as were those in the second. They were simply learning different things. Beyond a certain limit however, the personal aggressiveness of children directed against each other harms the development and spoils the play of the entire group.

Often it is possible to improve neighborhood play by furnishing in your own back yard the kind of materials which invite cooperative play, and by tactfully eliminating from this place the one or two children who cause most of the trouble.

FRENCH CASINO'S BAN HITS LEGS MERELY TAN

DEAUVILLE, France, Aug. 10—(AP)—The Casino bans bare legs this year.

No woman may enter its expensive precincts unless her legs are shrouded from the common gaze.

It is a rule that favors brunettes, several of whom got past the gate, the guardian mistaking their healthy tan for stockings.

Blonds, who do not brown, are easily detected and turned back.

QUIET ELEGANCE TO BE FALL FASHION KEYNOTE

PARIS, Aug. 10—(AP)—It's going to be a dull winter, in the clothes sense of the world.

The dressmakers have succumbed in droves to the quiet elegance of lustreless fabrics, both silk and wool.

Only the evening hours will shine—and then only here and there where a stiff satin or crepe satin ensemble stands out against the background of crepe marocain, crepe de chine, velvet and other lustreless materials.

Winter coats are much the smartest in rough surfaced, dull finished wool. Crepe surfaces duvetyn finish and fancy mesh materials of solid color are important elements of the winter coatings.

Black, dark blue, rich brown and dark green are leading colors for daytime coats, suits and dresses.

There are ensembles, particularly for morning or sports wear, which combine several materials in one costume. Occasionally two shades are employed as well as different materials.

In general the ensemble idea still dominates day and evening costumes.

STEP-SAVING PEOPLE WISEST AND HAPPIEST

"Let your head save your heels," was an old-fashioned admonition of housewives years before people began talking about labor-saving devices or household efficiency. Yet carpet sweepers, vacuum cleaners, patent mops and other labor-saving devices are examples of concentrated "head work," done once and for all on the part of the housewife. And kitchens planned and made to save steps are another example of the use of head work in place of heel work.

Still with the best planned kitchen and pantry and dining room, with the most up-to-date shelves and closets and all sorts of electrical devices there are housewives who still do quantities of needless heel work—all because they seem to prefer to "save their heads."

Meal preparation in the nature of things requires the taking of a good many steps, but it is surprising to see how many more steps some women take than others. These are the women who don't think as they work. It is important to visualize the meal ahead of time in terms of necessary steps. If you cannot do this "in your head" take a few minutes getting your meal plan down on paper.

A list of foods will also suggest serving dishes needed in the kitchen and dishes needed in the dining room You may plan to go to the china closet with two trays on one of which to place the things needed in the kitchen and on the other the things needed in the dining room.

Plan so that you can attend to some of your preparation while you are waiting for things to cook on the stove.

Any sort of scheme for planning meals in advance means the saving of steps. It means one trip to the stores instead of two or three. It means often that most of the food preparation may be done at once. Food materials needed may all be assembled on the kitchen work table with the necessary utensils and, then, conveniently seated on a chair or stool, you may do the work in a comparatively short time.

WOMEN ARE BEST DRIVERS ON PENNSYLVANIA ROADS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 10—(AP)—Pennsylvania finds that men are its poorest automobile drivers.

Of the 915 fatal accidents reported in the first half of 1930, women drivers were involved in only 32.

"The worst drivers on the road are men," says Benjamin G. Eynon, commissioner of motor vehicles, "and the worst of them are those who cannot leave their business troubles at home or whose wives are back-seat drivers."

Though one-fourth of the state's motor vehicle operators are women, he found that men on an average also drove more, accounting in part for the high accident ratio.

NEW RULES GOVERNING AUTO BRAKES GO INTO EFFECT TODAY

New regulations governing the examination of brakes on Connecticut motor vehicles, which will require inspectors to provide more severe tests for braking systems, were issued Saturday by Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel. They will become effective today (Monday), coincident with the start of "equipment week," when a state-wide examination of all automobile safety equipment will be conducted as a part of the present Save-a-Life campaign.

Changes in the regulations, as announced by the motor vehicle department, apply particularly to the two-wheel type of braking systems and to the hand or emergency brakes, while former suggested stopping distances applicable to four-wheel brakes have been retained as reasonable, without being set up as an official standard for such systems.

To meet the new Connecticut test, foot brakes on all braking systems must be in condition to bring a motor vehicle to a full stop within 40 ft., when the rate of speed is twenty miles an hour. This is a reduction of five feet in the required stopping distance from the former regulation. The hand (emergency) brake must be able to stop the vehicle within 60 feet from a speed of 20 miles an hour, except in case of heavy trucks. Formerly the specified distance was 70 feet for hand brakes. On trucks of two tons or more capacity, when loaded, the hand or emergency brake must bring the vehicle to a stop within 80 feet from a speed of 20 miles an hour. This represents a decrease of 10 feet from the old regulation.

While all official tests are made on a basis of a speed of twenty miles an hour, the proper stopping distances at which brakes should operate for various rates of speed have been estimated by department officials for the convenience of the public. Brakes should stop the motor vehicle within the following distances, at the indicated rates of speed:

Miles per hour	Foot brakes
20	40 feet
25	70 "
30	100 "
35	140 "
40	175 "

Four-wheel foot brakes should stop cars within the following distances:

Miles per hour	Foot brakes
20	25 feet
25	40 "
30	60 "
40	105 "

Co-operative efforts will be made during all of next week in the testing and examination of equipment by inspectors of the motor vehicle department, the state police, and many city police departments. Numerous clubs and associations will also conduct examinations of the cars of their members. Scientifically tested decelerometers, which accurately guage the stopping powers of brakes, will be used in the official tests of braking systems. It is expected that a majority of the cars in use on the highways will be examined during "equipment week," or in the following two weeks of the safety campaign.

Repairs will be ordered in all cases where faulty equipment is discovered. Each case will be followed up to make certain that orders are complied with, and in cases where equipment is found in poor condition arrests may be made.

In connection with the new specifications for brake tests Commissioner Stoeckel points out the importance of good brakes on every car which uses the highways. "A good driver," he says, "must be able to estimate distance and time when in traffic. In other words, he must think in terms of feet and seconds. At all times he must be sure that he has brakes on which he can depend, so that emergencies can be met. The importance of good brakes must be realized when the fact is considered that a car traveling at 20 miles an hour is going nearly 30 feet a second. When the speed is increased to 30 miles per hour, the car travels about 44 feet per second. Every car owner should remember this and make certain that the brakes on his motor vehicle are in good condition."

NORWICH BROADCAST BOOKS ARE NOW READY FOR PUBLIC

Announcement was made Saturday by Reginald Pardy, foreman of The Bulletin-Record job department that the souvenir booklets containing the ten Norwich broadcasts from Station WTIC, Hartford, have been printed and are now being prepared by the bookbinders. Five hundred copies are to be mailed out Tuesday, the booklets to be sent to those who handed in their coupons first.

The souvenir booklet of 84 pages, with 33 pictures and an attractive cover, contains the entire script of the Norwich broadcast, entitled "The Doctor 'n' the Schoolmaster." In the sketch, a continuation of which went on the air every Friday night from 10 to 10:30 during the 10-week period, John Richardson, secretary of the Norwich chamber, carried the role of the schoolmaster while Leonard J. Pattricelli, continuity writer for the radio station, carried the other role. The broadcast was officially opened by Gov. John H. Trumbull.

The entire first edition of 2,000 copies will be completed by the end of next week and the orders are to be filled in the order they are received. Already, according to Mr. Pardy, over 1,500 of the booklets have been ordered. If public demand requires it, another edition will go to press shortly.

That Norwich will benefit materially by the sale of these souvenir booklets can easily be seen by the fact that orders have come in from practically all parts of the United States, some sections of Canada and several from England. According to the orders received, the farthest the broadcast book will be sent by the job department will be to Leeds, Yorkshire, England, from which city it was ordered by Mr. and Mrs. Addlestone. Another of the first copies will be sent to William Penner of 721 West Court street, Beatrice, Neb.

As soon as the booklets are returned from the bookbinders, the first copy is to be presented to Mayor Lee Roy Robbins. Mayor Robbins has already displayed great interest in the broadcast and the souvenir booklet, having sent in an order for 10 copies.

The booklet is not only attractive but contains a wealth of data on Norwich and vicinity and with its many illustrations will be of great interest for years to come. The script takes in Norwich, historical, geographical, topographical, genealogical, industrial, commercial, financial, agricultural, ethical, in its 270 years of history.

WINNERS RECEIVE TROPHIES AT CAMP TERREHEGAN

Ribbon awards for proficiency in intra-camp athletics were presented at the closing exercises of Camp Terrehegan, the Y. M. C. A. camp at Gardner lake, Friday afternoon. Individual all-around championship cups were presented by Henry Elion, in Class A, to Stephen DeSimone, in Class B to Howard Dawson of Montreal, Canada, a nephew of Camp Director A. B. Dawson, and in Class C to Albert Sears of Brooklyn, N. Y. The classes were divided according to weights, Class A including all competitors under and including 85 pounds; Class B, all those from 85 to 100 pounds, and Class C, unlimited.

The Nameaug Boat club medal, presented to the best camper, was awarded to Charles Lund of Groton.

Team No. 3, Duncan MacDougal, captain, won the team championship of the camp, denoting supremacy in all team sports.

A bow and arrow, presented by Charles Chittenden for outstanding usefulness and fine camp spirit, was awarded to Wilbur Ray of New London.

As a prize for a treasure hunt for all boys of 85 pounds and over, a sheath knife, presented by Frank Mitchell, was won by Warren Bogue of Montville. A scout knife and a flashlight, also presented by Mr. Mitchell as prizes for a treasure hunt for older boys, were awarded to Charles Lund of Groton and to Donald E. Creamer of Fishers Island, respectively.

It was announced that 15 boys at the camp had passed junior life-saving tests, entitling them to junior emblems, during the season. Fred Gosell of Hartford gave the examinations.

At the close of the exercises the camp committee was presented, on behalf of the campers, with a large and handsome flag of navy blue bunting, with the name Camp Terrehegan in gold letters.

CAMP GIRLS SING "LARGO" AT GARDNER LAKE CHURCH

Sunday afternoon at the Gardner Lake Methodist Episcopal church the girls from Camp Juanita sang Handel's Largo. The selection was beautifully rendered, bringing out the rich quality of the splendid young voices. The girls' leader was Miss Aldisi Freeman, director of music at Camp Juanita. Mrs. Elizabeth Van Miler, soloist of the First Unitarian church of Brooklyn, N. Y., sang in pleasing voice, "My Task", by Ashford. Prof. Charles H. Sword, director fo music at Camp Cadaho, was accompanist on the organ.

The pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, preached on the text found in Psalms 104:26 "There Go the Ships". He told of the reconstruction work being done on Old Ironsides, the ship Constitution, and drew his lesson from the kind of material used in good ship building and the power, chart and compass necessary in sailing.

The church was filled to the doors and a number of people were obliged to stand during the service. The attendance was estimated as being over 200.

Campers from the four camps conducted by Milo Light, Juanita, Adajuan, Tohaci and Cadaho, made up the majority of the congregation.

STORRS HENS FALL OFF IN EGG CONTEST

STORRS, Aug. 9.—The birds in the Storrs laying contest have got to snap out of it if they expect to make a higher record this year than those in the contest last year. This week the 1,000 best hens laid 3,318 eggs or a production of 54.5 per cent.

Their total to date is 172,067 eggs which is just one-half an egg per hen more than last year for the same period. This week's production was not so good as last week's by 242 eggs but was 16 eggs more than for the corresponding week a year ago.

Four Pens Tied For First.

No one pen was able to win first honors for the fortieth week. Four pens consisting of two light breeds and two heavy breeds figure in the honors for the week. A pen of barred rocks owned by R. C. Cobb of Littleton, Mass., a pen of Rhode Island reds entered by Edward N. Larrabee of Peterboro, N. H., and two pens of leghorns, one owned by Hollywood Poultry Farm of Woodinville, Wash., and the other bred by Bournedale Farm of Millerton, N. Y., were all tied for first place with a lay of 58 eggs.

Second honors for the week go to a pen of Australorps entered by Leslie A. Allen of Pittsford, Vt., a pen of Rhode Island reds owned by West Neck Farm of Huntington, L. I. and a pen of barred rocks bred by Pratt Experiment Farm of Morton, Pa. The birds in these three pens brought in 57 eggs each.

George B. Treadwell's pen of Rhode Island reds from Spencer, Mass., Alfred J. O'Donovan's white leghorns, at Katonah, N. Y., and Steelman Poultry Farms' pen of the same breed from Lansdale, Pa., were all tied for third honors with a lay of 55 eggs. Fourth honors were equally divided between four pens of white leghorns owned respectively by George B. Ferris of Grand Rapids, Michigan, Toivonen Leghorn Farm of Girard, Pa., Peetoosee Poultry Plant of Telford, Pa., and William J. Boyle of North Norwich, N. Y. Each of these pens laid 54 eggs.

High Points in Farmers' Week.

The poultry program in Farm and Home Week got off to a good start in the talk given by Prof. Lunn of Oregon and seemed to indicate that we have many things to be thankful for living here in Connecticut. The excellent talks by Doctors Dutcher, Hayes and Holmes were extremely interesting.

Wednesday, the turkey growers of the state held their first meeting here at Storrs. It was voted that this be an annual affair. Perhaps one of the most outstanding features of the Farm and Home week program was that which took place in the last two or three days. This has been called the Agricultural Policy Conference. At this meeting many problems were discussed and resolutions drawn up which it is hoped would be a benefit to the farmers in Connecticut.

The leading pens to date in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

Fewer Aliens Coming to State

The influx of immigrant aliens into Connecticut decreased somewhat while the outflow of emigrant aliens from the state fell off sharply in the fiscal year of 1930 ended June 30 of the present year as compared with the previous 12-month fiscal period, according to a statement coming from Harry E. Hull, commissioner general of immigration at Washington.

During the fiscal year of 1930, alien immigrants admitted into this country under expressed intentions of establishing permanent residences in Connecticut numbered 5,476 as against 5,776 such aliens granted entry in the 1929 fiscal year, a decrease of 300 or slightly more than five per cent. Alien emigrants departing the country who have been living in Connecticut, on the other hand, totaled only 588 in the fiscal year just ended, as compared with 1,254 in the previous 12 month fiscal period, a decline of 666, or more than 53 per cent.

NORWICH TOWN

Sunday morning at the Methodist Episcopal church, the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter, spoke on the text I Thessalonians, 5:21. "Prove all things: hold fast that which is good." The church had been beautifully decorated with baskets and bouquets of flowers by Mary Waters of the decorating committee. In the absence of Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich the organist, the organ was played by Mary Waters.

Last Monday, Rev. Mr. Potter was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Beckwith of Black Point road, Niantic. The Beckwiths were united in marriage by Rev. Mr. Potter since he came to Norwich Town. Wednesday and Thursday Rev. Mr. Potter was entertained in the home of his uncle, Bernice Greye, at Barrington Beach, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. George Geer of Plain Hill road entertained Wednesday and Thursday Rev. and Mrs. Harvey Conklin and sons, Harvey and Willard Conklin, of South Jacksonville, Florida. They left the south two weeks ago today (Monday) on a motor trip, expecting to tour about among relatives and friends for a few weeks. Rev. Mr. Conklin, a former pastor of Baltic Methodist church, located in Florida a year ago last May. He preached in Hartford Sunday, August 3rd and again Sunday the 10th. Due to Mrs. Conklin's health, the family will shortly take up residence in Westerly, R. I., where Rev. Mr. Conklin is to exchange his pastorate with the pastor of the High Street Methodist church of Westerly, who desires to locate in Florida. A part of this month the Conklin family will spend with relatives at Warren, R. I. Rev. and Mrs. Conklin are parents of the late Leslie Conklin at one time assistant secretary of Norwich Y. M. C. A., who was killed suddenly on the highway in February, while enroute to New York state to attend Syracuse university.

Mr. and Mrs. Geer had as guests for the day Friday, the latter's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Marlow, of Putnam.

Rev. Charles E. Reeves of Norwich Town preached at the First Congregational Sunday morning in the absence of Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, who occupied the pulpit at the First Congregational church of Stonington.

"The Unity of the Race," was the theme of Rev. Mr. Reeves' sermon at the Norwich Town church. The text was II Corinthians 5-16, using only the first lines, wherefore henceforth know we no man after the flesh. Mrs. Olive R. Roberts of Norwich supplied at the organ in the absence of the organist, Herbert L. Yerrington, who is passing his vacation in Vermont and Massachusetts. "How to Become Truly Popular," with Scripture references in Philippeans and Peter was the theme of the Young People's C. E. society Sunday evening.

Following a stay of nearly a week with relatives at Groton Long Point, Mrs. Wilfred Sabourin and nephew, Richard Butler Quinn, have returned to their home at Norwich Town.

Mrs. Margaret Casey has returned to her home on McClellan avenue, after passing a week at Bluff Point, at the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Miller, New London residents.

COAL MINING SECTION OF PROVIDENCE, KY, BOMBED

Nine Bombs Were Dropped From a Plane—Four Failed to Explode—The Five That Did Explode Injured No One and Damaged No Property—Bombing was the Result of a Series of Labor Disorders—The Mines Reopened July 1 After Three Months' Shutdown Because of Labor Troubles.

PROVIDENCE, Ky., Aug. 11—(AP)—A series of disorders in the Webster county coal fields culminated today in the bombing of mine properties from an airplane. The mines were reopened July 1 after a three months' shutdown because of independent strikes over wages and working conditions.

Nine bombs were dropped from an orange colored plane, believed to have carried two men, which flew over the town this morning as miners were going to work. Four bombs failed to explode. The five that did explode injured no one and damaged no property, but tore large holes in the ground. The bomber was described as a monoplane.

Taken by surprise by the sudden air attack, Providence and Webster county were thrown into a state of intense excitement. Only one of the 25 or 30 guards employed by the mines in the county had presence of mind to fire at the plane. He shot twice but without effect. The bomber departed in the direction of Illinois, from whence it came.

All available deputy sheriffs patrolled the mine properties today, but there was little to be done, unless the plane returned. All mines resumed operations as usual. Operators said they will continue to be operated as long as the situation permits.

Webster county officials requested Governor Flem D. Sampson to send national guardsmen here on three occasions after homes had been dynamited and miners shot from ambush. The governor replied he felt local authorities could handle the situation.

C. L. Walker, county attorney of Webster county, said Governor Sampson was not asked today to send troops, his previous refusals having discouraged officials of hopes of any help from that quarter. There was no comment from the governor's office at Frankfort when he was informed of the bombing.

A mass meeting was called here tonight to raise a fund for a reward for the arrest of the occupants of the plane. Plans to resist another air attack included issuance of extra ammunition to the regular mine guards and augmenting of the guards.

Citizens of Providence said they would permit no one at the meeting who was known to have fomented trouble at the mines. About 75 per cent of the miners returned to work when the mines reopened July 1, and the remaining 25 per cent have been attempting to persuade the workers to lay down their tools again. Nineteen striking miners are under indictment here for banding and conferating to intimidate working miners. Seventeen have been apprehended and are out on bond.

The bombing plane appeared from the direction of Harrisburg, Ill., at about 6 a. m. It dropped the first missile at an abandoned mine near Clay, a few miles north of here. The detonation was heard for miles, and clouds of dust and gravel were sent into the air. The plane was flying at an altitude of 2,000 feet.

The plane then dived toward the city and dropped two more bombs near the outskirts. They had the same effect as the first one. After circling the town, the plane dived at the entrance of the Ruckman mine, and dropped another bomb, which failed to explode. A guard fired two shots at the plane, which was then at an altitude of 600 feet, but with no visible effect.

The plane started climbing at the edge of the city, and dropped five more bombs, only two of which exploded. They fell near the mines of the Meador, Young and Holt Coal company and the Diamond Coal Mining company. The plane then flew off in the direction of Harrisburg.

Examination of the dud bombs revealed that they were made of dynamite wrapped with tape, with fuses attached.

Trouble in the western Kentucky coal fields started last December when miners demanded better working conditions and some asked a return of the 117 basic wage scale of $4.50 a day. A strike vote was taken in the entire western Kentucky field by the United Mine Workers of America. The strike was overwhelmingly voted, but the vote was never approved by officials of the union at Indianapolis.

Meanwhile, mines began closing because of independent strikes and economic conditions, and soon thousands of workers were idle. In the Webster county field 75 per cent of the workers later signed a petition that the mines reopen, since their families were in distress because of lack of employment. The operators agreed to reopen July 1.

Disorders have been few except in Webster country and Hopkins county, adjoining.

The first major disorder was the dynamiting of two miners' homes at Nortonville, Hopkins county. One family was away at the time. The other was caught under falling debris, but no one was injured. On the same day dynamite was found on the porch of County Judge J. D. Shain, at Madisonville, wrapped in a letter threatening death if he pressed charges against miners arrested for banding and confederating.

In Webster county there were isolated cases of miners returning to work being fired upon from ambush and being stoned. The major disorder in this field until today's bombing occurred three weeks ago, when power lines leading to mines were dynamited, forcing the Diamond Coal company mines to suspend operations for the day until the wires were restrung.

JACKSON AND OBRINE NEAR ENDURANCE FLIGHT MARK

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 11—(AP)—Dale Jackson and Forest Obrine were counting off the hours tonight as they came nearer and nearer the 554 hour endurance flight mark held by the Hunter brothers of Sparta, Ills.

First, it was weeks, the days, and now its only a matter of hours until the record taken to Chicago from St. Louis may be back here again. If the plane "Greater St. Louis" is still in the air at 9:52 a. m. (c. s. t.) Wednesday, Jackson and Obrine will have exceeded the Hunter brothers mark by one hour as required under rules governing endurance flights.

If the St. Louis airmen establish a new endurance record it probably will be witnessed by the fliers who are losing it, for the Hunter brothers arrived at Lambert St. Louis field, today and expect to remain several days. The Jackson-Obrine flight has cost the Hunter brothers $100,000 in potential contracts, their manager, Harry Perkins said, but they do not contemplate another endurance flight.

The "Greater St. Louis" had been aloft 513 hours at 4:11 p. m. today. "The engine is running fine," Obrine said over the radio this morning. "We are having a lot of fun out of this flight. Just two more days and we will be sailing down hill."

FIRE MONDAY IN STERN OF MARCONI YACHT

CIVITA VECCHIA, Italy, Aug 11—(AP)—Fire broke out today on the Guglielmo Marconi's yacht Electra but was put out within half an hour.

First reports said the stern was practically destroyed but later information indicated that the damage was not so serious. The blaze was understood to have started around a gasoline motor.

The crew, aided by small craft from the harbor, fought the fire with pumps and hand extinguishers.

Signor Marconi's valuable wireless apparatus, which the inventor of wireless had used frequently in recent months for longdistance expreiments, was in the fireswept part of the craft.

Although the wireless inventors valuable radio appartus was in the fire swept portion, it escaped damage.

The stern of the yacht was damaged to the extent of 100,000 lire ($5,230).

SLAYER OF SEN. E. J. EENNIS DECLARED NOT INSANE

COLUMBIA, S. C., Aug. 11—(AP)—Dr. C. Fred Williams, superintendent of the State hospital, reported to Governor Richards today that W. L. Thornley, confessed slayer of State Senator E. J. SIX PERSONS BURNED TO DEATH IN COTTAGE

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Aug. 11—(AP)—Six deaths had resulted tonight from a fire which early today destroyed a four-room cottage near here, and a seventh person was in a hospital in a critical condition.

The dead were Charles Witt, who died late today of his burns; his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Hugh L. Witt, 24; her two children, Hugh L., Jr., 3, and Marie, 18 months; his son, I. C. Witt, 18, and Paul Reeder, of Elizabethton, who were burned to death.

The elder Witt's son Hugh escaped from the blazing house with his life, but was in a critical condition tonight.

Fire Chief Whaley said evidence indicated that a lighted cigarette may have started the blaze which a few minutes later reached fireworks stored in a back room.

The fire was discovered by Francis Wicker, a friend, who was sleeping in an automobile in front of the house, after having attended a midnight moving picture show here with I. C. Witt. They returned to the cottage about 3 a. m.

Reynolds was named on July 30 by an official of the National Bank Exchange for the second federal reserve district, as the man whom the Cayuga County National Bank two days earlier had charged with embezzlement of $10,083.95 of bank funds.

LORENZ EXECUTED AT WETHERSFIELD THIS A. M.

HARTFORD, Aug. 12—(AP)—Henry O. Lorenz, 25, a former picture framer in an art store here, was hanged shortly after 1 o'clock this morning, daylight saving time, at the Wethersfield state prison. Lorenz paid with his life for the murder of his friend, Nils E. Anderson, of this city on the night of March 31 this year, whom he shot to death at a spot in Wethersfield less than 200 yards from where he was executed this morning.

Lorenz, who spent his final hours playing chess with Rev. Dr. William H. Smith, prison chaplain entered the death chamber at 1:04:04, accompanied by Dr. Smith and two guards.

With the black hood placed over his head and arms and legs quickly strapped, the noose was set in position and Lorenz was swung aloft by the dropping weights at 1:04:25.

The body lowered, Dr. Edward G. Fox and Dr. William B. Smith, prison physicians applied stethoscopes and pronounced Lorenz dead at 1:13:50.

The condemned man met death calmly and made no statement to the dozen or more witnesses gathered around the room. Late last night he received from his sweetheart, Miss Elizabeth Benson, daughter of Mrs. August Benson, half sister of the man he killed, one of the most heart-rending letters it has ever been the duty of prison officials to read. Its contents were not revealed, but the girl requested an answer, and Lorenz's final act was to comply with her wish. He also wrote three letters to relatives in Sweden yesterday.

In compliance with the request of Mrs. Benson, Lorenz will be buried in Zion Hill cemetery here, beside the body of Anderson, whom he killed.

Miss Pickford has not appeared on the legitimate stage since 1908, when she had a role in David Belasco's production of "The Warrens of Virginia."

She recently began production of a new talking picture, but it was abandoned.

Miss Banky was a Hungarian movie actress and she became a Hollywood star in silent films. Her only part in a talking picture was in the screen version of "They Knew What They Wanted."

Special Interest In Neb. Primary Today

Senator Norris, Discordant Republican, is Running For Renomination.

(By the Associated Press)

A wide variety of issues and candidates adorned the primary menus of five states today as the voters settled down to the task of selecting the senatorial candidates that will be served them in the general election.

The dust raised by Alfred E. Smith in the 1928 presidential election still hung over Nebraska, Alabama and, to a lesser degree, Arkansas, but Oklahoma was echoing personal atta[illegible] from an acrid campaign and the [illegible] tle cry of prohibition had been [illegible] in Ohio.

Norris in Nebraska

In Nebraska, the veteran Norris was awaiting the results from a campaign for renomination as a republican senatorial candidate after defending his votes against the administration and his support of Alfred E. Smith two years ago. He was opposed by W. M. Stebbins, who pledged himself to march in step with the Hoover administration.

Alabama democrats went to the polls to select a successor to Senator Heflin, who was evicted from the party for failure to support the democratic presidential candidate. Heflin, campaigning as an independent, has carried the fight to the voters with an appeal that they remain away from the primaries and support him for reelection in the general ballotting this fall. John H. Bankhead, of Jasper, and Frederick I. Thompson, Mobile publisher, are contending for the right to face Heflin then.

Robinson Dry Champion

Senator Robinson, the democratic leader and Alfred E. Smith's running mate in 1928, has championed prohibition vigorously in his campaign in Arkansas for renomination in the primary of his party. He is opposed by Tom W. Campbell, a Little Rock lawyer.

The democratic primary campaign in Oklahoma has been a contest of clashing personalities with little in the nature of a national issue involved. C. J. Wrightsman of Tulsa and Thomas P. Gore, a former senator from that state, are seeking the right to carry the democratic senatorial campaign against Senator Pine, the republican incumbent, in the general election. Frank Buttram, of Oklahoma City and William Henry Murray, are seeking the gubernatorial nomination.

Two senatorial candidates injected prohibition into the democratic primary in Ohio. Robert J. Bulkley, of Cleveland, favors repeal, and George S. Meyers, also of Cleveland, seeks modification. The other candidates for the senate are W. W. Durbin, John McSweeney of Wooster, and Charles V. Truax.

Senator McCulloch, the republican incumbent, has no primary opposition. He is a dry.

STATE PRIMARIES TO GOVERN REP. COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11— (AP) — Senator Fess of Ohio the newly installed chairman of the republican national committee, said today after a call at the white house that it was the duty of the committee to support any nominee chosen by the republican voters in any state primary.

Asked whether the national committee would support Senator Norris if he were re-nominated in the Nebraska primary tomorrow, Fess said the national committee left the matter of selecting individual candidates in the hands of the senatorial and congressional campaign committees.

"The national committee can make no discrimination among candidates," he said. "It is interested only in the principles involved. It is the duty of the committee to support the nominees chosen in party primaries."

DOUBT BODY WAS THAT OF MISS CLARA PATTERSON

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 11—(AP)—Doubt was expressed in three official quarters here today that the body of a young woman, found in a culvert Saturday, was that of Miss Clara Patterson, 31, a hotel employe, who Shelby county deputy sheriffs believed was slain by bootleggers seeking revenge because of her reputed activities as an "under-cover" agent.

Paul Waggoner, fingerprint expert, said the decomposed body had yielded prints from five fingers and that they did not tally with those he took of Miss Patterson while she was employed by the hotel.

Sheriff Will Knight of Shelby county, joined Deputy Prohibition Administrator Finis E. Wilson in declaring there was "little or no foundation" for other state officials' statements that she had been killed by bootleggers.

HERRICK GAMBLING CASE THROWN OUT OF COURT

NEW YORK, Aug. 11—(AP)—A guady gambling case the police tried to build up against George Herrick, broker, and his valet, William Sullivan, collapsed today and was thrown out of the court of general sessions.

Herrick and Sullivan were arrested July 8 after a raid on the former's 14-room Park avenue apartment by detectives who charged Herrick was conducting a gambling parlor where millionaires tossed $100,000 checks on the green and white cloth.

Trial began this morning, but the only evidence the detectives produced was several pieces of green cloth, a dice box and some dice. Defense counsel moved the case be dismissed and it was—promptly.

LOVERS' QUARREL NOW BLAMED FOR SLAYING

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 11—(AP)—A lovers' quarrel instead of bootleggers' vengeance was blamed officially tonight for the death of a young woman whose decomposed, partly clothed body was found on a lonely road near here Saturday.

Sheriff Will Knight announced deputies were searching for a man they believe was involved in a quarrel on the road last month. The sheriff abandoned the theory of his chief deputy, Charles Garibaldi, that bootleggers killed her because they believed she was an informer.

ONE CENT STAMP SAID TO BE WORTH $40,000

BOSTON, Aug. 11—(AP)—What is probably the most classic example of the economic law that scarcity reates value, is an exhibition here this week—a one cent stamp worth $40,000.

It is the property of Arthur Hind, Utica, N. Y., manufacturer, hotel owner and philanthropist whose $500,000 collection of stamps constitutes, financially speaking, just about half of the National Philatelic exhibition of 1930, which was opened today at Horticultural hall.

The history of the stamp goes back to 1856 and to British Guianea. The postmaster of that then isolated colony had found his supply of stamps exhausted. In the emergency a local printer was called in to conference, and with the aid of a picture of a ship borrowed from a local newspaper and a handset inscription, the stamp was turned out.

A few days later the regular supply arrived and the makeshifts were destroyed. Sixty years later the only known copy came into the possession of Hind for $32,000 and today collectors say it is worth at least $40,00.

FOREST FIRES WITH DROUGHT IN MICHIGAN

MENOMINEE, Mich., Aug. 11.—(AP)—Sections of the drought-stricken upper Michigan peninsula were in double jeopardy tonight, forest fires adding to the havoc already wrought by the long dry spell.

Fanned by a steady breeze, flames spread steadily from more than 50 large forest tracts. One of the fires had eaten its way to within a half mile of this city's limits.

Every available man in the district was mustered in to aid in fighting the flames but the work was made difficult by lack of water. Streams over the area are low, swamps have been baked by the sun and weather forecasters hold out no immediate prospects of rain.

Possibility of windstorms constituted additional hazard tonight. Fire wardens predicted that a sizeable gale might cause destruction of everything inflamable within the district.

The situation in the bordering Wisconsin area also was reported serious. Thousands of acres have been burned over and ten formidable fires were reported in progress tonight in the northeastern section of that state.

Smoke hung low over portions of Lake Michigan, delaying navigation. Boats passing through the Straits of Mackinac, which connect Lakes Michigan and Huron, were ordered to proceed at slow speed to avert collisions.

COMMITTED SUICIDE IN VAULT OF HIS BANK

GLEN FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 11.—(AP)—Howard Snyder, 45, president of the First National bank of Argyle, shot himself to death today in one of the bank vaults.

Before killing himself he placed an adding machine in position for the use of two state bank examiners who went there to examine the bank's books. Argyle is in Washington county, a few miles from here.

No shots were heard. When Snyder did not reappear after 20 minutes in the vault, Porter A. Burgess, cashier, went to look for him. He found the president seated in a chair, a revolver close at hand, bleeding from three bullet wounds near the heart.

The examiners said their preliminary inspection showed no shortage in accounts. They had no reports of irregularities at the bank, they said, and went there only for a routine visit. The bank remained open.

The bank was capitalized for approximately $50,000. Snyder was a member of an old upstate family.

TELLS OF DIVERSION OF SACRAMENTAL WINE

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—(AP)—Testimony tending to show that sacramental wine drawn from the California Wine association was diverted to a Broadway garage for distribution as a beverage on authorization of Bishop Charles Mrzena, was offered today at the trial of the bishop and eight others for conspiracy to violate the Volstead act.

Frank Ermosch, a truck driver, gave the testimony. John Peterson, an official of the wine company, identified signatures on orders for wine as those of four of the indicted men.

The Rev. John Hrynak, of the Ukranian Greek church, Stamford, Conn., said he filled in many withdrawal cards and although these were turned over to the bishop, he received no wine, a fact which he mentioned to the Rev. John Petrokanyi, in Newburgh.

"You can't get any wine. It will be lost on the way," was the response, Rev. Fr. Hrynak said.

DAMAGE TO CROPS BY HEAT AND DROUGHT 7 PER CENT

During the Month of July—Crop Prospects Reported by the Department of Agriculture—Belt From the Middle Atlantic States to the Mississippi Valley Has Had the Driest Growing Season On Record—Corn Crop is Expected to Be the Smallest Since 1901.

WASHINGTON, Aug 11.— (AP) — Crop prospects in the United States were reported today by the department of agriculture to have declined nearly seven per cent during July as a result of drought and hot weather.

"A rather wide belt from the middle Atlantic states westward to the Mississippi valley," the crop reporting board said, "has had the driest growing season on record, while the shortage of rainfall for June and July in some south central states was far greater than for any previous year for which records are available. Temperatures have been abnormally high, with many previous heat records equalled or broken in the central and parts of the southern states."

"The corn crop is expected to be the smallest since 1901. The hay and grain sorghum crops which, together with corn, make up half of the total acreage of crops, seem likely to be the smallest crop in more than ten years. Prospects for oats and barley have been further reduced by drought in the Dakotas.

"The feed shortage is accentuated by pastures far poorer than in any previous summer months for fifty years or more, with many farmers already compelled to feed hay and new corn.

"The drought has been felt farther north each week as the season progressed and is now affecting even New York and Michigan. It is hurting most late fruits and vegetables except where they are irrigated. It is daily reducing prospects for corn, flaxseed, peanuts, sweet potatoes, tobacco, eastern beans, Arkansas rice, cotton, west of Alabama and various other crops."

The indicated production of all wheat was placed at 820,613,000 bushels, compared with 807,000,000 bushels last month and 806,000,000 bushels last year.

The preliminary estimate of winter wheat production was announced as 597,392,000 bushels, compared with 554,000,000 bushels indicated last month and 578,000,000 bushels produced last year. The quality of winter wheat is 93.4 per cent, compared with 86.7 last year.

Durum wheat production is indicated at 48,290,000 bushels, compared with 57,000,000 bushels last month and 52,000,000 bushels last year.

The indicated production of all other spring wheat is placed at 174,982,000 bushels, compared with 193,000,000 bushels, indicated last month, and 176,000,000 bushels produced last year.

The indicated production of oats was announced as 1,316,369,000 bushels compared with 1,329,000,000 bushels indicated last month, and 1,234,000,000 bushels produced last year.

Oats remaining on farms August 1 is estimated at 5.4 per cent of the 1929 crop, or about 66,865,000 bushels, compared with 86,816,000 bushels a year ago, and 73,472,000 bushels, the average stocks on Aug. 1 for the five years 1924-28.

Barley remaining on farms August 1 is estimated at 4.1 per cent of the 1929 crop, of about 12,599,000 bushels, as compared with 17,071,000 bushels a year ago, and 6,643,000 bushels, the average stocks on Aug. 1 for the five years, 1924-28.

The condition of August 1 of the principal crops was announced as follows:

Corn, 62.0 per cent of a normal; durum wheat, 67.5; other spring wheat, 60.7; oats, 73.9; barley, 78.7; buckwheat, 71.7; flaxseed, 62.3; rice, 80.2; grain sorghums, 62.6; hay (tame) 69.5; hay, (wild), 69.9; pasture, 56.4; beans, 77.3; soy beans, 70.5; peanuts, 69.2; apples, 48.6; peaches, 46.1; pears, 63.1; grapes, 85.5; potatoes, 75.9; sweet potatoes, 65.1; tobacco, 64.4; sugar beets, 85.2; broomcorn, 71.8, and hops, 73.0.

HOOVER HEARS REPORTS OF DROUGHT SITUATION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11—(AP)—The seriousness of the drought situation in certain areas was emphasized to President Hoover today by a long line of callers, including Chairman Payne of the American Red Cross, while the department of agriculture reported crop prospects had declined almost 7 per cent in July as a result of the protracted dry weather.

Meanwhile, the government proceeded with plans to relieve farmers in distress and to insure against possible spread of disease.

Railroad executives continued to offer aid through reduced freight rates and Alfred P. Thom, general counsel for the association of railway executives, called at the white house to determine the president's plans.

Secretary Hyde conferred with Mr. Hoover late in the day and went over details for the conference of governors of 12 states here Thursday. Replies of acceptance from all 12 governors to the president's invitation were on hand, that of Governor Weaver of Nebraska being the last to arrive. Governor Weaver had said he might not come, but informed the president today that he would.

Samuel H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau federation; C. E. Huff, president of the National Farmers' union, and Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange, were called by the president to a white house conference Friday to discuss the situation. Chairman Legge of the farm board also will be present.

The American Red Cross report to the president covered 18 states and said conditions were very bad in some states, not so serious in others, and hardly affecting some at all.

The outlook in Virginia and Kentucky was reported the most alarming.

Unemployment was growing in some drought-stricken areas, Chairman Payne reported, with typhoid and pellagra on the increase in several southern states.

Crop damage ranged from 50 per cent to total loss in some areas.

The weather bureau clung to its earlier prediction of showers this week in some portions of the dry regions. If rain were not forthcoming soon, the Red Cross report said, distress would be more widespread.

Representative Ludlow, of Indiana, informed President Hoover that 11 railroads had agreed to cut freight rates on hay to Indiana points. Mr. Thom told newspapermen the railroads in general were ready to assist the farmers in every way possible.

MONTREAL, Aug. 11 — (AP) — The British airship R-100, returning from her Ontario flight, was sighted over Montreal at 3:10 p. m. (e.s.t.) today.

It was the first time Montreal had had a good look at the visitor from across the seas, which has been moored in the city's back yard for over a week. The R-100 arrived from England at night and moored at dawn and last night, on her way to Ottawa and Toronto, she was forced to detour around Montreal because of storms.

FLOOD IS WRECKING HOUSES IN BINGHAM, UTAH

BINGHAM, Utah, Aug. 11—(AP)—A torrent of water several feet deep swept down Bingham Canyon today, wrecking houses and blocking the narrow streets of this town with silt and debris.

A downpour lasting more than an hour in the upper canyon sent a raging stream down, flooding many homes and business houses. Residents fled to higher ground. Three homes were washed away but officers were unable immediately to determine whether anyone was killed or injured.

Mud was piled eight feet high in some places and traffic was paralyzed.

Bingham is located below the Utah Copper company workings, the largest open cut copper mine in the world. The flood poured into Bingham from Carr Fork.

Sheriff J. R. McIntyre asked officers of Salt Lake county for aid to prevent possible looting of deserted homes. Ten deputy sheriffs responded.

FATHER AND HIS THREE CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH

KINSLEY, Kans., Aug. 11.—(AP)—A father and his three children were found dead today in the ruins of their home, which was destroyed by fire. They are Albert Watkins, Erline Elizabeth, 9, Margaret Alberta, 3, and Charles Albert, 2.

Firemen after extinguishing the blaze found the bodies in an upstairs room and a five gallon can which had contained gasoline was nearby. Blood near the bodies led authorities to believe the victims may have been shot before the fire started.

Mrs. Neva Watkins, the wife and mother, was at work in a restaurant at the time of the fire. The father was not employed.

A filling station attendant reported he had sold Watkins some gasoline.

MODERN PARENT WORSE THAN MODERN YOUTH

WASHINGTON, Conn., Aug. 11—(AP)—Dr. Eleanor Rowland Wenridge, referee of juvenile court, Cleveland, Ohio, today told members of the Washington club that it wasn't the modern youth but the modern parent who were hard to manage.

She said that time and again she had seen it demonstrated that the children were willing to follow the course mapped out by the juvenile court but that the parents would object.

Dr. Wenridge advocated women policemen for use in juvenile cases because "girls have a way of getting around men policemen.

CHUS BLAMED FOR DEATHS IN ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 11—A finding that the deaths of Meyer Chus and Harry Dudick, local young men who were killed in an automobile accident at South Coventry, Saturday night, July 5, were caused by the negligence and carelessness of Chus, was made public today by Tolland County Coroner John H. Yeomans. The finding in part, follows:

"I, John H. Yeomans, coroner for Tolland county, having notice of the deaths of Meyer Chus and Harry Dudick, late of Willimantic, which resulted from an automobile accident in the town of Coventry on July 5, 1930, and having examined the scene of the accident and the car in which the deceased were riding and having held an inquest of said deaths in the town clerk's office in South Coventry on July 10, 1930, find that said deaths occurred as follows:

"The deceased were riding in a Nash roadster, owned by Ernest Carpenter of 292 Windham road, Willimantic. They were accompanied by Carpenter and one Howard Rood. The evidence indicates that Chus was driving the car at the time of the accident.

"The four were returning to Willimantic from a dance at Coventry lake. The marks on the highway indicated that the car left the traveled portion of the road about 275 feet from the scene of the accident and traveled for a distance of 136 feet with its right wheels on the shoulders of the road, these tracks being at one time six feet from the traveled portion of the highway. The car then veered back on to the highway and nearly across it, then swung to the right again and started to skid sideways. The front wheel struck some boulders at the right hand side of the road which caused the car to tip over, killing Chus and Dudick.

"Carpenter and Rood testified that their car was struck by a car coming from the opposite direction and that this was the cause of their leaving the highway. A careful investigation discloses that this explanation is highly improbable, as there are no marks on the car or the highway which could have been made by such a collision. It appears that the car was traveling at a very high rate of speed and that the members of the party had been drinking before leaving the dance.

"I find that said deaths were caused by the negligent and careless manner in which Meyer Chus was operating this automobile; that said deaths were not caused by the negligence, omission or carelessness of any other person or persons."

Continuances were granted in three of six cases taken up in police court this morning. The three disposed of by Judge Frank H. Foss were cases of intoxication and vagrancy in which two intoxications were given 24 hours to leave town and the vagrant was sent to jail for 30 days.

The case of Mrs. Grace Searles of Pomfret Center, charged with speeding, was assigned for trial next Friday. Last Tuesday Mrs. Searles was involved in an accident at North Windham in which a wagon owned by John Czinbacko was damaged. She was arrested Saturday by State Policeman Charles F. Hills of the Stafford Springs barracks.

A continuance until Tuesday morning was ordered in the case of Daniel Sullivan, 28, of 38 Jackson street, charged with breach of the peace as the result of a fracas at the corner of Union and Broad streets when John O'Brien, 22, of Oak street, is alleged to have been pushed through the plate glass window of Shaheen Haddad's store. The pane was shattered and O'Brien sustained severe cuts on the head. He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital by Officer Roderick Lariviere where it was expected he would remain for at least two days. O'Brien is under arrest also on a breach of the peace charge.

Between 40 and 50 additional automobiles were still needed tonight, as the committee checked up on the transportation of over 1,000 children who will be guests of the Elks' children outing at Crescent Beach Wednesday. A final appeal to the generosity of the people was made today by John H. Wilcox, chairman of the outing and John B. Edgarton, chairman of transportation.

A study of traffic conditions at the four corners where the Jonahtan Trumbull and Willimantic-Middletown highways cross at Columbia Green is being made by a representative of the state highway department and the town selectmen, Clair Robinson, Henry Hutchins and Joseph N. Clarke. The number of accidents at the intersection has become alarming. Since the fatal accident there August 2, traffic has been directed on weekday afternoons and evening and all day Sundays by Constable Alvin F. Greene and Raymond A. Clark. The recommendation that is expected to be made to the state highway department is for the installation of rotary traffic at the intersection by the erection of a heavy traffic dummy in the center. Suggestions to install flash-light signals were considered too costly.

Arkansas Woman Greatly Pleased With Her New Figure

Read how Mrs. Willa Pugsley of Arkansas gained nearly 5 pounds in less than 20 days:

"McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets have worked wonders for me. Have nearly finished the second box, feeling better in every way and have taken on nearly five pounds of flesh, much to my delight. I can recommend McCoy's to do all they claim."

A New Jersey boy gained 10 pounds in 21 days; a New York mother and daughter gained 7 pounds. And in fact, men, women and children everywhere are gaining new weight, strength, vitality and energy from McCoy's.

The reason is that McCoy's have the same marvelous flesh-forming vitamins as liquid cod liver oil; and in this respect are hundreds of times richer than even milk, butter, eggs or cream. The vitamins are directly extracted from Norwegian cod liver oil and sealed under a pleasant sugar coat.

Read Lee & Osgood's remarkable MONEY BACK offer—McCoy's are guaranteed to give any man, woman or child the increased weight desired or purchase price refunded. Just ask for McCoy's—60 tablets 60 cents.

A long line of sheds which have accommodated some dozen tenants for the past 40 to 50 years has been torn down on the American Thread company tenement property in lower village. The wood has been given to the tenants and the sites are to be graded and generally beautified. The two-tenement house at 96-100 Main street at the extreme end of the company's tenement zone is also being razed. The house at one time stood near old No. 3 Mill which was torn down some time ago. An accident occurred Sunday morning near the railroad crossing. This knocked over part of the fence against the gateman's house, breaking several clapboards, and five panes of glass in the window. The house was moved from the foundation, tipping it toward the track. Mr. Blake, the gate tender, was sitting in the building on a bench, on the opposite side, but was uninjured. State Officer Royal Scranton investigated. The accident was probably caused by the driver being confused as a car was driven up the hill from River street and the Moosup bus was parked near the corner. DANIELSON

BROOKLYN MAN FINED FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Aug. 11—As a result of an accident in which his car figured at Attawaugan late last night, Michael Tanzillo, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was in the town court this morning to face a reckless driving charge. He pleaded guilty, was fined $25 and costs by Deputy Judge Charles S. Francis, but $24 of the fine was remitted and he paid $1.00 and actual costs. Tanzillo was proceeding northward along the Danielson-Putnam state highway and was at the point in Attawaugan where the Ballouville road comes in when a car operated by Barney Larkin of this town came out of that highway. Tanzillo applied the brakes on his machine and it swung over to the left of the road and into the Larkin car. Both machines were considerably damaged. State Officer James Carmody, who checked the accident, found that the New York man had driving at quite a high rate of speed.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill said today that he plans to interview Miss Mary Mrazik and Anna Spitz, the two youthful Webster girls who were so terribly injured in an automobile accident at Central Village a week ago Sunday, as soon as their condition permits. They are patients at the hospital in Putnam.

They were riding with Charles Astroski of Webster, who died of his injuries within a few minutes after the accident. Warren Duclos was the fourth person in the car, he also being injured. Coroner Bill will seek to establish the circumstances leading up to the accident, one of the worst of the season in this territory.

In addition to directing the glee club and orchestra at the college Miss Leach will teach violin and mandolin music.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Abbott, of Providence, who have many friends here, are presumably in Yellowstone park at this time. A letter received here this morning was written a week ago at Rapid City, South Dakota. It tells of the terrific heat that has been experienced out there, and of Mr. and Mrs. Abbott traveling 312 miles in their car in one day with the temperature at 110 degrees in the shade, and it was hotter than that on the road. The nights have been cool out there, though. Mr. and Mrs. Abbott were at Deadwood, for the great rodeo of the year, a three-day period of fun, and with some of the greatest riders in the world participating.

As for a long term of years past, the usual Old Home day will be held at South Killingly on Labor day. Plans for the event are along much the same lines as in other recent years, it is understood. In the past there has been an informal gathering in the morning, the renewing of old friendships and the general pleasure of being back in the old home town. The noon hour brings a clambake and the afternoon a formal gathering. The Sunday preceding also will be marked by a special service at the church.

Supt. W. E. Parker, of Killingly's schools, has returned from Shelter Island, where he has been spending parts of the vacation season, and will be here throughout this week. Supt. Parker said today that preparations for the re-opening of the schools the day after Labor day are complete excepting for some minor details, which will be cleared up during the course of the month. One transportation contract remains to be let.

Killingly is one of the few larger towns in this part of the state that has not been really active in this important matter.

Such good progress is being made on the construction of the new concrete highway for three miles of the distance between Wauregan and Danielson that the prospects are that it will be finished several weeks ahead of the time the average person figured it would be. Within a few weeks more it will be unnecessary for those who would avoid construction work zones to make the detour through Brooklyn.

Advices received here tell of the arrival at Pleasanton, Cal., of William Armington and Alex LaBelle, who left here several weeks ago for a cross country motor tour.

PUTNAM

PROVIDENCE FLYER TESTS OUT HOXIE LANDING FIELD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Aug. 11—A dead stick landing by a pilot in a small two cylindered Aronca monoplane, early this afternoon caused people to believe that a plane had crashed somewhere in the vicinity of the old fair grounds on Park street. Persons began a search for the ship and after a combing of the territory in the eastern section of the city, visited the large hayfield on the Hoxie farm in Gary district and there found the small and glider-like plane.

The ship left the Providence airport at noon. The pilot, an official of the port made the trip to this city for the purpose of testing Larned field, from a landing standpoint. He became confused in arriving over Putnam and lost his bearings when searching for the proposed Putnam airport. After circling over the city several times, the pilot came down on the Hoxie field.

Making his plane fast, he came to Putnam for a business conference with persons interested in the Putnam airport, for which incorporation papers were recently filed. Returning to the field the pilot stated that the Hoxie field, although not the field on which he intended to make a landing, is ideal as an emergency landing field. He said that the fact it is exposed in all directions and is dotted with a number of small hills, serving as take-off knolls, the field has excellent potentialities for a modern landing field. His departure from the field was made without details of the business conference being revealed.

GROUND BROKEN FOR NEW NURSES HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Aug. 11—Ground was broken today by a Putnam contracting firm for the foundation for the new nurses home of the Day Kimball hospital. The initial work on the new home was launched this morning when workmen with a steam shovel and other tools cut into the turf on the site of the proposed home, which borders on the state road, northwest of the new wing of the institution. By nightfall a considerable excavation had been made.

Alexander Gilman, a member of the board of trustees of the hospital, directing the construction work on the home, said today that work will go forward until the project is completed. No general contractor has been appointed to superintend the work. Mr. Gilman, said, as the erection of the home is to be guided by men who are experts in building lines.

The building fund for this purpose at the present is composed of about $32,000. Twenty-five thousand was already on hand and the drive for a like amount in seven weeks has netted nearly $7,000. The campaign to push the drive over the top is being enthusiastically supported by eastern Windham county in general and it is anticipated that the final week of the crusade for funds will see the financial goal surpassed.

Fire originating in a corn crib on the Sayles farm in West Thompson late Sunday afternoon gained sufficient headway to ward off attempts of volunteers to save the structure and before the blaze was brought under control the building had been destroyed and a similar fate threatened the large modernly equipped barn which was close to the crib.

A. S. Chubbuck, manager of the farm said today that efforts to discover how the fire originated failed. The burning crib was not seen until it was practically enveloped in flames. The 40 head of cows quartered in the barn were herded out to safety and the efforts of the fire fighters were centered on the task of saving the large structure. A call for help was sent to the Putnam fire department, but no apparatus was dispatched to the scene, since it could have been of no use after the supply of chemicals became exhausted. The dense smoke attracted hundreds of village residents and assistance was received from the Grosvenordale fire company. On several occasions sparks alighted on the roof of the barn and started small fires which were quickly extinguished by pails of water. A single stream was obtained from a line of hose attached to a water tower in the top of the barn. The presence of this container was alone responsible for the preservation of the building.

In commenting on the fire this afternoon, Mr. Chubbuck stated that the loss incurred was not great. He said that a quantity of farm tools stored in the crib were destroyed as was a small amount of feed products. Mr. Chubbuck expressed his gratitude to the host of neighbors and firemen who rendered invaluable service at such a critical time.

State police at headquarters barracks in Hartford, informed local police late yesterday afternoon that they had recovered the Chevrolet touring car owned by Oscar Gronlund of Putnam Heights, which was stolen at the Stone Bridge dance pavilion in South Woodstock, Friday evening. The car had been abandoned in East Hartford. The owner went to Hartford this morning for the purpose of identifying and taking possession of his property. The vehicle, the police said, was found to be in good condition.

Deputy Judge Archibald Macdonald, Jr., of the city court employs unique and effective methods to discipline boys. At the Monday morning session of court today, Judge Macdonald was charged with disposing with the order of business in the absence of Judge M. H. Geissler. Captain Dubreuil presented a 16 year old boy on a charge of disfiguring public property. The boy was taken into custody Sunday evening after he had defaced a number of traffic signs used to regulate the time limit parking. The youth was found guilty. This was the easy part of the situation. For the moment Judge Macdonald was confronted with the problem of devising a sentence which would suit the case in question. After a few minutes' deliberation Judge Macdonald in a kind way, but nevertheless stern and determined tone of voice addressed the young man. "You and your associates have taken particular delight in your acts of vandalism. Well, for the next week you will make a daily trip around the city and replace every dislodged traffic sign in its proper position and report each evening to Captain Dubreuil the manner in which you performed your task, which is the sentence of this court." The young man left the court room and early this evening he was seen carrying out the orders of the court, with all the dexterity employed by him in committing his vandal acts of Sunday. Judge Geissler will deal with his confederates at a session of juvenile court Tuesday.

A car owned and operated by Ernest Landoucer of 12 Greenland street, this city was involved in an accident which occurred Sunday on the Pier road, outside of Providence, R. I., in which one man met death. The collision was a spectacular one. A car, owned and operated by Thomas Petty of Worcester, bounced into the Landoucer car, coming in the opposite direction, crashing head on into a second car, turning turtle on the side of the road. OLD STONE GRIST MILL SUPERIOR TO DYNAMITE

There was the report Monday that the contractors, in razing the one time Slater office, that stands in the state's right of way, would use dynamite. The time was recalled some years ago when the stone grist mill that stood on Slater avenue was torn down. Three stories high, 60x40 feet on the ground, it was built of stone, with walls three feet thick. Four great charges of dynamite were planted in deep execavations which were made under each corner. The avenue was closed, no one was allowed within 10 rods of the great structure, which the master workman declared would rise into the air several feet, and fall a mass of mortar, stone and timbers. The time was set, great crowds gathered outside the danger zones to see the big explosion. Wires were connected up and a man stepped out down near the railroad track with the touch-off box. People stopped breathing and put fingers in ears. Down went the detonator lever. There were four shots, as though a small cannon had been discharged from under each corner of the old mill, a piece of stone or two flew out, and the air was filled with dust. The main structure never budged, the side walls were in perfect line, swallows carried on housekeeping, up under the overhanging eaves, as though nothing had happened. Workmen were more than six months at the job of tearing the building down.

Bonamarte was not locked up in default of bail, for he was delivered into the custody of Lieut. Ralph Dindo, who assured the authorities that the sailor would be present in the police court tomorrow. Bonamarte, who is married, having wedded about three years ago, the daughter of Mrs. Angelina Colangelo, proprietress of a restaurant, corner of Atlantic and Water streets, was at the restaurant about 6 o'clock and so was the Sujdak girl. It is claimed that Bonamarte and the girl have been on intimate terms, but that the latter did not know the sailor was married. When she discovered that Bonamarte was a married man she made known to Mrs. Bonamarte the intimacy that had existed and the wife took her husband to task. Bonamarte became angered at his alleged indiscretions being made known to his wife and hit the Sujdak girl two or three blows on the face. The girl went to police headquarters requesting Bonamarte's arrest.

Clark H. Jackson, 67 Hempstead street, was arrested this afternoon by Constable Samuel Hyde, special officer at Ocean Beach, charged with parking his automobile overtime on Mott avenue. Clark posted a bond of $2 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow.

Walter Collins, R. F. D. No. 1, Waterford, driver of a truck, was arrested this afternoon charged with driving without registration. He posted a bond to insure his appearance in court tomorrow.

Louis Friedberg, 87 Spring street, Norwich, was arrested this afternoon charged with parking overtime on State street. He posted the customary bond until tomorrow.

Injured In Motorcycle Accident.

Paul Raucee, 23, U. S. Coast Guard, and Miss Olga Braco, New York, are patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital as a result of injuries they sustained last night. The former suffering from a lacerated face, head and leg and a fractured arm and the latter receiving a lacerated right ankle and shoulder and possible eye injury. Raucee and the girl were riding on a motorcycle south on Main street and at Pierce street, an automobile driven by Angelo Spinato, 131 Jefferson avenue and headed in the opposite direction, diverted its course and was guided toward Pierce street to go to Huntington street. The speed of the cycle was such that Raucee could not bring it to a stop in time to avoid a crash, with the result that when the cycle and auto collided, both riders were hurled to the pavement. The injured man and woman were taken to the hospital and Spinato was arrested by Motorcycle Officer Augustus Ray on a charge of failing to grant right of way. When Spinato was in the police court this morning the charge was nolled.

Robert Powdrill, U. S. Coast Guard, today reported to the police that his Buick automobile, which had been parked in the space set aside for that purpose at the state pier, had been stolen. Powdrill did not know when the auto was taken but said that the theft was committed within three days.

The municipal pier is rapidly becoming in a condition badly out of repair for the planking has become loosened and in other places the huge nails in the timber have become raised, in some instances about two inches. The defective condition was reported today at the office of the public safety department at the city hall by the police.

LA FRANCE ASSAULT CASES CONTINUED FOR A WEEK

Thomas Rudd, 158 State street; Hughey Devlin, 708 Bank street, and a prize fighter, and Tony Christina, 113 Shaw street, a bootblack, were in Waterford town court this afternoon charged with felonious assault and robbery. Counsel for the accused requested a continuance and the three cases went over for a week. Rudd is being held in bail of $5,000, while the bond of Devlin and Christina was fixed at $3,000. Rudd did not obtain a surety and went to jail, but Devlin and Christina secured a bondsman. Rudd and Charles LaFrance, the latter until a few days ago employed as auditor at the Hotel Mohican, attended the dance of the New London police department at Ocean Beach last Monday. Both young men had been drinking and about 1:30 o'clock they went to a Bank street restaurant and joined Devlin and Christina. Rudd requested permission to use Christina's car to drive LaFrance to the hotel, but because of the condition of the pair, they were driven there, Devlin doing the driving, with Christina in the front seat and Rudd and LaFrance in the rumble seat. Instead of going to the hotel, the auto conveyed the party to Waterford, where Rudd is alleged to have beaten LaFrance and while the latter was on the ground, to have taken his money, about $28. LaFrance was then taken to Bulkeley High school and left in the yard where he was found by the police. Later it was ascertained that Rudd had been in LaFrance's company and when arrested he finally admitted having beat and robbed his companion and said that of the money he obtained he gave Devlin $12 and Christina $5. Then the other two men were arrested.

FERN BOY UNCONSCIOUS—TRUCK DRIVER UNDER BONDS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 11—Albert J. Coughlan, 43 Stuart avenue, Ocean Beach, driver of an ice truck, was arrested this afternoon by Motorcycle Officer Elwood Bailey on a warrant issued by Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer charging the driver with reckless driving. He furnished a surety on his bond of $2,500 and will be in the police court tomorrow, when undoubtedly the case will be continued. Coughlan was the driver of the truck upon which Howard Fern, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Fern, 1110 Ocean avenue and Richard Hammon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hammond, 15 Fentre street, were riding on the running board, last Saturday afternoon when the truck and the pleasure automobile driven by Mrs. Ida E. Eskridge, 31 Thames street, collided at the corner of Ocean avenue and Evergreen avenue. Both youths were thrown to the highway and Fern, sustained a possible fractured skull, while the Hammond boy received lacerations and contusions. Both boys were taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital. Fern has not regained consciousness but gives indications of doing so. The warrant for Coughlan's arrest was issued for the purpose of permitting the police to further investigate the facts of the accident, also to await the outcome of Fern's injury.

SENT IN FALSE FIRE ALARM—FINE FOR THOS. RUSSELL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Aug. 11—Thomas Russell, 20, of New street, employed at the plant of the Robert Gair company Montville, was in the police court this morning on a charge of breach of the peace in sending in false fire alarms. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs and sentenced to jail for 30 days, but the jail sentence was suspended. Russell was arrested a week ago when two false alarms called out the fire department. One alarm was sent in from Box 14, corner of Crystal avenue and Lewis street and the other was sent in a quarter of an hour later from Box 115, Mill street, and in front of Winthrop school. When it was discovered that both alarms had been false an investigation was instituted by the police and a short time after the second alarm, Russell was observed to leave Grove street and enter Williams street. When he did not continue along the latter street to go to his home, but started through a swamp, he was held up and questioned. He was without shoes or hose and could give no intelligent account of his movements and had been drinking. Russell was locked up, but he would not admit or deny sending in the alarms, but did say that he might have been guilty of doing so because he could remember but little of what transpired after he came to New London from his work, on account of having drank liquor.

Grimes parked his car on Franklin street at 9 o'clock Saturday night and when it was still there Sunday forenoon a resident made complaint to the police, stating that Grimes made a practice of using the highway as a parking space for his car from Saturday night until Monday morning. The auto was taken to a garage and when Grime sreported it as having been stolen he was ordered into court.

Forfeited $15 Bond.

Raymond H. DeShield, 198 Walnut street, Hartford, was charged with violation of ordinance, which prohibits the turning around of an automobile on Bank street, between State and Tilley streets. He failed to appear in court and forfeited his bond of $15.

Frank Kostanko, about 21, of 31 Warren street, was charged with attempted robbery and his case was continued a week. Kostanko went to the rear of the office of the Raymond & Alexander Lumber Co., corner of Howard and Hamilton streets, Sunday afternoon and attempted to force a rear window. He was detected in his act by a resident of the neighborhood, who informed the police. Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith went to the office and finding Kostanko there arrested him.

Several cases of intoxication were tried, there were a few cases of automobile drivers who had violated the city ordinances regulating parking. In the case of the former Judge Daniel M. Cronin meted out suspension of judgment and in the case of the careless drivers none of them appeared so the cases were disposed of by the drivers' respective bonds of $2 being declared forfeited.

POLICE OFFICERS COMMENDED BY HARTFORD MAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Aug. 11—The police efficiency was highly commended, especially that of officers Arthur Hurley and Robert Lariviere in a letter read at the monthly meeting of the common council held tonight and received from Mrs. Bertha Thompson of this city and her brother-in-law, John Thompson, of East Hartford, both of whom figured in an auto accident here recently. The letter was accompanied by a contribution to the police pension fund.

Three resolutions introduced by Alderman Eugene E. Lewis provided for the more efficient handling of traffic at danger points in the city. The first ordered the painting of traffic lines at the junction of Main and Bridge streets, controlling six lines of traffic. The plan, which is expected to eliminate the increasing danger at the junction, was outlined by City Engineer John F. Collins. Parking will be prohibited on both sides of Main street for a distance of 150 feet westerly of the junction with Ash street.

Luminous stop signs will be installed at the intersection of Prospect and Church street, causing all traffic on Prospect street to come to a stop at the intersection. The New Haven railroad, in a letter read tonight, reiterated its offer of some few years ago to give the city the use of the large field on Main street, just above Bridge, for the yearly rental of $1 and the payment of city taxes. The proposal is to make the field public parking space with rest conveniences. The offer was left with the street and police committees, which are to report at the next meeting.

Contagious diseases that existed in the city during the month, according to the report of City Health Officer Nathan Spector. The presence of these diseases, which were described as diphtheria and scarlet fever, is considered unusual at this time of the year. Dr. Spector reported his inspection of several restaurants and grocery establishments in the city where orders to remedy unsanitary conditions were given at some of these places.

A settlement of $50 for tax liens against the estate of Thomas J. Keating was accepted. Members of the Foti family appeared before the council in another request that the council elm tree in front of their property on High street be removed. The tree measures 11 feet, four inches at the base and while considered a thing of beauty, is reported to be raising havoc with the sidewalks and with the dampness in the Foti home. The street committee was instructed to investigate the matter which was turned down two years ago.

Sewer assessments on Ann, Hope and Chapman streets were adopted and made payable October 1.

The report of Fire Chief Charles A. Reynolds showed four alarms received and 72 buildings inspected during the month. According to the report of Chief of Police Thomas F. Grady there were 33 arrests, nearly a half of them for intoxication. Street Superintendent Edwin C. Young reported over $900 expended for oiling the city streets during the month.

THE HOME BUILDER

President Hoover's home-building commission should make haste to discover why the average man who wishes to build a home in suburban surroundings apparently is regarded in some localities by some institutions and individuals with money to lend as a bad risk, instead of the best possible risk, as in fact he quite frequently is. It is pleasant to know that the president's newest commission is expected to give special attention to the perplexities confronting the person of small means who wishes to possess a home.

The man whose ambition it is to own a dwelling first buys a lot. Possibly he buys it on installment payments. When the lots finally is paid for the owner is eager to build, so he begins to inquire into the method of obtaining loans for that purpose. He finds that on a first mortgage he can obtain 40 per cent and upwards of the total estimated value of the land and the completed dwelling. The mortgage calls for semi-annual interest payments at the rate of at least six per cent annually. Further he learns that many times he must pay a commission, based on the size of the loan, to the person or institution executing the mortgage. That is deducted from the body of the loan.

He requires more money to complete and equip his house. So he obtains a second mortgage necessitating additional payments of interest and perhaps payments on the principal in monthly installments. There may also be a commission to be paid.

Young parents who desire to bring up their children in settled home surroundings which the ownership of their dwelling insures are giving a practical demonstration of their wise parenthood and their responsible citizenship. They are the kind of residents which give stability and character to a community and they are entitled to be considered the best financial risks in the world and to be treated accordingly.

EXTREMES IN WEATHER

Not very often is the American Red Cross called upon to relieve suffering resulting simultaneously from flood and drought, but because of extreme weather it faces that unusual condition now. Some units hvae gone to work in the flooded district of Arizona, where there have been loss of life and property and a long list of injured. Flood water stood six feet deep in International street, Nogales, while some portions of this country were hauling water to drink. In other southwestern sections high water is reported and calls for assistance have been received.

Throughout the middle western section where drought prevails, the Red Cross is not yet at work, but advices from Washington say that it is ready to act when it is needed and some of its facilities have been pressed into service. The war department has authorized the use of army trucks and water tanks, stored in the quartermaster's quarters at Jeffersonville, to haul water from rivers for the livestock on farms.

Reports have reached Washington that in some sections of West Virginia, drinking water is selling at three cents a gallon and that prices will go higher unless rain intervenes. The weather bureau's records show a variety of temperature extremes for many years which include some extremely long periods of dry weather, but observers are beginning to think that the present drought in some sections of the United States this year will be found the worst in the country's history.

IMMIGRATION FROM MEXICO

Since more attention has been given to the type of Mexicans who wish to cross the border into this country, the state department is inclined to think that the Mexican immigration problem will take care of itself. For the last five fiscal years the average immigration to this country from Mexico was 56,747, but for the first six months of this year there have been only 3,671 Mexicans coming in as immigrants. There has been a general tightening of regulations and American consular officials in Mexican cities have refused visas for natives desiring to enter the United States, either in search of employment or as laborers under contract. The importation of contract labor is prohibited, but labor agents along the border have schemes to evade the law and many Mexicans come in under contract for work in the far west or the southwest. There is a growing feeling that immigration ought to be restricted sharply. Aliens seeking work only aggravate the unemployment situation. As a rule they come from places where wage and living standards are lower than in America and they will take a job for less money than an American could maintain himself on with any degree of comfort. If jobs are scare they should be found for natives and naturalized citizens before the bars are let down to men who are not needed. The capacity of the melting pot may well be strained, not only by the quantity but by the quality of the material which it is called upon to absorb, and it is just as well if selective principles are brought to bear upon those who seek to come within our borders.

AMERICANS IN CHINA

Six hundred and eighty-one missionaries, teachers and traders from the United States were living last January in four southern provinces of China, the scene of grave internal disorder. Three weeks ago spokesmen for the American government issued warning that they had better leave for safer areas, but how many took action after this warning has not been indicated. It may be presumed that most of those in Hunan, the scene of the first widespread depredations by roving bands terming themselves communists, are gone. American gunboats patrolling the Yangste and its tributary stream the Siang, evacuated Chang-Sha, capital city of the province, of all except a few who decided to stay; but looting and banditry, accompanied by threats against foreigners, have become prominent in Honan, Hunan and Hopeh.

The spread of the danger zone is being carefully considered by countries whose peoples may be resident there, and Great Britain's ambassador at Washington is understood to have inquired of the state department what plan it may have in mind should the situation become worse. It is not known whether queries have come from Japan, whose life and property interests in the disturbed territory are also considerable. All countries, of course, are proceeding with all the haste possible to aid their nationals. The refuge cities in many cases, however, are so inadequately defended by troops acting for the central Chinese government that better located centers for concentrating aliens may have to be made available. This aspect of conditions, along with the threatened effect on extensive property holdings by foreigners, shows the seriousness of the outbreak.

Joint action by leading outside countries, that would include the landing of considerable military detachments to operate together, has been broached to the American government on previous occasions. The last time was in 1927, when the attitude of Washington was unfavorable. After warning is given to foreigners to hasten out of perilous districts, and their home governments make extended attempts to help them, the state departments view was that military intervention in behalf of investments might do more harm than good by arousing greater native antagonism. This position has had wide support among the American people as justified. Presumably the policy will not be changed now.

DESERVING DISMISSAL

Graft scandals seem to have an unfailing recurrence in New York political life. In fact, it is to be suspected that many men would not be in political life in New York if it were not for the rare opportunities for graft which that connection offers. Just at the present time, when several magistrates, judges and other public officials are under the shadow of graft scandals, one prominent official opposes the application of a certain principle to men in public office against whom criminal charges are being preferred, or who are being investigated, or are wanted as witnesses.

Like other citizens accused of crime, such men are entitled to the legal presumption of innocence. But when public servants, pleading constitutional privilege, refuse to testify in open court or before grand juries, they should be deemed unfit for public service. The official or public employe who declines to testify on the ground that he might incriminate himself may be innocent in the eyes of the criminal law, but he is morally disqualified for public service.

This is the principle upon which Mayor Walker took action when he suspended a deputy commissioner who refused to give evidence in a graft case on the ground that he might incriminate or degrade himself. It is hard to see how there was any injustice in the mayor's action, for the principle is one that can be applied in every case. Innocent men cannot incriminate themselves by telling the truth, and public officials who withhold aid from state prosecutors or juries have no right to hold positions of public trust. They should expect to be dismissed.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, August 11—Washington hasn't yet caught its breath after three and more weeks of steady heat, where the mercury reached 90 to 110 official records every day. Such "a spell of weather" is disastrous anywhere, but Washington has a humidity that adds to the danger and discomfort. It is now a deserted city, as far as those free to leave are concerned. The President had the White House equipped with a "cooling off" system but even then the discomfort is great.

Diplomats, undersecretaries and members of the cabinet are devoutly wishing Mr. Hoover would pack his kit and take that month off. They cannot go until he does, and the time drags. The President wears his sack coat and white collar daily, no matter what the temperature, and even the wildest imagination can not picture Mr. Hoover in belt and soft shirt. He is the picture of conventional dress, and those who fish with him declare he wears that stiff collar even when perched on a rock in the middle of a stream.

With congress out of the way, the only political excitement this week was the meeting of the executive committee of the republican national committee. That furnished a big surprise as Senator Fess was made permanent chairman, instead of temporary chairman, as had been announced would be the program. All the same republican leaders are looking forward to the selection of Postmaster General Brown as his successor, by the time the 1932 campaign is on. Not that Fess isn't entirely capable of running that campaign but both are such staunch supporters and personal friends of Mr. Hoover, it is whispered they will share the chairmanship honor, when Hoover is up for reelection, or while he is serving his first term.

Washington society is turning its attention to early fall events. The Arts club is taking the lead, and preparing for a reproduction of the famous French Fair, to be given in October at the Arts club garden.

They are going to put some "fixin's" on the sky line, so to make it conform to the Paris club, and it will be a sort of rummage sale, as the programme reads, with all artists interested sending sketches, paintings, caricatures, drawings, and small articles and images of glass, pottery, china wood.

The advance folders show the intent of the show, the covers depicting everything from white elephants to blue-eyed rats, with tiny portraits put in hap-hazard here and there.

In the evenings the Follies club will give one of the gayest features of the fair. In fact, the whole thing is planned to give Washington a make-believe touch of the students' quarters in Paris, including all sorts of little markets, with birds, flowers, and "the gingerbread" fair, giving an artistic and weird color to the scene.

Later, debutantes will bow before official society, but the official season does not open much before December first, with a woman of distinction even now placing dates for teas, dinners and "coming out" parties, so they shall not conflict in the same social circles.

Folks out here give little credence to the story going the rounds that Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth will take the stump in the interests of her comrade, Mrs. McCormick, who is making a vigorous fight for election to the senate next November. Mrs. Longworth would, of course, go almost any length for her chum, but she is too clever a campaigner to make stump speaking the foundation of her work. Even in aiding her husband's political future she does not resort to the method of stump speaking. Mrs. Longworth usually works through entertaining at her big house up in Washington's most exclusive section. There she is hostess at little card parties, where only high political lights are guests with one or two men added, who haven't yet quite "arrived" but are still hoping and delighted to be included in "small and earlies." There are dinners where in the midst of luxurious surroundings, informal discussion may throw light on questions that vex the minds of political new comers to the capital, but who in the future may become influential. The Sunday night suppers of the Longworths are noted for their informal, yet informative debates. Usually in addition to a dozen or twenty "high lights in politics" there are one or two listeners in.

They get a view of the political situation that would lead any wavering political wayfarer down the well-trimmed path. Mrs. Longworth can point out, instead of leaving them to follow a crude trail of their own. Oh no, Mrs. Longworth does not need to resort to stump speaking, in order to help Mrs. McCormick win, or hold her seat after winning.

They are telling a good story on Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, who is regarded in Washington well up on the list of eligible bachelors in the senate.

The story runs back to the days when Walsh was governor of the Bay State, and one of the women of his acquaintance, who was a born matchmaker, tackled him on the wisdom of marrying, saying "The governor of this great commonwealth needs the influence of a good woman. You certainly ought to marry."

It is said Walsh, who is big, broad-shouldered and dignified, looked down on her and replied with considerable emphasis "Madam, I have been under the influence of six good women all my life. They are my mother and my five sisters." Walsh is still a bachelor.

You certainly ought to marry."

It is said Walsh, who is big, broad shouldered and dignified, looked down on her and replied with considerable emphasis: "Madam, I have been under the influence of six good women all my life. They are my mother and my five sisters." Walsh is still a bachelor.

"They say," Senator Hawes of Missouri likes nothing better than to tell fish stories, but if you talk back, you must speak the language of a modern angler. Somebody referred one day to a "fish pole." Hawes flared up and shot back: "Why don't you say fishing rod? You might as well call a rifle a blunderbus." Hawes likes to go off in the woods and cook the fish he lures from the streams, and with the fish goes sweet corn, roasted over a fire of twigs, the whole topped off with camp-made coffee, warranted to have a flavor that outbests all other coffee. Hawes is credited with having once said he was still pondering what a man ought to do "if fate and flea led you to a cornfield, that wasn't your own."

An aspirant for the senate in the past is now an aspirant for election to the house down in Tennessee, in the person of Benton McMillan, who was a member of the house when Reed of Maine was speaker. And it was McMillan who drew from Reed one of his most famous "sayings." McMillan, an old time, stiff-necked southern democrat, refused to answer his name when Reed was trying to count a quorum present and save the day for some measure before the house. McMillan sat silent in his seat; Reed ordered the clerk to repeat his name; he remained silent, then Reed ordered the clerk to record McMillan as "present." In an instant McMillan was on his feet protesting he had not announced himself as present; Reed looked him square in the eye, then said, in his famous down east drawl: "Does the gentleman from Tennessee deny he is present?" And Reed obtained the quorum with the record showing McMillan as present.

Since the Sunday, a few weeks ago, when a near accident happened to the president's car, as a woman driver sideswiped it on its way home from Rapidan camp, the secret service and police of Washington have organized a patrol to guard the road whenever the president and his guests are about to travel back and forth from Rapidan or take Sunday drives down that way. The speed of all other cars is restricted; the number of cars that may pass from point to point in a given time and other precautions are being taken to insure the safety of the president and his guests when camp trips are the order of the day.

RENO BOUND

Ralph Hardy saw his wife to the train and watched the observation car depart into a smoky haze of tracks. It was over, that wonderful dream that had lasted longer than more dreams do . . . two years. Alice was probably right.

And Alice knew she was. Fool that she had been! Marry a writer, a man that though of nothing else but one story after the other, that neglected her shamefully while he wrote for hour on hour. Leave him to his cigaretto-scarred table and battered typewriter. Likely as not, Alice thought, as she made her way to the diner for luncheon, Ralph was back there by now hammering away.

"I am sorry, madam, there is no free table, but I have one place across from a woman."

"Thank you . . ." She followed the steward to the alloted chair. Her chance table mate was a woman about her own age, attractive and exquisitely gowned.

This woman waited for Alice to give her order; then she asked a casual and informal question: "Bound for the coast?"

Alice, albeit averse to strangers, answered; "No, I'm only going as far as Reno."

"You'll pardon me if I say I had guesed as much?"

"How——" Alice was embarrassed at first, but laughed.

"You can always tell. I went there for mine. You have the restful and satisfied look of a woman who has discovered that marriage is not one of the better things in life."

"Is it much trouble?" There might be some advantage in having this stranger explain just what to do.

"Not a bit. And it's easier yet if you have a husband that treated you as badly as mine did. See this scar here?" She pointed to a small blemish on her forehead. "That's where Tom threw a flatiron at me. Sober as a judge, too. Oh, I simply couldn't stand him after he made so much money. It wasn't other women—nothing like that, but he was so frightfully temperamental."

Alice was not a little astounded by this recital of another woman's marital difficulties. A flatiron!

The divorcee arose and left with a parting admonition:

"Get it, my dear; you'll never regret it. Plenty of alimony, too. But don't make the same mistake I did."

"What was that?"

"I married him again!" She laughed and went out.

To Alice's wondering eyes the whole train seemed to be packed with women who were Reno bound, escaping from desperate husbands. She could not help but overhear scraps of conversation bruited about by others less reserved.

"Shoved me right through the French doors . . . see here. I told him right then and there that I was through for good. Two hundred a week . . . that's what I'm asking."

All that afternoon, despite attempts to bury herself in a magazine, the words kept ringing in her ears. Shoved her through the French doors. Two hundred a week.

Alice remembered the most extreme cruelty that Ralph had ever inflicted upon her. He had caught her finger in the door jam, crushing it slightly. A minor thing, but his contrite apologies had lasted for days.

It was impossible to close her ears to the animated conversation of two women across the aisle who had discovered their mutual disasters.

"The idea. I asked him for a dress and he gave me $5!"

"I don't blame you a bit. Now, Harry wasn't so bad about that; but he had a habit of going away for unexpected week-end trips. I might as well have married a traveling man."

"Shame on him. The best man on earth isn't good enough for his wife. That's what Mrs. Hickey said when she got her second decree, and I'm beginning to think she's right."

"Of course she is. But most women are such plumb fools. They never know when they're well off."

For some reason Alice didn't sleep well that night. The clicking of the wheels over the tracks was symbolic of that chattering that occurred in the lounge. Women who knew what they didn't want and were going to get it. Marry a man, hate him and divorce him.

Arriving in Reno, Alice went to a telegraph office. She had lost the card of the lawyer who was to handle the case for her. Ralph would know. But oddly enough Alice, in the message scribbled on the yellow sheet, didn't even ask. What she wrote was:

"Come out here and throw me through a French door. I'll love it. Alice."

And, of course, Ralph would understand what she meant. Ralph was wonderful; he understood everything. —Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Wet Plank

It is reported that an effort will be made to have inserted in the platform of the republican party a plank advocating repeal of the 18th amendment to the constitution of the United States. It is unbelievable that the state of Connecticut should be so disloyal to the best interests of its people. Disloyal to the federal government and the president, disloyal to the great republican party, the party of Abraham Lincoln, who was its first president, as to declare itself in a state of rebellion against the government and its constitutional laws. We fought a Civil war to establish a union of states and unification of its laws under a federal government. It is unthinkable that any state should break away from the government by declaring for state control of the liquor traffic and repeal of constitutional law. Mr. Lincoln once said that any nation half slave and half free could not live. The same statement is true today. A nation that is half drunk and half sober cannot attain the best interests and happiness of its people. At the close of the great Civil war he also said to his cabinet, "we must first reconstruct the government and then control the liquor traffic." We have been a staunch and loyal supported of the republican and loyal supporter of the republicutry. It would be a great calamity and badly cripple the industrial activities of the state. It will offer a haven to bootleggers and other undesirable citizens and divert from the legitimate channels of trade the earnings of its people. The same two dollars will not buy liquor and a pair of shoes or food stuffs at the same time. The 18th amendment to the constitution was placed there by a great majority vote of 65,000,000 free people through their representatives in congress. Let us then be loyal to our flag, to the government and its constitution and to its president, to our state and to ourselves and the common people, who are the life of the nation, and press steadily onward, having for our purpose a happy and contented people, a sober nation and a stainless flag.

Recovery From Tuberculosis

By Howard L. Hull, M. D., F. A. C. P.
Elma, Washington
From Gorgas Memorial Institute,
Washington, D. C.

A generation ago a diagnosis of tuberculosis was almost equivalent to a death sentence. The disease was usually discovered in its late stages and truly merited the name "consumption." Now it is quite different, thanks to specialized training of physicians and to the aid of the laboratory and X-ray.

Suppose you have been told by a competent physician that you have tuberculosis in an active form. Maybe you doubt the diagnosis and before you can believe it you will consult several other physicians. You may get conflicting opinions and yet all of them may be honest.

Your most natural questions then are: "Can I get well? How long will it take?" Concerning your chances of recovery, your friends will give you various opinions, ranging from no chance at all, to every hope of recovery, regardless of your condition.

Do people really recover from tuberculosis? Eminent medical authorities aver that tuberculosis properly managed is one of the most curable of all chronic diseases, but they add that it is one that has great tendencies to relapse. That is, it is likely to recur, and this fact must be known by the patient.

It goes without saying that the earlier the disease is discovered, the better the chance the patient has for recovery, but an even more important matter is the resistance of the patient. Upon resistance really depends the recovery more than upon any other factor. A patient with a very small amount of infection, who has poor resistance, may ever under favorable conditions, advance into the serious stages of tuberculosis and die. On the other hand, an extensive tuberculosis, properly treated, in a patient with good resistance, may proceed to recovery. Some patients will recover regardless of what they do; others will die, no matter what is done for them. Fortunately most recover who are treated properly, over a sufficient period of time.

What are the essentials for recovery? First, a physician who understands tuberculosis and is experienced in handling it, and second, a patient who will cooperate with his physician and will have confidence in him.

Is it necessary to go to some low, dry climate, or some high, dry climate? There may be some reasonable difference of opinion on the part of physicians in regard to this, but the consensus of medical opinion is that climate is a very small, or negligible factor in the treatment of tuberculosis. There may, however, be some cases where climate would be of value, but they are exceptional.

The patient must first know enough about his disease so that he can fully appreciate, not only that he has the disease, but something as to its extent and as to his resistance. It is a mistake to keep patients in complete ignorance of their condition, as this prevents proper cooperation.

As to the time required, we count it in months. Even the earliest type of lung tuberculosis should have a period of treatment, not less than six months, with observation period of at least a year longer. A patient cannot spent too much time in getting well, but he can spend too little.

Rest. This is the first essential toward recovery and its degree and its continuation must be prescribed by the doctor in charge. Fresh air and food are of importance, but are quite secondary in value to rest. A balanced diet such as any healthy individual would eat, and modifications of this to fit certain complications are recommended.

As a final warning, the convalescent should beware of over-confidence and should resume his work only on recommendation of his physician. The slogan in tuberculosis may very well be put "I cannot judge my condition by how I happen to feel."

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11—A great many Washington folk ascribed the peculiar actions of Senator Grundy of Pennsylvania after his defeat in the primaries last May to a simple case of "peeve."

He was in the senate after that political Waterloo only twice, so far as the Bystander can learn. On one of those occasions he did not even take his seat.

He just looks din and soon went out again. Before the regular session ended with the special naval treaty session in sight, Grundy was off to Europe.

It appeared that Grundy was about the most utterly disappointed politician of his day. But an exhibition of pure peevishness didn't seem in keeping with his usual good humor or his highly practical knowledge of political ups and downs.

And Paul McGahan of the Philadelphia Inquirer's Washington staff tells the Bystander it was not just a Grundy peeve.

On the contrary, he contends. Grundy's desertion of the senate after his primary defeat represented a most conscientious view of his obligations as merely a senator by governor's warrant, not by certificate of popular election.

In effect, McGahan has convinced himself, Grundy regarded the primary results as recalling him.

He never functioned again in senatorial capacity, either in debate or in Pennsylvania patronage matters. And he will not, though on the senate rolls until his successor shall have been elected in November.

Grundy was appointed senator by Governor Fisher with the stipulation that he must run for nomination. Perhaps that had a lot to do with his attitude.

At any rate, after his defeat in the primaries, he virtually turned over the complete Pennsylvania senatorial representation to his duly elected colleague, David Reed, and went about his own business and pleasure.

He did not resign, because to have done so would have been to deprive the state again of one senate vote, for a time at least. So he told Reed, in effect:

"Here is my pair. You can pair me as you please on any question that comes to a vote in the remainder of the regular session of congress, or during the special session of the senate. That gives you two Pennsylvania votes instead of one."

And that is the way it worked out.

Stories That Recall Others

All-American

Bernice's father bought her a buldog. When she was playing with the dog in the yard the next day the mail man stopped to pet it.

"Is it an English and Boston bulldog?" he asked.

"Oh, no," replied Bernice. "He's all-American!"

Easily Remedied

A man who had great difficulty in speling words that had "ei" and "ie" in them mentioned the matter to a friend.

"Oh," said the friend, "I have a splendid remedy for that. It's infallible, too. I've used it for years and never been let down yet."

The first man expressed his delight and interest, then waited for enlightenment.

"The rule is this," the friend declared: "Write your 'I' and 'e' exactly alike and be sure and put your dot exactly between the pair of them."

BODY OF AUTO VICTIM TAKEN TO WORCESTER

The body of Nicholas Peterson, 50, of No. 29 Blossom street, Worcester, Mass., who was fatally injured here about noon Monday in an automobile accident, was taken to that city early Monday evening by automobile. Peterson died about 1.10 o'clock Monday afternoon at the W. W. Backus hospital from injuries received when struck by a Plymouth sedan operated by Miss Evelyn Whitehead, of No. 8 Rogers avenue, at the intersection of Park and Main streets. His death was caused from a fractured skull, ruptured abdomen, injured left ankle and multiple abrasions.

When struck by the machine Peterson was standing on the sidewalk in front of the Elks' home and was leaning against one of the iron white way posts. Miss Whitehead was driving on Main street, towards Franklin square. It is said she turned in her seat to rearrange something in the back of the car, and that the machine mounted the curbing and pinned Peterson against the pole. He lost considerable blood from a wound in his left leg, which was badly mangled.

Dr. William T. Driscoll, who happened along, administered first aid treatment and immediately had the ambulance from the hospital summoned. The injured man was rushed to the hospital in a semi-conscious state.

With Miss Whitehead were her two nephews, Courtland and Sherwood Mott, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Mott, of New Britain. Mrs. Mott, formerly Miss Delia Whitehead, and her two sons arrived here Saturday for a vacation.

The front end of the sedan was badly damaged and the base of the pole was smashed. Miss Whitehead and her passengers were only slightly injured.

Officer John Carroll investigated the crash, and learned that Miss Whitehead failed to have her operator's license and registration with her. She is also held on a technical charge of manslaughter and is at liberty under bonds of $2,500 pending the finding of Coroner Edward G. McKay. Miss Whitehead is secretary to Superintendent Edward J. Graham of the Norwich public schools. Peterson was born in Greece, the son of Christos and Eva Bahounia and had been a resident of Worcester for 20 years. Hourigan Bros. took charge of the body and prepared it for burial.

THREE GIRLS HURT IN ACCIDENT IN MONTVILLE

Louis Radocchio, of Uncas-on-Thames, Norwich, was arrested early Monday evening by Police Officer Howard Lamphere of Montville on a charge of reckless driving after the officer investigated an accident in which he figured at 5.30 o'clock Monday afternoon on the New London-Norwich highway at the curve near the Johnson ice house at Uncasville. Radocchio, who was driving a coupe, was on his way to New London and had three New London girls as passengers. The girls were Anna, Catherine and Christina Doyle, sisters.

When making the turn at the ice house he skidded on the wet pavement and shot over to the left of the road, taking down about six feet of the highway railing and then crashed head-on into a telephone pole. The three girls were treated for cuts and bruises by Dr. J. J. Donohue of Uncasville, who later sent them to the Lawrence-Memorial hospital in New London, where one of the sisters is in a serious condition.

While helping to extricate the injured from the wreck, Officer Lamphere received a deep cut on the left arm that required three stitches to close. The driver escaped injury.

The driver will appear in the Montville justice court next Monday morning to answer to the charge of reckless driving.

Given Surprise Party

A surprise party was held Monday evening for Joe Russillo, of No. 79 School street. There was dancing, the music being furnished by Malerba Bros. Supper was served by Mrs. A. Russillo of Jersey City. At the party were Mr. and Mrs. Del Re, Mr. and Mrs. Vallarella, Leo Del Re, Astolfo Cetrone, Vitaronsa Del Re, Mr. and Mrs. Colasanto, Jerry Russillo, of New York; Emma Russillo, of New York; Patzi Russillo, of New Jersey; Nanzi Russillo, of Jersey City; Frank Russillo, Assunta Russillo of Jersey City; Angelina Curts, Emily Diazzio, of Annapolis; Angelina Schifanella of Annapolis; Philip Russillo and Lavino Lambarella.

Charged With Auto Violation

John S. Janik, of this city, will appear in the city court this (Tuesday) morning on a charge of violation of the motor vehicle laws. He was summoned into court Monday by Officer Clifford Crary.

THRIFTY WOMEN SEE VALUE OF CANNING FRUIT THIS SUMMER

Never Before Has Sugar Been so Low in Price and Fruit is Plentiful

A glance at the overflowing fruit markets and then at the low price of sugar proves conclusively that 1930 is the year to put up fruit. Of course the more that is canned the bigger the financial gain, but even a few jars of preserves and glasses of jelly stored away will help cut food bills next winter.

Pickles and relishes made of cucumbers, tomatoes, cabbage and watermelon rind are also economical to put up. Their spicy tart-sweet goodness is most welcome when meats and fish are served.

Canned fruit has a place in the balanced diet. Most of them are rich in vitamins. For children, canned fruit is an ideal breakfast dish or a fitting dessert.

Beyond a doubt, the housewife who puts up plenty of fruit this summer will find that its consumption next winter will help keep her family well and save her money. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

STORRS, Conn., Aug. 11—(AP)—A school of practical farming, offering a two-year course, may soon be erected at Connecticut Agricultural college with funds provided under the will of Ratcliffe Hicks, of Tolland, who died in Berne, Switzerland, 25 years ago.

A fund of $300,000 is now available and the total may eventually reach $1,250,000. The Meriden Trust and Deposit company is executor of the estate which was bequeathed with the provision that it be allowed to accumulate for a quarter of a century before being used to create the junior agricultural school.

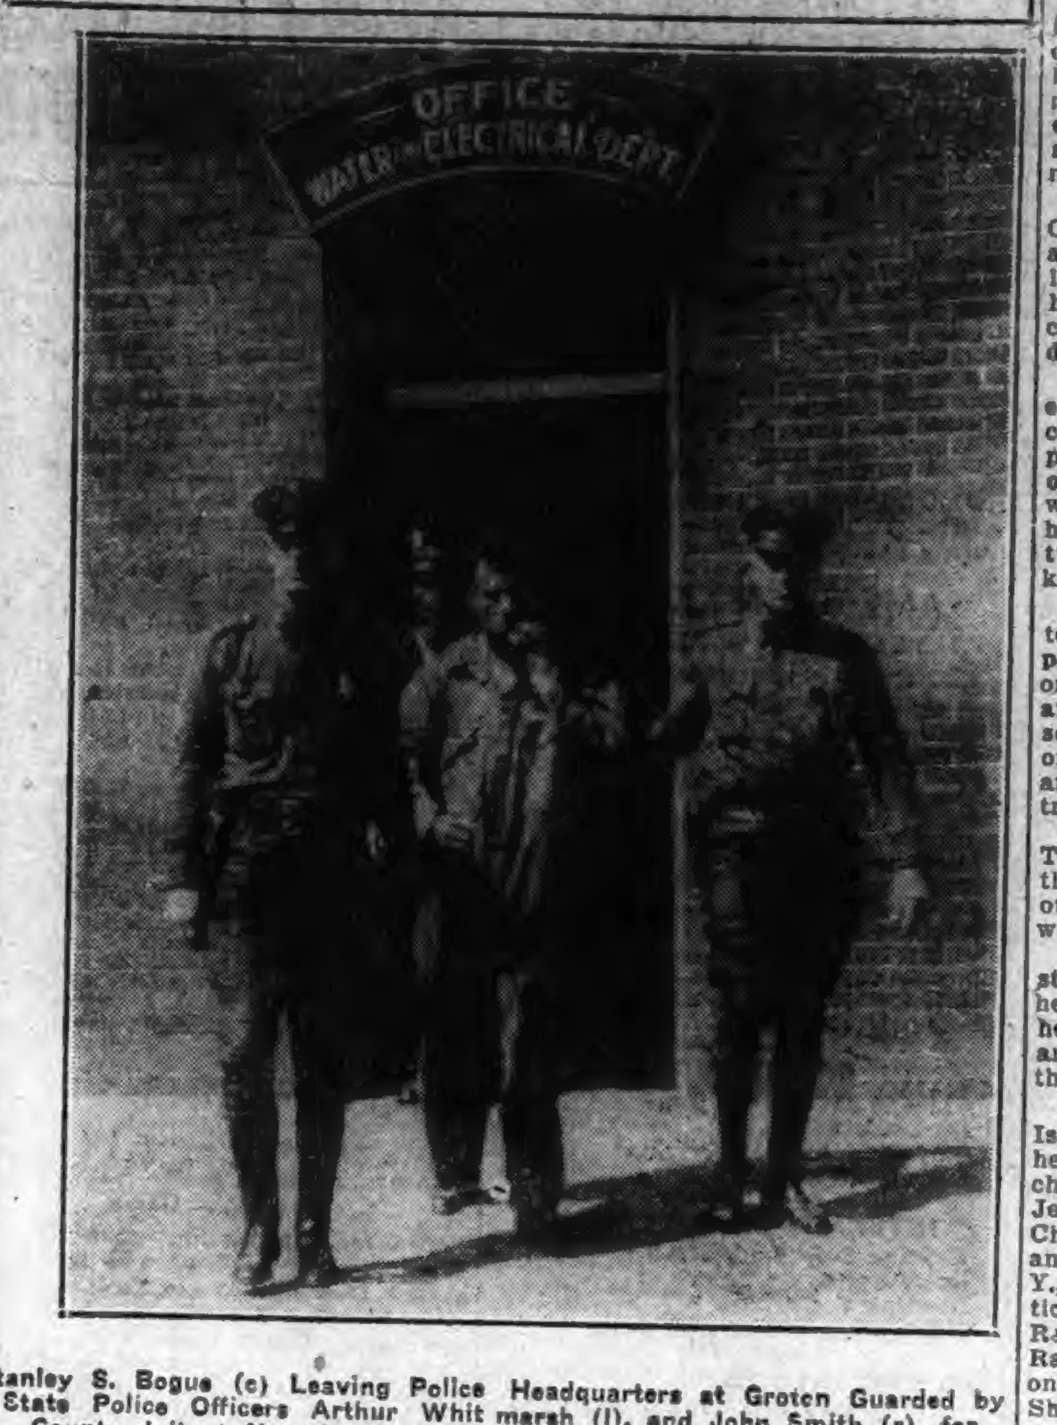
CHARGED WITH AXE SLAYING



Stanley S. Bogue (c) Leaving Police Headquarters at Groton Guarded by State Police Officers Arthur Whitmarsh (l), and John Smith (r), for County Jail at New London to await Trial on Charge of Murdering Mrs. David Roberts and Ole Ostberg at Mystic.

DOUBLE MURDER CASE CONTINUED PENDING CORONER McKAY'S FINDING

Charged with the murder of Mrs. Eva Jennings Roberts, 52, and Ole Ostberg, 63, at Mystic, Stanley Smith Bogue, 34, was presented in Groton town court Monday morning. The hearing was continued a week, pending the outcome of Coroner Edward G. McKay's investigation. Bogue is held without bail at the county jail in New London. David Roberts, the woman's husband, and James Collins, a boarder in the slain woman's house, were held without bail as material witnesses. They also are at the county jail. The double axe slaying occurred Saturday night and was perpetrated in the kitchen of Mrs. Roberts' boarding house, which is located on a lane leading from the Boston Post road in Mystic to Buddington road. Jealousy is said to have been the cause. Following a half-hearted attempt at suicide, Bogue was arrested early Sunday morning by State Trooper Arthur Whitmarsh and held without bond pending his appearance in the Groton town court. An anonymous call to the Groton state police barracks put Whitmarsh on the trail of the murderer, who made little attempt to make a getaway after losing heart in an attempt to bury the bodies of his victims in the cellar of the Roberts' boarding house.

David Roberts, husband of the slain woman, who resided in the house of Dr. Charles D. Benjamin, a veterinary, next door, and James Collins, a boarder in Mrs. Roberts' house, were arrested early Sunday morning as material witnesses. Neither was present in the house when the couple were killed, it is said, but both are in possession of valuable information about the two victims and Bogue.

Ostberg was a moulder employed at the Capitol foundry, Mystic, and lived at the Mystic hotel. He had been a resident of Mystic but three months. Bogue was employed by the New Haven railroad as a laborer and was a boarder at the Roberts' house.

The picture of just how the crime was committed is not exactly clear in the minds of the police. Bogue maintains that he struck Ostberg and Mrs. Roberts when they came after him following a heated quarrel. The police reconstructing the murder scene from the evidence found afterward, are inclined to believe that Bogue struck the man and woman down in cold blood without warning.

It has been established that Mrs. Roberts and Ostberg had been out together all Friday night and had been put out of the Al Browning place in Stonington early Saturday night by Officer Judson Turney, when, according to the police, they created a disturbance.

In some manner they made their way back to the farmhouse Mrs. Roberts rented. This house is located on the east side of what is known as Slotter or Slaughter lane, about 200 yards in from the Boston Post road, in the vicinity of Stanton hill. The farmhouse occupied by Dr. Benjamin is located south of the house occupied by Mrs. Roberts and is the only house in the immediate vicinity.

The murder house is a low, old fashioned frame dwelling of shabby and dilapidated appearance. It has six rooms on the ground floor and one room finished off in the attic. The cellar has a dirt floor and is very low, requiring one to stoop over when walking in it. Besides the rooms mentioned there is a dining room and two other bedrooms.

As the couple made their way up the road to the farmhouse about 6:30 o'clock Saturday night, Bogue sat in the sitting room of the farmhouse looking down the road. He claims he was just sitting there waiting for someone to come in and at this point his story and the beliefs of the police begin to differ. The police are inclined to believe that Bogue, enraged by jealousy, had murder in his heart as he lay in wait at the farmhouse for Mrs. Roberts and Ostberg to return.

According to Bogue's story the couple came in through a side entrance and entered a hallway that opened on the left to the sitting room where he was, to the right into Mrs. Robert's bedroom and straight ahead into the kitchen. Indications are that both were badly intoxicated.

Bogue says that the two went directly into the kitchen without saying a word to him. This, he claims, riled him and he went into the kitchen to remonstrate with Mrs. Roberts for her lack of attention to him.

According to his story the trio had some hot words, which resulted in Ostberg going after him. He claims he grabbed the ax, which was located in a far corner of the kitchen, and struck Ostberg as the latter charged him and then turned the ax on Mrs. Roberts as she went after him.

The nature of the blows on the head indicate to the police, however, that both Mrs. Roberts and Ostberg were sitting at the kitchen table opposite each other and probably stupified with drink when Bogue struck the murderous blows with the ax.

An autopsy performed on Ostberg by Dr. Frank W. Hewes, medical examiner for Groton, showed that Ostberg had suffered five different blows with either the sharp or blunt end of the ax and had then been struck on the top of the head with the flat of the ax and his skull smashed. The first five blows appeared to have been struck from the side. Mrs. Roberts had been struck several times on the head also. An autopsy was to be performed on her also.

After the double murder, Bogue calmly told the police, he dragged the bodies down in the low cellar by way of a stairway from the kitchen. Indications are that he hauled Ostberg down first and dragged him around in back of the stairway where his body was found. He then dragged Mrs. Roberts' body down to the foot of the stairway where he left her.

Returning to the kitchen he mopped up the blood with a regular kitchen mop and pail and then returned to the cellar with the intentions of burying Mrs. Roberts and Ostberg.

Subsequent examination of the cellar showed that he started to dig in one place and had taken out only a few shovelfuls when he struck a big piece of wood that caused him to abandon this location and start another. He had dug out a few more shovelfuls in this second location, when, evidently, he changed his mind and gave up the task.

According to his story he then tidied things up in the kitchen and after locking all the doors to the farmhouse, left through a side window and walked up the road toward the Crandall game farm.

Just what his thoughts were at this time is a matter of speculation. His own story is that he entered a field beside the road and taking a safety razor blade from his pocket he slashed his left wrist across the inside, slashed his right wrist in a similar manner and then cut his throat.

A few hours later he arrived at the Crandall farm, covered in blood, and asked for something to eat. Evidently he was in somewhat of a daze and his actions and bloody appearance caused some uneasiness in the Crandall household.

Not unmindful of his hospitality, even under such unusual circumstances, Mr. Crandall had a big meal prepared for Bogue, including six ears of corn, all of which the man ate with great relish. In the meantime he told Mr. Crandall that he had hit two people with an axe and didn't know whether they were dead or not.

It was then about midnight. The telephone bell at the Groton state police barracks rang and the trooper on duty answered. An excited woman's voice urged that a policeman be sent to the Crandall game farm at once. She would not give her name and under the circumstances the trooper was undecided what to do.

On being informed of the call Trooper Arthur Whitmarsh decided that it was in connection with another case on which he had been working and started out for the farm. Upon his arrival he found Bogue still at the Crandall place and after hearing something of the man's story he snapped his handcuffs on Bogue and ordered him to lead the way to the house.

Mrs. Roberts was born at Shelter Island, N. Y., May 1, 1878. Besides her husband she is survived by seven children, Eugene, Elias and Raymond Jennings, of Mystic; Mrs. Lillian Chamberlain, Mrs. Mabel Chamberlain and Mrs. Viola Smith, of Jamaica, N. Y., and Mrs. Mary Burnhard, of Mystic. Also two brothers, Mortimer Rackett of New London and Archie Rackett of Easthampton, N. Y., and one sister, Mrs. Charles Beaumian of Shelter Island survive.

That Bogue had tried to kill Mrs. Roberts before was revealed in an interview with Howard Wilson, a boarder in the house adjoining the Roberts home where he stays with Mrs. Roberts' sons, Eugene and Raymond. Wilson, who claims that he is a boxer and has fought in Boston and other cities, said that he had on several occasions used his prize ring knowledge to subdue Bogue when he was in one of his killing moods. He cited three occasions where Bogue had tried to murder various members of the household, using a broken cross-cut saw, a cleaver and a butcher knife.

Wilson told of one evening some time ago when Bogue came to Wilson's boarding place and invited Wilson and Mrs. Roberts' two sons over to supper. They accepted and as they were seated about the table Bogue suddenly left the table, he said, and went out into the yard, slamming the door behind him. In a few minutes he returned, waving the saw over his head and declaring that "he was going to clean house." Wilson said that Bogue slashed at Mrs. Roberts who dodged and the broken saw struck the panel of the door where it imbedded itself. Before Bogue could get the saw free again one of the boys grabbed Bogue about the arms and Wilson wrenched the saw from his hand. Bogue could not be subdued until he was struck over the head with a chair, Wilson said.

On another occasion, Wilson said that Bogue chased Ostberg out of the house with a cleaver and it was not until Bogue had been subdued with force that he gave up his murderous attack. Wilson claimed that Ostberg ran around the side of the house and when Bogue saw him escaping, he hurled the cleaver at him. Wilson then stepped in and stopped Bogue.

Another time Bogue attacked Wilson with a butcher knife, according to Wilson, and Wilson made his escape by diving under a lumber wagon that stood in the yard. As Wilson dove under the wagon, he claims that Bogue threw the knife at him and it stuck in the body of the wagon. Then Wilson grappled with Bogue and once again his pugilistic powers stood him in good stead.

Wilson told of several other times when he had seen Bogue slap Mrs. Roberts in the face for various reasons. In speaking of Mrs. Roberts, Wilson said that she was a kind woman and that everyone liked her. He said that she was very good to her children, one of whom is seriously ill.

Wilson said that the first he knew of the murder was when he was awakened by two state officers. He went with them to the Roberts' house where he met Undertaker Williams who informed him of the murder.

INTENTIONAL SECOND EXPOSURE

CITIZENS POUND THREE PITCHERS FOR SMOKE SHOP FOR EASY 18 TO 2 WIN

Three Smoke Shop pitchers were pounded for a total of 16 hits at the campus by the Polish Citizens last night. As a result the Cits won 18 to 2 and increased their lead in the City league standing to a game and a half. After a good start in the opening inning the Smokers did not have a look in and as the contest progressed it became a question of how high the score would run.

The Cits went scoreless in their end of the first but in every inning thereafter they counted at least twice. In both the fourth and fifth they batted around and scored 7 runs in each session.

While the Citizen stickers were slapping the offerings of the Smoker artists back as fast as they threw the ball to the plate Boots Greene was turning in another of his neat rubber exhibits. He allowed three hits in the five innings of play.

With the exception of Tony West each member of the winning club connected safely at least once. Pete Finn and Dee Gaudette led the attack with three hits apiece. Art Couillard banged out two of the Smoke Shop hits, bounding one over the center field fence in the first for a homer. Leo Jarvis also turned in a freak home run, bounding his over the fence in the third. The score:

Benefit Game Tonight

The Italians and Ideals are booked for service at the campus tonight. Although neither has much chance of copping the league pennant both are making considerable trouble for those who have. The Ideals started the Bottlers slipping three weeks ago and the Italians took the most recent shot at them last week.

The Italians, it will be remembered, showed a number of new faces in the game with the Bottlers and Manager De Fronzo, pilot, is confident that his club is through losing ball games now that his forces have been strengthened. Tony Bernard, on the other hand, is equally as certain that he will take a fall out of the Italians this evening. Lefty Lucier will pitch for the latter and Bob Shaw will probably work for the Ideals.

The big game of the week comes Wednesday evening when the Bottlers and Royals come together. The two are tied for second place, within striking distance of the leading Citizens. The loser however, practically eliminates itself from the title chase. As previously announced, the entire receipts of the big game will go to the "kiddies" beach fund. The recreation commission, sponsors of the City league, request that the fans assist with the "kids" big blowout, which is to be held at Ocean Beach on August 27 by attending the benefit game and doubling their contributions.

NEVINS BLANKS COLCHESTER WITH BUT A SOLITARY HIT

Eddie Nevins pitched brilliant ball for the Fitchville A. C. Sunday afternoon shutting out the Colchester Town team with one hit while his teammates pounded Broder for 12 hits and 3 runs. Only two men reached second during the game and these were caught in attempted steals of third base.

CULVER, Ind., Aug. 11—(AP)—Eighty-one juniors and 44 boys began play today on the Culver Military academy courts for the national junior and the boys tennis championships.

Claims Saints Are Poor Sports

Sports Editor: The game between the Wauregan Indies and the St. James team of Danielson on Sunday was called off for a very poor reason on the part of the Danielson manager. The Wauregan team was willing to play but the Saints telephoned that they would not come on account of rain. It rained at 11 o'clock, for about five minutes, and at 1:20 the sun was out. Furthermore, it was up to the Wauregan team to call the game off for the Saints were to receive a guarantee as long as they showed up in Wauregan. There was a good crowd present including some Danielson fans who had come to see the game but had to return home.

It will be a long time before the St. James team will be able to book a game with Wauregan as long as the management remains as it is. If the Plainfield Red Stars ruined the St. James pitcher the day before by defeating them 8 to 3 the Saints showed poor sportsmanship by saying that the rain was the cause of their not coming to Wauregan.

BRADY APPOINTED TO COACH AT HARVARD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 11—(AP)—James Brady, of Pocatello, Idaho, who played quarterback for Notre Dame in 1925 and 1926, today was appointed to the Harvard second varsity football coaching staff. He will serve as backfield coach, succeeding Madison Sayles, former Harvard player, who has been transferred to the freshman coaching staff.

Brady is the second member of the Crimson coaching staffs who gained his football experience at a college other than Harvard, the other being Jerome "Duke" Dunne, former Michigan star, who has had great success as varsity line coach.

Another change in the coaching lineup moved Walter Cleary, freshman line coach last year, up to the varsity staff as Dunne's assistant. Cleary's old freshman post will be taken over by Ralph W. Turner, Harvard lineman from 1925 to 1927. The Crimson athletic office also announced that Dave Guarnaccia, who first made the Crimson's lateral pass play offensive, freshman coach during the 1929 season, had been appointed as head coach of the Harvard 150- pound varsity team, which will be organized for the first time next fall.

Cleary's promotion caused the only change in the varsity coaching staff, which now comprises Head Coach Arnold Horween; Eddie Casey, backfield coach; "Duke" Dunne, line coach; Eddie Bradford, end coach; and Victor Kennard, kicking coach. Jimmy Knox will again serve as head coach of the second varsity and Art French will return as head coach of the freshman team.

SUAREZ MAKES SECOND AMERICAN START TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Aug. 11—(AP)—Justo Suarez, whose fighting prowess thrills his countrymen in Argentina as the hairy fists of Luis Firpo once did, will make his second American appearance in a campaign for lightweight title honors tomorrow night against Herman Perlick, of Kalamazoo, Mich. They will meet in the ten-round main go at the Queensboro stadium.

In his first American bout Suarez, a colorful, rough and tumble fighter, whipped tough Joe Glick in a ten round bout that followed the Al Singer-Sammy Mandell lightweight title tilt. Although not yet recognized here as the star the Argentine believes him to be, Suarez is regarded as a husky puncher, game and durable, and likely to cause much discomfort among the ranking 135 pounders. Suarez is a slight favorite over Perlick, more experienced of a pair of fighting twins. Herman recently fought a close match with Jackie (Kid) Berg, conqueror of Kid Chocolate.

So interested are the faithful of South America in the welfare of Suarez that arrangements for running accounts of the match have exceeded anything ever attempted before by Argentine newspapers, including the Firpo-Dempsey battle. Radio, long distance telephone covering 6,000 miles, and a half dozen cable wires will carry descriptions of the bout to South America.

TINKER TO BE PILOT OF JERSEY CITY CLUB

NEW YORK, Aug. 11—(AP)—Joe B. Tinker, shortstop of the famous Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance, infield combination of the Chicago Cubs, 20 years ago, has been appointed manager of the Jersey City club in the International league, George Perry, new contact man of the New York Yankees, announced today.

Tinker succeeds Nick Allen, who resigned the leadership of the Jersey City team when the club failed to advance under his direction. The Yankees, regarded as the parent of the Jersey City club, are known to be interested in its direction.

Tinker served a short time earlier this season as assistant to Bill Clymer in the management of the Buffalo team in the International league. He was let go at the same time Clymer resigned.

ONE UPSET N TENNIS PLAY AT PORTLAND

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 11—(AP)—The unexpected defeat of Don Martin, of Boston, seventh seeded player, and the advance of Perry Rockafellow, of New York, defending champion, seeded third, and Abott Gotshall, of Newton, Mass., seeded eighth, to the third round, marked the opening day's play in the Maine state tennis championships, at the Portland Country club today.

Martin was eliminated by J. M. Farren, 2-6, 7-5, 6-4. Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., seventh in national ranking, and Frank Shields, of New York, recent conqueror of Bill Tilden, 12th in national ranking, will play their first matches tomorrow. Allison was seeded number one in the local tourney and Shields, number two.

Rockafellow was not pressed in his two matches today. Gotshall was forced to extend himself to conquer W. L. Caswell, veteran netman and Allison's doubles partner.

TERRY BOOSTS HIS AVERAGE TO .410 WITH THREE HITS

(By The Associated Press)

Bill Terry helped himself to three hits in four times at bat yesterday, including a homer, and boosted his average to .410 to lead the Big Six by a narrow but satisfactory margin. His rivals for slugging honors lost ground or barely held their own.

Chuck Klein failed to get a hit in three tries and dropped two points to .403. Babe Herman smacked a home run but could do no better in three trips to the plate and remained in third place with .399. Lou Gehrig failed either to gain or lose with one in three but both Babe Ruth and Al Simmons dropped points. The standing:

MOLLA MALLORY NOT TO SEEK NATIONAL TITLE

NEW YORK, Aug. 11—(AP)—For the first time since she rose to fame 15 years ago, the name of that great campaigner, Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, is missing from the list of entrants for the national women's tennis championship.

The one-time queen of the courts was seized with a serious illness early in the year and has not yet recovered sufficiently to take up her racquet. It is considered doubtful whether she will ever again engage in important tournament play.

In this year's tournament beginning next Monday at Forest Hills, younger players will compete for the title won eight times by the indomitable Norsewoman. Nine of the country's first ten ranking feminine players are entered

PIRATES TURN ON GIANTS AND BREAK LOSING STREAK

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 11—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates halted a losing streak that had reached five straight today by turning on the New York Giants to win the final game of the series, 8 to 5.

Larry French, knocked out of the box in the first game of the series, came back to hurl fine ball for the Pirates except in the sixth when Bill Terry nicked him for a home run with two on. French aided his own cause with three hits, one a double, and figured prominently in the rallies.

Errors by Lindstrom aided the Pirates, who got only nine hits off Mitchell, Chaplin and Pruett, saving them for the pinches. Adam Comorosky hit a home run in the first. The score:

ROBINS CRACK IN 9TH TO LOSE TO CARDINALS

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 11—(AP)—The Brooklyn Robins, cracking in the ninth inning, dropped a dramatic game to the Cardinals 7 to 6 today and fell from the lead in the National league that had been theirs with but two short breaks since early June.

With the game apparently safely stowed away and Hollis Thurston pitching nicely the Robins took a two run lead into the ninth but two errors by Del Bissonette, Brooklyn first baseman, his late throw to third, and three hits, the last a single by Frankie Frisch, ended the battle and gave the Cardinals their fourth straight victory of the series. By beating the Boston Braves again, Chicago climbed into the lead by one percentage point. The score:

LAVARGE AND FULLER SHUT OUT "Y" TEAM WITHOUT A SINGLE BINGLE

The Elks blanked the Y. M. C. A. in Monday's Junior league game, 9 to 0. LaVarge and Fuller, pitching for the Elks, turned in another hitless contest, LaVarge twirling three and Fuller two innings, neither allowing a hit.

The Elks in the meantime had little trouble with Butkiewicz, on the mound for the "Y", gathering eight hits in the four innings he pitched. Seneski went in for the last inning and held the Elks without a hit in this frame.

The Elks started in the first, scoring three runs, two more in the second, three in the third and one in the fourth.

Guillotte and Hamill led the hitters, the former with two singles and the latter with a single and a double, each out of two times at bat.

Tonight's Game

The most important game in the Junior league to date will be played at the Duwell field tonight, when the league-leading Duwells meet the second place Rotary club. The Duwells have won seven and lost one game, while the Rotary are right behind with six victories and only one defeat. If the Rotary wins tonight's contest, they will be cut in front by the margin of one-half a game, while if the Duwells come out on the long end of the score they will have a much stronger hold on first place and will practically clinch the pennant. In the last meeting between these two teams, the Rotary won out 13 to 5. The Duwells, however, have been going strong of late and may turn the tables in tonight's game. Both teams looked very impressive in their last games, the Duwells defeating the Italian club, 11 to 0 last Thursday, while the Rotarians swamped the "Y" on Friday, 10 to 1. Probable batteries for the game are Stephanik and Kos for the Duwells, and Caron or Alex and Deschamps for the Rotarians. The game is scheduled for 6:30 p. m. sharp.

Riggs Stephenson, Cub left fielder, had a perfect day at bat with two doubles and a single in three times up. Woody English chased over two Chicago runs with timely singles. The score:

BROWNS' PITCHERS HALT YANKEES' WINNING STREAK

NEW YORK, Aug. 11—(AP)—The Yankee winning streak of six straight was shattered today by Rip Collins and George Blaeholder who pitched the Browns to a 10 to 5 victory in the final St. Louis appearance of the season at the stadium. While the Yanks were struggling to get five hits, the Browns clouted twelve, four of them homers. Goose Goslin got a pair, Blue and O'Rourke one apiece.

Goslin got a double and single in addition to the pair of four baggers and drove in half the Browns' runs. Goslin hit his first homer off Roy Sherid, Yankee starting pitcher, and the second off Ownie Carroll, who replaced McEvoy in the seventh, with two aboard the bases in the eighth. McEvoy replaced Sherid in the fifth.

Rip Collins, former Yankee, gave eight passes but was supreme in the pinches. Blaeholder relieved him after Ruth walked in the seventh and held the Yanks the rest of the way. The score:

Chief of Army Staff

Skipping five ranking major generals in the U. S. army, President Hoover has selected Major General Douglas MacArthur, above, to succeed General Charles B. Summerall. The new chief of staff is the youngest major general whose seniority would permit him to serve the full four-year term. He will take office in November.

SHE ROAMS GLOBE TO STAY WITH HER HUSBAND

BALTIMORE, Aug. 11—(AP)—Mrs. Elizabeta Crosley, former Chicago society girl, sticks by her husband.

But her husband is Lieut. Paul Cunning ham Crosley, of the United States navy, and sticking by him these four years has sent her:

More than 25,000 miles on water,
Countless miles on trains,
Aboard tramp steamers,
Through Chinese war perils.

Soon after their marriage Lieut Crosley, whose home was in Washington, was ordered to sea, his destination being China.

Wives are not permitted on battleships, even newly-married one, so it was up to Mrs. Crosley to follow the best way she could.

She used an assortment of freight boats until she rejoined her husband at Shanghai. Fights with Chinese rebels were in progress and Mrs Crosley was busy finding craft of all sorts to keep up with her husband.

Then her husband was transferred to the Philippines and another journey came for Mrs. Crosley. Then to the Panama canal.

She followed on the first available ship, a freighter.

Soon to Chesapeake bay for the review before President Hoover went her husband's battleship, with Mrs. Crosley aboard the first steamer following.

Now she is on her way to the west coast aboard the freighter Tashmoo. Her husband has been ordered to Seattle.

"Our four years of married life has been in one chase aound the world after another for me," she said.

"But what's the use of being married and in love with your husband if you can't be near him?"

Life aboard the freighters is interesting, Mrs. Crosley finds, and she sometimes whiles away long hours by helping to paint ship and other jobs.

And will she follow him when he leaves Seattle?

"I certainly will," she said.

STOCK PRICES FLUCTUATED, BUT THEY RALLIED SOMEWHAT IN CLOSING HOUR

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—(AP)—Stocks bobbed up and down erratically today, but closed higher on short covering stimulated by a more optimistic view of the crop situation.

Except in a comparatively few instances, net gains were nominal, for the rallying tendencies prevailed only after the market had gone through some highly erratic movements. It was again the old story of dullness on the declines and willingness to take profits on the advances, but the bears apparently sensed an over sold condition as the result of last week's declines and covered with some freedom, especially in the rails.

Lower temperatures and the prospect of showers in the grain belt, together with technical maneuvers in preparation for the government crop report, brought about movements of a professional nature in wheat and corn.

The failure of Saturday's rally to hold encouraged further selling in the morning hours, when moderate declines developed in several sections of the list, notably in the farm implement shares, the rails and the utilities. The market's resistance proved a surprise to the shorts, however, and after a series of small moves in either direction, covering began in earnest at mid-afternoon under the leadership of the investment rails. Atchison, for example, rose more than 7 points and Union Pacific nearly six. Late profit taking moderately reduced many of the extreme gains.

The firmness of money was somewhat of a surprise, for call loans advanced to 2 1-2 per cent after renewing at 2. The rise was attributed to the withdrawal of about $50,000,000 by out of town banks which are requiring funds for the movement of crops.

Prominent industrial shares generally maintained a firm under tone in the day's fluctuations. U. S. Steel, which closed Saturday at 159 1-2, dipped to 158 1-4, but then moved three points above that figure, selling off to 160 at the close. General Motors was exceptionally firm, gaining a point net. Johns Manville, Eastman Kodak, A. M. Byers, Auburn Auto, Auto Strop, American Tobacco "B", Radio, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Vanadium and Westinghouse Electric rallied one to six points.

Canadian Pacific was weak, breaking to the lowest price since 1927 on rumors that the directors might reduce the dividend, a fear that proved unfounded. The stock, which sold off 3 1-4, reduced its loss to 1 1-2. Atchison encountered profit taking at the top and its extreme gain of 7 1-2 was cut to 3, which was the extent of the advance in both New York Central and Louisville and Nashville.

Sears Roebuck was sold at the close and broke to a new low for a net loss of more than 2 points. Other prominent issues touching new minimums were Gulf States Steel, Warner Brothers Pictures, Columbia Gas and Electric, U. S. Rubber first preferred and Missouri-Kansas-Texas preferred. The day's maximum losses in the utilities were generally reduced or eliminated. American Telephone closed fractionally higher.

European exchanges were firm, suggesting the possibility that gold exports might be resumed. Sterling cables rose 3-32 to $4.87 7-32.

Cotton was soft for a time but closed only 4 to 8 points lower.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.— (AP) —Sensationally pessimistic unofficial field advices turned corn values upward late today despite good rains in drought territory and notwithstanding widespread relief from abnormal heat. Wheat values sympathized to some extent with the renewal of corn price advances, but fell back again at the finish, dominated by general and correct belief that the government crop report due after the close would make a bearish exhibit as to wheat. Besides, export demand today for wheat from North America appeared to be at a standstill, and the United States visible supply total showed a fresh increase of 10,307,000 bushels.

Closing quotations on corn were firm 3-8a1 1-8c a bushel higher than Saturday's finish. Wheat closed unsteady at 1 7-8a2 5-8c net loss, with oats 1-2a1c off, and provisions showing 5ca25c sag.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.— (AP)—Activity of the bond group in the New York stock exchange was at low ebb today. In one of the dullest sessions of the year, a mixed movement developed which extended to the best grade bonds. Total sales were only $5,923,000.

A few railroad and utility issues climbed to new highs for the year but the moderate selling which came into the market depressed some of the leaders to the extent of 1-4 or 1-2 point. The rally of Atchison 4 1-2s, which soared 3 points, was outstanding among convertible bonds. Railroad bonds in this group were steady to firm, while other stock privilege issues were irregular. Warner Brothers convertible 6s, dipped further to another new low for the year. Leaders in the foreign section were steady.

The turnover in United States governments was very small. Liberty issues holding firm. In a thin market, treasury issues moved lower. Bankers expect that the government will be able to market $120,000,000 in Treasury bills at a favorable rate. The firming of call money which advanced to 2 1-2 per cent after renewing at 2, was ascribed to out of town withdrawals incident to seasonal demands of agriculture. Increased demands for currency in farming sections are expected to continue for about six weeks, with bankers anticipating no permanent firming effects on credit conditions.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—(AP)— Production of standard cotton cloth during July amounted to 165,850,000 yards, a weekly rate of 41,462,000 yards, which was 27 per cent less than the weekly rate of 56,888,000 yards for July last year, the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York, reports.

Members of the New York cotton exchange today voted to make August 30, the Saturday preceding Labor Day, an exchange holiday.

Detroit Aircraft corporation reported gross sales of ships delivered for the period from July 6 to August 6, amounted to $171,170, and new orders placed $148,670. The statement said the total had been exceeded only by military sales in June, when the navy placed an order for 32 bombing planes with a value of $827,000.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—(AP)—Cotton futures closed steady, 4 to 8 points lower. Spot quiet; middling 12.55.

Treasury Balance.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11—(AP)—Treasury receipts for August 8, were $4,502,489.38; expenditures $23,508,355.28; balance $137,080,003.13.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Summit Thread Company, East Hampton

Dating back to 1880 at East Hampton, where the original Summit factory was erected, and contrasting this modest equipment with the extensive plant of this company today, the president, treasurer and general manager look back with pride, at the progress they have made.

Theophilus King, one of Massachusetts' leading citizens and a well known philanthropist, founder and treasurer of the Summit Thread company, has devoted his life to give of his best to those with whom he came in contact, to his business associates, his family and to humanity. His annual benefactions, known as the "King Family fund," distributing thousands to churches and charities, bear testimony of the extent of his successful business career. His unstinted devotions, his integrity and thrift, have been great factors in the building up of this large thread business.

Briefly, a large part of the early interest in the progress of the Summit Thread company is now bearing fruit. Since 1892, many radical changes have been made in the manufacturing processes, thread making machinery and facilities. From this period on to the present day, the wise management of the Summit Thread company has kept abreast with modern invention and not a single item of interest in the manufacturing or distribution problems has escaped their scrutiny.

The active management of the business is conducted by R. L. Ham, also assistant treasurer of the company, who has spent a good part of his life in cooperating with the other directors to place the Summit Thread company at the top of the summit.

Mr. Ham will tell you today that his company has offices in twelve different cities in the United States, where separate warehouses are well stocked to supply the immediate wants of their customers in each respective territory. During the last twenty years, connections and agencies have been established in over forty-five different foreign countries and there seems no end to the plans for further expansion.

During the last thirty odd years however, great economies have been realized in the manufacture of threads, not shoe threads alone but threads for the garment, clothing and cutting-up industries and these have been passed on to the customer. The most modern machinery facilities, the promotion of the famous Summit bobbin, advanced manufacturing improvements, even to the minutest detail, the acquisition of only the best and the longest of staple cotton yarns and other mill requisites,—these are a few of the understandable reasons for the peerage of the Summit Thread company today.

As mill manager, the management has been able to retain for a long period of time the valuable services of a devoted factory superintendent in E. G. Cone, whose eagle eye is ever watchful for an opportunity to improve the value of the products under his supervision and to see that his mill hands are all equally enthusiastic in the service they may render to an "old company with a young spirit."

The present officers are: T. King, president; E. Gordon Cone, vice president, treasurer and general manager; Lloyd E. Cone, secretary; R. L. Ham, assistant treasurer.

TEN PERMITS ARE GRANTED DURING PAST WEEK BY FIRE MARSHAL TAFT

With the passing of the first week in August there was a noticeable increase in the number of building permits issued by Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft, there being ten granted for the week. However, the permits were for small work, including several garages and additions and alterations to present structures, and the amounts to be expended on the work is less than $2,000.

Local contractors were favored with good building weather during the past week and much was accomplished. A number of the dwelling houses that are under the process of construction were brought almost to the completion stage.

The house being built for Harry Diachyshyn at the corner of Elmwood avenue and Broadway by Contractor P. F. Sweeney has been brought well along, the exterior work having been completed. The work is now on the interior and it is expected that the house will be ready for occupation within a few weeks.

Contractor Sweeney has also brought the work of building the new brick business block in Montville for Pappas brothers well along during the past week. The exterior work has been completed and the heating system is now being installed by J. A. Fitzgerald.

At the new county home the work is well along, the roof being on and the brick walls completed. The steel sash is now being set in place and the work on the interior is going along rapidly.

One of the city's landmarks, the old Murphy block on West Main, was torn down during the past week. The building was condemned several years ago by Howard L. Stanton, who was the fire marshal at that time. For sometime the building has not been occupied. It is expected that a modern brick building will be erected on the site in the near future.

The building permits issued by Fire Marshal Taft are as follows:

To Frank Pasqualini, to enclose one end of the present veranda at 64 Washington street and moving one partition to make an additional room to the house. The estimated cost is $100.

To Eliza F. Haring, to build an addition, 8x16 feet, to the present frame garage at 434 Laurel Hill avenue to make a two-car garage. The estimated cost is $100.

To Frank Suminski, to cut in two dormer windows on the roof of the present frame dwelling at 240 Mohegan road. The estimated cost is $100.

To Mrs. Anna E. Janik, to build a veranda on the house at 121 Fourth street. The veranda will be erected on cement piers and will be of frame construction. The size will be 5x40 feet and one story in height. The estimated cost is $175.

To Louis Berkis, to build up the roof of his house at 18 Golden street to square off the rooms on the second floor. A new veranda will also be erected two stories in height. The estimated cost is $250.

To Joseph Quarto, to erect a frame shed on his property on Mohegan road. The shed will have a stone foundation. The estimated cost is $[illegible].

To Edward J. Gleason, to build a frame rabbit hutch at 385 Boswell avenue. The hutch will be 7x8 feet and will be covered with tar paper. The estimated cost is $12.

To Joseph Lede, to erect a frame henhouse at 125 Dunham street. The henhouse will be 10x20 feet. The estimated cost is $35.

To the Third Baptist church, to remove one partition and make slight alteration to the building. The estimated cost is $40.

To Anthony Banas, contractor, to alter the present frame house on Monroe street for Peter Wuszakewicz, and building an addition 6x10 feet to be used as an entry. There will be two windows in the entry way. The estimated cost is $75.

To Edwin Christensen, to erect a new four-car garage on Corning road to replace the one recently destroyed by fire. The garage will be 18x37 feet and will be of frame construction with cement foundation. The estimated cost is $650.

To William H. Oat, to make alteration to the building at 55 Franklin street by extending the front of the building and putting in a plate glass and brick front. The estimated cost is $500.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

There were nine sales of real estate in Norwich during the past week as compared to 12 sales during the corresponding week in 1929. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $26,524 and $37,942.

In New London during the past week there were eleven sales of real estate as compared to six sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $22,510 and $49,980.

NEW LONDON

In contrast to the general conditions throughout the state New London is not experiencing any depression in its building activities. As a matter of fact a resume of the building condition in the city show that the present work under way and contemplated compares very favorably with the conditions at this time last year and for several years back at this time.

At present there are more than 25 new houses being built in various parts of the city in addition to the several major building jobs which include the new administration building for the Connecticut college, a new heating plant for the college, the Allyn gallery of art, the Lawrence and Memorial Associated hospitals' new laundry and heating plant, the big addition to the savings banks of New London, etc. Besides these larger jobs there are many alterations and additions now under way.

The frame work is going up for a house being built for Samuel Charlop on Plant street. The house is to be of frame construction, 28 by 36 feet. It is being built from plans which provide for a single family layout and all modern improvements and conveniences including steam heat, hardwood floors, open fireplace, brass piping, automatic hot water heating and built-in fixtures.

The frame work is nearing completion on the construction of a house being built for Edgar C. Cruise in Ledyard street near Cedar Grove avenue. The new house is to be a two family structure of frame construction 26 by 32 feet. The work is being done by the day from private plans which provide for all improvements and conveniences including steam heat, hardwood floors, built in features, etc.

NUMEROUS ELECTRIC OUTLETS NEEDED

When a new home is built or an old one is remodeled, each room should be considered as it will be when finished. Take a bedroom for instance. Double lights are needed at the dressing table. An outlet is needed for a bedside lamp, another for a heating pad and a third for the curling iron. Thought must also be given to a connection for the vacuum cleaner. And what of the electric sewing machine?

Be sure to have a switch at the door so that shins will not be barked groping in the dark. All these elements of comfort may be had automatically and at small cost if a complete wiring system is specified. This provides a convenience outlet for every need and a switch accessible to every door. It gives reliable materials inside the walls as well as out

BUILDING SHOWS DECLINE DURING PAST MONTH

Construction contracts awarded during July in the thirty-seven states east of the Rocky Mountains were valued at $367,528,400, according to F. W. Dodge corporation. This was a decline of 39 per cent from the total of $600,573,400 for the previous month and a decrease of 44 per cent from the total of $652,486,100 for July 1929. There is normally some seasonal decline from June to July but in 1929 July not only showed a gain over June but was the largest July on record. For the first seven months of 1930 new construction undertaken in this territory was valued at $3,005,541,700 as compared with $3,667,982,900, for the corresponding period of 1929. The July 1930 contract record showed the following distribution as to construction types: Non-residential buildings, $168,329,600, public works and utilities, $114,866,300, and residential buildings, $84,332,500. Each of these major groups showed declines from both the previous month and July, 1929.

Of the non-residential building contracts awarded in July, $46,940,800 was for commercial buildings, $42,758,300 for educational buildings, $35,167,100 for industrial buildings, $13,947,000 for public buildings, $13,073,200 for hospitals and instrutions, $8,423,400 for social and recreational buildings, and $8,020,800 for religious and memorial buildings

Declines in July from both periods were general for each of the thirteen Dodge territories except the central northwest (Minnesota, the Dakotas, northern Michigan and nothern Wisconsin) where a gain over last year was registered. July contract awards in New England totaled $31,242,100 against $33,089,400 in the previous month and $42,623,300 in July, 1929. New construction undertaken in the metropolitan area of New York amounted to $68,861,000 as compared with $80,824,900 in the preceding month and $177,720,800 in July a year ago. Upstate New York reported July contracts at $18,411,500 against $21,456,900 for June and $42,163,600 for July, 1929. Contracts awarded in the middle Atlantic states amounted to $46,303,700 as compared with $83,202,200 in the previous month and $74,864,700 in July, 1929.

INDOOR "WEATHER" LEADS TO HEALTH

Weather "made-to-order" indoors by scientific heating apparatus will soon be a requirement of every well-equipped home to promote the health and working efficiency of the household, predicted Miss Margaret Ingels, America's first woman air-conditioning engineer, speaking last week at the home service meeting of the New England Gas association at the Hotel Griswold, New London.

Miss Ingels, who is a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, is now engaged in educational work for the Carrier-Lyle corporation of Newark, N. J., to promote a better understanding of air conditions in the modern home.

Health authorities recognize that comfort and health depend not only on the temperature of the air indoors, she pointed out in her talk, but equally on its humidity, circulation and purity, and these can only be assured by scientific regulation. At present the average home is kept warm in winter with a dry heat which increases susceptibility to disease.

"The average person in the United States has two good hard colds a year," said Miss Ingels. "Most of us think we know what gives us a cold. We think it is wet clothing or shoes, exposures or drafts, but the Eskimo has all these and still he is practically free from colds. He does not live in warm, dry air indoors. The walls of his igloo, being made of ice and snow, provide the moisture to humidify the air. When we go out of doors on cold winter days, our noses run. The nose is supplying the moisture to humidify the air before it gets to the lungs. When outdoors, the mucuous membrane is very moist. When we come indoors, the warm, dry air quickly dries the mucuous membrane, causing it to become irritated and, it is believed, a more active field for bacteria. Dry air means dustier air which is germ-laden so that more germs reach this active field for infections."

The dry air indoors not only affects our health but also our looks, Miss Ingels continued. She cited as examples the beautiful complexions of English and Irish women, who live in a more moist climate where the air has higher relative humidity, and stated that one medical authority has definitely attributed their superior complexion to this fact.

A temperature indoors of 70 degrees, with 35 to 40 per cent relative humidity is the most desirable condition for comfort and health, she said. This is based on tests carried on by the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, the United States bureau of mines and the United States public health service, which ran over a period of years and in which several hundred persons of all ages and profesions participated. Air should also be in motion, she emphasized, as this means a continual supply of new air and insures uniform conditions due to the stirring effect. Otherwise there would form around each of us a thin layer of air that would approach body temperature and this layer would act as an insulating factor and make us uncomfortable.

The human body is giving off heat all the time, Miss Ingels explained, stating that each person loses enough heat to completely evaporate a third of a pint of water an hour and that if this heat could be changed into energy, it would be sufficient to lift the person from 200 to 2400 feet in the air.

Miss Ingels said that weather-making indoors is not in the experimental stage, pointing out that controlling the temperature, humidity and air motion has proved a success in many industries and that there are some 200 kinds of products being made in air that is conditioned. She also spoke of the air conditioning in theatres and department stores to promote the comfort of patrons and of air conditioning in offices, notably the new white house executive offices.

"This new science of air conditionings is now being applied to improve the air in the home," she stated. "The importance of making the weather in which we live is slowly being realized. Controlling not only the temperature but the humidity motion and cleanliness of the air is a health measure."

PRACTICAL METHOD TO PREVENT RUST

Nothing adds age to the appearance of a house so quickly as rust. Rust frequently eats through galvanized gutters and downspouts while the house is comparatively new. Hardware often becomes pitted with rust before the house has settled in its foundation.

Rust does great injustice to an otherwise well-built house. It gives the impression that the house is much older than it actually is, or that the builder skimped on quality.

Copper, used for flashings, leaders and gutters, gives permanent protection to a house without expense for paint or repairs. Hardware of solid brass or bronze is always beautiful and serviceable. Brass pipe for hot and cold water lines earns its slight additional cost several times over because it cannot rust, thus insuring a full flow of water as clear and pure as it enters the pipe.

Exports Decreasing

Exports of lumber, logs, and shingles from British Columbia to the United States decreased, while exports of poles increased in April, 1930, as compared with April, 1929, according to a report from Consul General Ely F. Palmer, Vancouver, to the lumber division of the department of commerce.

STEEL FRAME FOR CELLAR WINDOWS

Using the basement of a home as a workshop is practicable only when provision is made to admit a maximum of light and air into this section. A dark, stuffy cellar provides not only an unpleasant atmosphere, but an unhealthy one as well

Steel framed windows have become an indispensable part of the modern basement, because of their ability to light it. Each window jamb and head member is made of one continuous piece of rust-resisting billet-steel bent at the corners. The sash and frame are so constructed that double contact weathering assures weather tightness. Two holes in each side jamb make screening a very simple task. The sash is hinged at the top to swing in; and when closed a cam-acting latch keeps it securely and efficiently locked.

These windows are procurable in four standard sizes ranging from 10 by 12 inches to 12 by 18 inches. Each is finished with one coat of protective paint. They can be easily installed in remodeling operations.

INCREASED FLOOR SPACE WITH FOLDING FURNITURE

Few vacation cottages boast of kitchens larger than ten by ten feet and when all needed equipment is in place little room is left for moving about, particularly when meals are being served. A simple and sure remedy for this is to install folding table and benches. This equipment is in sight and occupying floor space only during meal times or when it is being used as a work table. The rest of the time it is hidden away in its container which may be set onto the wall or recessed into it.

For summer homes that are more than mere cottages a more attractive set may be obtained for use in the combination living and dining room. This set is authentically Colonial in design and is finished in light walnut or painted to order. If desired the benches may be equipped with backs, making them entirely comfortable. This set hides behind French doors when not needed. The folding mechanism is simple and foolproof.

DURABILITY PARAMOUNT IN INTERIOR TRIM

The beauty of hardwood trim for the interior of a home is overshadowed only by its durability. In most of the old Colonial houses which have stood for one hundred or two hundred years, one will find woodwork, doors and door framing of chestnut or oak. The hand rail on the stairway was usually of mahogany, providing not only a beautiful architectural feature, but a permanent protection on the stair case.

Deep, even tones are produced on hardwood exterior trim more effectively by water stains, and oil stain is used mostly for doors and interior trim. Stock woodwork—jambs, door stops, mullions, etc.—is procurable in any desired marking, stain and size from local lumber yards or from building materials divisions of large mail order houses.

SMALL CLOSETS ADAPTABLE FOR EXTRA BATHROOM

If the average householder realized the small space required to contain all the essentials of a charming modern bath, or an extra water closet, doubtless many old homes which now have a single toilet and bathroom would have additional conveniences. Even if the family consists of but two persons, duplicate bathroom facilities are desirable. The desirability becomes almost a necessity in a home where there are children or where overnight guests are entertained frequently.

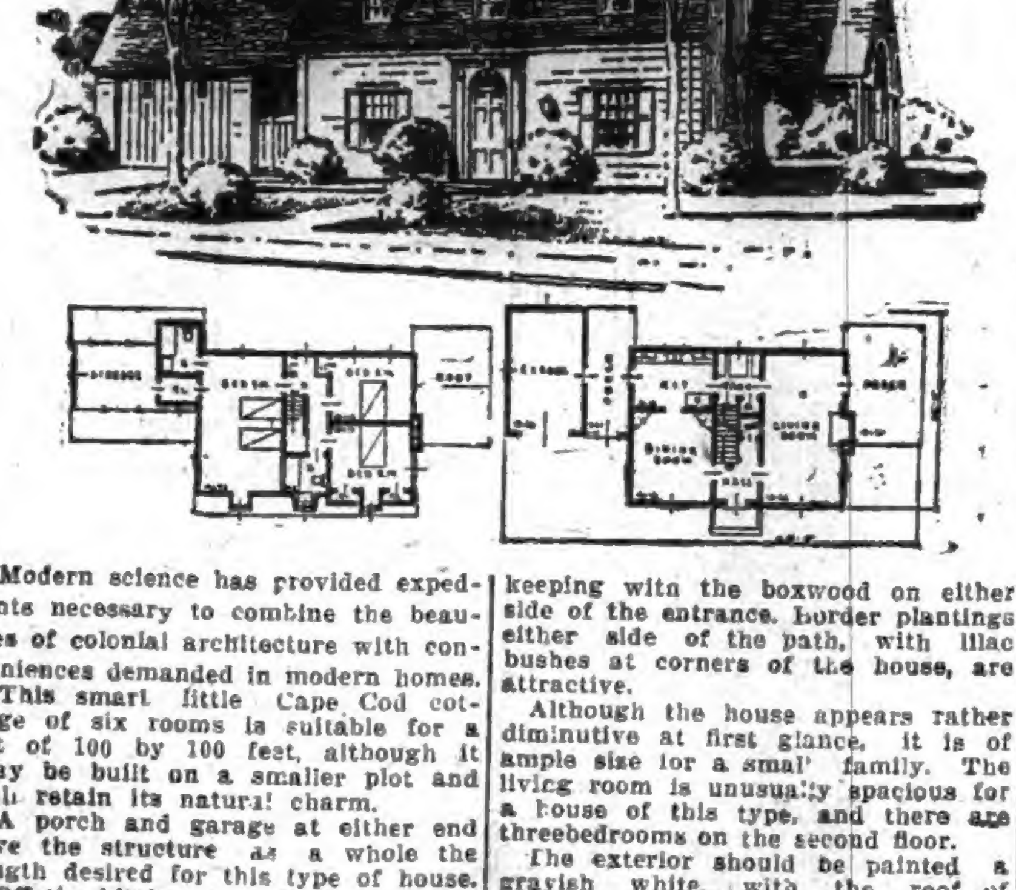
There is scarcely a dwelling-house in the county which cannot be remodeled at comparatively small expense to accomodate an extra bath or toilet. An old clothes closet or storeroom, be it only a few feet in size, is large enough for the essential appointments. A local building code, however, may require a larger area than this. A toilet separate from the bath is a great convenience.

With only a small area to work with, a skillful master plumber can find room for a bath of the built-in type, a closet, a lavatory and a dainty dressing table and chair. A medicine cabinet recessed into the wall above the lavatory will supply space for many little requirements without occupying valuable room. Towel-bars may be adjusted on either side of the lavatory, handy both to bath and washstand.

No bathroom ever has enough mirrors to satisfy every one who uses it. In a little made-over closet, it often is possible to adjust a mirror on the inside pannel of the entrance door. Space for a linen press might be found in an adjacent hall.

Of course, more appurtenances and conveniences may be installed if the closet or store room to be remodeled is larger than the one described. A shower in a separate compartment, a bidet, towel-warmers, and a dental lavatory might be added to the equipment mentioned.

FAMILY'S NEEDS ANSWERED IN THIS COTTAGE



Modern science has provided expedients necessary to combine the beauties of colonial architecture with conveniences demanded in modern homes.

This smart little Cape Cod cottage of six rooms is suitable for a lot of 100 by 100 feet, although it may be built on a smaller plot and still retain its natural charm.

A porch and garage at either end give the structure as a whole the length desired for this type of house.

Off the kitchen is a dining alcove, a closet and the entrance to the basement. In corners of the dining room are two cupboards that help to carry out the space-saving idea.

The front of the house, whose simplicity adds to its general attractiveness, should face west, leaving the porch on the south side.

Landscaping in front should be in keeping with the boxwood on either side of the entrance. Border plantings either side of the path, with lilac bushes at corners of the house, are attractive.

Although the house appears rather diminutive at first glance, it is of ample size for a small family. The living room is unusually spacious for a house of this type, and there are three bedrooms on the second floor.

The exterior should be painted a grayish white, with the roof of weathered shingles in one of several shades that are suitable. All interior walls are papered, with woodwork pointed white.

Cost of building naturally will vary in different sections, but in most average-sized communities it will run between $8,000 and $10,000, depending largely on charges for materials and labor.

CHOOSING EVERGREENS

The growing habits of the evergreens you intend to buy for your home grounds should have every careful consideration, says The American Home. This refers especially to the foundation planting, and many of the attractive little pines and spruces that look so tempting at the nursery, are rapid growers, and after a few years will mar rather than enhance the appearance of your home. Dwarf varieties are more expensive, but that is because it takes so much longer for them to reach marketable size. If therefore, economy is essential, plant the dwarfs in groups about the foundation and fill out the spaces with less expensive material that can be moved to another location when it grows too tall. Among the dwarfs which are recommended we find the Mugho pine, which grows only 2 to 4 feet tall, Canada hemlock, Gregory's spruce, dwarf Japanese yew. Savin juniper and Canada yew.

DRYING THE GARDEN

It is a comparatively simple matter to water a garden that is dry, but it is not nearly so simple to dry a garden that is too wet, says The American Home. It can be done very effectively, however, and at the same time in a way to make the garden more attractive. The problem is solved by filling in a few loads of earth which should be held in place by a low rock wall or border. The earth always is procurable and not too expensive. Plants which could not flourish in the original soggy soil become strong and healthy in their raised bed, while rock plants set along the rock wall add a new beauty to the location and provide two styles of gardening instead of one.

Prevent Furniture Damage

Crackling, peeling and blistering of furniture is largely due to the lack of moisture in the home. This can be overcome by one or more methods. Humidifying pans placed on top or in back of all radiators will aid considerably. Electrically operated air moisteners and humidifiers will help. Newer types of heating systems are equipped with automatic fans that keep the air humidified and in constant circulation. Creams and polishes that are absorbed by the wood preserve and beautify.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

The Old Orchard Is Quite Upset

There's trouble brewing, all can see,
When neighbors can't or won't agree.
—Old Mother Nature.

The Old Orchard was quite upset. At least, the people who lived there were quite upset. You see, there was a great deal of disagreement. Some said one thing and some said another. It was all because Peter Rabbit had told some one that he thought he had seen a black Chipmunk on the old stone wall. That some one had told some one else, and so the story had traveled. Like most stories that travel, it grew. The farther it went the bigger it grew. You see, no two told the story just alike. So finally the story became not a story of a Chipmunk but the story of a big, black stranger living in the old stone wall.

Of course, the boldest of the people living in the Old Orchard went looking for this stronger. Because of their wings, the feathered folk felt quite safe. The result was that, during most of the hours of daylight, one or more of the bird folk sat where they could watch the old stone wall. Most of them saw nothing unusual. Two or three, however, caught glimpses of some one or something as black as night, popping in and out between the stones of the old wall.

"It was Striped Chipmunk," declared Sammy Jay. "He has fallen into something and become all black."

"No such thing!" declared Welcome Robin, who never can agree with Sammy Jay. "I saw Striped Chipmunk this morning myself and there was nothing black about him. He was wearing his striped coat just as usual."

"Do you mean to tell me that I don't know what I see?" demanded Sammy Jay angrily. "I tell you I saw Striped Chipmunk early this morning and he was as black as the blackest of Black Shadows."

"Did you speak with him?" demanded Rosebreast the Grosbeak.

"No," replied Sammy. "I didn't have a chance. He dodged out of sight as son as he saw me."

"Then how do you know it was Striped Chipmunk?" persisted Rosebreast.

"I guess I know a Chipmunk when I see one!" retorted Sammy Jay.

Just then the voice of Striped Chipmunk was heard and instantly there was a rush to see him, for they wanted to settle this dispute once for all. But when they reached the place from which Striped Chipmunk's voice had come he wasn't there. So the feathered folk were no wiser than before and they at once began arguing again.

"It was Striped Chipmunk," declared Sammy Jay

This went on for two or three days and there was a great deal of ill-feeling among the feathered folk in the Old Orchard. Some declared that they had seen Striped Chipmunk and that he wore his usual striped coat. Some declared that they had had glimpses of him and that he was all black. But, somehow, no one had a chance to talk to him. It was only glimpses that they had. It seemed as if Striped Chipmunk was more retiring than usual.

Peter Rabbit spent a great deal of time sitting around among the bushes that grow along the old stone wall. Somehow, he always sat in the wrong place. If he was at one end of the wall he would hear Striped Chipmunk at the other end. When he hurried down there Striped Chipmunk had always disappeared. It was just as if Striped Chipmunk was trying to keep out of sight; and yet there was no reason in the world why he should.

POETRY

The Portrait of a Child

Unconscious of amused and tolerant eyes,
He sits among his scattered dreams, and plays.
True to no one thing long; running for praise
With something les than half begun, He tries
To build his blocks against the furthest skies.
They fall; his soldiers tumble; but he stays.
And plans and struts and laughs at fresh dismays—
Too confident and busy to be wise
His toys are towns and temples; his commands
Bring forth vast armies trembling at his nod.
He shapes and shatters with impartial hands
And, in his crude and tireless play he sees
The savage, the creator, and the god.
All that man was and all he hopes to be.
—Louis Untermeyer.

A Leader

Though your eyes with tears were blind,
Pain upon the path you trod;
Well we knew, the hosts behind.
Voice and shining of a god.

For your darkness was our day;
Signal fires, your pains untold
Lit us on our wandering way
To the mystic heart of gold.
Naught we knew of the high land,
Beauty burning in its spheres;
Sorrow we could understand
And the mystery told in tears.
—A. R.

Workmen engaged upon an excavating job in Berlin suburban park dug up several old broken urns, but because they did not realize their value they were not careful in handling the fragile vessels and most of them were ruined. The curator of a Berlin museum examined the pieces and estimated the age of the urns at more than 3,000 years. Some of the urns were filled with ashes, and in view of this it is believed that the park marks the site of an ancient burial ground. Further excavation under the supervision of scientists is now being undertaken.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

A secret code gave the author his inspiration for the title of "Three Faces East," the Warner Brothers and Vitaphone spy melodrama now current at Warner's Broadway theatre, featuring Eric von Stroheim and Constance Bennett.

According to William von Brincken, former German secret service agent, who plays a Prussian officer in the picture, the title of the film is a colloquial expression designating an agent's secret number.

Letters representing directions on the compass, were in the majority of cases, used to designate the various spies.

Therefore as the letters represented directions as North, South, East and west, the code words "Three Faces East," means E-3, the number of a mysterious and celebrated German Intelligence officer in the picture.

Both Constance Bennett and Eric von Stroheim play the roles of spy in "Three Faces East," which is adapted for the talking screen from the Anthony Paul Kelly stage play of the same name. Oliver H. P. Garrett write the screen play.

William Courtenay, Anthony Bushell, Crauford Kent, Charlotte Walker, William Holden and others complete the cast, Roy del Ruth directed.

Palace Theatre.

True as the great open spaces which it picturizes, "Way Out West" is a howling farce which has swept Palace theatre audiences off their feet during the two days it has already played at this popular Warner Brothers' theatre.

William Haines is the debonair and carefree hero of this drama. When we first meet William, he is Windy, a barker in a circus which is playing at a small western town. Windy runs a roulette wheel and it's as crooked as a country road. But the cowboys don't know that. Joyously they risk their money unaware that the wheel doesn't give them any more chance than a can of Flit gives a mosquito.

Windy cleans them out cold-broke, and they go away disconsolately. Windy is jubilant, but his joy changes to something like desperation when the cowboys, learning that they have been flim-flammed, come back to get him. In the meantime, a circus dancer, the wily La Belle Rosa, grabs the money and takes it on the run. As a consequence Windy has nothing when the cow punchers tramp in to demand the return of their cash.

For a while it looks like a rope for Windy's neck, but in the end the cowboys decide that there are better ways of getting even with him. They talk it over and decide to bring Windy back to the ranch, put him to work and then take his pay away from him every week until they have made up their losses. Windy goes with them. He couldn't very well help himself. And so he became a cowboy and what a cowboy! Even the steers died laughing. And the harder Windy tried the worse he became.

Starting Thursday the Palace will present to its patrons a smart and powerful new drama, "Sins of the Children," starring Louis Mann and a host of other stars.

A delicious chicken dinner was served at noon, and in the evening an appetizing clam chowder, with ice cream, custards and soda was enjoyed. During the outing an enjoyable entertainment program was given; piano selections being played by Miss Florence Paquette and Palmer Gagnon; and harmonica selections by Miss Paquette and Archie Paquette. Those present at the affair were Miss Florence Paquette, Ernest Gagnon, Miss Alma Paquette, Miss Loretta Gagnon, Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Paquette, Archie, Maurice and Jeanette Paquette, Mr. and Mrs. Calin Breault, Mr. and Mrs. Raoul Blanchard and Palmer Gagnon of Taftville; Victor Archambeault of Norwich; Fred Costello of Westerly, R. Hansel Thurlow won the under water race with a distance of 118 feet, and Eddie Martin was second with 115 feet. A ball game was arranged with some of the promising players of Glasgow, and the local boys scored a victory in an eleven inning game by the score of 13 to 3.

UNUSUAL DISPLAY OF PAINTINGS AT MYSTIC

More than ever this year one is aware of a vital uniformity in the quality of the work shown at the sixth annual exhibition of the society of Mystic artists, at Mystic.

The big gallery contains the larger oil paintings. The long wall is dominated by the memorial group of work by the late Sherman Potts, former vice president of the society and late president of the American Society of Miniature Painters. "Jane and Charles" smile their approval. You know that "John Porter" and "Sam Rathbun" of Noank looked just so. "After Service" is a charming expression of a New England Sabbath. The "Still Life" is a pleasant arrangement in cool rose and grey and amber. "Katherine, Sewing" and "Sunshine" are equally interesting.

Robert Brackman's figure paintings are of great importance to the success of the room. Strong and individual, they command attention. "Portrait Arrangement" is handsome in pattern and the somber beauty of its color; "Girls Reading," equally interesting, is skillful.

As usual, Kenneth Bates presents a delightfully original note. "April" is well expressed in the figure of a working man, stopped over the furrows of the spring earth, himself strongly pertaining to the earth; a budding tree and a horse and plow complete the arrangement. The other canvas, "Deer in a Graveyard," is a remarkable composition: old New England gravestones, a deer among them, a keen sense of relation between sky and earth. It has a strong modern feeling quite its own.

Carl Lawless is represented with four brilliant paintings. "Winter Evening" is a glowing canvas, with a rippling icy stream and long twilight shadows; "Reflected Sun," a vivid snowy landscape, blue hils and shimmering sun-splashed water. "Batik and Porcelain," a happy conception, is painted with quite uncanny skill. "The Village," shows a hill, tree and houses, combining to form a striking canvas. The two portraits by Agnes Lincoln, "The Flute Player," and "The Little Grey Girl" are a welcome new note in this room.

Peter Marcus shows two still lifes, each termed simply, "Floral," one of mixed summer flowers, the other of gladioli.

Harrie Wood has rendered a watermelon so startling real that one can almost feel the juiciness. Other still lifes of great merit are those of Paulette van Roekens, Arthur Meltzer and Josephine Gerner Raul. The former has painted "And the Little Brown Jug" with brilliant brush work and a keen sense of humor. Meltzer's "Home Pride" is an interesting balance of gleaming copper and dull black stove with contrasting delicacy of glass-ware above. "Poquessing Bridge," also by Meltzer, is typical of Pennsylvania in one of her charming moods, grey of sky, with icy brook and old stone house. "Mason's Island Moonrise," by Lester Boronda, shows a bit of Connecticut, with its hillsides and a graceful tree against a pale moonrise.

"Sails in the Wind," by Nat Little, is a decorative painting, cool and crisp, with the feeling of the sea in late summer. J. Havard Macpherson contributes two canvases; one "Kitchen Window," an arrangement of white house and automobile and tree, with their strong shadows, the other a decorative still life of iris and birds against the light. The boat canvases of Lars Thorsen are always of interest to lovers of the sea, as are those of G. Albert Thompson, who shows this year a little canvas against a glowing sky. This he calls "Rising Mist."

Ernest Barnes has two canvases of Mystic. Stephen Macomber's portrait called "Lully Goon" is interestingly expressive in character. Two canvases by Herbert Stoops have the feeling of the marshy inlet and dark trees that they portray; Mitchell presents bright pattering trees, and Grinnell shows a poetic hillside, "Winter Morning." There is also a still life and a breezy canvas of fluttering sailboats by Joseph and a sunny little homestead by Marni Davis.

Small Grass Fire.

Little damage resulted from a grass fire at 9:48 o'clock Monday morning on land owned by Mrs. Jane Henderson off Boswell avenue. It was the third call received by the fire department this month. The blaze is believed to have been started by boys playing with matches.

Left Estate to Daughter-in-Law

The bulk of the estate of Ashley T. Boon, late of Franklin street, whose will was admitted to probate Monday morning, is left to his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Minnie Boon of this city. Mrs. Boon qualified as executrix and John H. Bell were and John H. R. Bell were named appraisers.

4-H CAMP COUNCIL HELD MEETING MONDAY MORNING

The New London County 4-H camp opened Sunday afternoon with a total enrollment of 62 boys and girls and six leaders. The group is well divided with 29 girls and 33 boys. After reporting to the headquarters tent all the campers met their individual leaders and arranged their cots. There was quite a bit of excitement in the tents because they were so hot but from all reports, Monday morning, everyone wrote home for three blankets. At six o'clock each person took his or her tin plate and waited in line for supper. The first night's meal consisted of Norwegian salad, butter and rolls, orangeade and watermellon. After eating there was a grand rush for the dish pans because each one had to wash his own dishes.

A very enjoyable campfire was held at 7:30 with group singing led by A. J. Brundage, the state club leader. After a few announcements the rest of the time was spent in challenges. These consisted of pillow fights, freckled contest and harmonica contest. These were issued by different groups, each consisted of one boys' tent and one girls' tent. The first challenge was the repeating of the club pledge which was won by group 4.

The pillow fights were won by Clara Davoll and Billie Wilcox from group 1. The freckled faced contest was won by Harold Gray of group 1, and the harmonica contest was won by Mary Lewis of group 4. Paul Holdridge of group 11, won the tallest contest and Gertrude Lathrop of group 4 was the shortest girl. The final results are: Group 1, 3 points; group 4, 3 points, and group 11 has one point.

The first morning in camp everyone was doing a "jig" in order to get relief from the cold. The morning dip was certainly dreaded but after getting into the water it was hard to get them out.

There was a meeting of camp council Monday mornnig with Edna Lamb in charge. The other members are William Wilcox, Edwin Lowe Gilbert Hagen, Edgar Leroux, Ruth Hart, Lois Woodmansee, Margery Webster and Mary Lewis. They have decided to give demerits for the following offenses: Ten demerits for not swimming in morning; ten demerits for breaking camp property; ten demerits for being absent or tardy from classes; ten demerits for late for any formation; ten demerits for disorder in tents or lines; ten demerits for bathing suits not hanging on line; ten demerits for littering the camp.

They also decided to give a banner to the group which has the best looking tent and table. Group 1 received it for Monday.

FINED FOR DRIVING WITH DEFECTIVE BRAKES

Russel Theus, 23, a sailor aboard the U. S. S. Fanning, was found guilty of driving a machine equipped with defective brakes, in the city court Monday morning. He was fined $5 and costs. A charge of failure to show his operator's license upon request was nolled. The sailor was arrested Sunday evening by State Police Officer Arthur Kathe of the Groton barracks after an accident on the Norwich-New London highway near Uncas-on-Thames.

The machine driven by Theus crashed into the rear end of a car operated by Miss Isabelle Roser of New London when the latter stopped in the highway. The New London machine had its rear bumper and trunk damaged. Both machines were traveling toward Norwich. Miss Roser made the claim that the sailor refused to allow her to see his operator's license, but this the sailor denied. Officer Kathe found that Theus was driving a car with faulty brakes and arrested him.

NICHOLAS MOONEY FINED FOR ILLEGAL PARKING

At the session of the city court Monday morning Nicholas Mooney, local taxi proprietor, was presented on a charge of violation of the traffic rules and fined $5 and costs. Mooney, arrested Sunday evening by Officer Joseph Gendron following an accident, is said to have parked his machine over 12 inches from the curbing on Washington street near the square. As a result, two machines, operated by Charles Chey of Fairmount street and John A. Johnson of 357 Prospect street, Hartford, collided. The charge was made that Mooney's machine had been parked in the street from early afternoon until 7 o'clock in the evening.

MAYOR WALKER OF NEW YORK IN THE ROLE OF A WITNESS

Testified That if Former Magistrate George P. Ewald Paid Anyone $12,000 in the Belief It Was Necessary to Get His Appointment He Wasted His Money—The Mayor Said Ewald's Name Was Presented to Him by the Steuben Society—No Political Leader Had Interceded in Ewald's Behalf.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12—(AP)—Mayor Walker told District Attorney Crain today that if former Magistrate George P. Ewald paid anyone $12,000 in the belief it was necessary to get his appointment he wasted the money.

"If he voluntarily contributed any money for that appointment," the mayor said, after outlining the steps leading to Ewald's selection, "he might just as well have thrown it in a sewer for all the good it did him."

The mayor said Ewald's name was presented to him by the Steuben society and that he made personal inquiry of his friends as to his fitness. Convinced that he would make a good magistrate, partly because of Ewald's previous service in the district attorney's office, the mayor said he appointed him to the bench. He denied that George W. Olvany, former Tammany leader, or any other political leader interceded in Ewald's behalf.

Preceding Mayor Walker in Mr. Crain's office was Emerich Boczor, an Austrian and for several years private secretary without pay, to Ewald. Boczor said Ewald told him he paid $12,000 for his appointment, $10,000 of which went to Martin J. Healy, Tammany leader of the 19th district and suspended deputy commissioner of plant and structures.

Boczor, who said he worked without pay on Ewald's promise to secure him a good political job, declared his duties were to call on other judges with messages regarding cases before them, and to deposit money for Ewald.

In explaining the background of the case to Mayor Walker, Mr. Crain said Mrs. Ewald loaned Thomas T. Tommaney, chief clerk to Sheriff Farley, $10,000 which Tommaney in turn loaned to Healy, without receiving any promissory note or receipt. Mr. Crain called the transaction an "unusual one."

The investigation was started by United States Attorney Tuttle, who uncovered information relating to the loan in his investigation into Cotter Butte Mines, Inc., an inquiry which led to the indictment of Ewald, his brother and two others for mail fraud.

MEAGRE RETURNS FROM FIVE STATE PRIMARIES

(By the Associated Press)

The first glimpse at scattering returns in five state primary contests last night showed the following standings:

Senator George W. Norris, independent republican leader in the senate, was leading in a close race for renomination on the republican ticket in Nebraska against William M. Stebbins, "regular" candidate, by 3,938 to 3,974 in 66 of the 2,030 precincts.

In the Ohio democratic race, an advocate for repeal of the prohibition amendment, Robert J. Bulkley, of Cleveland, held a big advantage over four opponents for the senate nomination but an avowed dry, George W. White, held a two to one lead in the contest for the gubernatorial nomination over Stephen M. Young, a wet.

Senator Joe T. Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader and vice presidential candidate with Alfred E. Smith in 1928, had more than a three to one advantage over Tom W. Campbell. Robinson is championing national prohibition.

John H. Bankhead, Jasper attorney, was leading Frederick I. Thompson, Mobile publisher, in the Alabama democratic primary to select an opponent to Senator Heflin, who must run as an independent because of his failure to support Smith in 1928.

The run-off primary in Oklahoma to determine the democratic candidates for the senate and governor gave Thomas P. Gore, former senator, a lead over C. J. Wrightsman, Tulsa oil man, of 18,157 to 10,615 in 309 of 3,325 precincts. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray had 23,903 to 13,367 for Frank Buttram in the gubernatorial contest.

ARGENTINA MODIFIES EMBARGO ON APPLES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12. — (AP) — American Ambassador Bliss at Buenos Aires advised the state department today that Argentina has suspended for this year the decree requiring the importation of apples in containers different from the standards under former regulations.

After a conference between acting Secretary of State Carr and Senator Swanson, democrat, Virginia, whose state was one of the principal ones affected by the regulations, the department asked the Argentine government to modify its regulatory decree of May 14.

Under this decree, importations in barrels and bulk containers was forbidden and a box different from the prescribed standard required. The new regulation does not apply to other fruits.

The suspending decree said in view of the communication from the United States setting forth the impossibility for exporters of apples to comply with the dispositions of the decree, for the importation of apples from this country packed in barrels is authorized during the current year.

FARMHAND CONFESSED KILLING OF AGED COUPLE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 12.—(AP)—Warren L. Bishop, assistant district attorney of Middlesex county, tonight said Joe Stefanosky had confessed to the killing of Mr. and Mrs. William Stefanovicz, who employed him as a farmhand in Stow.

The confession as reported by Bishop was that at 11 a. m., June 11, Stefanosky and Stefanovicz went into a pasture on the farm to attend a sick cow. Stefanosky struck his employer several times on the head with a birch club while his back was turned. WASHINGTON, Aug. 12. —(AP)—A general modification of the Mediterranean fruit fly quarantine which will permit shipment of fruit into the northeastern and middlewestern sections of the country without sterilization was announced today by Secretary Hyde.

The restriction on vegetable shipments also will be modified. Under the new regulations tomatoes, egg plants, and lima beans may be moved throughout the country without sterilization. Peppers, however, will be required to be sterilized if moved to the south and far west.

Shipments of fruit to the southern and western states, with the exception of limes, must be sterilized as at present. Under the new regulations, however, shipments to the south and west may be continued throughout the year instead of being limited to the winter months.

Believe Aged Couple Victims Of Gangsters

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kern of St. Louis Missing—Had Bank Draft for $70,000.

DEFIANCE, Ohio, Aug. 12—(AP)—Believed by police to be victims of an unknown fate at the hands of St. Louis gangsters, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kern, an aged and prominent St. Louis couple who had a $70,000 bank draft in their possession, were sought by authorities tonight after they left a railroad train here today and mysteriously disappeared in an automobile.

Detectives were working on a theory that Mr. and Mrs. Kern were persuaded by glib-tongued gangsters impersonating good citizens, to quit the train and continue their journey from St. Louis to Toledo by automobile, and that they were kidnaped. The detectives' theory was that Mr. and Mrs. Kern then were robbed.

Kern, a wealthy St. Louis flour buyer, and his wife, left St. Louis last night on a Wabash train. They had intended to use the money for a real estate transaction in Toledo today, but did not keep their appointment in the latter city.

The money was withdrawn from a St. Louis bank yesterday. Kern first asked for his entire deposits of $90,000 and wanted it in $5,000 bills. J. Hugh Powers, vice president of the bank, and detectives there persuaded Kern, who is 70, to take $70,000 in a negotiable bank draft instead.

When Kern left St. Louis, word was sent to Toledo detectives to meet him on arrival and to endeavor to protect him. During the train trip he received two telegrams, one urging him to leave the train at Forty Wayne, Ind., to meet a group of persons. Mr. and Mrs. Kern did not act on that telegram, but spoiled the plans for a protective reception at Toledo by quietly leaving the train at Defiance.

Several persons saw the aged couple enter an automobile with three men. At that time they apparently were acting of their own will. No trace was found of them after the automobile, a sedan with an Illinois license was driven away. Toledo detectives opened the investigation shortly after the Wabash train arrived with the couple missing.

The huge slide came without warning, thousands of tons of rocks and mud tumbling down the steep mountainside into the canyon.

TRIBAL UNREST SPREADING IN NORTHWEST INDIA

PESHAWAR, August 12—(AP)—The spirit of tribal unrest appears to be spreading on the northwestern frontier, with British forces tightening the defense by increasing aerial bombing operations and rushing fresh troops northward.

Most of the Afridis who have been besieging this strategic city for a week have withdrawn under constant bombing, but meager reports from the countryside indicate that they have spread in all directions and that all branches of the tribe have taken up arms.

An indeterminate number of Orakazis has joined the Afridis. A party identified as Massozais attacked Badama post Saturday and the Chamkennis were on the war path until the air force informed them that their own village would be bombed unless they ceased their depredations.

Peshawar itself was quiet today and apparently most of the assailants have withdrawn under heavy bombing. One party attacked the cantonments last night, however, inflicting a scattering rifle fire that did no damage. They withdrew at dawn.

Meanwhile, fresh troops arrived today on an armored train from Lahore. The city gates were opened for it, but ordinary trains must stop at Nowshera and the passengers continue here by taxicab.

HELD IN CONNECTION WITH PROVIDENCE AIR BOMBING

Paul Montgomery, Air Pilot, Under Arrest at Murphysboro, Ill.—In Jail to Await Extradition to Kentucky to Face a Felony Warrant—Montgomery Maintains That He Did Not Even Know of the Air Raid Until Informed of It by Newspaper Man.

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., Aug. 12.—(AP)—Circumstantial evidence tonight pointed an accusing finger at Paul Montgomery, 24-year-old Murphysboro aviator, arrested today in connection with yesterdays air raid on the Providence, Ky., coal mining district in which nine bombs were dropped from an airplane. Authorities indicated other arrests were in prospect.

In jail here to await extradition to Kentucky to face a felony warrant issued at Dixon, Ky., Montgomery steadfastly maintained innocence of any connection with the bombing. He said he did not even know of the air raid until informed of it by newspaper men.

He admitted having made an early morning flight yesterday, but said he went alone and flew in the vicinity of Pinckeyville, in the opposite direction from Providence. The Kentucky town is about 90 miles southeast of here.

But Sheriff William Flanigan announced he obtained affidavits this afternoon from two Murphysboro girls, Clara Paul and Evelyn Fleming, in which they said they had accompanied Montgomery to the airport here early yesterday and saw him take off with a man passenger unknown to them. Some of the persons who saw the plane that did the bombing said two men were in it.
